When the great Civil War was raging and thousands of men were engaged in the mighty conflict; when the shop, the mill, the mine and the fields were depopulated to such an extent that laborers were few, the prices of the commodities of life increased. Today we are at peace, the machinery in the shop and mill is tended by thousands of willing workers, the miner digs industriously, and skilled husbandmen are tilling the soil and gathering abundant harvests. Nevertheless, the prices of the products of the shop, the mill, the mine, and the field are soaring. The following table of prices is taken from the Times-Dispatch, Richmond, Va. The war-time prices are from the Index-Appeal, a reliable authority on the Civil War:

War Time.	Articles.	Now.
$4.10	Flour	$7.75.
14c a pound	Pork	18-20c a pound.
3 3-4c a pound	Hams	20-28c a pound.
8-12c a pound	Lard	12 1-2c a pound.
15-20c a pound	Butter	30-35c a pound.
14c a pound	Cheese	35c a pound.
10-18c a pound	Sugar	6-7c a pound.
30-35c a gal.	Molasses	32-38c a gal.
6 1-2c a pound	Beef	15c a pound.
5c a pound	Shoulders	20c a pound.
13-16c a pound	Coffee	25-40c a pound.

The trusts are responsible for the prices now, and the same trusts are giving battle to the unions in their effort to increase wages.

The Columbus Socialist Can Accomplish Like Results.

In April, 1895, the Socialists of the east side of New York started a little Socialist daily in the Jewish language. The name of this daily is "The Forward." Its circulation grew so rapidly during the last five years that it was found necessary to abandon the five-story building at 175 Broadway, and secure more commodious quarters.

The comrades went to WORK. They bought the adjoining lot, 173 Broadway, tore down the old building and next April, 15 years after starting, they will move into and dedicate to HUMANITY a magnificent 10-story building covering both lots. The paper will occupy the basement, subbasement, main floor, and skylight covered composing room on the top floor; second floor devoted exclusively to Socialist meeting places, for propaganda work, and all intermediate floors will be used by UNION LABOR organizations for offices and meeting places.

The daily circulation of "The Forward" is now 120,000, proven by rigid investigation by an advertising agency.

Some idea of the widespread influence of this Socialist paper may be understood when it is known that it sells an average of 5,000 copies daily in Chicago, and that it prints a special Philadelphia edition.

The Jewish members of "The Forward Association" which issues the paper, it is necessary to be a member of some trade union, a Socialist, and pay dues of $1.00 per year.

The first issue of "The Forward" was a four-page, six column affair.

At one time the publisher nailed a notice on the door announcing that "This paper has suspended because of the lack of support of its friends."

Then was shown the courage of the comrades. At this juncture an enthusiastic youth in the audience that had come together to devise means to continue the publication arose and said: "The only way to succeed is to succeed. Let's go ahead and increase the size of the paper and go ahead or smash."

That was the beginning of the end. From despair, almost to a 10-story building and 120,000 daily circulation. Comrades, what can we do? We need a plant. How can we get it? Let's talk it over. We have the opportunity to help ourselves and our comrades. Let's do it, and do it now. It is necessary.

Socialists Denied Rights.

It seems that the election authorities do not propose to recognize the Socialist party at all.

In a ruling given Monday, and which will be sent to every election board in the state, Secretary of State Graves, state supervisor of elections, tells how it is to be ascertained which is the dominant party in each election precinct in the state.

The presiding judge of the precinct must be chosen from the dominant party, and because of this it is imperative that there be no question as to how it is to be determined which party this is.

Following a ruling given by former Attorney General U. G. Denman, Mr. Graves holds that the dominant party in the precinct is the one which cast the most votes for governor in the general election in 1910. If Harmon carried the precinct, then the presiding judge will be chosen from the Democratic party, but if Harding carried the precinct, then the presiding judge will be taken from the Republican party.

What about the hundreds of precincts in Ohio in which the Socialist ticket received the most votes? Is there any justice or common decency in ignoring so many voters? In Columbus the two old parties are at a loss to find officials to serve on election boards, but the bosses declare that no Socialist can serve. Gentlemen, you may ignore us just now, but there is coming a day soon when you will not.

Two Splendid Socialist Meetings Held Last Sunday.

Campaign Is "Opened" Once More. --- People Are Anxious to Hear and Read.

The Socialist campaign "opening" last Sunday afternoon was a double-header, with batteries at Goodale and Schiller Parks. Comrade Allen Cook, of Canton, and Ella Reeve Bloor spoke at each place to thousands of enthusiastic hearers and gave magnificent addresses that were cheered to the echo. It is not necessary to attempt a report of their speeches, and it is only necessary to say that the local politicians have tried to gang in and beginning to realize that these crowded [illegible] of zealous workers in the wards and precincts of this city, who are agitating every day not for pay, but for the glorious hope of the coming co-operative commonwealth.

Comrade Cook had never spoken here before, but captured the crowd with his sound logic and keen satire. Mrs. Bloor really belongs to us in Columbus and always makes good. Comrade J. W. Slayton was obliged to cancel his dates here and Comrade C. O. Strickland has taken his place the past week.

Of the speakers named, several [illegible] Mayor, spoke at both meetings. We reproduce his address in part:

Comrade Eby's Speech.

Comrades and Friends: It gives me great pleasure to be here today and to be able to do something that is of some value, not only to the Socialist movement, but that will help to emancipate the human race from wage slavery. You have gathered here, no doubt, for many purposes, but chief among those purposes is your desire to know more about the great question of Socialism now confronting the people, not only of this city, state and nation, but of the entire civilized world, because Socialism is not a local question, but a question that reaches as far and wide as civilization itself. The Socialist party came into existence at a time when it was necessary for the working class to adopt some other method of self-defense than the simple industrial strike, because it is becoming more and more a recognized fact among the working class that it is futile to depend upon force alone in combating Capitalism because the Capitalist Class being in control of the powers that be, with the courts, the police force, the state militia, the army and navy, at their command, it is useless to maintain that the working class can acquire their freedom industrially by the methods alone that they have been using in the past. There is only one possible way to accomplish the results desired by the working class. That is by united action on the political field and in so doing, capture the reins of government by electing the direct representatives of the working class to all the law-making bodies of the country and to all the offices which control the army, the navy, the militia and the police force. In this way the working class can capture the guns of the nation and eventually the world and not use them on the other fellow, but prevent the other fellow from using them on the working class any longer.

VOTING FOR GOOD MEN.

In the past the working class have been told to vote for good men and they have had plenty of men announce how good they were and how much they loved the worker, the salt of the earth, etc., but after they had been elected to the much coveted office, it seemed that no relief was ever in sight for the down-trodden working class who have been blinded so many times in the past by the smooth and sleek politician, who has always stood for the capitalist system and has most always been in the employ or under the control of one or the other of the capitalist political machines. It has made no difference whether the good man running on the Democratic ticket or the good man running on the Republican ticket has been elected, he always has stood for the continuation of the present system and therefore it has been and is yet impossible to give the working class justice as long as the present system of Capitalism exists; because the capitalist system is founded entirely upon the taking of rent, interest and profit from the workers. Now if profit is right, then profit is right, and then there is no use talking any further, but we maintain and can prove that profit is not right. I say if five per cent profit is right, then 500 per cent is also right, if you can get it.

It makes no difference whether you kill a man by bleeding him to death, by cutting a small artery, or whether you cut a large artery; the only difference is in the length of time required to kill the man; it is murder just the same. There is no place to draw the line between right and wrong; the two are opposites and cannot by any law of nature be reconciled.

THE ROBBING SYSTEM.

When anyone is in possession of wealth that they did not produce, it is evident that some one has produced wealth that they did not get, and the simple fact that they are not in possession of the wealth that they have produced, shows that the producers have been robbed. This robbing process is going on to an extent that is astounding. The producer is today getting less than 17 per cent of the retail value of his labor. Do you think it is possible under such an unequal distribution for the worker to do more than simply exist? He has hardly enough to buy the simple necessities of life, let alone the luxuries, which he is entitled to, because he has produced them. The mission of the Socialist party is to correct this

The State Institutions Scandal.

The recent developments in the commissary department at the State Penitentiary and the State Hospital for the Insane prove the allegations recently printed in "The Socialist" to be true. Perhaps it would be well for the State Board to find out who was responsible for the appointment of these grafters. We wish to call attention to the fact that THE LAW BREAKING BOLT CONTRACTORS are still doing business in spite of the WERTZ LAW. It might be well for the State authorities to inquire into the purchase of MILITARY SUPPLIES. Few of the citizens know that we have armories in this and other Ohio cities, stocked with meats and other supplies, and the question is being asked WHAT BECOMES OF THESE SUPPLIES? There is something rotten and the stench is rising in the air. Most of the meat and fish purchased for the State institutions could have been labeled "decayed matter."

Police Chief Carter Demands Imprisonment of Women Strikers.

Police Chief Carter has demanded that the lady pickets who are doing duty at the Meyers Scabbery be given a WORKHOUSE SENTENCE because they refused to be called street walkers by the inmates of the scabbery. By his action Chief Carter has declared against the rights of the workers to PICKET and receive the protection of the civil authorities while so doing. His actions may some day prove disastrous to the community. Organized labor does not want to be petted or favored, but we do demand pure unadulterated justice when we are dragged into court by the "MASTER'S VOICE."

We realize the responsibility of being called upon to preserve the peace of the community and the realization of this fact should make the men intrusted with this unique power broad in the judgment of things that come under their observation. Strikes are miserable social circumstances. It's a quarrel between two parties from windows across the street. Men of broad minds balance things by their circumstances and environments and the police chief who is incapable of so doing has no right to his office. Knowledge of law should develop reason, and the man who tries to reason with a sledge hammer is a "Morgan's Raid," or demands the liberty of citizens by workhouse sentences or by suspension of sentences, should be handling hogs and not human beings. The community might just as well arm the inmates of the State Hospital with rifles if they are going to continue to allow men to dispense the law who imagine they are greater than the things that created them—the Union.

Peace Pact Framed by the Socialists.

Paper Published by Frank Midney To Be the Official Organ of the Party.

The storm has subsided, and the white dove of peace now hovers over the Socialist local of Dayton. Men and women who have for two years been engaged in an incessant struggle Wednesday night participated in a meeting which once more united all the Socialists of Dayton into one body.

William Bessemer, of Cleveland, state organizer of the Socialist party, was in the chair, and his wife sat at the secretary's table, when the gavel fell calling the meeting to order at the headquarters of "Local Dayton" at 25 North Main street. Earnest questions were asked by various persons present, but at no time was there manifested any tendency toward further disruption.

An entirely new set of officers was elected as follows: Recording secretary, William Hilbert; financial secretary, Albert Geyer; treasurer, Clarence Reef; organizer, Charles Geisler; literature agent, R. Clay Jackson.

Following this complete organization, Organizer Bessemer announced that he would call together the state executive committee by wire at Columbus and secure a charter for the united body.

It was announced by Samuel Snyder, editor of the "Dayton Socialist," that his paper would be tendered to the full management and ownership of the new organization at its meeting tomorrow night. He also stated that he would immediately publish the full Socialist municipal ticket, as already nominated and confirmed at the primaries. Mr. Snyder also assured his comrades that the editorial policy of his paper would be changed and that hereafter it would stand for harmony in the local organization.

Fred G. Strickland, national lecturer of the Socialist party, today expressed his pleasure over the peaceful turn that Socialist matters had taken in Dayton. He announced that next Sunday night his subject at the Auditorium will be "The Local Outlook for Socialism; or, Let Us Milwaukeeize Dayton." Mr. Strickland had a part in the Milwaukee campaign when the city was captured by the Socialists.—Dayton News.

PROPAGANDA MEETINGS.

Last Monday evening Comarde Griffith, the "Rebel Parson", gave an effective Socialist address at Mt. Vernon and Champion avenues. He happened to be in town enroute and was impressed into service.

Last Tuesday evening the Socialists of the Seventh Ward had a rally at their headquarters on Galloway ave. Comrade J. L. Bachman delivered the principal address.

Tonight Comrade Peter Kinnear will speak at the Seventh Ward headquarters on Galloway avenue, near Mt. Vernon on "Socialism and the Race Problem." All are invited.

SPECIAL LABOR NEWS.

Harry Thomas, Secretary of the Ohio Federation of Labor, notifies the Columbus Labor Movement that it is necessary that the credentials of delegates to the State Convention be forwarded at the earliest possible opportunity to his office. Any unions that have not received notice of the same should communicate with Harry D. Thomas, 310 Prospect ,venue, S. E. Cleveland, Ohio.

Vice President Walter Ames and James T. Liddy, of the machinists, J. F. Schmitt, of the Boiler Makers Union, E. S. Lewis of the Carmen, and a delegation of the K. & M. R. R. employes, were in conference with the officials of the above mentioned road trying to adjust a discrimination dispute.

Barbers' Local 204 will hold a revival meeting at the Federation Hall September 25, 1911. The principal speakers will be J. C. Shanessy, National Organizer, and Honest Mike O'Rourke. Every tonsorial artist in Columbus is invited to be present. Meeting called for 7:30. Place of meeting 121½ East Town street. Be there—you.

We are given to understand that it is the intention of the Brick Mason's Union to withdraw from the Federation. The reason given is "too much Socialism." While we regret this action on the part of the Bricklayers, we can assure them they are not the only people who are talking about "too much Socialism." But it behooves the trade unionists to allow no sectarian politics to separate them. Trade unionism will always be a potent factor towards bringing real democracy.

STANDARD OIL AND THE BOY SCOUTS.

It has been charged that the Boy Scout Movement was a part of the Capitalist fox game. This clipping stowed away in the corner of the Ohio State Journal proves the indictment to be true:

"R. D. Mackenzie, who has been connected with the Standard Oil Company, will assume his duties as director of boy scouts activities and boys club work in the city department of recreation tomorrow."

MACHINIST EXECUTIVE BOARD AGAINST FEDERATION.

The press reports that the Machinist's Executive Board now in session at Davenport, Iowa, preparatory to the coming convention October 16th, has "Save us from the perils of the sea," proposed Federation of railroad employees. So far we have not been able to verify this report, yet we realize that such reactionary moves, are in line with the policies of the retiring president, James O.Connell. If this report be true; and the action of the executive board is endorsed by the membership the machinists must be classed as reactionaries of the worst nature. We hope that this is not to be the policy of the new president, and to set matters right we hope that the new administration will infuse the entire movement with new blood.

NEWSBOYS STRIKE.

WASHINGTON.—Down in Mobile, Ala., the children are rebelling against industrial conditions and through organization has demonstrated the fact that even infants may become a power. The "newsies" have thrown down the gauntlet to a publisher and in the list have overthrown their opponent.

The little vendors of newspapers went on a strike for a better share of the profits, and conducted the controversy so well that the City Commissioners have been called upon to act as arbiters. The publisher has agreed to pay the boys five cents a week on each subscriber, but the lads want more and are prepared to convince the arbiters that six cents a week on each subscriber is not too much.

The boys are members of a Federal Union and take great pride in their union affiliations.

THE PARABLE OF THE PEOPLE.

And the people were exceeding sorrowful even unto death with corrupt government.

The Republicans advised them to elect good Republicans to office.

The Democrats joined in the chorus and told them to elect good Democrats.

The people lent a willing ear.

In Pennsylvania the people elected good Republicans.

In Missouri they elected good Democrats—they surely needed them.

Straightway the good Democrats in Missouri sold the people's sacred rights to Capital—a certain mysterious inspiration that all good Democrats sought after ardently.

With equal facility the good Republicans in Pennsylvania rivaling the Democrats in Missouri, built a state capitol and stole twice the sum of money that it took to built it.

And the Press, the Republicans and Democrats spread the tidings broadcast throughout the land.

But the people did not know the Republicans and Democrats were the real beneficiaries.

The People did not know the Republicans and Democrats were deceiving them.

BETHEL SOCIALISTS IN LINE.

Bethel, O., Sept. 13, 1911.

The Socialists of Bethel met in convention the 7th and nominated a city and township ticket, as good men as the Capitalist parties can produce and all loyal to the working class.

For the Revolution,

J. H. Sims, Sec'y.

Give Us A Chance.

ELLA JUNE PURCELL.

The Socialists in Milwaukee and Flint have demonstrated to the people of this country that Socialism is a practical, efficient and successful method of municipal administration. Before these cities elected their mayors the great mass of the American people looked upon Socialism as either untried idealism,or worse anarchy. That two such widely different views existed so commonly and yet concurrently should have been sufficient proof of the error of both. But it took the election of Seidel in Milwaukee, a city of 350,000, and Menton in Flint, a city of 40,000, to awaken the people to the actual possibilities of Socialism.

In spite of the handicaps and restraint of national and state constitutions and statutes, and in spite of the short time since their respective inaugurations the Socialists in Milwaukee and Flint have accomplished many things. In both cities health and sanitary measures have been rigidly enforced. Factory inspection has not been neglected. In Milwaukee public amusements such as dances and concerts have been provided on the theory that people must have amusement and it is therefore the duty of the government to see that they are entertained in a decent and respectable manner. On the same theory the public schools have been opened as social centers, a most rational and wise step. City improvements ahve been started, thus employment is found for many out of work and needed work is done for the city. An eight hour day for city employees has been established. When the Socialists assumed the management of Milwaukee the city was deeply in debt,—a result of a long and notorious reign of corruption. Graft has been eliminated and economy substituted by cutting down expenses where ever possible and by systematizing the city's work. The city's finances are now in a better condition than for many years.

Flint has shown us how Socialists can save money for a city. The Socialist assessor in that place has compelled the rich capitalists of the town to pay their fair share of taxes. In this way the assessed valuation of property for taxation has been increased over $3,500,000.

This list of what has been done could be greatly lenghtened. The end would be the same. Socialists have done in Milwaukee and Flint just what the Socialists in Columbus say they can do,—give a fairer, better and more efficient city government at less cost than either the Democrats or the Republicans have ever given or ever will give.

Our platform demands the more perfect application of the Initiative and Referendum and the Recall of all elective officials. The operation of the Initiative and Referendum plank would place the ultimate law making power in the people. Who will say that the citizens of Columbus would take a less intelligent interest in their own affairs than the present council, condemned even by the Republican Marshall? Would not a man hesitate to commit an act far doing which he could be immediately removed from office by the power that gave him the office,—the people?

Our platform advocates the government ownership of public utilities. The business of this city was paralyzed for weeks last summer by a privately owned public utility, a street car company. Can any thinking person say that the citizens of Columbus are less capable of managing a street car system for the benefit of all the people than E. K. Stewart?

In Flint after a bitter contest the Socialists were instrumental in passing an eight hour day law for city employees. Columbus Socialists are pledged to the enactment of the law.

We stand for inspection of shops and factories and for the enforcement of all sanitary laws. In Milwaukee and Flint much work for public health has been done.

If we are successful at the school board election we shall fight for free school books and the free use of the public schools for public meetings. The schools are public property and as much public good as possible should be deprived from them.

We advocate the establishment of municipal hospitals public comfort stations and public play grounds. Such things are necessary to the health and welfare of the people and it should therefore be the duty of the whole people to accept the responsibility of providing them.

Such are some of the planks in the platform of the Socialist Party of Columbus. The Socialist were victorious in Milwaukee and Flint with platforms making similar demands. In both these places the Socialists are making good. Give us a chance in Columbus.

What Trusts Have Done.

When the great Civil War was raging and thousands of men were engaged in the mighty conflict; when the shop, the mill, the mine and the fields were depopulated to such an extent that laborers were few, the prices of the commodities of life increased. Today we are at peace, the machinery in the shop and mill is tended by thousands of willing workers, the miner digs industriously, and skilled husbandmen are tilling the soil and gathering abundant harvests. Nevertheless, the prices of the products of the shop, the mill, the mine, and the field are soaring. The following table of prices is taken from the Times-Dispatch, Richmond, Va. The war-time prices are from the Index-Appeal, a reliable authority on the Civil War:

War Time.	Articles.	Now.
$4.10	Flour	$7.75.
14c a pound	Pork	18-20c a pound.
3 3-4c a pound	Hams	20-28c a pound.
8-12c a pound	Lard	12 1-2c a pound.
15-20c a pound	Butter	30-35c a pound.
14c a pound	Cheese	35c a pound.
10-18c a pound	Sugar	6-7c a pound.
30-35c a gal.	Molasses	32-38c a gal.
6 1-2c a pound	Beef	15c a pound.
5c a pound	Shoulders	20c a pound.
13-16c a pound	Coffee	25-40c a pound.

The trusts are responsible for the prices now, and the same trusts are giving battle to the unions in their effort to increase wages.

The Columbus Socialist Can Accomplish Like Results.

In April, 1894, the Socialists of the east side of New York started a little Socialist daily in the Jewish language. The name of this daily is "The Forward." Its circulation grew so rapidly during the last five years that it was found necessary to abandon the five-story building at 175 Broadway, and secure more commodious quarters.

The comrades went to WORK. They bought the adjoining lot, 173 Broadway, tore down the old building and next April, 15 years after starting, they will move into and dedicate to HUMANITY a magnificent 10-story building covering both lots. The paper will occupy the basement, sub-basement, main udor, and skylight covered composing room on the top floor; second floor devoted exclusively to Socialist meeting places, for propaganda work, and all intermediate floors will be used by UNION LABOR organizations for offices and meeting places.

The daily circulation of "The Forward" is now 120,000, proven by rigid investigation by an advertising agency.

Some idea of the widespread influence of this Socialist paper may be understood when it is known that it sells an average of 6,000 copies daily in Chicago, and that it prints a special Philadelphia edition.

The Daily Forward Publishing Association" which issues the paper, it is necessary to be a member of some trade union, a Socialist, and pay dues of $1.00 per year.

The first issue of "The Forward" was a four-page, six column affair.

At one time the publisher nailed a notice on the door announcing that "This paper has suspended because of the lack of support of its friends."

Then was shown the courage of the comrades. At this juncture an enthusiastic youth in the audience that had come together to devise means to continue the publication arose and said: "The only way to succeed is to succeed. Let's go ahead and increase the size of the paper and go ahead or smash."

That was the beginning of the end. From despair, almost to a 10-story building and 120,000 daily circulation. Comrades, what can we do? We need a plant. How can we get it? Let's talk it over. We have the opportunity to help ourselves and our comrades. Let's do it, and do it now. It is necessary.

Socialists Denied Rights.

It seems that the election authorities do not propose to recognize the Socialist party at all.

In a ruling given Monday, and which will be sent to every election board in the state, Secretary of State Graves, state supervisor of elections, tells how it is to be ascertained which is the dominant party in each election precinct in the state.

The presiding judge of the precinct must be chosen from the dominant party, and because of this it is imperative that there be no question as to how it is to be determined which party this is.

Following a ruling given by former Attorney General U. G. Denman, Mr. Graves holds that the dominant party in the precinct is the one which cast the most votes for governor in the general election in 1910. If Harmon carried the precinct, then the presiding judge will be chosen from the Democratic party, but if Harding carried the precinct, then the presiding judge will be taken from the Republican party.

What about the hundreds of precincts in Ohio in which the Socialist ticket received the most votes? Is there any justice or common decency in ignoring so many voters? In Columbus the two old parties are at a loss to find officials to serve on election boards, but the bosses declare that no Socialist can serve. Gentlemen, you may ignore us just now, but there is coming a day soon when you will not.

Two Splendid Socialist Meetings Held Last Sunday.

Campaign Is "Opened" Once More. ---- People Are Anxious to Hear and Read.

The Socialist campaign "opening" last Sunday afternoon was a double-header, with batteries at Goodale and Schiller Parks. Comrade Allen Cook, of Canton, and Ella Reeve Bloor spoke at each place to thousands of enthusiastic hearers and gave magnificent addresses that were cheered to the echo. It is not necessary to attempt a report of their speeches, and it is only necessary to say that the local politicians [illegible] are going to just beginning to realize that these crowds [illegible] Socialist meetings are largely composed of zealous workers in the wards and precincts of this city, who are agitating every day not for pay, but for the glorious hope of the coming co-operative commonwealth.

Comrade Cook had never spoken here before, but captured the crowd with his sound logic and keen satire. Mrs. Bloor really belongs to us in Columbus and always makes good. Comrade J. W. Slayton was obliged to cancel his dates here and Comrade F. G. Strickland has taken his place the past week.

[illegible] the speakers named, several [illegible] candidates for Mayor, spoke at both meetings. We reproduce his address in part:

Comrade Eby's Speech.

Comrades and Friends: It gives me great pleasure to be here today and to be able to do something that is of some value, not only to the Socialist movement, but that will help to emancipate the human race from wage slavery. You have gathered here, no doubt, for many purposes, but chief among those purposes is your desire to know more about the great question of Socialism now confronting the people, not only of this city, state and nation, but of the entire civilized world, because Socialism is not a local question, but a question that reaches as far and wide as civilization itself. The Socialist party came into existence at a time when it was necessary for the working class to adopt some other method of self-defense than the simple industrial strike, because it is becoming more and more a recognized fact among the working class that it is futile to depend upon force alone in combating Capitalism because the Capitalist Class being in control of the powers that be, with the courts, the police force, the state militia, the army and navy, at their command, it is useless to maintain that the working class can acquire their freedom industrially by the methods alone that they have been using in the past. There is only one possible way to accomplish the results desired by the working class. That is by united action on the political field and in so doing, capture the reins of government by electing the direct representatives of the working class to all the law-making bodies of the country and to all the offices which control the army, the navy, the militia and the police force. In this way the working class can capture the guns of the nation and eventually the world and not use them on the other fellow, but prevent the other fellow from using them on the working class any longer.

VOTING FOR GOOD MEN.

In the past the working class have been told to vote for good men and they have had plenty of men announce how good they were and how much they loved the worker, the salt of the earth, etc., but after they had been elected to the much coveted office, it seemed that no relief was ever in sight for the down-trodden working class who have been blinded so many times in the past by the smooth and slick politician, who has always stood for the capitalist system and has most always been in the employ or under the control of one or the other of the capitalist political machines. It has made no difference whether the good man running on the Democratic ticket or the good man running on the Republican ticket has been elected, he always has stood for the continuation of the present system and therefore it has been and is yet impossible to give the working class justice as long as the present system of Capitalism exists; because the capitalist system is founded entirely upon the taking of rent, interest and profit from the workers. Now if profit is right, then profit is right, and then there is no use talking any further, but we maintain and can prove that profit is not right. I say if five per cent profit is right, then 500 per cent is also right, if you can get it.

It makes no difference whether you kill a man by bleeding him to death, by cutting a small artery, or whether you cut a large artery; the only difference is in the length of time required to kill the man; it is murder just the same. There is no place to draw the line between right and wrong; the two are opposites and cannot by any law of nature be reconciled.

THE ROBBING SYSTEM.

When anyone is in possession of wealth that they did not produce, it is evident that some one has produced wealth that they did not get, and the simple fact that they are not in possession of the wealth that they have produced, shows that the producers have been robbed. This robbing process is going on to an extent that is astounding. The producer is today getting less than 17 per cent of the retail value of his labor. Do you think it is possible under such an unequal distribution for the worker to do more than simply exist? He has hardly enough to buy the simple necessities of life, let alone the luxuries, which he is entitled to, because he has produced them. The mission of the Socialist party is to correct this

The State Institutions Scandal.

The recent developments in the commissary department at the State Penitentiary and the State Hospital for the Insane prove the allegations recently printed in "The Socialist" to be true. Perhaps it would be well for the State Board to find out who was responsible for the appointment of these grafters. We wish to call attention to the fact that THE LAW BREAKING BOLT CONTRACTORS are still doing business in spite of the WERTZ LAW. It might be well for the State authorities to inquire into the purchase of MILITARY SUPPLIES. Few of the citizens know that we have armories in this and other Ohio cities, stocked with meats and other supplies, and the question is being asked WHAT BECOMES OF THESE SUPPLIES? There is something rotten and the stench is rising in the air. Most of the meat and fish purchased for the State institutions could have been labeled "decayed matter."

Police Chief Carter Demands Imprisonment of Women Strikers.

Police Chief Carter has demanded that the lady pickets who are doing duty at the Meyers Scabbery be given a WORKHOUSE SENTENCE because they refused to be called street walkers by the inmates of the scabbery. By his action Chief Carter has declared against the rights of the workers to PICKET and receive the protection of the civil authorities while so doing. His actions may some day prove disastrous to the community. Organized labor does not want to be petted or favored, but we do demand pure unadulterated justice when we are dragged into court by the "MASTER'S VOICE."

We realize the responsibility of being called upon to preserve the peace of the community and the realization of this fact should make the men intrusted with this august power broad in the judgment of things that come under their observation. Strikes are miserable social circumstances. It's a quarrel between two parties from windows across the street. Men of broad minds balance things by their circumstances and environments and the police [illegible] who is incapable of so doing has no right to his office. Knowledge of law should develop reason, and the man who tries to reason with a sledge hammer is a "Morgan's Raid," or demands the liberty of citizens by workhouse sentences or by suspension of sentences, should be handling hogs and not human beings. The community might just as well arm the inmates of the State Hospital with rifles if they are going to continue to allow men to dispense the law who imagine they are greater than the things that created them—the Voters.

Comrade Eby's Speech.

inequality in the distribution of the wealth produced and to give to the worker the entire social product of his labor, because there is no other person who is entitled to receive any of the products of labor unless he has produced the same, or has given labor in exchange for them.

Now when I say workers I mean those who work with their hands or their brain. The mental worker is as necessary as the physical; in fact the physical would be useless without the application of the mental. Anyone who produces wealth or who assists in transferring that wealth from the producer to the consumer is a necessary worker and is classed a producer, because it is as necessary to have a part of the workers in society employed in transportation as it is in producing the article itself. Nature gives the human race all the raw material absolutely free. To illustrate: You go into the woods and you find a tree nature has produced free for the use of mankind. You apply the ax and reduce the tree to logs which has added a value to those logs equal to the labor applied; now you transport those logs to a sawmill and cut them into lumber and you add more true value to the lumber which is equal to the labor applied. We can carry this on until the lumber has been converted into a house and the true value of the house will be the necessary labor to convert the raw material into the finished product plus all transportation. Any value that is placed upon this house greater than the labor cost is false value and cannot be done without robbing some one of the value of his labor.

INDIVIDUALS NOT CONDEMNED.

I do not believe in condemning individuals, because individuals are the result of their environments, and the capitalist is a product of the profit system. I have said that if five per cent profit is right, then 500 per cent profit is also right, because there is no place to draw the line between right and wrong. If you do not like to be robbed of 50 per cent of that which you produced, then use the greatest weapon you have, your ballot, and vote the straight Socialist ticket and abolish the capitalist system of rent, interest and profit, which is responsible for the inequality and injustice heaped upon the workers of the world. Stop your condemning individuals and ask yourself if you have been doing your duty by voting for the continuation of a system of robbery and then kicking because you are robbed. Anyone who is in business today must play the game of profit according to the rules, or get out of business. The reason I am a Socialist is because I don't like the game, and I expect to be in the front ranks fighting with all my strength until this damnable system of greed is abolished.

WHAT PRODUCES CRIMINALS.

This system that is responsible for 900,000 criminals, for 600,000 public prostitutes, women who have sold their bodies for bread, who have been forced into this degraded position in life because there was nothing else open for them. This system that takes our little ones by the millions and grinds their little lives out in the mills, mines, factories and stores for the sake of piling up dollars for some employer. This system that has forced 2,000,000 women into shops, factories etc. to earn a miserable existence when the most of them at least should be at home; this system that kills and maims over 60,000 every year by the wheels of industry and 95 per cent of this could be prevented, if the lives of the workers were looked after first. But that would cut down the profit and since this system is based upon profit it is foolish to expect much relief along this line because at the present time the worker is the cheapest thing on the market; he is a commodity which is bought and sold at so much per. He is absolutely in the power of the man that owns his job.

ONLY TWO PARTIES TODAY.

Any man who believes in the continuation of the profit system cannot give the workers justice because nothing short of the full product of ones labor is justice. The workers of Columbus have before them this fall two parties, one, the Socialist Party which stands for the abolition of the present system of injustice and inauguration of the Co-operative Commonwealth where every worker will have the full value of his labor and where any one can produce all the necessities and luxuries of life by working less than four hours per day, five days in the week.

The other, the Republican and Democratic parties which stand for one and the same thing and that is the continuation of the present profit system.

Mr. Karb at the head of the Democratic ticket represents the monied interests which is a well known fact and since he has announced that he has but one plank in his individual platform "I stand for a dry Sunday" I cannot see where any working man can be fooled by such an absolutely meaningless assertion as this, because it is also a fact that the worker gets it in the neck just as hard with a "dry" Sunday as he does with a "wet" Sunday. The dry and wet Sunday question has nothing to do with the giving of the Working Class the full value of their labor and therefore it is not an issue with the Socialist party.

Mr. Marshall at the head of the Republican ticket has copied the greater part of the Socialist platform and promises the people of Columbus wonderful things in the way of improvements if they will only please elect him once more. The list of improvements which he promises is ten times as much as the Socialist party has dared to promise and then he criticises the Socialists when they promise to give all city employees a minimum wage of $3.00 per day. Mr. Marshall has studied Socialism for 20 years and one week and in a few days he knows nothing about Socialism. Mr. Marshall stands for the continuation of the capitalist system. He does not believe in the abolition of the profit system. He does not believe that a man is entitled to all he produces. He believes in the continuation of a system that makes hundreds of millionaires and millions of paupers, that makes slaves and drudges of the many that a few may roll in luxury. He believes in putting a little salve of reform here and there on the running sores of our present system when the entire thing is rotten and smells to high heaven and must be abolished entirely. Remember Comrades and Friends that the Socialist Party stands for all the reform that Marshall stands for and all the reforms that have even been advocated by any class of people and a thousand times more. The working class do not want reform and charity. They want justice. Charity is an insult to any self respecting man or woman and will be abolished along with profit as it is a product of the profit system.

The Socialist Party is not responsible for the ideas of individuals who may chance to call themselves Socialists.

SOCIALISM AND CHRISTIANITY.

The ethics of Socialism and the ethics of Christianity are identical. The aims and objects of the Socialist Party are to put into practice the teachings of Christianity. To each the full value of his labor, giving women an equal opportunity with equal pay in every respect with man. "He that doth not labor neither shall he eat." It will put all children in school and college until they are 21 years of age at public expense for books, clothing etc, so no parent will be burdened individually with the support of their children. Why is this right? Because the children of today will be the fathers and mothers of tomorrow and society as a whole should be held responsible in this generation for the kind of material it furnishes for the next generation. As it is today, all children are expected to be kept in school until they are 14 years of age at least and no provision is made except charity to enable the parents to do so. This is a disgrace and an outrage on childhood as no child can secure an education that amounts to anything by the time it reaches the age of 14. All children should be taught useful employment, but this should be done in the public schools and not in some shop or factory where the grind for the almighty dollar is the only object in view as at present and will continue as long as the capitalist system of rent, interest and profit prevails.

These things cannot be brought about suddenly, but require great thought and an immense amount of planing. The steam engine was not invented suddenly, it required great thought. Our modern machinery was not invented in a day it has taken years to bring about our present system of social and collective production, which is a grand thing as it eliminates unnecessary labor, but the saving in labor goes to enrich a few individuals instead of being used for the benefit of the workers, who produced it. Bear in mind that nothing ever did or ever will produce wealth but labor. Labor applied to nature's resources produces all wealth and that which a man produces should belong to him. It requires Capital and labor to produce wealth but the Capitalist is an unnecessary adjunct insofar as he does no useful work.

MONEY NOT CAPITAL.

Remember that money is not capital in the true sense of the word; capital is machinery, land, tools etc, or anything that is used for the production of more wealth. Money cannot produce wealth. Money is only used for convenience as a medium of exchange. The Capitalist class thru their manipulation of finance and being in control of law-making bodies in the entire country are in position to demand and exact the greater part of what labor produces which is responsible for millions being out of employment every year, millions of child slaves, millions of persons on the verge of pauperism and hundreds of millionaires. Any system that produces millionaires must produce paupers and such a system is unscientific, damning, and barbarous and must be abolished before the human race can advance morally, physically or spiritually.

Socialism is distasteful to some because it is classed as a political party for the reason that so much corruption is practiced in the Capitalist parties. It should be remembered however that the Socialist party is not responsible for the political corruption in existence today and one of its main objects is to do away with all corruption and graft in political parties by inaugurating the initiative, referendum and the recall and placing all political officers under the direct control of all the people. This gives every voter both male and female and interest and a duty to perform at all times and makes it necessary for them to get an understanding of all questions that must be brought about thru political action as they will be responsible for whatever action they dared.

The Socialists have also been criticised for holding meetings on Sundays. I have said before that politics is looked upon as a corrupt and unclean thing. Now who is responsible for politics being corrupt and unclean surely not the Socialists

SUNDAY MEETINGS.

All must remember that since the Socialist party is entirely a workers' party and the workers must labor in shop, factory and store or elsewhere for six days in the week to earn enough to simply exist under the capitalist system that they are compelled to use the only day at their disposal to work out their own emancipation from wage slavery is a Christian act from wage slavery, and since the emancipation of the working class and the Socialist party stands for the putting into practice of the fundamental teachings of Christianity, they believe that it is as necessary to use Sunday for this purpose as for the upliftment of the human race in any other way, and we also believe that very little has been accomplished in the past by teaching Christianity on Sunday and practicing capitalism (which is the opposite of Christianity) on the other six days of the week.

Socialism stands for all that Christianity ever stood for and further, it believes in putting such teaching into practice right here and now; and it can be done; it only depends upon the intelligent investigation by the masses of the principles of Socialism. Too many people look upon Socialism as a local issue. I wish to say that Socialism is as broad as civilization; it is international in its scope; its principles are the same all over the world; its application is only governed by local conditions.

Wherever you find civilization, you will find Capitalism; and wherever you find Capitalism you will find Socialism. Socialism is next step in the evolution of the human race and is as sure of establishment as tomorrow's sun is sure to shine. All persons who have any respect for their knowledge of things of importance to humanity should investigate what Socialism really does stand for, and I will wager that after a thorough investigation of its principles, anyone who continues to oppose it, is internally dishonest. The reason so many good people are opposed to Socialism today is because they do not understand it, and it is up to them to lay aside their prejudice long enough to find out what they are talking about before they oppose it further. Prejudice is the greatest hindrance to progress the world ever knew. When thousands of our most learned scholars are adopting the principles of Socialism after having investigated it thoroughly, why not you? Come with us; you are all welcome. The Socialist party is the greatest educational organization the world has ever known. It distributes more literature than any organization in the world. It is the only political party that has a library of its teachings. Come, look and listen. Buy one of our books explaining the philosophy, and you will be repaid a thousand fold. Remember, also, that all this literature is paid for out of the hard earned money of the working class.

Samuel Comes Into the Socialist Camp.

We cannot say that the Co-operative Commonwealth is brought perceptibly nearer by the decision of Mr. Gompers to support the candidacy of Job Harriman for Mayor of Los Angeles, but none the less the incident is interesting as illustrating that all men, even Mr. Gompers, are subject to economic determinism.

For years Mr. Gompers ignored political action and received many encomiums for his safe and conservative policy of denouncing Socialists and Socialism at every opportunity, and many times his utterances exasperated and irritated Socialists to no inconsiderable extent. It was certainly not an agreeable experience to them to hear their movement denounced as socially unsound, morally unwise and industrially impossible by the president of the American Federation of Labor. They knew he was mistaken, but as he was speaking from a peculiar point of vantage, effective reply was not easy.

And now when Mr. Gompers allies himself with and supports the candidacy of a well known representative of the industrially impossible, etc., creed, it might be supposed that there should be joy in the Socialist heaven over the assumed repentant sinner. However, rejoicings in this case might possibly be premature. A man does not "get" Socialism exactly as he "gets religion" at a camp meeting. The conversion of Mr. Gompers is probably not so much the result of a conviction of economic sin as it is of economic necessity.

Socialism hasn't attracted Mr. Gompers, but capitalism has driven him to the Socialists instead—which is a considerably different proposition.

What is really happening is that Mr. Gompers' economic world is falling to pieces around him, and Socialism is the only city of refuge at present available. Against the attacks of the California capitalists the old form of trade unionism which ignores political action is completely impotent. Otis and his associates, politically supreme in Los Angeles, render trade unionism powerless, and that supremacy must be wrested from them through political action. There is no other method possible and no other party available for that purpose except the Socialist party. Possibly this is about all that Mr. Gompers sees in the situation.

Still, even that much is encouraging. It is better to have Mr. Gompers with us than against us. Every little helps, and perhaps now that the ice is broken he may "get the habit" and help some more in the future.

In a certain sense, too, Mr. Gompers owes this much to the labor movement and the Socialist party. By casting his lot with the Los Angeles Socialists he is undoing the result of another political action in which he engaged some time ago, and which his present action now shows he repents of.

When Governor Marshall of Indiana was running for office last year Mr. Gompers gave him his support and influence, and threw all the support of the American Federation of Labor as far as he could in the same direction, on the principle of rewarding friends and punishing enemies. Marshall, however, rewarded his friend Mr. Gompers by turning over McNamara to the man-stealer, Burns, and allowing the latter to kidnap him from the State without process of law. So Mr. Gompers is now trying to undo in California what he helped to do in Indiana. And in this work he can get none to assist but the Socialists, and as a consequence come into the camp of the industrially wrong and politically impossible.

So while we by no means refuse or scorn his assistance, we may be excused for not making the event an occasion of extreme jubilation. It was not altogether unexpected, for Mr. Gompers has merely followed the example of many thousands of his one-time followers who have preceded him on the march to the Socialist camp. His stay may perhaps not be permanent among us, but even so, he can be temporarily made us of, like a large part of the casual material that drifts our way.—New York Call.

General Socialist News.

The Sunny South is surely being inspired by Socialism. At Columbia, S. C., a big debate was held a few days ago between J. L. Fitts, national S. P. organizer, and John T. Duncan, editor of a local paper. The latter was already out of his latitude and his own friends didn't have the heart to applaud him. Duncan's strongest point was—that Socialism was little known in America, and Fitts in his rebuttal showed that Duncan was a living proof of the truth of that statement.

A $5,00.000 corporation is being formed in Chicago to publish the four daily, nine weekly and seven monthly magazines and newspapers at present supporting the Socialist party in Chicago. The company will be known as Labor's Co-operative Press Association. It will be modeled along the lines of similar concerns in Europe. The Socialists now publish daily newspapers in Chicago in English, German, Bohemian and Polish. Dailies will be printed in several other languages.

Later returns from Bulgaria state that 18 instead of five Socialists have been elected to Parliament (which is called Sobranje). The government politicians are surprised and worried, as no Socialists were ever before elected. When the King opened Parliament, arrayed in all his gold lace and glory followed by a procession of sword and spear bearers (such as you see in picture shows), with everybody rising and bowing low, what do you suppose the Reds did? They refused to get up and go through the flummery. Then the Radical and Peasant parties also stuck to their seats and one of the peasants let out a holler that the King had no business opening Parliament, anyhow. Such treasonable behavior makes the Bulgarian bosses sick.

The most unique Socialist demonstration ever seen anywhere was held in Paris recently when an organization of French Socialist children invited a number of Belgian, English, German, Russian, Spanish and Polish children to take part in a grand celebration. The festivities extended over several days culminating in a grand reunion in one of the theaters, with a concert and dramatic entertainment. During the festival the visiting children were housed by the Paris Socialists. A procession was held one evening in which the children carried little red lanterns and wore red caps. The fete proved a great success, and the children enjoyed themselves as they never had before. Contrast this demonstration of fraternity with the murder ideas that are forced upon the minds of the so-called Boy Scouts by a lot of broken down preachers and all-around haters of humanity.

At the Jena conference of the Socialists of Germany officers' reports showed that the party has made splendid progress during the past year. The dues-paying membership has grown from 720,038 to 835,562, a net increase of 115,524. Of this increase in members 90,473 are men and 25,051 women. In 19 states the party is represented by 128 members in the Legislatures. In 410 cities the party has 2,015 Aldermen, and in 2,240 country districts, 5,646 communal representatives. In all the party is represented by 8,910 representatives in contrast with 7,729 last year. No less than 13,163 public meetings have been held during the past year and 35,644 meetings of party members; 28,000,000 of pamphlets and 3,000,000 periodicals were distributed gratis from house to house. Total receipts were over $300,000, hitting the highest figure ever reached. No wonder the ruling class talks of war to stop the growth of Socialism.

Indiana Socialist News.

James Oneal, State Secretary, 309½ Ohio st., Terre Haute.

The monthly report of the State Secretary for August shows one of the best for membership and financial receipts in the history of the party. Dues to the amount of $399.91 were paid, indicating over 2,000 members; 421 new members were admitted and twelve new locals revived or organized.

Hartford City has been inactive for several months but the local has now been reorganized and starts with ten members. Walter Millard will also speak there and one or two more speakers will help out.

Local Indianapolis feels disappointed when it can not report a branch organized each week. Another one is reported this week, making nineteen branches in the capitol city. The local will also increase the size of their weekly paper, The Register, so that it will be six pages and eight columns This is made necessary because of the advertising and the need of more space for Socialist matter. Socialists should send for a sample copy. Address The Register, 30 Mansur Block, Indianapolis, Ind.

Comrade Condo reports two more branches in process of organization in Grant county, one at Jonesboro with thirty-one signatures and one at Van Buren with thirty-five. Fairmount will also be organized soon. Grant county will fall into the hands of the Socialists soon.

The small local at West Baden reports six new members and has already ordered a branch charter to be issued to a branch at French Lick.

The new local at Lebanon already has nineteen members and will take on more speakers. Just to show their earnestness the comrades have ordered a large supply of literature for distribution.

Red Bridge comrades in Wabash county want to know how to organize a local and instructions have been sent them. From Hillham also comes a request for the same information, while Ashley, in the northern part of the state, want speakers as well as information on "how to do it."

The comrades at Winslow, in the southern coal fields, has fourteen names on an application for a charter and expect as many more. The miners down there are becoming revolutionary and a big Socialist vote will be recorded in that section in the next election.

Huntingburg has a hustling group of Socialists that are taking all the speakers sent their way and they now promise to make application for a charter before October.

PROOF OF A CONSPIRACY OF SILENCE.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Comrade Eugene V. Debbs spoke in this city on Saturday evening to an enthusiastic audience of twenty-five hundred people, all that could be accommodated. The meeting was under the auspices of the Socialists and Unionists and was intended and advertised as a McNamara Protest. When Comrade Debs made his appearance the audience seemed to lose its reason, indulging in a long continued applause and hurrahs. While though worse for wear, Comrade Debs came up to expectations, labeled the real crooks and murderers, showed the operations of capitalism in its writhings and squirming in self-defense in all its horridness, called attention to the attitude of the press (excepting, of course, the Socialist), toward the workers in general and the McNamara's in particular. Comrade Debs did not mince matters, calling spades spades and overlooked no black-hearted personalities, and he even went so far as to forecast that the local papers would not publish his speech or any of its essentials. His statements practically challenged these papers to notice him, but the (Sunday) morning papers were silent as the tomb, both as to the meeting and the address. They dare not mention this McNamara case! They fear it! It is their business to ignore it! They are subject to the orders of capital, and capital sees in the outcome of this fight an indication of the trend of the portentious future. Capitalism knows that to lose this fight, will forever handicap it future struggles, therefore uses every possible advantage and the press in smothering it.

There are some mighty fine men on the local papers, this the writer knows from personal contact, some of them declared Socialists, but the master-hand of Capitalism compels silence.

A short while back, the Commercial Tribune, a local morning paper, contained a double column article charging the franking privilege allowed the nation's representatives was being abused by the two most radical congressmen, Victor Berger and Henry George, Jr., and the present writer took the trouble to send out statements refuting and proving false such printed a line and only one made any excuse, simply stating that space forbade the use of my article.

This conspiracy of silence indicates naught else than that we are becoming a force to be reckoned with, and they hope by ignoring us to belittle us and our efforts. Lincoln's gloomy visions are now with us and Ingersoll's dreams of beauty are in the near future to unfold.

WILL NOT ADOPT TAYLOR SYSTEM.

Washington.—The action of the members of labor organizations, employed in navy yards, in resolving to resist the introduction of the Taylor system, has brought forth a statement from Acting Secretary of the Navy Winthrop to the effect that there has been no attempt made to introduce the system, and that it is not likely to be adopted for naval uses. He admits that a board of naval officers has been for several months studying navy-yard methods with a view to their improvement along other lines.

Representatives of the I. A. of M. however are determined to be prepared for action should it become necessary, and a conference of workmen to devise plans to oppose the scientific system of shop management has been called and will be held in Rock Island, Ill., beginning September 19. Officers of the organization and delegates from various machinists' lodges composed of navy yard and arsenal workers will attend the conference.

The convention of the International Association of Machinists will open in Davenport, Iowa, on Monday, Sept. 18, and the result of the conference will be submitted to the delegates for their approval.

The political bosses are worried about that vote that did not get out to the primary.

The McNamara case has opened the eyes of labor to the methods of the capitalist class, and the storm of protest that is echoing throughout the country is a sign that the working class is getting a little strength in the knees. And if they attempt to railroad these labor leaders to their death a revolution will spread over the country with such force that the climate will become unhealthy for those capitalists who are now scenting blood. "Flushed with victory many men rush headlong to their doom," is a proverb that holds good today.

For 25 years there has been a man hurt in the Pennsylvania mines oftener than every two hours on an average, says the Christian Socialist of Chicago. This has gone on day and night, 24 hours a day, Sundays and holidays. Every fourth man injured has died. Only serious injuries are counted in this estimate. This may help us realize the figure of 39,994 killed and 82,849 injured in 25 years. But the figures have grown so that the present rate is far higher than the average. In the Westmoreland county district alone 506 men were killed last year and 1,126 were injured. The average annual wage in the Pennsylvania mines is $546.

Dr. C. H. Parkhurst says of the standing of the rich and poor in court today:

"A poor criminal has no show; a rich one has. Court procedure is so vitiated and emasculated by technicalities that legal council, versed in the intricacies of the profession—and such ones are to be had if there is the money to pay them—can deliver his client in the face of almost any evidence, direct or circumstantial, that can be adduced against him.

It is a question whether a defendant who is rich as well as guilty is not quite as likely to be acquitted as one who is innocetn but poor."

It is the general opinion that the courts represent propertied classes as they are constituted today. Socialists propose to put on the bench men who represent the working people.

Close Reasoning.

There is a shortage in the wheat crop, so the price of flour will be unusually high.

The other cereals have not come up to the expected mark, and you will have to pay more for them.

As grazing was not good, and as the cost of stored fodder is now high, all meats, lamb, beef and pork, will be far more costly than a year ago.

The cotton crop is terribly poor, and you must plank down more money for your cotton goods.

Prunes met with disaster, and the few that come on the market will fetch a price beyond anything ever seen.

Rice failed utterly, and it will take much money to buy a pound.

Sugar was not so good this year, and tearfully the Sugar Trust has been forced to double the price and increase the dividends.

Wherever you turn, either in foods, in clothing or housings, it is the same old story. You've got to pay more.

But there is compensation. There is always a silver lining to every cloud. The working class is it.

Because prices are higher, because every article costs much or little more, wages will have to be lowered. It is the only way to meet this emergency. Force those who do not get enough to meet present prices to receive a little less to meet increased prices.

That is what is happening.

The battle is now formally open in Columbus, and the roar of the guns can be heard. "Close up on the center! Charge!"

The Register, owned and published by Local Marion County, Socialist Party, at Indianapolis, Ind., has doubled its size and is now as big as The Columbus Socialist. The Register is edited by Comrade J. Frank Essex and is a credit to the cause in the Hoosier State.

It is a new and altogether inviting movement that forces Washington to recognize the well being of the worker. Never before did a single-minded constructive statesman enter its legislative halls.

Now in anticipation of the coming congress Berger is laboring over his future bills.

He plans to take up the question of unemployment and the nationalization of telephones, telegraphs and the railroads. He expects the anti-kidnapping bill, outgrowth of the McNamara outrage to become a law during this session.

Mr. Worker, see what one man with your interests at heart can accomplish all alone. Is it not time that we began attending to our own interests and electing men to represent us instead of our masters? Comrade Berger should have assistance. A dozen Socialists in Congress will do more for the workers than 50 years of political juggling, or many labor wars.

A dozen Socialists in Congress will be the greatest educational force possible to obtain. We are going to send him assistance. Are you going to think it all over and join us?

To Comrades and Working People:

Look over the advertising in your paper. Patronise those who patronize you. Remember those who refuse to advertise in a labor paper are unfair to labor and are not worthy of your patronage.

The gross profits to the sugar trust for the coming year following the advances in the price of sugar from $3.75 per hundred to $7.25 since January 1, will reach $40,000,000, according to sugar brokers in this city.

Much of this money will be used to wipe out the deficit in the corporation's reserves caused by the government's under valuation prosecutions and the seemingly endless litigation that followed the discovery of the manipulated scales on the Brooklyn docks of the trust. This money will go direct from the consumer to the producer, the big sugar corporations controlled by the trust, as there has been no chance in the steady upward movement of prices for the brokers to lay in a reserve supply of the sweet substance so that they might participate in the "cutting of the melon."

No private ever changed the rules laid down by a general in the army. Neither can a union man on the Republican or Democratic tickets change the principles for which the party stands. Should they refuse to be bound by the rules of the party they represent they are considered traitors. Many union men aspiring for office on old party tickets we believe are conscientiously honest, but they are blind to the forces that are working in society; they hold the idea that individuals as single factors can work changes. They have not yet gotten up with the idea of mass co-operation. When they reach that point they will no longer be Republicans or Democrats. If union men could help the working- class the old parties must shoulder the responsibility for having elected card carrying members of organized labor who always voted on the side the money came from.

Socialism.

Any theory or system of social organization that would abolish in whole or in great part, the individual effort of competition on which modern society rests, and substitute for it cooperative action; would introduce a more perfect and equal distribution of the products of labor, and would make land and capital as the instrument and means of production the joint possession of the members of the community.—Century Dictionary.

Taft and the Supreme Court Decision.—The Trust Busting Humbug.

At Detroit, Michigan, last Monday, Mr. Taft, in his address, said: "I propose to take up the question which has occupied the attention of the American people for the past twenty years, that of industrial combinations, known as 'Trusts.' During the last year we have had two great decisions by the Supreme Court of the United States. They are epoch-making, and the public has not yet come to realize the effect that those decisions are certain to have."

Shades of the departed Shakespeare, not yet come to realize the effect of "Trusts" since the decision of the Supreme Court!

Trust busting by the Supreme Court, we were led to believe, would bring down the price of "Oil" on the part of the Standard Oil Co., because it would give us competition in this necessity. Now we have not yet seen the populace, marching through the city's streets singing praise to the Supreme Court, because we are buying oil cheaper. Not yet; and it will be a long time in the future before we do.

Why?

The decision of the Supreme Court meant to the Standard Oil Co. only this; that they had to change their methods of "bookkeeping." In doing this they were compelled to hire a few more bookkeepers; consequently this added expense will mean that we, the consumers of oil, will have to pay for it by an advance in the price of oil.

You don't believe it, eh!

Well, some months ago the Taft Administration fined the "Sugar Trust" $2,000,000, because it had been "Unreasonable" enough to filch the public treasury, through short-weighing out of its customary import duty. The sounds of joy at this welcome news we heard ringing through the country up to a few months ago. Great was the rejoicing on the part of the "Common People." At last we were going to bust a Trust, by fining hell out of them.

"Mr. Sugar Trust" became very docile in its attitude to the public, as the Great Politicians pointed at the havoc they had wrought. Verily, the day of judgment had come.

Gradually the price of "Sugar" commenced to advance, and low and behold they have now raised the price over 50 per cent, and Mr. Common People are paying the "Price." In the last eight weeks they have filched the pockets of the American people out of over $15,000,000, and the end is not yet in sight.

Who paid the $2,000,000 fine? The Sugar Trust? Not by a jugfull, but the consumers of "Sugar" did; and to show that they don't care a whoop about Supreme Court decisions, they are exacting compound interest on our joy to the tune of $13,000,000 up to date.

This is the amount of attention that the "Trusts" pay to Supreme Court decisions. The question is, is the Sugar Trust "Reasonable" or "Unreasonable" in its filching of the people's pockets to the tune of $15,000,000? This is for the Supreme Court to decide, and in the next twenty years, after the most of us have gone to our "Father's House," we may receive the joyful news that that august body, the Supreme Court of the United States, has handed down a decision that the Sugar Trust was "Unreasonable" in 1911.

Great will be the rejoicing of the "Common People" in that day; and if Billy Bryan is still running for President, it will become the Campaign Issue.

Since the Tobacco Trust was dissolved by the Supreme Court as being "Unreasonable," tobacco has taken a big drop—Nit. The tobacco dealer finds that he is still the distributor for the Tobacco Trust, at the same fancy prices paid as before the dissolution and the change of bookkeeping in stock records by this Unreasonable Trust.

Verily, the population at Detroit that went wild over Taft's Speech on Trusts, must be a lot of Chumps, to stand for this kind of Modern Humbuggery that there is only one solution to, and that is, "Let the government own the Trusts."

Yes, Taft is right in his remarks. These two decisions are epoch-making, but the public have not yet come to realize, as to the amount of Political Chicanery and Humbuggery that they contain. However, when they do though a few more so-called Political Leaders will find an early Political Grave, over whose monument will read the inscription, "They died a political death, trying to raise dead issues."

Judge Grosscup Quits.

Judge Peter S. Grosscup, of the United States Circuit Court at Chicago, has announced that he will soon resign. It had been better for the respect due the courts if Peter had quit a long time ago. Still he is something of a prophet. Here is his statement:

"The reason for my resignation at all is that I wish more freedom, not only as an individual but as a citizen. The world politically is trying to catch up with the world's radically changed economic conditions. The formative period is approaching. Next year's presidential election will, I believe, be the last one on the old lines. And the settlement for the future will come, not through the courts of law, but through the court of public opinion. I wish no office—expect never again to hold office—but I wish greater freedom than the bench gives to do my part in this court of public opinion."

There are some people who criticise some Socialists as being too radical—too severe in their remarks about Capitalism. Say, good friends! It is impossible to keep sweet all the time with sugar at 8 cents a pound.

The American Railroad Section Men.

The traveling public speeding along the rail inside of a palatial railroad coach, seldom realize the responsibility that rests with the humble section hands for the safety of their lives. Every now and then we hear of the noble deeds of railroad engineers. The press, in depicting their acts of heroism, call to their readers' minds the fact that the lives of the passengers were at all times in the hands of these men. But this is a case of "What the eye does not see, the soul does grieve for." The engineers and the conductors are in the public gaze. The railroad depot flocks with admiring spectators. "Number four is late," says one of the crowd. "Watch Old Bill make up that time," chimes in another, while another distant group is discussing the heroism displayed by the men under the cab. We have no desire to dampen the ardor of admiration for the men under the engine cab, but allow the writer to add that "there are others" who deserve a share in the honor of safeguarding the lives of millions of human beings who yearly travel over the great American network of railroads, and one of these heroes is the section hand. This man places the rail in position, watches the track daily to see that no bolts are loose, or that there are any obstruction on the track. This is the man who holds the life of the passengers and the entire train crew in his hands daily. After the public have read a newspaper account of a fatal railroad wreck, they begin to grope for causes, and that is as far as it goes. Many fatalities come through spreading rails. If the "cause" investigators will study the industrial conditions under which the section men live, the reasons for the effect will appear plainly upon the surface. These are some of the principal causes for railroad accidents in the United States. First, the maintenance of way department is the buffer used to reach economical results in the way of lowering the road's operating expenses. On some roads the section workers have their pay docked when it rains. This is done in spite of the fact that the men are far from home. Second, when the officials wish to reduce running expenses they generally start by reducing the section force. Men are laid off indefinitely. This means inattention to the roadbed. If bad weather comes, the reduced force must work long hours. These long, weary vigils, lasting sometimes forty hours at a stretch, place the lives of the traveling public in jeopardy. Imagine the mental condition of the section hand stationed at the mouth of a sulphur-ladened tunnel. His duty is to watch for washouts, fallen rocks, and to keep awake. What if he falls asleep? Who is responsible for the fatal calamity? The half-starved servant, or his well-fed, thoughtless masters?

Railroad corporations are absolutely soulless. They buy the labor power of the section hand on the cheapest market. The "yellow race" are preferable because they are purchased in bulk form. This is true of the West, while in the East the same conditions exist under the Italian padrone system. In the South the colored race are fleeced by fake insurance grafters, and continual decreasing of working time, until the victims become bound by the subservient power of poverty. The average pay of a section man is not more than $300 per year.

Beware, oh ye mighty Brotherhoods. Remember that small ants sometimes wreck mighty structures. The section workers need your help. They are down to the narrow line of subsistence. It's your duty as brother men to help lift them to higher planes of morality "Build not your house upon sand," says the Scriptures. The trackmen lay the foundation of the railroad, and public safety demands that we investigate the lower alls of society for fear they crumble and let us fall. This will be the work of the railroad federation. Speed the work along. JIM HENDERSON.

THE COLUMBUS DISPATCH ON THE ENGLISH STRIKE.

The following editorial recently appeared in the columns of the Columbus Dispatch. It comes as a warning note to all citizens who live for the good they can do their fellow men. While to a certain extent there appears a strain of pessimism in the article, yet to those who study the industrial problem from a broad, national center, the spirit of optimism presents itself at every angle.

"The testimony of the first week of the commission's sitting was nothing short of alarming. It was to the effect that discontent had become so widespread and the distrust of the individual members of unions so great that the labor leaders could no longer guarantee acceptance by the men of any terms of settlement and that arbitration was next to impossible because the men would consent to no plan of arbitration by which they might lose. 'We are at war, civil war,' said one of the more intelligent agitators, who has preached class hatred for thirty years, and boasts of it. 'The fight has passed out of the House of Commons and is in the streets—everywhere in the streets—and here Mr. Ben Tillett is a more powerful man than either Mr. Balfour or Mr. Lloyd-George.'

"It is pretty hard to believe that the workingmen of England have lost their desire for peace and, right or wrong, are bent on having their way even by force. But the preaching of class hatred for thirty years by this and other agitators has no doubt had its effect. How great that effect has been remains to be seen, but the fog may soon lift."

Let the writer remember that Ben Tillett is only saying what Wat Tyler said in the last century. Ben Tillett is only saying what John Burns said before the government took him in charge as a leader. Burns said on "Bloody Sunday," "There must come some other power outside of your merely striking." Then came the Labor Party, and the Liberal Party, with its old age pensions, and commissions to investigate a hundred and one things. But each day the man on the street got more vicious because his home surroundings became more desolate, and soon the spirit of the mob began to rule. The cry went out, "We cannot wait for political action; we want relief now." Suppose John Burns had appeared in his court dress and advised the people to be calm and await the action of the government when for thirty years the government had been listless to the appeals of the workers. 'Tis a fact it had taken care of the leaders, but what of their followers, starving on the street? The arbitration boards of England have for years been adopting a policy of robbing Peter to pay Paul. John Burns has established industrial agencies and other relief measures, but what use were these when the commercial interests of the employing class were diminishing? England today is over populated with people and closed up factories. Their municipal ownership schemes has increased taxation to such an extent that there is no solution to the problem of social redemption other than Socialism. Pray remember that the French railroad strike was not engineered by Socialists. Yet it represented class consciousness on the part of the workers themselves, when they refused to work as a body unless relief was given. Mr. Editor, the ballot box is the safety valve that will prevent bloody revolutions. But if the election is too far off, the valve may refuse to work and then comes the general strike, a fire that never can be quenched until the workers obtain the full product of their toil. The recent English railroad strike started when the famous Taff Vale railroad decision was rendered against the unions and a heavy fine was placed upon the strikers for going out on strike. Then came the government decision that the unions could not contribute to the support of the parliamentary labor candidates known as the Osborne Case. At last the worm turned, and the outcome will mean the socialization of everything that the people need for their own use. This is Socialism, and the British Isles will soon usher the new social order in.

The fog represents Capitalism and the sunshine Socialism.

Hot Rolls From the Bread Wagon.

JIM LIDDY and ARTHUR LARISON were climbing BIRCH HILL. In their hands they carried BAGGS. Suddenly a SAVAGE BIRD swooped down upon them. They dropped their BAGGS and MIRANDOED KRAUSS to O'NEIL'S. They claim they were after APPLES. And then the Custodian of the Federation, "Jake," woke up.

Electrical Workers Representative Arthur Larison is in Syracuse, N. Y., attending the national convention. Organized labor all over the country is interested in the hoped-for amalgamation of the two rival bodies. The Reid faction have the sympathy of the entire movement. They have made an honest campaign and they are gaining in numbers every day, while on the other side they are fast diminishing. Hail to peace and good will!

"I think it's the brewers' union."—Life.

The members of the Typographical Union want to be understood that as an organization they stand for the RECALL and the I. and R., and the same has been indorsed by their union. Therefore any member who votes against the same defies the mandates of the body which he is part of. In justice to the printers we wish it to be understood that Mr. Wm. Gortner, the gentleman who went on record as being against the RECALL, is not representing the printers' union, but a church organization. We can honor his plausible circumstances and deplore the JEYKEL-HYDE position taken because of the environments.

The Macbeth-Evans Glass Co. have declared an open shop war on the American Flint Glass Works union and locked out 1100 of its members. Union men are requested to refrain from purchasing any lamp chimney bearing the trade mark of the above firm.

Jacob Stoelsel, the veteran member of the Iron Molders' Union, recently took a trip to Buffalo to visit some of his long unseen relatives. While there "Jake" discovered a new generation of "Stoelsels" and his pride was so great that he brought some of these young ladies back to Columbus with him. Now Jake is busy between his hours of duty as custodian of the Federation Hall, lighting his pipe and running home for a little sleep, telling his friends about that big city of Buffalo and his nieces and their accomplishments.

The "Man On the Box" is the name of a well known play. But the man at Keith's ticket box is Dick St. John, and he is a reality, when it comes to mirth-making.

CARPENTERS' UNION.

"Judge a man by what he does, not what he says." These words are to be found on the front page of the September Journal of the Carpenters' Union. We are compelled to say that "The Carpenter" is one of the most advanced journals in the labor world. From a point of strategy the Socialists inside of the labor movement should realize that the editors of the labor press are more valuable to the advancement of the new social order in their official positions than prominent leaders. Someone has said that "Books rule the world—not kings." The Columbus situation is growing stronger and better. Business Agent Baggs is alert to the real situation and we urge Socialists to line up with the industrial movement. We need you on the inside. Line up with your class. If things are not right, VOTE TO CHANGE THEM. This is the right of every dues-paying member.

THE TAILORS' UNION.

The Tailors' Union Journal proves that the movement is living above the clouds of dull times. One of our non-union critics recently said: "I believe in unions, but I am tired of fighting." What if George Washington had made the same confession to Lord Cornwallis. The men on the inside of the labor movement have a right to criticise false moves on the part of some leaders. But the men on the outside should get on the inside and help to enforce their views.

Tailors flying
With their feet;
Irons crying
With the heat;
Scissors shearing
Without sheep.
Machines running,
The work shunning.
Hurry, scurry,
All in a worry.
Everything on the fly.
Sticking thread
In poor needle's eye.
Put in the screens
There's flies on the pants;
Get your partners
There's going to be a dance,
For there's a band
Going around the waist.
Take your places
And show good taste.
If you have a washing
There is the tub;
Come get busy
Or lick the cub.
Hold your nose
A horse is dead,
Too much wadding
In the sleeve head.
The growler has a mouth,
But cannot talk;
The tables have legs
But cannot walk.
The stars shine so bright
One by one,
That if 'twas midnight
You could see the sun.

UNION GAINS IN BRITAIN.

Washington.—As a result of the recent strikes in Britain, thousands of new members have been gained by the unions. Harry Gosling, the representative of the London Transport Workers, has issued a statement to the effect that 85,000 workers have joined the respective unions connected with the Federation in that city. He also states that advances in wages of from 10 to 33 per cent have been secured by carmen, seamen, dockers, coal porters, etc., and that the hours of labor were reduced by from 8 to 25 per cent.

At Liverpool more than 25,000 new members were gained by the Transport Workers' Associations and wages have been increased 20 per cent. At Hull, Glasgow, Bristol, Cardiff, Swansea and Newport similar triumphant results have been obtained.

MEYERS PICKET AGAIN ARRESTED BY CHIEF CARTER.

The time has come for action. The Chief of Police has ordered that the Meyers pickets be arrested. The only charge is that they have disobeyed the law and appealed to the strikebreakers to come out of the MEYERS SCABBERY. Chief Carter is taking his orders from the Columbus Chamber of Commerce. What is the Columbus Federation of Labor going to do in this matter?

BARBERS' UNION.

Yourself and employes are cordially invited to attend the most important mass meeting ever given under the auspices of J. B. L. U. of A., Local No. 204, on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1911, at 121½ East Town Street.

'Genral Organizer J. C. Shanessy will address the meeting. He is undoubtedly one of the best speakers on the platform. Don't miss this opportunity of hearing this splendid orator.

Good addresses will also be made by J. H. Henderson, President Columbus Federation of Labor, and Mike O'Rourke, member City Council.

THEATRICAL STAGE EMPLOYES.

Last week the Stage Employes and the White Rats (Actors' Union) gave an illustration of what organization means to the man away from home, when sickness overtakes him. One of the members of the "Traveling Salesman Company," which recently played at the High Street Theater, was taken seriously ill. One of the company noticed his condition and advised him to see a doctor. He also advised Brother Johnson, of the Stage hands' Union. The White Rats joined hands with the Stage Employes Union. The sick man was placed in a local hospital. The company left town with the consolation that their fellow member was left in the hands of friends. The attention given this sick brother by the Stage Employes' Union is commendable to all concerned, and such brotherly acts are bound to unite those behind and in front of the curtain in stronger bonds of unity. Ed Krauss, the union's representative will be glad to give information to all who are concerned in patronizing UNION PLAYHOUSES. The playgoing public should remember that many of the safety appliances now in force behind and in front of the houses are the result of continual agitation for the protection of life and porperty and the results reached through the united efforts of the American Stage Employes Union.

TROUBLE PENDING AT COLUMBUS DRIVING PARK.

Business Agent Mirando has so far failed in his efforts to adjust matters with Charlie Hayes, the owner of the refreshment privileges at the Columbus Driving Park. At the present time the matter is in the hands of the National Office and we would suggest that the union men and their friends STAY AWAY from the Columbus Driving Park until this trouble is adjusted.

TO THE WIVES OF UNION MEN.

Have you ever stopped to think that it is from our homes that the next generation of "working people" come? It is our boys and girls that go forth into the factory, the office and the shop to "earn their own living."

You have untiringly cared for and guarded your children up to the time they enter the working world. Then you relax vigil over them. Don't you think you should understand the conditions under which they must labor?

Knowing what your husband's Union has done for him and his fellow workers—given them better hours, better pay and better working conditions—why is it you do not urge with all your strength upon your son and daughter the advisability of joining a union as soon as they enter the labor world?

Of course you do rather expect your son will eventually join a union because he is in industry to stay, and in order to earn the best wages and working conditions, it is to his advantage to belong to a union.

But what of your daughter? When you send her out for a position, you figure she is only working for a few short years (till she marries), and salary is of not so much importance.

How do you figure this? Does it cost you less to clothe and feed your daughter than it does your son? Is your daughter so much stronger physically that she is able to work ten to fifteen hours for small pay, where your son works only eight hours (if a member of an organization), and for the best pay that collective bargaining can procure?

Have you considered that your daughter, when working for less than a living wage, is not only bringing down the salary of self-supporting women who are working all the time, but is also in many instances competing with your son, and bringing down his wages to a lower standard?

Wherever unionism has entered it has made working conditions better, and its powers in this direction are unlimited if you give it proper support.

Do you ask for the union label when you buy family supplies?

The next time you go out shopping and see "cheap goods" on a bargain counter, before you buy, stop and consider if they are really cheap.

Think of the lives of little children and the souls of young girls which pay the difference in price between a "bargain counter" article and a "union made" product.

And these children and these girls come from homes of the working people? Think about it!

Isn't it time for the protection of your home and your family, that you demand the union label and urge upon your daughter the vital necessity of joining a union?—A Union Man's Wife, in Life and Labor.

OCCUPATIONS FOR WOMEN.

To those who are graciously willing to permit a woman to earn a living when she has to there is nothing startling in the idea of a woman stenographer or nurse or dressmaker. When we begin to talk about a woman doctor, or lawyer or dentist, however, the public sits up and takes notice.

The field of the so-called "learned professions" has been men's peculiar and cherished prerogative. The men had their fingers crossed—no female need attempt to invade.

When women first began to clamor for admission to the medical colleges they met a storm of bitter prejudice and opposition. However, the absurdity of the attempt to forbid women the training which would put her in the position to minister to the medical needs of her own sex began in time to penetrate the skull of popular prejudice. The chief difficulty the woman doctor has to fight today is a lingering doubt in the public mind concerning her efficiency. The public is from Missouri, and has to be shown that the woman can be a good physician, and to show it the doctor has to do her work just a little bit better than her masculine competitor.

While the woman doctor may find it difficult to build up a practice, she is likely to keep it after she gets it. Women have been slow to patronize their own sex in the medical field, but when a woman has once taken to herself a woman physician, she is prone to love, cherish and obey her.

The work of the woman doctor specializes itself naturally into the treatment of women and children, though it is by no means confined to these classes. For women have specialized up to this time in surgery. The medical course is a severe and expensive one. In many states the law requires a high school education as a preliminary to taking up the study of medicine.

There is undoubtedly a field for women in the law. Probate and chancery law are likely to appeal to her. There is a woman lawyer in Chicago who recently earned a $40,000 fee in this line of work. Most of the state laws require a three-year law course for admission to the bar.

There are today many women dentists in our land, all very successful in the practice of their profession. The Woman dentist labors under the same disadvantage as does the woman doctor. She has to prove to the public that a woman is capable of doing successful work in this line. Having once broken down the prejudice, there is nothing to hinder her building up a lucrative practice, especially among her own sex. An absolute requirement for success in dentistry is mechanical skill. A woman with unapt hands should not consider this field. There is also no line of work in which a neat and attractive person and personality is more necessary. The dental course as a rule is three years in length.—Virginia Bell Graham, in Woman's World.

"The woman who merits the greatest fame is the woman who gives a brilliant mind to the world. The mothers of great men and women deserve just as much honor as the great men and women themselves, and they will receive it from the better understanding of the coming days."

THE CHAINED EAGLET.

Olive Schreiner.

There was a bird's egg once, picked up by chance upon the ground, and those who found it bore it home and placed it under a barn-door fowl. And in time the chick bred out, and those who had found it, chained it by the leg to a log, lest it should stray and be lost. And by and by they gathered round it, and speculated as to what the bird might be.

One said, "It is surely a water fowl, a duck, or it may be a goose; if we take it to the water it would swim and gabble."

But another said, "It has no webs to its feet; it is a barn-yard fowl; should you let it loose it will scratch and cackle with the others."

But a third speculated, "Look now at its curved beak; no doubt it is a parrot, and can crack nuts!"

But a fourth said, "No, but look at its wings; perhaps it is a bird of great flight." But several cried, "Nonsense! No one has ever seen it fly. Why should it fly? Can you suppose that a thing can do a thing which no one has ever seen it do? And the bird, with its leg chained close to the log, preened its wings. So they sat about it, speculating and discussing it; and one said this and another that. And all the while as they talked the bird sat motionless, with its gaze fixed on the clear blue sky above it.

And one said, "Suppose we let the creature loose to see what it will do?"—and the bird shivered.

But the others cried, "It is too valuable; it might get lost. If it were to try to fly, it might fall down and break its neck."

And the bird, with its foot chained to the log, sat looking upward into the clear sky; the sky in which it had never been; for the bird knew what it would do—because it was an eaglet.—From Woman and Labor.

THE ADAMS BOYS.

By J. W. Foley.

The Adam's children, they just romp and play
And fall out of trees in the carelessest way,
And might break their legs from the way that they fall,
But they get up laughing and not hurt at all,
'Cause boys' bones are soft, so their grandfather said;
And John Quincy Adams, he stands on his head
And drinks from a dipper, and all over town
The boys will tell you how he drinks upside down.

The Adams children, they make enough noise
In the yard where they live for three times as much boys,
And sometimes they laugh and you hear it as clear
As can be up to Tinker's and way over here;
And they've got a dog which is almost the same
As the rest of the boys and will play every game,
And bark all the time, and he makes so much noise
He's just like the rest of the Adam's boys.

The Adams's children, they go out to ride
On a pony of theirs, with them all three astride,
And the boy up in front makes him kick up and then
The boy way behind, he gets thrown off again.
And the Adam's pony, he looks just as though
He's trying to laugh when the others laugh so;
It looks like a laugh, but he can't make a noise
Like the dog or the rest of the Adams's boys.

The Adams's children, they go out to play
And sometimes their mother don't see them all day,
But she never frets, 'cause the world is too small,
So she said, for three boys to get lost in it all.
And sometimes she listens outdoors and she hears
The laughing and barking way over to geer's,
Which is most half a mile, and she smiles, because then
She knows they'll be home when they're hungry again.

The Adams's children they get on as though
They were three great chums and not brothers, you know;
And folks like to hear them, when they're going past,
With the big one ahead and the little one last.
They've always got playmates of their very own,
And don't have to do chores or to study alone,
And everything seems to be three times the fun
For the Adams's children as though there's just one!

ONE BETTER.

A western buyer is ordinarily proud of the fact that one of his ancestors affixt his name to the Declaration of Independence. At the time the salesman called, the buyer was signing a number of checks and affixt his signature with many a curve and flourish. The salesman's patience becoming exhausted in waiting for the buyer to recognise him, he finally observed:

"You have a fine signature, Mr. So-and-So."

"Yes," admitted the buyer, "I should have. One of my forefathers signed the Declaration of Independence."

"So?" said the caller, with rising inflection. And then he added:

Vell, you ain'd god nottings on me. One of my forefathers signed the Ten Commandments."—From Today's Magazine.

PATRIOTISM.

By Ralph Korngold.

The German Emperor once called the Socialists "Fatherlandless rascals."

Fatherlandism we are, all workers are, but it is not the workers who have made themselves so.

The capitalist class, by making the workers propertyless, has made them fatherlandless.

The workers have no country.

This is no more your country than the shop you work in is your shop or the factory you work in is your factory. You are simply employed here, that is all.

If you can find no one who will give you a job you may be arrested under the vagrancy law. If you live in the South you may be run in as a vag. just the same as if you live in the North. You may breathe here, provided some one will give you the privilege to stand on his land.

Many who so proudly talk about their country do not even own a plot to be burried in.

I can imagine Morgan being patriotic, or Rockefeller, or Weyerhauser, but why a workingman, no matter to what country he belongs, should be patriotic is more than I can see.

Some Socialists say they believe in fighting in a war, provided it is a defensive war.

I do not believe in any war.

Supposing the Germans would take America. What is it to you?

You would have an old-age pension when you got old and a sick benefit when you got sick.

You would have the right to boycott, which you do not have now, and you could ride on the railroads for about one-half the price you are paying now.

Domination by the German capitalists could not be any worse than domination by American capitalists—indeed it would be better. That conditions are somewhat better for the working class in America than in some European countries is by no means due to our superior laws, but is rather in spite of these laws.

The resources of this nation are so immense and its population, when compared with the population of Europe, relatively so scarce that our law makers have not been able to grind down the workingclass as much as they would like to.

God knows they and their masters, the capitalists, have made a good enough job of it.

Let Rockefeller and Morgan fight their own battles.

The workingmen of the world have but one common enemy—the capitalist class of the world.

Circuit Court Decides That Judge Collins' Court Had No Jurisdiction In Extradition Cases.

Washington.—The following telegram from Attorney Boyfried, the legal representative of the A. F. of L. of Indianapolis, was received at headquarters Sept. 7: "Circuit Court today decided that City Court (Judge Collins) has no jurisdiction in extradition cases."

Judge James A. Collins, of the police court, who turned over John J. McNamara to the California authorities has contended that he has jurisdiction in extradition proceedings. The decision just handed down by the Circuit Court in the case of one Rochelle, who was wanted in Toledo, shows that Judge Collins exceeded his authority.

In July, Mayor Shank, of Indianapolis, had a conference with Chief of Police Hyland, in which he expressed a doubt as to whether the police court was a court of proper jurisdiction to take prisoners involved in extradition proceedings. He said then: "Not being a lawyer, of course I do not know whether Judge Collins has jurisdiction in such cases, or not. That I suppose will be decided in September by Judge Remster."

The decision as handed down by the Circuit Court upholds the contention of the A. F. of L. in the kidnapping of J. J. McNamara.

DEMAND HIGHER WAGES.

Vienna, Aus., Sept 16.—Five hundred delegates, representing all the railway men's societies, have decided that a demand for a twenty per cent increase in wages shall be made to the government. The high cost of living, it is declared, made the increase necessary.

FREE TEXT BOOKS.

ELLA JUNE PURCELL.

Less than a hundred years ago there were no public schools in this country. As a result educations were expensive and only the favored few received them. When the question of establishing a public school system was first presented there was a storm of opposition. Conservatives and fools said the idea was anarchistic,—communistic. They said it was a dangerous usurpation of power for the government to go into the school building and school teaching business. And besides how unjust to the private institutions, what a loss to them!

But the ieda of a public school system was Right, and of course was promptly inaugurated. The system has grown and developed until there is no country in the world with a system of public education superior to ours. Every one sees now that any system other than a free, government owned system would be impractical, inadequate, undemocratic and, — expensive.

Having seen the successful operation of a government owned school system we wonder how any one could have doubted its expediency. But for years there has been a constantly growing class which honestly thinks that the largest measure of efficiency is not being derived from the system. We have seen the successful use of government owned buildings and government paid teachers. Why not government owned books?

Even as the common school system was first denounced, so have the free text books advocates been criticised. In spite of opposition, however, free text books have been adopted in many places. In late years Columbus has been furnishing free books in the lower grades. At present they are furnished to pupils thru the sixth grade.

It is the duty of the state to make education possible for every one. Unless books are furnished free this is impossible. Is not the tax rate of Columbus sufficiently high to enable the School Board to furnish books? Other city Boards are able to do. Why can't ours?

Every few years the text books are changed. This is doubtless eminently satisfactory to the School Book Trust. But it is unjust to the children and an overwhelming burden to the parents. Is it any wonder that children in "dollar-a-day-homes" must go to work and cannot afford to go to school?

It should be the duty of every voter to inquire of every candidate for the School Board where he or she stands on the question of free text books. If a candidate is opposed to free text books you may be certain that candidate is on friendly terms with the School Book Trust. Some candidates may defend their opposition on the ground that free text books are unhygienic. This is an absurd make shift.

The books should not be used indiscriminately by all the pupils of a grade, but each child should use one set of books a full year and for that period of time they should belong to him. At the end of the year they should be thoroly cleaned and fumigated. When the books are badly torn and soiled they should be replaced. Large quantities could be cheaply purchased.

Men and women who have faith in the American public school system and who desire to see the full measure of good deprived therefrom, are in favor of free text books. They are a logical part of a free school system. Vote for those pledged to free text books in all grades of the public schools.

Socialism and the Constitution.

By Daniel W. Hoan, Socialist City Attorney of Milwaukee.

Editor's Note.—One of the interesting addresses before the Socialist Municipal Conference at Milwaukee was delivered by Socialist City Attorney Hoan. It is in part as follows:

"I stand here to say to you that nine-tenths of that document will not have to be changed, even under a Socialist government," said City Attorney D. W. Hoan, speaking of the federal constitution.

"The bill of rights is in that document," continued Hoan, "the right to trial by jury, the right to vote, security in your homes; all these are in the constitution and would not have to be changed. The bill of rights is the law of the people and will remain the same, even under a Socialist government.

"The constitution today is different than when it was first framed. It is changed with every decision of the Supreme Court.

"The constitution can be printed in a small pamphlet which you can carry in your vest pocket, but constitutional law, meaning the interpretation of the constitution by decisions of the Supreme Court, would fill a hundred vol-

"The government has changed gradually without your knowing it. The United States Supreme Court can enjoin the enforcement of any state law. That is concentration of power that does not exist in the constitution, but was written in by the decisions of the Supreme Court.

"There has been a usurpation of power which was never intended in the constitution. In the constitutional convention three times an attempt was made to give judges these powers and three times it was defeated by almost unanimous vote. Talk about revolution! There it is, but in the wrong direction.

Need of Socialist Lawyers.

Hoan urged the Socialists to get more lawyers in their party. The party is confronted with something that does not bother Socialists in the old countries, he said, that is, that the Supreme Court, by a stroke of the pen, could wipe out the work of years. Officials, he said, should familiarize themselves with the constitution and the statutes.

"We need more lawyers in this movement," said Hoan, "with stiff back bones. Get members of the party, but look out for lawyers, especially those with common sense.

"If a lawyer has not common sense he should not be put in the legal departments of city government. Here in Milwaukee it has been found necessary to go outside the party for lawyers and we have taken young men with ambition, even if they were not Socialists.

"The efforts of the Socialist party today is doing more to make the courts sit up and take notice than any other power on earth," he continued. "Right here in Milwaukee we do not hesitate to tell a judge what we think."

As a recipe for a good judge he offered this:

"Get a Socialist, make him a good lawyer and elect him judge. That is one way to get the constitution interpreted right."

Speaking of commitments to the house of correction and that institution itself, he said that a visit there was enough "to inspire the fear of God in the heart of an atheist."

"Decisions Here Favorable."

"I have nothing to say about the personality of the courts," he said. "If there is anything wrong it is your fault. I am satisfied that in this city of Milwaukee the decisions handed down by the Circuit Court and in the state by the Supreme Court have been far more favorable to the people than in other states, as the state of Illinois, where I formerly practiced."

He expressed himself forcibly on the nonpartisan movement.

"The movement for nonpartisan government," said he, "is the most vicious attack on democracy that has ever been made. Under this form of government everything would be mixed up, as officials of different parties would get into power. The government in such case would fail, and that is what they want."

In conclusion, he urged the Socialists to strengthen the legal department in cities where they gained control, for there was where they would be attacked. He also urged the election of "bunches" of aldermen rather than to get mayors elected, as the aldermen could keep things stirred up, while the mayor, if alone, might "go wrong."

NEWSBOYS ON STRIKE IN LIVERPOOL.

Liverpool, Eng., Sept. 16.—Hundreds of Newsboys in Liverpool went on strike demanding an increase of 2 cents on each dozen of half-penny papers they sell. They have been receiving 4 cents on each dozen and are determined to be in line with other workers who have secured increases recently.

ANOTHER INCREASE IN WAGES.

Washington, Sept. 16.—The Order of Railroad Telegraphers is steadily advancing and increases in wages are the order of the day. The wages of the operators employed by the Denver & Rio Grande railroad have just been increased by from 5 to 10 per cent.

General Labor Notes.

A UNION BUILT BATTLESHIP.

Washington.—Work on Uncle Sam's greatest and latest dreadnaught, the battleship New York, has been begun. The vessel will be built in the Brooklyn Navy Yard and will, when completed, be another tribute to the skill of organized labor.

The plan to build the dreadnaught in a government yard has met with considerable opposition. It was asserted that the vessel could not be built on the original amount appropriated for that purpose. The appropriation was increased, however, and the battleship will be built by the government.

Before work was begun it was found necessary to take off a piece of a corner of a building, in order that the ways might be lengthened.

MAMMOTH LOAVES.

Washington, Sept. 16.—A loaf of bread 16 feet long, said to be the largest one ever baked, was a feature in Pittsburg's Labor Day parade. It was the handiwork of members of Local No. 12 of the Bakers' Union and was carried by six of the members. Local No. 44 of the same union exhibited an equally big loaf. It weighed 200 pounds and was drawn in a wagon by a pony. Both loaves were decorated with the union label.

HIDDEN MISERY.

Washington.—Exhibitions of misery are not good to look at. They might create a spirit of discontent, and cause something to be done to eliminate the cause. The following excerpt from an editorial in the Washington Post aptly explains the motives that prompt many philanthropies:

"In crude and unsettled conditions of society the vicious and unfortunate wandered upon the highways, palpable evidences of the presence of sin and misery. We manage these things better now, providing places where they may be sequestered from the public gaze. Banished from sight and thought, the world looks much fairer, and there comes a satisfied conviction that everything is much better than it used to be."

STATIONARY FIREMEN ALIVE IN BOSTON.

The Stationary Firemen's Union at Boston, Mass., has secured for its members an increase in wages of 45 cents a day.

CANADIAN BREWERY WORKERS.

The Brewery Workers' Union at Peterboro, Ontario, has been successful in securing an increase in the wage scale of $1.00 a week. It has also succeeded in reducing the working hours.

STILL THEY COME.

In Every Part of the Land Men of All Trades and Callings Are Organizing for Protection.

PRISON LABOR LAW TO STAND.

Washington, Sept. 16.—The case of the Hoge-Montgomery Co. vs. Charles L. Dougherty as commissioner of labor, was heard by Judge Cotteral of the United States Circuit Court last week. This case involves the constitutionality of the Oklahoman statute, passed two years ago, requiring that all convict made goods be branded or marked before being offered for sale in the state.

The Commissioner of Labor notified all dealers of the provisions of the statute and warned them that prosecutions would follow in cases of violation.

The Hoge-Montgomery Mfg. Co., which manufactures shoes in the Kentucky penitentiary at Frankfort, having a contract for the labor of about 800 convicts, thereupon prayed for an injunction to restrain the commission from proceeding with the enforcement of the law, on the ground that the statute was an infringement on the jurisdiction of the national government over interstate commerce. The argument before Judge Cotterel was on a motion to make the injunction permanent.

THE SOCIALISTS' CITY PLATFORM.

We, the Socialist Party of the City of Columbus, Ohio, assembled in mass convention, reaffirm our allegiance to the principles of International Socialism as embodied in our National and State Platform.

The first consideration in all municipal affairs should be the interest of the working class. The Socialist Party is organized not only to elect good and efficient men to office but to control the powers of political government in order to guarantee to the workers the possession and operation of the means of production and distribution and the full social product of their labor.

As measures calculated to strengthen the working class in its fight for the realization of its ultimate aim, and to increase its powers of resistance against private capitalism, we advocate and pledge ourselves and our elected officers to the following program:

FIRST: For the more perfect application of the Initiative and Referendum in all municipal affairs.

SECOND: For the Recall of all elective officials.

THIRD: For the public ownership of all public utilities and the abolition of the contract system and all convict labor when in competition with free labor.

FOURTH: For the elimination of unnecessary officials, a reduction of all salaries that excessive and a minimum wage of $3.00 per day in all public works.

FIFTH: For the Eight Hour Day for all labor on public improvements and in all municipal departments, and a uniform pension system to apply to all city employees.

SIXTH: For the City to furnish work to the unemployed to the fullest extent possible under present conditions.

SEVENTH: For the rigid inspection of all stores, factories, workshops and places of public assemblage and the strict enforcement of all laws to protect the lives of the workers.

EIGHTH: Human life and health being more sacred than property, should be the first consideration in the enforcement of the sanitary laws.

NINTH: For public parks and playgrounds within easy reach of the workers, and public comfort stations as well as public drinking fountains, wherever essential to the health and comfort of the workers.

TENTH: For the City to provide municipal hospitals free from every taint of Charity.

ELEVENTH: For free text books in all grades of our public schools and the use of one room in each school house for public assemblage.

TWELFTH: For the free administration of justice and the election of a public "Defender" as well as a public "Prosecutor" as at present.

THIRTEENTH: We pledge ourselves to secure from the State, such authority as will give the municipality the right to establish, own and operate all industries that pertain to the city's activity.

SOCIALIST NEWS FROM THE OLD CAPITAL CITY.

Chillicothe, O., Sept. 17.—I trust that a little news from this old town will be interesting to some of the comrades. We have had somewhat of a task getting the movement going right here, as this is not much of a manufacturing town, or rather I would call it a hide-bound community. But a few of the class conscious comrades stuck together and we have got things going now. We have about fifty paying members and we are getting new ones every week.

Ella Reeve Bloor was here Saturday evening and spoke from the Court House steps, and I tell you she is a cracker. It was the best street meeting ever held in our city and three members signed application cards. We have a full city ticket and we expect to elect some aldermen and possibly mayor. We are going to have Comrade Debs here November 6, 2:30 p. m., Masonic Opera House, so I guess we are not doing so bad. However, it will mean some work for us, but we won't fail. Just keep your eye on Chillicothe from now on. Everybody is talking and some have even started to think.

We feel that our efforts have not been in vain, and may God speed the time when the cause we love is won. We shall labor for ourselves and for our own. Each for all and all for each, and through many joyful years we shall pluck the fruit that comrades brave have sown.

Fraternally yours,

S. S. McC.

MAYOR OF MODEL TOWN OF STEEL TRUST IS ARRESTED FOR ACCEPTING BRIBE.

Gary, Ind.—Mayor Knotts was arrested in the city hall just after T. E. Dean, who signed the affidavit, came from the executive's office with the heating franchise in his pocket. Dean alleges he paid the mayor $5,000.

Before entering the mayor's office Dean had himself searched by four persons as a proof that he had the $5,000 on his person when he entered Mayor Knott's office. When he left the room he had himself searched again. He told the deputies to serve the warrant and they would find the money in an envelope in a pigeon hole in Mayor Knott's desk. The warrant was served and Mayor Knotts was released on $5,000 bonds furnished by his brothrs, A. F. Knotts, former mayor of Hammond, Ind.

Well, well, it is too bad, isn't it? And this is the "model town!" 'Tis said "When thieves fall out, honest men come to their own."

May be so. But how will the exposure of this heating franchise effect the lot of the poor slaves in the steel mills.

Their exposure to the infernal heat of exploitation in the model industrial hells will undoubtedly continue.

LOCAL REFERENDUM.

The City Central committee has submitted to a referendum vote the proposition of accepting the National Socialist Lyceum Bureau lecture course or adopting an independent course with state or local speakers for Sunday afternoons or week nights. The local course would not involve any newspaper subscription, while the national lyceum does. It is now up to the membership.

FIRST WARD ABLAZE.

The First Ward Lawn Fete, Thursday night, was a mighty rally of South Side Socialists. Three thousand people visited the corner Innis and Seventh. The politicians were paralyzed and a special meeting of the bosses was held Friday to consider the uprising. Comrade Pete Kinnear presided Thursday evening and addresses were made by Comrade Ella Reeve Bloor, J. H. Henderson, A. C. Eby, Fred Zimpfer and others. A street parade was the first event of the evening.

JUDGE OSBORNE AND THE STREET CAR STRIKE.

Labor Demands Answer to These QUESTIONS.

S. G. Osborne is a candidate for reelection as Police Judge. The workingmen of the city are pretty well advised as to his unfair performances on the police bench one year ago during the street car strike. It is not generally known, however, that there is a large number of workingmen whose names are still on Judge Osborne's criminal docket as defendants. The Police Prosecutor has been requested time and again, as has been the Police Judge, to set these cases down for trial or to dismiss them. The prosecutor says he cannot try these defendants for the reason that he has no case against them. The judge refuses to dismiss them unless they come personally into his court. This is a most unreasonable, most un-American rule of procedure on the part of Judge Osoorne. These defendants are scattered all over the country since the strike. The only charge against them was that they were standing around on the street, that is to say, loitering. Many of these men work for great corporations and cannot get a clearance card when leaving the employ of one company and going to the employ of another because of this criminal charge on Judge Osborne's docket, which is still hanging over them.

Judge Osborne insists that these men, some of them at least, cross the continent that they may personally appear in his court to be dismissed from a charge which the Police Prosecutor says he cannot prove. Not another court in the state has such an unreasonable rule. When a County Prosecutor requests a Common Pleas Judge to dismiss a case for the reason that he has no case against the defendant, or for any other reason for that matter, the judge does not require the defendant to appear personally in court for such dismissal. These men in question have already lost much time from their employment fooling around Police Court in a matter in which the Police Prosecutor says he has no case. Now comes Judge Osborne and demands that they lose more time, spend more money and travel hundreds of miles to come into his court to hear him say, "You are dismissed."

It is an outrage which every workingman in Columbus should rebuke on election day.

People Betrayed by Good Men in Politics. The Light Extender Becomes an Issue.

Office State Librarian 53 Columbus, O

When a body of men play for time, something out of the ordinary is bound to happen. Council for twelve weeks delayed goting on the Light Extender Bond Issue, giving as a reason that they wished more time for consideration of this ordinance.

However, they failed to inquire of their constituents as to how they felt about the matter. Certainly not, as they have taken the position that it is none of the "public's business."

When the crucial moment arrived to vote on this proposition, we found that eight stood "Pat" with the Service Corporations, by voting against the Light Extender Bond Issue.

The Public, left under the impression for twelve weeks, that Council would submit the Light Extender Bond issue to a vote of the people, were betrayed in the most arrogant manner by a bunch of political Mountebanks, whose only right to public office is the fact that they bought their way in and are now offering their wares to the highest bidder.

What is the motive behind the defeat of the Light Extender Bond Issue?

It is very simple. Certain Public Service Corporations, having secured control of all the electric commercial and lighting plants in the city, stocked, jobbed and bonded the earnings of these plants, way above their true market value.

It can readily be seen that the life of these Public Service Plants, earning immense dividends on their capitalization, can only be retained by denying the Municipality the right to extend its facilities to furnish light and power for commercial uses.

With the use of a reactionary council, they readily accomplished their purpose in the defeat of the Light Extender Ordinance, and received a new lease of life for another year to exploit the citizens of Columbus.

The vote in favor of this ordinance by the people would have meant that these Public Service Plants would have been relegated to the old iron pile, with a shrinkage proportionately of their fixed capitalization.

The public, groaning under the increased price of the necessities of life, is becoming determined to throw off the tentacles of "Corporate Greed."

In the coming election the Light Extender will become a paramount issue, because it will mean an immense saving to the public at large. However, the Public Service Corporations are not worrying much about the Democratic or Republican nominee for Mayor. They are concentrating their efforts to again blind and betray the people, by advocating the election of "good men" to the City Council.

There is no doubt that to fund these self same "good men" in public office a slush fund, unlimited in its amount, will be used.

Republicans, seeing Harper, Eitel, Evans and Price, all "good men in politics," and most all Marshall's supporters, betraying their interests, are disgusted with the farce.

Democrats, witnessing their "great public economists," Mahanna, Dierker, Heintz and Welsh, most of whom are strong supporters of Karb, president of the Ohio Oil Co., a subsidiary concern of the Standard Oil Co., that now controls most of the Public Service Corporations in the United States, voting for this denyal of the public having anything to say in affairs that are of vital interest to them, are wondering in amazement where this Great Municipal Side Show of good Democrats in office will end.

The public must be aroused to the staging behind the political curtain. There is no more a Republican or Democratic party. It is a party of "Greed" in Demo-Rep. sheep's clothing, called "good men in politics," aginst pure Democracy emphasized in the Socialist party.

Thousands of honest men in the city of Columbus have come to a realization of this fact and henceforth will not be betrayed by this political mockery, "good men in politics," to further betray their political rights.

Every Socialist running for office has his resignation signed but not dated, placed in the hands of the City Central Committee, and the moment he betrays the rights of the public, as council did Monday night, it is dated, placed in the hands of the proper authorities, and he resigns from office.

This is the public's only hope of protecting itself against the Greed of Public Service Corporations, and is becoming more fully recognized as the great show of public betrayal goes merrily on.

Every man running for public office and labeled a "good man," without his resignation signed and dated in the hands of an aroused Citizenship, had better be looked upon with suspicion, as they may again be handing us a "lemon" in disguise, that will adopt a "public be damned" policy the moment they take the oath of office.

"Good men," we have discovered, are the "Bell Wethers" of corporate greed, in time of direst need. In fact the greater the need and the better the man, the higher the price that he can command for services rendered.

A "political house cleaning" from cellar to garret is positively necessary, and the time to do it is "NOW," by the election of the entire Socialist ticket.

Meetings Held the Past Week.

It is impossible within the space of The Socialist to do justice to the propaganda meetings held by the Socialist party in Columbus during the past week. On Saturday evening an immense crowd gathered at West Broad and Sandusky streets, where speeches were eagerly listened to and the music enjoyed. The Socialist band headed a parade from that point to the State House square. The entire line of march was illuminated by red fire and the procession greeted with applause. Around the square the throng walked, startling the denizens of the business center. The second meeting was held on the north side of the square.

The principal speaker was Mrs. Ella Reeve Bloor of Waterbury, Conn., whom President Roosevelt appointed one of the members of the commission to investigate child labor. Comrade Eby, candidate for Mayor, J. L. Bachman, candidate for city solicitor, and James H. Henderson, candidate for delegate to the constitutional convention, were other speakers.

In the report of the Socialist meetings held on Sunday, the Ohio State Journal said:

"After reiterating the statement that his election is assured, A. C. Eby, his election is assured, A. C. Eby declared Guerr Parks yesterday that Socialism was never stronger in Columbus than now.

"Fully 1000 heard the Socialists speak at Franklin Park, and a collection of $12 was taken up. Those who spoke were: A. C. Eby, T. C. Southard, nominee for city treasurer; George Swarts, organizer for the Socialist party in Oklahoma, C. E. Belcher and Peter Kinnear.

"At Guerr Park 1500 attended the meeting and $18 was donated to the cause. The speakers were: Mr. Eby, Mrs. Ella Bloor, W. E. Buss, nominee for councilman-at-large, and E. B. Lewis, editor of The Socialist."

On Monday a noonday meeting addressed by Comrade Ella Reeve Bloor at Third and Long, near the Meyer's scabbery, drew several hundred people. Meyers got frightened and sent in a riot call, but the meeting was over before the cops arrived.

Each noon and evening meetings have been held in various sections of the city, each one of which has been enthusiastic and beyond all expectations in size. Words cannot describe the strong, deep feeling that prevails.

The politicians cannot understand the situation and we are glad they do not.

On Wednesday evening two meetings were held in two parts of the city. These meetings were crowded to the doors. The German comrades provided the music and the inspiration of its effect caused a wave of enthusiasm to spread over the audience, and it remained until the last vestige of an hearer was to be seen in the hall. Local Dayton is moving onward and upward. Its movement is one of the most powerful in the state and this is the result of a well disciplined body directed by men who believe in doing things as well as saying things. Socialism and the Race Problem.

(An address delivered by Peter Kinnear at Mt. Vernon and Champion avenues, Labor Day evening, to an audience of colored people.)

Some weeks ago our worthy Mayor, at one of his tent meetings, was asked the question by a colored man, if Socialism would benefit the negro.

The Mayor replied, "That under no circumstances would Socialism benefit the Negro."

I hold in my hand a little red book that certifies that I am a dues-paying member of the Socialist party, an organised political party whose membership encircles the earth. This party is organised in the interests of all workingmen, regardless of race, color or creed. Now if this statement of the Mayor were true, I would tear this red card into a thousand shreds, and forever sever my connections with this political party.

Now there are two things apparent in my mind; either the Mayor is deliberately lying about this great world movement, or he knows nothing of its philosophy or teachings. If he has lied, he is not worthy the support of any honest man, black or white; and if he is in ignorance of this scientific truth, he again is not worthy the support of the great mass of thinking workingmen that inhabit your city.

In our present mode of making a living, there are two classes; those who seek jobs (the workingclass) and those who own the factories, workshops and mines, and have the jobs to offer (the Capitalistic class).

Now it is in the interest of that class (the Capitalistic class) that have jobs to offer, to have more skilled and unskilled job-seekers) workingmen) than there are jobs to be had. Consequently, these workingmen that have their brawn and muscle to sell are constantly underbidding one another for these jobs to be had, so that they can live.

As there are more job-seekers than there are job to be had, this causes a glutted labor market. The job owners want to hire labor as cheaply as possible, and the job-seekers want to get as high a wage as possible for their labor.

THE CLASS STRUGGLE.

This is what the Socialists call the Class Struggle, because the interest of both these classes are directly opposed to one another.

The skilled job-seekers, machinists, plumbers, bricklayers, hodcarriers and others, to protect themselves against the job-owners and make it possible for them to get a higher wage, have organized themselves into unions. However, bricklayers are not as numerous as printers, therefore they can get a higher wage from the job-owners. And the printers are not as numerous as the machinists, consequently they are able to get a much higher wage than the machinists.

Colored workingmen, organized into hodcarriers' unions, are able to get a much higher wage than colored men unorganized and unskilled, that dig sewers and tronches. However, colored men organized do not receive as high a wage as their white brother organized, because of the race question, based on prejudice, injected into the minds of the white workingman by the job-owners contending that the white workingman is superior to the black workingman. Therefore white union men up to now, have always drawn the color line in their respective organizations.

Therefore the race question having prejudiced the white union man, in the belief that he is superior to the colored man, he has always held aloof from the colored man when he went on strike against the job-owners for a higher living wage.

THE RACE ISSUE!

Consequently the colored man would always lose his strike, and be compelled to work for a less wage. This naturally was a very pleasing arrangment for the job-owner, from a view point of profit, therefore he kept the race question of "superiority" a live one.

However, we have found that when white workingmen went on strike against the job-owners, they would not hesitate one minute to hire colored men to scab against the white man, if they had anywhere near the qualifications necessary to hold the jobs. So you can readily see in times of peace the boss would hold the negro in contempt and spread it among the white workmen, but in time of strife he will condescend and use the negro to force the white man to work for a less wage.

This game on the part of the job-owners, was worked for a number of years in New Orleans. There the white dockworkers with their southern employers, looked down on the Negro with contempt. However, when the white dock-workers would resist an attempt on the part of the dock-owners to lower their wage by going on strike, the white dock-owners would advertise for Negroes to take their places.

Why?

Because it was a matter of physical endurance. The Negro could load cotton and fruits as well as the white man. It was a matter of physical strength, and no white man will deny but that the average Negro has as much strength as the average white man. So when it came to a matter of handling cotton on the docks, it was not a matter of race superiority, but a matter of good strong arms and hands. The southern master in the interest of having job-seekers work as cheaply as possible, forget all about the race question.

Consequently, the white dock-workers lost one strike after another on account of his race prejudice against the Negro, who willingly scabbed against his white brother, because he refused to recognise him as an equal in handling cotton, while the dock-owners laughed and smiled at every defeat of the white workers, whom they kept divided through the race question, with profit to themselves.

Work on the docks became unbearable. Wages became so low that white dock-workers on the wage they received were unable to buy enough nourishing food to keep up their strength so they could work. Of course the Negro had to suffer in the same proportion as the white man. However, there is a limit to all things.

The white dock-workers came to the realization that it was the Negro that they refused to accept into their organization that would eventually drive them off the docks, from the fact that there were more Negroes stepping in and taking the places of the men that dropped out from weakness and hunger than there were white men.

So the white dock-workers called a meeting of all the colored dock-workers to meet with them and discuss the situation. Lo and behold in this meeting the white dock-workers discovered that the Negro was just as much opposed to the conditions as they existed on the docks as the white men were. They found that the Negro did not scab on them through general cussedness, but through a look of recognition on the part of the white man. The Negroes in their hearts were just as rebellious against the dock-masters as the whites were.

RACE LINES WIPED OUT.

After a general discussion, they came to the conclusion that they were all workingmen, regardless of race, color or creed, and that they all were striving to better their material conditions surrounding their respective homes. That the only thing as workingmen that they had to sell to live was their labor, and if they wished to get a higher wage for all, that the color line would have to be dropped, and they form a massive union of whites and blacks. Race superiority, these workers discovered, was a myth, as their sentiments were one in common.

Then and there they organized the Dock and Cotton Council of New Orleans. To prove to the masters that they had eliminated the race question they incorporated the following in their bylaws and constitution: that one year a white man should be president and a colored man secretary, and the next year a colored man should be president and a white man secretary.

Now united, they carried the war to the dock-owners' door, declaring a strike for higher wages and better dock conditions. The dock-owners adopted their previous tactics, by advertising for strike-breakers, both black and white, to take the strikers' places. The police and state militia were called out to assist the dock-owners to break this strike.

However, they were unsuccessful in this as the white dock-workers prevailed on the white workers to refuse to scab, and the colored dock-workers did likewise with his race.

UNITED WORKERS WIN.

The strike prevailed in all its intensity for several weeks. Tropical fruits was spoiling by the shipload. Cotton was piling high on the docks by not being moved. The dock-workers, black and white, stood solidly side by side. Not one of them deserted his organization. This was a new one on the dock-owners, who had expected that in a week or so the workers through stern necessity, would desert their union and go back to work.

So the dock-owners solicited a conference, to arbitrate their differences. They chose two arbitrators, the union two, a black and white dock-worker, and between the four they chose two more.

As they were ready to go into conference, the dock-owners objected to the Negro dock-worker taking part in the discussion. They stated that they were highly insulted by being asked to set at the same table with a "Nigger" and treat for terms. Here was the "Race Question" again.

The white dock-worker, bearing in mind the suffering for years that this contention had brought to the white worker, arose in all his wrath and placing his hand on the shoulder of his colored member said: "When we white dock-workers went on strike, you all did not hesitate to hire this "Nigger" to take our jobs and break our strikes. You all did not care if he was black, as long as he unloaded and loaded the vessels. Then when the strike was over, you all would make us work with this "Nigger," eat with this "Nigger," and even sleep with this "Nigger." Now, damn you, you all will treat with this "Nigger," or we will not treat with you at all."

EMPLOYERS BEATEN.

The dock-owners at last saw that the "Race Question," as a ruse to divide the workers, had failed. They saw opposed to them a working class that did not recognise race, color or creed, when it came to a matter of bargaining collectively for higher wages and better conditions, in the sale of the only thing they had, their labor power, braun and muscle. The dock-workers had solved the "Race Problem" among themselves.

Consequently the dock-owners submitted to the terms as proposed by the dock-workers. United they have defeated the dock-owners time and again.

They are now the best paid unskilled labor in the United States, some receiving as high a wage as $100 per month. Through this you can readily see how quickly the working class will solve the "Race question," when they once as a class recognise, this principle of the identity of their class interests.

Today the colored race are being told by the Master Class that they must solve their own destiny. On the other hand they instill into the minds of men the "superiority" of the white race. Wherever the colored man has been given an equal opportunity with his white brother, he has demonstrated his ability.

RESULT OF RACE CONGRESS.

Some months ago a great race congress was held at Brussels. All races on the face of the globe were represented. The best picked men of every race were there. After several weeks of thorough discussion, they came to the conclusion that there was practically no difference in them as to ability in the arts and production.

They further came to the conclusion that "race superiority" was a farce and had no foundation. That it was all a matter of environment. That the black child and the white child raised in a slum, would be children of the slum. That the black child and the white child, raised in an atmosphere of learning and intelligence, would all naturally crave after knowledge. Therefore you all can readily see that it is only a matter of opportunity, and the colored race has the least opportunity of all.

Now I know that there is not a colored man within the hearing of my voice, that would not like a better home to live in, better food to eat, better clothes to wear, better shoes to wear, and more leisure time to spend with his family. This craving within your hearts is the most natural thing that Nature has endowed you with. In this matter you feel as I do.

If this were not true, all colored people would live alike. But they don't. Some wear better clothes than others. Some live in better homes than others. Some can educate their children better than others.

How to bring about better opportunities for us all, white or black, of the working class, is what we are interested in tonight. I showed you how the dock-workers solved this question among themselves, and that same day is coming soon among us. The entire working class, white and black, must soon become united among themselves, whether they like it or not.

ONE UNION, ONE PARTY.

Like the dock-workers, we must lay aside race prejudice, that keeps us divided among ourselves. We must, like the dock-worker, organize a large massive union upon the industrial field. Then when we go on strike, we all go on strike together. And then we must all get into a political party that stands for the principle of no race, color or creed, within its organization.

Already the white union men are commencing to discover this, and are abolishing the color line. Some years ago the Moulders' Union discovered that whenever they went on strike, that the boss imported Negroes to take their places. Now where in the world did these negroes come from? Why Negroes never learned the moulding trade in the union shops, because the color line had been drawn. However, no matter where the Negroes come from, they were turning out castings and breaking their strike.

So the union moulders commenced to investigate and found that the southern penitentiaries were turning out Negro convicts that learned the moulding trade within prison walls. They discovered that the job-owners had found another method wherewith they could force the iron moulder to accept a lower wage, by using this prison labor against the white union iron worker. After the iron moulders were defeated several times in their strikes by this colored prison labor, that could mould iron as well as they could, they like the white dock-workers, came to the conclusion that something would have to be done with this Negro moulder, or the Negro moulder would break one strike of theirs after another.

UNIONS GETTING WISE.

So they sent an organizer into the south, who is now organising these colored men into the Iron Moulders' Union. The white union moulder discovered as the white dock-worker had, that "race superiority" was only a mith, used by the job-owners to keep the workers divided against one another, so they could in time of need hire the Negro cheaper, to force down the wages of the white worker, because the Negro could mould iron just as well as the white man, even if he did learn his trade behind prison walls. This is about the extent of the average negro worker to get an opportunity to learn a trade, and demonstrate to the white man that he is capable of doing the things that heretofore have been done by the white man.

However, the Negro is exploited in another direction by the small job-owners. Take the hodcarriers, for instance. The boss will pick out the most active and strong Negro and make him the "leader" of the boys carrying the hod. This leader he pays probably 25 cents more on the day for his work. He sets the pace for the rest of the hodcarriers, and woe be on the Negro that is not quite as strong as the leader. He will keep up with the leader's pace for a week or more and then he will have to quit his job, because he hasn't the physical endurance.

We find up until now that the Negro, through the white man barring him from learning a trade, by the drawing of the color line, has been forced into the ranks of common labor. And we further find that in the winter time the skilled worker, not having anything to do at his trade, will step in and take this common laborer's job at the price offered. I have seen bricklayers getting $6.00 per day in the summer time, working for $1.50 per day in the winter, digging sewers. Now this skilled worker certainly is scabbing on the common laborer, when he does this, because there are more men seeking work at common labor than of any other kind.

COMMON LABORER UP AGAINST IT.

However, the common laborer is finding it harder, year after year, to find employment at this class of work, because of the machinery that is being invented to do this work. For instance, some weeks ago I was observing a "steam shovel" digging out a cellar, that took the places of 200 common pick and shovel laborers. There were over 300 men standing on the bank watching this steam shovel doing the work that they used to do.

A man standing along side of me had a dinner bucket in his hand. I noticed he wore a machinist's button on his coat, proving to me that he was a union man. All of a sudden I heard him grit between his teeth, "That damn steam shovel."

I quickly turned and asked him what was wrong with "that damn steam shovel."

For a moment or so he gazed into space as if deeply in thought, before he spoke. "Well, sir," he said, "I belong to the machinist trade, and hold my card in the union. Our work has been pretty slack all winter, and I have not had a job for four months. My rent and grocery bill is way over due. Yesterday I was notified that I

SOCIALISTS IN ACTION.

News From The World Wide Movement Of The Workers.

General Socialist News.

The Labor party at Globe, Ariz., has been absorbed by the Socialist party.

New York state now has 8,000 dues-paying Socialist party members. Last week 12 charters were issued to as many new locals. That's growing some.

Fred Merrick, editor of Pittsburg Justice, has been sentenced to jail upon the charge of slandering a judge and other "good" people in probing into political and social rottenness. Merrick says he will edit his paper in prison.

At the Jena congress last week the Socialists of Germany once more displayed their liberality, which is a characteristic of German Socialists everywhere, to assist others. They voted $7,500 to assist in building up the Socialist movement in Austria, $500 for the Roumanians, $750 for the Lettish and $500 each for the Russian and Polish parties.

A dispatch from Rome says that another Socialist member was added to the group in the Chamber of Deputies last week when Signor Dellasarba, the working class candidate in the district of Lari, defeated the Constitutionalist Cassuto by a big majority. Thus every election adds further strength to the world-wide movement of the working class.

Criticism continues to be aimed at the Labor party in Great Britain, which seems to be dominated by the conservative element who are fearful of offending the Liberal politicians. It is pointed out that no note of censure has been moved upon the government and no attempt made to raise the question of the employment of troops in industrial disputes in the House of Commons, as was the case in the recent strike. It is quite likely that the rank and file will retire a number of the "mossbacks" at the first opportunity.

What's coming over the San Francisco preachers? Rev. J. S. Cato, of the Baptist church in that city, has left his pulpit that he may devote his time to preaching Socialism. Rev. Charles F. Aked, who was brought over from England to preach in Rockefeller's New York church, but quit and went west, in a recent sermon at San Francisco said: "The great Socialist movement with its red flag typifying the blood of the martyrs of every nation, is the expression of human hope and zeal for human brotherhood. I see in this great movement of the masses an expression of the new spiritual life of the world, which refuses to be satisfied with less than human solidarity and mutual justice among men."

Turkey has begun to settle with Socialism. The government has become frightened. Four prominent Socialists have been jailed and mass meetings are being held in Salonica, Constantinople and other places to denounce the actions of the "Young Turk" government, which is nearly as bad as the old regime.

The Terre Haute Star, capitalist daily, says the Socialists will carry numerous Indiana cities and towns in November. The paper prints a three-column article describing the activities of the Reds. It says they have a wonderful organization in Elwood, one of the corporation-ridden manufacturing cities, and will doubtless carry that place as well as Anderson, another trust burg.

Ohio State Socialist News

The Citizen is informed from East Liverpool that the Socialist party stands an excellent chance to carry that place. The potters and other organized workers are taking hold of political affairs in earnest and the political bosses are attempting to figure out which of the old parties is losing the heaviest to the Socialist.

Bets are being freely offered in Sandusky by men of means who are not Socialists that the S. P. will cast 1,100 votes at the coming election. As there are but 5,000 votes in the town the Reds will come pretty close to capturing the place.

The United States is a big country. But it is up to Ohio to stay pretty well in the lead in making Presidents, polling the greatest number of Socialist votes, and now Joseph Sertell, of Fostoria, is announced from the National Socialist party headquarters as being the first Red in the country to dispose of sufficient subscription cards for the National Socialist Lyceum Bureau lectures that will keep the country stirred all winter.—Cleveland Citizen.

Notes From Wisconsin.

Under the capitalist system, we expect that a certain number of criminals will be made every year. But while we are waiting for the Socialist Republic to change all this, Socialists must deal with men as they now are, and as for as possible apply the humaner principles of the Socialist philosophy.

Therefore, the Socialist supervisors of Milwaukee are going to establish a new house of correction in which the best methods advocated by progressive criminologists will be put into practice. The board of control has approved the plan of this new building, and in two or three weeks the County Board will advertise for bids for its erection. Of course, the whole building will be completed by union labor, as far as possible, that is, as far as there is union labor to do it.

Before drawing up the plans for the new house of correction, the Milwaukee supervisors visited prisons throughout the country and adopted the best features of each. But besides these, they have introduced some new ideas which have never been carried out, at least to any extent.

One of the main features of the new system will be outdoor work for the inmates. Fresh air and sunshine are great moral as well as physical cures. Two hundred and eighty-four acres of land have already been purchased on which the new building will be erected. This land will provide occupation for two-thirds of the inmates, and only the most hardened offender will be employed on inside work. The others will raise garden truck for the consumption of the inmates. This will not only lessen the cost of the institution, but will also give the men a direct interest in their work. They will also have the satisfaction of feeling that they are feeding themselves, and this will give them a certain feeling of self-respect.

A few of the men will be employed in the stone quarry which is situated on the farm. However, the old methods of the "stone pile" will not be in vogue here, but machinery will do the heavy work. The crushed stone from the quarry will not be sold to contractors, but will be used on the Milwaukee roads. Since the last session of the Wisconsin legislature, Milwaukee county has the absolute power to build its own roads, without the intervention of contractors. In short, the new house of correction will produce nothing for sale, but everything made there will be for direct use.

Another important feature will be segregation. Drunkards and tramps will not be treated as criminals, and will be separated from the other prisoners. The drunkards will be treated as patients, and with medical inspection and care, and wholesome and not too heavy work in the open air, they will stand a fair chance of recovery.

For the women, the cottage system will be used. About twenty-five inmates will be assigned to each cottage. Under this method, more freedom is possible than in a large prison. The herding together of many different classes of offenders, to the detriment of the unhardened and inexperienced, is also avoided.

It is certainly a sad thing that a prison must be built by a Socialist administration. But to eliminate the harsh features and to find a way to treat the prisoners as human beings is a problem worthy of men who are trying to remould society. In this respect the Milwaukee house of correction will be a model!

E. H. THOMAS,
State Secretary.

General Labor News.

A GREAT OVATION.

Great Throng of Workers Hear President Gompers in Portland, Oregon, and Greet Him With Cheers.

Washington, Sept. 16.—The following excerpt from the Portland, Ore., Daily Journal is one of the many tributes paid the labor chief on the Pacific Coast:

"The crowd last night was as remarkable as the man who addressed it. It was a great perspiring throng that hung on every word of their leader, responsive to his every thought. The applause that greeted the great man of labor was renewed when he arose to speak. It showed how working people place Gompers in the highest of high places.

"The sentences of the labor leader when he began to speak were halting. Aroused by the fire of his own utterances, his voice lifted to a higher and more penetrating note; his utterances became rapid. Without complaint or thought of it the listened for two hours, not even trying to fan their heated faces.

"Gompers told the working people that if the law is made to operate to send him to jail he will go, and so will his associates. 'We will not run away—I wasn't made for running purposes,' he declared.

"'The strike,' he said, 'is not a force to be carelessly used. Often the strike is an obstruction to the forward movement for unionism. We are opposed to strikes except when strikes cannot be avoided without degradation and humiliation. Then, I say, strike and strike hard.'

"Came then a bit of philosophy. 'Unionism,' said Gompers, 'recognizes as truth that we are our brother's keeper, and that we should bear each other's burdens, for in so doing our burdens are made lighter. We also have this commandment: Thou shalt not take thy neighbor's job.'

"The injunction as now used abrogates a right guaranteed by the constitution, a right only before abrogated in time of war, but now used to protect a stove or a hat.

"The decision of the Supreme Court, for instance, in the Standard Oil Case, said to the trusts, 'You must not rob the people any more in the same old way. You must do it reasonably. And meantime we will give you six months to rob them in the same old way.'

"Workingmen and women, this is tyranny from within, the tyranny that once burned its victims at the stake and now jails them. It is a tyranny that denies the right to protest, the right to strike; that uses a pliant judge to clothe tyranny in the form of law. This is a tyranny, these are elements, that endanger the success of our republic.

"Were I not an optimist I should doubt the perpetuity of our republic under such conditions. But with the strength of our unionism, our schools and such a form of government as the Oregon system, the men and the women of our time know their rights and dare to assert them at any risk. The men and women of labor look the whole world in the face, demanding equality of opportunity that is their due."

BOSTON WORKING GIRLS STARVING TO DEATH.

Boston.—After careful investigation of conditions in Boston, Miss Louise Marion Bosworth, Wellesley '07, a settlement worker and author, makes the assertion that the small wages earned by thousands of Boston working girls are actually insufficient to buy their food.

Under the direction of the Women's Industrial and Educational League and with the assistance of Professor Spencer Baldwin, of Boston University, Miss Bosworth found that one shop girl spends only $3.16 weekly for food. That is about 45 cents a day, or 15 cents for each meal. Another girl spent $2.34 a week, or about 13 cents for each meal.

Miss Bosworth delved into the lodging houses. Here she says she saw working girls huddled in tiny rooms, often without heat or water. She found girls eating little or nothing, many of them going without meals to save money to buy clothes for cold weather.

Leeds, Eng.—Because the employers refused a satisfactory revision of the wage schedule, 800 men and boys employed at the Waterloo Main Colliery, Leeds, have gone on strike.

Cardiff, Wales.—Six thousand dry dock workers at Cardiff, Penrath, Barry and Newport, who have been idle since July 28, have returned to work. The signing of a two years' agreement with the rivet warmers, and a provisional settlement with the platers' helpers, ended the controversy.

London, Eng.—In Germany members of the Metal Workers' Union have voted to go on strike because the employers have refused to agree on a wage scale. At La Basse-Indre in France the foundry workers are on strike. Railway employes in Vienna are preparing for a general strike for higher wages. Dockers at Bilbao and Malaga are on strike.

Berlin, Germany.—A dispatch to the general secretary of the General Federation of Trades Unions of Germany announces that the great industrial struggle in Norway has been finished with a good success for the workman. The conflict in Norway has been long and stubbornly contested by both sides.

Washington.—That the union miners in the Northwest are still conducting their fight in an effective manner is assured. "Fuel," an authority on coal mining, has this to say: "The coal famine in Alberta is still acute. The operators are hundreds of thousands of tons behind in orders. Four small mines, Hillcrest, McNeil, Canmore and Royal Collieries at Lethbridge, have started up with small gangs at work in each. Dozens of cots are arriving at various collieries to accommodate strike breakers and it looks as if the operators are determined in their efforts to start up again."

Advices from the strike district say that the famine is likely to become more intense, if a settlement is not reached between the strikers and the operators. That the miners have the situation well in hand and are prepared for emergencies.

Conservatism never won a battle.

No Socialist apologizes for his activities in the cause of the working class. Emancipation must come through activity and not through parlor talk.

Prosperity is on the jump. All commodities that are used by the working class to sustain life are advancing. The prosperity, you should understand, is not meant to be enjoyed by you and yours, but by those who give dog funerals and wallow in social filth, moral delinquency and obscene carnivals.

The mighty one—President Taft—admits that the working class fights all the battles in war and lives in the direst poverty. But when the working class strikes to bring relief from the oppressions of the capitalists, Taft favors binding them hand and foot with an injunction. That little expression of Taft's was salve to heal the wounds that he and his class have inflicted upon the most useful class to society.

Good Words from Charleston.

Columbus is now the storm center of Socialism in Ohio. The city campaign is now in full blast and the Socialists are out to win. The Columbus Socialist, an eight page weekly paper, is battering down the walls of capitalism in the Capitol City of Ohio and paving the way to victory for the workers. Here is to the success of "The Socialist" and victory for the entire Socialist ticket election day. Go after them, comrades; we are with you.—Charleston Labor Argus.

Reciprocity.

The Canadian people, in rejecting the reciprocity treaty, in their election held last Thursday, knocked the props from under the paramount issue which Taft wished to force on the American people in the coming presidential campaign, as an answer to the present high cost of living.

This was to be the "blind" with which to again hoodwink the public and distract attention from the real issue, the high cost of living, brought about by the concentration of all the necessities of life in the hands of a few men, under the name of "Reasonable and Unreasonable Trusts."

No benefits whatsoever would have been derived by the consumers, from Canadian reciprocity. Capitalists, we have discovered, do not narrow their markets, or invite competition, in the interests of the consumer.

This idea would have been a good thing to have made a campaign issue out of, with promises galore being made to the workers, that just as soon as Canadian reciprocity got into good working order, the necessities of life would become cheaper.

Taft made his last presidential campaign on Tariff revision, promising the consumers of the Nation, to take the tariff off the necessities of life. He failed to keep his word, while the "Reasonable and Unreasonable Trusts" are fattening upon the life blood of the working class.

However, the Canadian capitalists are to be congratulated on their foresight in defeating the reciprocity treaty, for the American capitalist cast a longing glance at the Canadian market as a very fertile field to exploit with its wares.

If a high tariff wall was a good thing with which to develop our own infant industries, it is only logical for the Canadian capitalist to take the same view point for the Canadian infant industries, by which method he can also, as his neighbor has done, milk the Canadian consumer dry, in the name of profit and business.

The gush and sentiment that our press was handing the Canadian people was as laughable as the man that endeavored to butter his parsnips with sweet words.

The defeat of Canadian reciprocity is a good thing. This issue would have been the biggest "lemon" handed the workers in years for their digestion. Now the Republican party is up against it for an issue with which to appeal to the voters, to again line up for the Master's bidding. The issue squarely now is the "high cost of living" and the causes that led to it.

No wonder Taft looked blue, for the Canadians failed to see the joke.

High Price on Coffee. — A Crime Against Nature and Society.

TWO THOUSAND FOUR HUNDRED MILLION POUNDS OF COFFEE DUMPED INTO THE OCEAN.

The present high cost of coffee, higher than during the Civil War, is absolutely uncalled for, and Congress should be called upon to thoroughly investigate the reasons thereof.

The Sugar and Coffee "Kings" have, through the assistance of the Brazilian Government, corraled every ounce of coffee in the United States and Brazil.

Wealthy American capitalists, in financing the last Brazilian loan, took as their tribute in pay on this loan, the third of the Brazilian coffee crop, that the government is entitled to as a government tax, the same as in the United States, when the government exacts its tribute from the tobacco crop.

Naturally these American Money Kings now control the coffee market. This spring there was an immense coffee crop in Brazil, and the "Coffee Kings" discovered, that if they shipped the entire allotment of coffee to the United States, there would be a glut in the market and the price would come down.

Did these public philanthropists do this?

Well, we guess not. They are not in business for any sentimental reasons.

They are very careful that nothing of this character occurred, but created a shortage by dumping 6,000,000 sacks of coffee weighing approximately 400 pounds to the sack, into the Atlantic Ocean.

Now this was a crime against Nature, that has produced so abundantly for the benefit of the human family.

This is a crime against human society, which is sadly in need of all that Nature produces in its behalf, and of which we are robbed through the private ownership of this necessity, by a band of human brigands in the name of "Profit."

How many more years will they continue to pull the wool over the ultimate consumers' eyes, by contending that Socialism, the ownership of all the coffee trees, in the interest of all the people, is not the issue.

Coffee then would be raised for the use of the entire human family, and not dumped into the seas as now, to assist in creating large profits for the coffee owners.

"What's the Matter?"

"Securities have fallen, capital is apprehensive, trade is slack and for weeks nothing but gloom and uneasiness have hovered over the financial district," says the New York Journal of Commerce, in an editorial statement for the purpose of discovering "What's the matter?" that such conditions should prevail. It seems according to the J. of C. that in the higher circles of finance, there is no particular alarm about falling trade, rising wages, and the high cost of living, but rather that these higher circles are becoming conscious of a deep and growing distrust on the part of the masses toward "capital" in general. It proceeds: "The words Socialism and anarchism have become unpleasantly familiar, and there is a vague wonder as to what will be the final outcome of public distemper."

Then after much searching and retrospection the J. of C. suggests a partial cause. It scouts the idea that the ignorant and unscrupulous hostility of politicians is responsible and regards them as an effect rather than a cause. Nor is it the tendency of evolution toward great social and economic changes, for for these things do not explain the intense hatred and malice displayed toward "capital."

It finds the cause in the effect on the public mind of long years of "corporate misdeeds which have disgraced American finance," and consoles itself with the statement that the corporations aforesaid are showing tendencies to reform, that "capital is now really on its good behavior," and concludes by hoping that the repentance does not come too late.

And that's "what's the matter," according to the Journal of Commerce. Capital has done those things which it should not have done, but is now about to bring forth fruits meet for repentance and win back the love of the public, which it has rightly forfeited for its previous misdeeds.

And to uplift itself once more in public estimation, "capital" is now discharging men by thousands from its railroads and factories, and insisting continuously in its financial organs that those remaining in employment must "liquidate," a euphemism for having their wages reduced, and in this insistence the Journal of Commerce itself has played and is playing a conspicuous part. The cost of living goes steadily upwards. The filthy Chicago packers have raised the price of meat, and that scoundrelly rogue, the Sugar Trust, not being able to cheat the revenue longer, is displaying its repentance by jumping the price of sugar from less than 5 to more than 7 cents a pound, a proceeding which is certain to regain the lost love of the public. The Oil and Tobacco trusts are reforming by re-forming instead of dissolving, as ordered by the Supreme Court. The Steel Trust is wiping out the last vestiges of trade unionism in its plants, and in California is showing its good will to men by entering into a conspiracy to hang labor leaders for the beneficent purposes of "liquidating" the wages of the members of the Structural Iron Workers' Union. And all the other trusts are turning over a new leaf by benevolently assimilating the property of their competitors, while ever new mergers and combines rise up out of the ruins of competition, and the "upper circles" of finance resolve themselves into one all-embracing circle with J. Pierpont Morgan as the center.

If this does not mollify and placate the public and disarm their suspicions, the Journal of Commerce has surely another guess coming.

Neither the admitted "sins of capital" or its promised good deeds have any bearing whateve upon "What's the matter?" They are indistinguishable from each other anyhow. Capital is neither saint nor sinner—it is just capital, and what it has done in the past it must do and is doing now and must in the future also. There is no repentance needed, for there is nothing to repent of. The capitalist system is not an individual, but a social force. In the bright lexicon of its evolution there is no such word as repentance, though capitalist journals may use it to deceive themselves and those whom the system exploits.

But there is none the less good reason for that "real but much suppressed fear of deep seated political unrest," which the Journal of Commerce declares to be troubling the upper circles of finance. It is the growing and ever clearing recognition in millions of minds that the old capitalist system in its every phase is played out as a policy by which society can live and progress, that its so called misdeeds are not really such, but inevitable results inherent in the system itself, and that what is required is not its repentance but its abolition, and it is this growing perception that makes Socialism an "unpleasantly" familiar word to the beneficiaries of the robber system. But they will not only have to get used to the word, but will soon have to get used to the thing itself.

The old capitalistic ship is sinking, and the rats that have so long disported themselves among the cargo are taking the alarm. But the public are not interested so much in the rats all in the somewhat bigger fact that the ship is sinking. The wickedness or virtue of the rats under such circumstances is not a matter of particular importance.

The public has had experience with all sorts of capitalists. Christians and non-Christians, misers and spendthrifts, philanthropists and gamblers, profit-sharers and dividend-clamorers, libertines and ascetics, men of evil life and men of godly life, but it has never been greatly impressed by these personal differences, or based its like or dislike of capitalism upon them. Its objection now, more than ever before, is not against the capitalist individually or collectively, but against the system under which he operates.

And it is these objections, growing ever wider, louder and clearer, that alarm the upper circles of finance. If they were directed against individual capitalists they could be safely ignored. But the public are getting over that folly, and are in no wise interested in the repentance of the exploiters or their promises of future good behavior.

Well may the latter ask:

"What is this, the sound of rumor, what is this that all men hear;
Like the wind in hollow valleys when the storm is drawing near;
Like the rolling-on of ocean in the eventide of fear?"

And receive the portentous and indisputable answer:

"'Tis the People marching on."

That is "What's the matter."

Attorney to the Trust.

The recent break in the stock market apparently has been another demonstration of the power of the big interests to get results somewhat as they did in the panic of 1907.

In the midst of the stock demonstration, Attorney General Wickersham is out in a statement, the purpose of which is to bolster up the stock market. While nothing can be expected from the attorney general of the United States that is antagonistic to the interests he serves, his proposition to act as counsel for the trusts is amazing.

What other prosecuting official, state or national, would announce to the criminal classes that, if they will consult him, they will be advised how near they can sail to law violation and escape?

A rigid enforcement of the law, without fear or favor, against the great, as against the small offender, is Mr. Wickersham's duty.—Columbus Dispatch.

Governors' Convention Agrees to Fight Courts.

The convention of state governors, which met in session at Spring Lake, N. J., went on record against the "invasion of the functions and rights of the states by minor federal judges."

The action of the governors was prompted by the decision of Justice Sanborne of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, enjoining the Railroad Commission of Minnesota from regulating state rates on the ground that such regulation could not be enforced, would deprive the roads of proper remuneration and interfere with interstate commerce.

Hoke Smith, Governor of Georgia, declared: "If the decision of Judge Sanborne becomes the law of this country, the twilight zone will so broaden that we will never see twilight again in the regulation of passenger and freight traffic."

A committee composed of Judson Harmon, Governor of Ohio, Chester H. Aldrich, Governor of Nebraska, and Herbert S. Hadley, Governor of Missouri, was selected to present a protest to the Supreme Court against what the governors consider an invasion of states rights by the courts.

LABOR LEADERS DENOUNCE FRISCO'S LABOR MAYOR.

The honest leaders of the San Francisco labor movement have refused to abide by the dictates of the McCarthy Labor Machine. One of these men is Walter MacArthur, editor of the Coast Seaman's Journal, and recently a candidate for Congress on the Labor ticket. The membership of the Pacific Coast Labor Movement apparently realize that they have some wolves in sheep's clothing in their ranks. To be plain, Bibles carried in the hand do not signify religious fervor, and the same with union buttons and other insignia on the clothing of men who are not class-conscious to their own class interests. Let it be remembered that it was one of McCarthy's tools that tried to ridicule Congressman Berger's speech in Congress. We refer to Congressman Kahn, the man who voted to give California to the Southern Pacific Railroad and a few crumbs to the workers. The editor of the Coast Seaman's Journal, as the representative of the insurgents, is sending out the following letter:

"As you know, this city has been under a 'Union Labor' government for the past two years. In the present campaign the supporters of Mayor McCarthy, who is a candidate for re-election, are endeavoring to lay the members of the labor movement under obligations to vote for him and the entire 'Union Labor' ticket, upon the sole ground of common interest in the labor movement.

"Those members of unions who, like myself, are opposed to the re-election of Mayor McCarthy, are being publicly denounced as 'scabs,' 'traitors to labor,' etc., the evident purpose of these tactics being to force us to support candidates against our best judgment, through fear of ostracism.

"You will readily appreciate the far-reaching effects upon the whole labor movement of such a policy, should it be permitted to pass unchallenged."

Mr. MacArthur, in a speech recently, uttered these pointed remarks:

"When a candidate for office cannot find any real flaws in the character of his opponent, he springs the Citizens' Alliance on the people or the Chinese and Japanese immigration question."

"The constitution of the American Federation of Labor binds no man to any other man or parties."

"Men have fought since the beginning of time to be free in political affairs. When a man joins a union he swears to be faithful to that union. He binds himself to certain line of action on the economic field but he reserves for himself the right to do as he pleases in political and religious affairs."

And so another reform bubble is about to burst. P. J. McCarthy is a bottle of smoke and when the cork is taken out there will be nothing left. With the alarming growth of the Socialist party it will not be long before the Pacific Coast will have within its border a real class-conscious labor movement. First it was Reform Mayor Eugene Schmitz, then came Labor Mayor McCarthy. These two men have evidently failed to help solve the labor problem, and the next move will be the election of a Socialist Mayor, the only real representative of the working class.

COLUMBUS FEDERATION OF LABOR.

The Musicians' Union sent new delegates and the same were seated by the Columbus Federation of Labor last Monday night. National Organizer Shannesy, of the Barbers' Union, appeared before the body and brought greetings of good cheer from the McNamaras and their fellow labor prisoners in the jail at Los Angeles. Brother Shannesy's remarks were well received by his hearers, especially the part calling upon the labor movement to support their own class for all the political offices that tend to serve the best interests of all the people. He expressed gratification at the assistance rendered the Columbus Barbers Union and appealed for continued support for the shop card.

Communication from the Akron Printing Trades notifying the trade that the Werner printing establishment of Akron, Ohio, is unfair to organized labor. Resolution ordered sent to the mayor condemning the actions of Chief of Police Carter is demanding that the Meyers pickets be sent to the workhouse for doing picket duty. Resolutions were ordered sent to the papers for publication.

The trouble between the white and colored musicians was ordered taken up to the next convention of the American Federation of Labor.

Under the state of trade various organizations gave trade reports. The report of the delegates to the United Constitutional League was laid on the table.

Communication received from the Kalamazoo Trades Council informing the body that the product of the Kalamazoo Stove Company is unfair to labor.

The Labor Day Committee reported that their work was done and the receipts had been turned over to the body. The prizes that had not been called for were ordered to be returned to the donors.

Committee on resolutions submitted the following and the same was approved and ordered placed in the hands of the President:

"Be it resolved by the Columbus Federation of Labor that we most heartily condemn the action of our city officials in their attempt to prevent the lawful picketing of the notorious scabbery on East Long street, and more especially the dastardly attempt of Chief Carter to have the lady pickets sent to the workhouse for so picketing.

"We further call upon all law-abiding citizens to protest against the actions of our city officials and to do all in their power to drive from our midst this notorious unfair concern. And be it further

"Resolved, That the Columbus Federation of Labor pledge its moral and financial support to the Garment Workers, doing picket duty in their and our struggle to maintain the right to lawfully picket. And be it further

"Resolved, That we hereby appoint James H. Henderson as our authorized agent to represent us in this struggle for justice."

A motion was made to instruct all delegates to be at the next meeting of the Columbus Federation of Labor.

THE BARBERS' REVIVAL PRODUCED RESULTS.

National Organizer Shannesy was at his best last Monday night. The audience appreciated the eloquence of the brother's remarks and the campaign is now on to organize the non-union barbers and establish several more union shops in this city. The Barbers' Union aim to shorten the hours of labor for the employer and employe. Charlie Apple has done good work and it will not be long before we will have a solid union barbers' city. Watch for the Barbers' Union card, brethren.

PRINTING TRADES.

Don't forget to demand that Allied Printing Trades Label. Some of the political leaders are giving their printing to RAT shops. Names will be published before the coming election. There will be a test of the label infringement law before long. Could any of the craft inform the writer of the number of Bert Gordon's grave? Thank you very much. Don't forget the label.

DOING THINGS IN SERVIA.

Serviane No Longer Work From Sunrise to Sunset—Unionism Shortens the Hours of Labor.

Washington.—The introduction of trades unionism into Servia has brought about many changes for the better among the working classes. The greater benefits, as far as hours of labor are concerned, have been secured by those working in factories, a class that has embraced unionism to a much larger extent than those engaged in other lines of business. The following statement is from the "Daily Trades and Consular Report," issued by the Bureau of Manufacturers, Department of Commerce and Labor. "In accordance with the law of June 12, 1910, it has been ordered that business houses in Belgrade must not open earlier than 6:30 a. m., and must be closed by 8 p. m., They must also be closed between 12:30 and 2 p. m.

"The stores of the wholesale merchants may be kept open two hours later from March 1 to April 15, and from September 1 to October 15, the busy season. Retail stores may be kept open two hours longer from April 15 to June 15 and from September 1 to October 1. In the City of Nish business places may be kept open from 6 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and from 2:15 to 7:30 p. m. In all other cities and towns in the interior the hours are from 6 a. m. to noon and from 2 ot 8 p. m. from April 1 to September 30, and from 7 a. m. to noon and from 1 to 8 p. m. during the rest of the year. On Saturday the stores may be kept open until 9:00 p. m.

It has also been ordered that the working hours in factories shall be from 7 a. m. to noon and from 1:00 to 6:00 p. m. during the period beginning October 1 and ending April 1, and 6:00 a. m. to noon and 1:30 to 5:00 p. m. during the rest of the year. At night the hours shall be from 7:30 to 12:00 and from 1:00 to 5:00. Employes are not to be kept at work on Sundays or Holidays. There are 26 lesser holidays when stores must be closed during the church services from 9:00 to 11:30 a. m.

Washington.—During 1910 there were in Bavaria 259 strikes and 76 lockouts against 171 strikes and 30 lockouts the previous year. The number of workmen involved in the strikes was 17,755 against 11,454 in 1909, and those concerned in lockouts numbered 19,718 as compared with 2,146 in 1909. Of the total number of strikes and lockouts, 76 and 69, respectively, occurred in the building industry. In 66 strikes the workmen were entirely and in 130 partly successful, while in 63 they were unsuccessful. The loss in wages caused by the strikes and lockouts, as far as ascertainable, amounted to about $714,000. It will be noted that the Bavarian workmen were remarkably successful.

HTE IRON TRADE NEWS.

The Iron Molders Union is taking on new life. The machinery and stove plate branches are hustling for new members, and as far good results have been reached. The "Iron Molders Journal" has one of the best articles ever written on the prison labor crimes. The writer proves that the privileged interests handle the politicians to retain prison labor behind prison walls. The reports from all over the country report business fair. Representative John O'Neil is busy these days looking up matters over the state.

THE PATTERN MAKERS.

The news of the National Office proves that the Pattern Makers are lining up with the progressive movement. President James Wilson can be relied upon to move with the times knowing, as he does, the industrial movement and the changes necessary for the future betterment of the workers.

BUFFERS AND POLISHERS, UNION

National Organizer James McGreevy was in town during the week and the chances look good for the establishment of a thriving local of the "Shiners."

ETERNAL VIGILANCE

Is the Watchword of Liberty—The Meyers Garment Picket Persecution.

The Meyers picket case has been laid over until October 12, 1911.

The workers by this time must realize that the Police Court is the best weapon for the business interests to use in their attempt to crush the workers. Most of the juries are recruited from the business interests, and the city police court has become the cradle of all anti-labor legal precedents. Have we forgotten that it was a Police Court Judge that allowed the McNamara brothers to be kidnapped from one State to another? To use the words of a prominent local lawyer, "Our Police Courts today are used as post-graduate courses for aspiring lawyer politicians." At one of the prison conferences a paper was read on the abuse of the "Parole System" by political wire pulling. And the same curse is found in the City Police Courts under the name of the "Suspended Sentence System." The victim of this kind of injustice has the sword of human prejudices ever hanging over his head. If the quality of justice is to be advertised, let it be advocated and administered independent of a man's class, creed or color. We also realize that experience makes men wiser. But the man who allows any interests, be it labor or capital, to interfere with the administration of justice, should be removed, so that public confidence will at all times rest in the minds of the people. The power of depriving citizens of their liberty can create powerful tyrants, and against this system we, the working class, must revolt. It will be our purpose to watch this case and report the actions of those who stand for JUGGLERY instead of Justice.

In the meantime you will help the striking garment workers by advertising the fact that the Columbus Chamber of Commerce is responsible for Scabby Meyers being here, and that they have on their own word declared they shall have all the police protection necessary, while on the other hand the striking pickets are to be subject to the abuse of the scabs under direction of Mr. Meyers, assisted by Chief of Police Carter.

MACHINISTS' UNION.

The railroad districts are sending in for men with paid-up cards in their pockets. Representative Liddy has sent several "old timers" out of town this week and they rode on the "inside of the "coaches" with a pass in their pockets and the respect of the officials who issued the same. But it took lots of fighting to gain these privileges.

The Wisconsin Farmer vs. The Ohio Lawyer.

By ANNIE MINTURN.

The country was shocked at one time upon reading an account of a Wisconsin farmer who had yoked four of his children, three of them girls, to the plow, and cultivater and was using them to do the work of beasts of the field.

"Monstrous, inhuman," you say.

So said the passing public who witnessed the atrocious scene from the highway and forthwith reported it to the proper authorities who, in turn, gave the children protection against such brutal treatment. To this farmer, greed-ridden and cruel, all sense of tenderness had been swallowed up in his mania for accumulating, and to further its end, no means he could employ was too contemptible or degrading.

The public, after this incident became generally known, demanded more stringent laws and watchfulness to see to their exercise for the protection of such unfortunates. And since that time the history of the actual yoking up of human beings to do farm work has not repeated itself in this country. Yet, the spirit of this self-same crime is going on in our midst every day in the year in the industrial world about us. Human beings, especially women, are being yoked to the wheel of labor and driven by the rod of greed until their lives are emptied of every drop of the real oil of gladness, which is the natural heritage of every one born into the world; and which, under proper industrial conditions, would make of society a far different organization from what it is today. The offence goes on unchecked in any way, and a commercialized public, whose view has become microscopic in its constant narrowing to focus only the commercial value of things, condones the crime in the name of "business." In the name of business the Wisconsin farmer yoked his children and drove them mercilessly that the work of his farm might prosper—inexpensively.

Under the same head a certain Ohio lawyer, one of many, yokes his stenographer and drives her with chains none the less binding or galling than those used by the farmer—that his practice may prosper.

Not long ago a stenographer seeking employment and hearing that a certain lawyer was in need of such services, called at his place of business. The office was located in the heart of a busy city and consisted of a suite of four rooms, elegantly furnished. There was velvet carpet upon the floor so that the foot falls might sink pleasantly and noiselessly into a padding not unlike wood moss, which it resembled in its deep green hue. There were mission tables about and mission chairs with luxurious cushions of leather. From the walls the faces of Alexander Hamilton, Patrick Henry and Benjamin Franklin, in rich sepia, looked down. The stenographer sighed happily as she sank into the depths of one of the great chairs. "What a lovely place," was her mental reservation. And although she had had some experience in her profession and understood modern business methods, she had forgotten for the minute, the price at which these lovely places are bought. She sat musing and enjoying the delights one feels amid beautiful surroundings. Then a quick step sounded near, the snap of an electric button turned, and from the shadows of twilight the room glowed in a blaze of luminous splendor. The lawyer entered. He was courteous, low spoken and suave. He inquired first very minutely as to the experience of the applicant and its nature. There were many exacting questions as to ability, methods, etc. Then the following monologue, somewhat monotonous in its low even recitl took place: "First, the stenographer in my service must absolutely not be in society of any kind. The claims of society would detract from the proper performance of her duties here in the office. It would fill her mind with affairs foreign to the work of my clientage. I should of necessity, owing to my heavy practice, require the services of my stenographer many times as much as four evenings a week." (The thought of a second stenographer had evidently not entered his mind.

"I have been allowing my stenographer one hour for the noon intermission. This amount of time I find it necessary to shorten, say to thirty minutes. My stenographer will have a key to my office and can come to work very early in the morning, as early as she can find convenient, as I will dictate to her the last thing before leaving in the evening, up until 5:30.

"Then I do not want merely a stenographer in the young lady I employ, I want also a secretary. First of all, of course, she must be a stenographer, finished and expert. My experience with many stenographers has been that they wasted too much valuable time in the manipulating of the machine; too much carriage lifting, adjusting of paper, erasing, etc. This is a very bad fault and must be overcome as we simply haven't the time to waste. As I was saying, I want a secretary, one who will have my business, my papers and all my professional needs at her finger ends all the time. She must know my clients personally and their particular, individual wants. She must be tactful with them and a good conversationalist. I pay $40 per month, a fine salary," and he rubbed his hands together in perfect contentment. Then a thought occurred to him and straightening up, he ventured to add: "Now, I do not wish it to be understood that I am at all hard or grinding, for I am not so considered.

"You see, the stenographer I already have is married," and his eyes narrowed in an ugly way as though he were being greatly imposed upon. "She is trustworthy in every respect and competent, oh yes, very competent; but you see, I feel as though I am paying for something I do not get. Naturally a part of her energy is being expended in her home, when it should all belong here. This is why I am seeking to make a change."

The interview was at an end. The lawyer had said in so many words that he wanted, not a human being but a human machine to do his work. He wanted one who would, who must be willing to sacrifice her energies, her very life to his interests—and yet he demanded a paragon of efficiency—and all for the paltry sum of $40 per month, half of which would go for mere existence. And why? Perhaps that the sailing of some gigantic corporation might be upon waters always calm and tranquil.

The stenographer arose to go. Somehow she could no longer discern in the man before her the lawyer who had so shortly entered, courteous, low-spoken and suave. In his place stood a Wisconsin farmer with eyes greedily glinting as he hitched to the farm plow four of his children, three of them girls.

Four Flies and Their Adventure.

With Apologies to Capitalism.

Once upon a time, there were four flies which flew out to secure their midday meal.

The first one settled down upon a workingman's lunch and commenced eating of a piece of sausage that graced the sandwich; the sausage had a fresh appearance and promised a good meal, but the fly died of dysentery. The sausage had been dyed with aniline.

The second fly wandered toward a still better commissary, but, sad to relate, came upon a quantity of flour. He ate heavily from a bag of the pristine-appearing pasis of the staff of life that had been adulterated with plaster of paris.

The third fly sped through an unscreened window into a workingman's home and drank of a cup of milk that stood upon the table. But it suffered an awful illness, as it contracted a case of colic, which soon resulted in its demise. The milk had been given its creamy appearance with a fair admixture of chalk.

The fourth fly grieved intensely over the sad misfortunes that had beset his comrades. Said he to himself: "'Tis best that I commit suicide and quit myself of this world of misery. I will meet my friends in another world." So he pounced down upon a piece of flypaper, labeled "Poison." He sucked the edges of the paper greedily, but was not affected for the worst in the least. To the contrary, he became both robust and fat. The flypaper had also been adulterated.—The Wasp, Christiana, Norway.

A NEW KIND OF PARTY.

Who, in a great city, knows his next door neighbors? Who, living in a tenement house in New York or Chicago, knows anything about the families over him or under him, or even on the same floor with him? Almost no one.

Well, there was a new kind of party in New York the other day, which was meant to make people in one neighborhood know one another better. The best way to get acquainted is always to have a good time. This good time was called a "block party."

All of the people living in one block of the crowded east side of New York were invited by one of the social settlements there to join in a party, to be held on the afternoon and evening of July 4. The people all seemed to think it was a great idea and they decorated their houses with bunting and flags and contributed money gladly toward a brass band.

In the afternoon fifty boys gave an animal parade. Six giraffes, six elephants and six horses of pasteboard were made by the boys themselves and propelled by boys inside of them. Other boys fixed up clown suits and they did handsprings and other acrobatic stunts, making the people of the block who were watching from sidewalks and windows, roar with laughter.

Of course the party had to be held right out in the street, for there was no other place large enough to accommodate all of the people in one of New York's crowded tenement blocks, 2,000 in this one.

The evening part of the party was still more popular. From eight to nine o'clock fifty little girls dressed in white danced folk dances, Hungarian, German, Italian, Russian, and in order that everyone might see, different groups danced the same dance at different points in the block at the same time.

But the best of all was the hour from nine to ten, when old and young danced to the music of the great brass band. The city had done its share by sending men to clean the asphalt pavement just as well as possible and by sending police to guard either end of the block and keep out those who did not belong there.

It was a great success and surely all the people living in the block took a more kindly interest in one another after that good time together—From The Coming Nation.

A HAUL OF SEALS.

For many years Carl Hagenbeck has been the greatest trainer of animals in the world. In "Beasts and Men" he tells how his huge trade in living animals began. It had a very humble and almost accidental origin.

My father, writes Mr. Hagenbeck, was a fishmonger in a suburb of Hamburg, and one day in March, 1848, it happened that some of the fishermen whom my father employed, and who were under contract to deliver over to him their entire haul, captured in their nets no fewer than six seals. My father was very fond of animals and greatly interested in natural history, and it occurred to him that the curiosity with which he himself examined the animals might perhaps be shared by his fellow citizens of Hamburg. He therefore exhibited the creatures in two huge wooden tubs, charging an entrance fee of about a penny per head.

A considerable number of people came to inspect the beasts, and my father was so delighted at the success of his idea that he decided to take the seals to Berlin. The Berliners flocked with great interest to see my father's show. He did not remain long in the Prussian capital, but sold his seals and returned home.

From the time of this incident my father commenced to carry on a trade in living animals, and thus from my earliest childhood I was accustomed to deal with them. Later on, when our business began to extend to France and England, he saw that it would be desirable for me to acquire the language of these countries. Thus, although my elementary education may have left something to be desired, from my twelfth year onward I attended school with greater regularity, and in my later boyhood gained a considerable knowledge of languages and other more advanced subjects.

I left school before I turned fifteen, and have devoted all my energies to the business my father founded. From our earliest years he taught us to love animals, and helped us to understand their needs and their instincts. This has assuredly been the corner-stone of our success.—From the Youth's Companion.

CONCEALED AUTHORS.

Three names are concealed in each sentence.

1. A boy in a picture shop opened a portfolio and came across an engraving of Lake Como or Erie—he did not know which—and bought it to adorn his mother's cottage, which he liked to decorate.

2. Please tell Mr. Colby, rondeaux will be sung by Emil tonight; one coming from Cabul we received today.

3. In Auburn some lady told me that she rid a number of houses of mice by using poison; and that, she told Mr. Ladd, is only one of the many ways to get rid of the pests.

4. It was to welcome the bald, rich man that a bee cherished a desire to walk on the poor man's head.

5. The ancestral cot, that I was born in, is still standing. In front of the same, there is a superb urn Ettie bought to mark the grave of our pet dog, "Hero," extolling his many virtues and telling of our sorrow at his loss.

6. When William on his travels sets out he, yearly, visits foreign lands, and states that in Morocco operas are presented on a grand scale, for he has seen a representation of Moscow perfectly faultless in all its details.—From St. Nicholas.

The Injunction Nuisance.

By John M. Work.

In the development of our institutions the courts have acquired enormous powers which no one at the beginning of our national career dreamed they would ever possess.

The issuance of injunctions against workingmen is one of these.

They say that Mr. Taft is not an original man.

But if he originated the injunction in labor disputes, he is entitled to discredit and everlasting ignominy for at least one original thought.

When this misuse of the injunction first came into vogue, back in the nineties, we were all amazed and shocked. The audacity of it almost took our breath away.

We have now got used to it.

But the fact that we have got used to it does not make the bare walls of a jail any more cheerful.

It does not make the club of a policeman descending upon the alleged violator of an outrageous injunction feel any softer.

It does not make the despair over a lost strike—lost because the strikers were enjoined from doing anything to win the strike—any less painful.

It does not make long hours of labor seem any shorter.

It does not make men, women and children feel the deprivation of everything worth while any the less keenly.

This use of the injunction was an infamous usurpation in the first place. It came into existence by the judges stretching their own powers.

There are two ways to get rid of it.

One way is by enacting laws prohibiting the courts from exercising it.

For that purpose, all workingmen should vote for the Socialist candidates for the legislature and for congress.

The other way is by electing judges who will nullify this judge-made law.

In order to accomplish that purpose, every workingman should vote for the Socialist candidates for judicial positions.

Then we will have judges on the bench who are opposed to the use of injunctions against workingmen.

They will abolish the injunction nuisance in short order by refusing to grant such injunctions.

Socialism and the Race Problem

would have to pay my rent or move. My groceryman told me that he could not extend me any more credit. My wife through worying of me being out of a job so long is lying at home sick.

"So this morning I said to my wife that I wasn't afraid to work at anything, and I was going out and get a job using the pick and shovel at common labor. So I came down here, thinking that they might need men to dig this cellar and load the wagons. But I find that they do not need men working at common labor anymore. That "Damn Steam Shovel' has taken our jobs, as the automatic lathe has displaced the skilled machinist at his trade.

"Now," he said, "what are the two hundred pick and shovel men that this steam shovel has displaced, going to do to live? What provision has been made to take care of them?"

"None," I replied, "However, my friend, don't you think that there is something radically wrong today, when honest men both white and black, are seeking employment at honest labor, and find themselves displaced by this 'Damn Steam Shovel,' and no provision made to take care of them?

THE ONLY SOLUTION.

"Now there is only one solution to this great machine problem," I continued, "and that is the social ownership of this 'Damn Steam Shovel' in the interest of all the men that it has displaced. Today the steam shovel is owned by the job-owner. With its sale goes a guarantee that it will never go on strike for higher wages. The saving that the job-owner makes on the 200 men that he does not have to pay wages, goes into his own pockets and fattens his profits.

"However, if this machine was owned by all the workingmen and operated in their interests, by lightening their labor, it would be a blessing to them in the place of a curse.'

"Now if this steam shovel was run in the interest of the workers, and not the boss', the labor time would be equally divided among the 200 men that it displaced. In other words, 200 with the use of this steam shovel, would work only one hour per day at the same wage, and shovel just as much dirt as they did by hand in ten hours, and at that do the work a great deal easier."

"Yes," he replied, "that would be the proper way to do it. Under such a system, all the workingmen would receive the benefit of an invention, and it would not lessen jobs. But what worries me is, how are you going to bring this ownership of this steam shovel by all the workers about."

"By getting into a political party that is organized for this very purpose," I quickly replied.

THE ONLY PARTY.

The Socialist party, my friends, is organized for this very purpose; the social ownership of all the tools of production and distribution. Its relationship to this "Damn Steam Shovel" is such that the workers, both white and black, would receive the entire benefit therefrom, by working less hours, at the full rate of pay. And this today is the great issue of all workingmen, both black and white. The question of getting a job and holding the same is the question that you hear discussed on every street corner.

The thousands of 200 men that are being daily displaced by modern machinery, has made the job question an intense one. And the solving of this great question has brought about the Socialist party.

It is the other wing of the Dock-workers' Union, the political wing. Through this political wing all workingmen will some day express themselves for the ownership of their jobs.

"But," will say the average colored man, "why don't the Republican party come out for this principle of the workers owning their jobs?"

Now, my friends, the colored man up to now has been a political asset to the Republican party. Fifty years ago this party stood for a definite principle. It stood for the abolition of chattal slavery. However, in the last fifty years it has lost those principles, and is in the same position that the girl was that went to a dance.

While she and her beau was dancing around the floor, he noticed a raveling, and while dancing he commenced to winding it around his hand.

The next morning the girl's mother asked her how she enjoyed herself, and she replied: "Well, ma, I had the best time of my life; but when I came home and took off my clothes, I found that I had lost my union suit."

That, my friends, is the position that the Republican party holds today. In the last 50 years, unconsciously it has lost its principles. Today it is controlled, body and soul, all by the job-owners. The job-owners know that sooner or later the job-seekers are going to ask the question why thousands of honest men seeking employment from the job-owners are unable to get work

They tell the Negro in one breath that he must solve his own destiny, and then in the next they take away from him the right to do so, by disqualifying him politically.

The Negro alone cannot solve his own destiny. He is part and parcel of this great working class, seeking a living. His destiny can only be solved in proportion to that, that the great mass of workingmen, white or colored, solve theirs. And they can only solve theirs by a united front both industrially and politically, against the job-owners.

AN ALLEGORY.

Some twenty years ago, a terrible railroad accident occurred out of New York City. To this train there was attached a carload of orphans, who were being taken to an orphanage.

There was a workingman that lived close by, by name of Mr. Workingclass. He heard the shrieks and cries of the hundreds that were crushed. He hastened thither to give what aid that he could. Entering the wreckage of the orphan car, he brought forth five little babies that were alive, under one year of age. Their suffering and cries were pitiful to behold.

So he hastened home and brought his wife, Mother Socialism. They tenderly carried these five living, crying babies home. Mother Socialism bathed all five th roughly to see whether they were injured. Luckily this was not true, and in the light of the coaloil lamp she and her husband fed them tenderly and put them to sleep.

The next morning, just as daylight was breaking Father Workingclass arose, and tiptoed into the small improvised nursery, to take a peek at the five little orphans. And by the morning's glare he discovered that two of the babies were white, one was black, and the other two were a little Jap and a Chinese girl. So he softly called Mother Socialism and made her aware of this new condition that had arisen in his home.

"What shall we do with these five girl orphans, that represent every race, creed and color?" he questioned.

"I shall adopt them all," replied Mother Socialism. "For, father, in our home we cannot recognise race, color or creed. These are all nature's children, and are entitled to the earth and its fullness thereof. They are all the children of the working class who, up until now, have been fatherless and motherless We shall raise them in our home, and as they grow up with one another, we shall recognize no distinction among them. We shall guard their interests as our own and shall instill into their hearts as they grow up, the fallacy of race, creed and color."

So then and there they named the two white girls America and Europe. The colored girl they named Africa, the Jap girl Japan, and the other China. As these girls grew up, they raced into the valleys and over the hills, free from every care and worry. Among them in play or school there was no distinction, and in the evening Father Workingclass, tired from a day's toil, would romp his adopted daughters, one and all, over his knees. To him and mother Socialism the prattle of their childish talk was music alike.

And all these little orphans had tastes and ambitions alike. But their greatest ambition was to serve their adopted parents, to repay them for the sacrifices of the past. This truly was the happy home, "the ideal home of the workingman."

So the five little girls started out one morning to seek employment in the marts of commerce.

RACE DISCRIMINATION.

They presented themselves before a job-owner. He picked out the two white girls, as they were somewhat larger, and offered them positions at $4.00 per week running sewing machines. So next he asked the little colored girl her name, and she replied, Africa. "Can you sew," he inquired, and little African replied, "Yes, just as fast as my sisters. Mother Socialism taught us all alike." "Well," replied the job-owner, "I can give you a position also, at $3.00 per week, though. Because you do not need so good clothes as your sisters that I just hired. And then we have an off-corner where we will allow you to work. If these terms don't suit you, you don't have to work." Little Africa, crest-fallen, but wanting to help her adopted parents, accepted the position.

Then Mr. Job Owner turned to the other two girls and inquired their names and if they could sew. They replied in the affirmative, and that Mother Socialism had taught them to sew. "So," replied Mr. Job Owner, "I will give you employment also. However, we can only pay you $2.00 per week, because you are not big eaters and can live on rice diet. And we also have a separate room for you to work in."

Now these two little girls, loving their father and mother as dearly as Europe, America and Africa, and wanting to lighten their labors, accepted this rate of wage. Here asserted itself the thing that in times past they had been shielded from, by Father Workingclass and Mother Socialism, the job-owner's class distinction. They were for the first time in their lives separated, and their pay unequally divided.

That evening little Europe and America walked home together, while little Africa walked alone, followed in the rear by little Japan and China. They for the first time in their lives felt the class distinction among them brought on by the job-owner.

That evening there was no merry prattle among Father Workingclass' children. No fond caress bestowed on his weary body. Mother Socialism also quickly observed this coolness among her daughtern.

So they called their adopted daughters before them to find out if possible what the trouble was among them. And the five weeping daughters stood before their adopted parents and told them of the job-owner's proposition as put before them.

And Father Workingclass replied: "For years I have nourished you with my labor, and by the sweat of my brow reared you into maidenhood. Therefore this arbitrary class ruling of Mr. Job Owner must cease."

"And," replied Mother Socialism, "I also for years have protected and endeavored to guide you in the teachings of mother nature, regardless of race, color or creed. You are all my daughters that I love dearly without distinction, over whom I have wept many a tear, fearing the future outcome of what happened today. Therefore, Father Workingclass, let us take our daughters, united, in the morning and demolish in the mind of Mr. Job Owner the fallacy of race, color or creed."

THE HAPPY FINALE.

And that morning Father Workingclass, in all his strength, and Mother Socialism, in all her wrath, appeared before those factory doors, and forever abolished the job-owner that incited in the hearts of his daughters the class distinction of race, creed and color.

And so must today the workingclass unite themselves into an organization of physical strength regardless of race, creed or color, and under the guiding wing of Socialism, that is represented in every nation on the face of the earth, storm the political stronghold of the job-owners, forever abolish them, and bring about the democratic ownership of all jobs in the hands of the job-seekers.

Then, and then only, will the colored race solve their own destiny, and in solving it, they will assist in solving the destiny of the entire working class. For this will mean to, every man, white or black, that works, plenty of employment, plenty of food, plenty of clothing, and plenty of decent, respectable homes to live in.

And then men will not curse the "Steam Shovel," but welcome it as a blessing that has lightened labor, that has made it possible to produce thousands of times more wealth than heretofore, but all in the interests of the men that produced it, "The Working Class."

A PARABLE ON THE RECALL.

A Farmer said to his Son: "You may go to the Fair and pick out half a dozen Horses for our use. Get the best you can for the money."

"Am I competent for this Job, do you think?" asked the Son, doubtfully. "It is not easy. Remember, I am taking these Animals almost unsight, unseen."

"You are as competant as anybody," answered the Farmer. "Besides you must learn the Business. Of course, we must take some chances."

So the Youth brought home the horses and the Farmer said they all looked good to him.

At the end of six months the Son said to his Father: "I have been using these Horses every day, and my Mind is now made up. Five of them are excellent, but One is no good at all. He balks and soldiers and kicks things to pieces. We must get rid of him."

But the Farmer said: "I am surprised at your Gall in offering an opinion on such a subject. Are you Competent to decide an important matter of that kind."

"Well, for the Love of Mike!" exclaimed his Son, "I was competent to buy the Horses, unsight, unseen, wasn't I; and am I not competent now, after I have watched them working for six months, decide what Ones are no good?"

"Certainly not," said the Farmer; "that is Different."—California Outlook.

THE SOCIALISTS' CITY PLATFORM.

We, the Socialist Party of the City of Columbus, Ohio, assembled in mass convention, reaffirm our allegiance to the principles of International Socialism as embodied in our National and State Platform.

The first consideration in all municipal affairs should be the interest of the working class. The Socialist Party is organized not only to elect good and efficient men to office but to control the powers of political government in order to guarantee to the workers the possession and operation of the means of production and distribution and the full social product of their labor.

As measures calculated to strengthen the working class in its fight for the realization of its ultimate aim, and to increase its powers of resistance against private capitalism, we advocate and pledge ourselves and our elected officers to the following program:

FIRST: For the more perfect application of the Initiative and Referendum in all municipal affairs.

SECOND: For the Recall of all elective officials.

THIRD: For the public ownership of all public utilities and the abolition of the contract system and all convict labor when in competition with free labor.

FOURTH: For the elimination of unnecessary officials, a reduction of all salaries that excessive and a minimum wage of $3.00 per day in all public works.

FIFTH: For the Eight Hour Day for all labor on public improvements and in all municipal departments, and a uniform pension system to apply to all city employees.

SIXTH: For the City to furnish work to the unemployed to the fullest extent possible under present conditions.

SEVENTH: For the rigid inspection of all stores, factories, workshops and places of public assemblage and the strict enforcement of all laws to protect the lives of the workers.

EIGHTH: Human life and health being more sacred than property, should be the first consideration in the enforcement of the sanitary laws.

NINTH: For public parks and playgrounds within easy reach of the workers, and public comfort stations as well as public drinking fountains, wherever essential to the health and comfort of the workers.

TENTH: For the City to provide municipal hospitals free from every taint of Charity.

ELEVENTH: For free text books in all grades of our public schools and the use of one room in each school house for public assemblage.

TWELFTH: For the free administration of justice and the election of a public "Defender" as well as a public "Prosecutor" as at present.

THIRTEENTH: We pledge ourselves to secure from the State, such authority as will give the municipality the right to establish, own and operate all industries that pertain to the city's activity.

News from National Socialist Headquarters.

The Socialist party of Arizona will meet in state convention at Phoenix, September 25, to nominate a state ticket and formulate a state platform. It is hoped that county tickets can be put up in most of the counties.

The referendum vote taken on the results of the convention of the Jewish Socialist Agitation Bureau, held at Boston, Mass., May 27-30, 1911, has just closed. The following comrades were elected members of the Executive Committee: From New York, M. Gillis, Alex Kahn, A. I. Shiplacoff, J. Panken, I. Solutsky and A. Sh. Sacks; from Pennsylvania, H. Frankel; from Connecticut, Charles Chaikin; from New Jersey, L. Cohen; from Massachusetts, L. Silberman. Barnet Wolff, 141 Division Street, New York City, was elected Secretary. A. I. Shiplacoff was elected fraternal delegate to the next national convention of the Socialist Party.

"One EDMONDO ROSSONI is touring the country speaking in the name of Socialism and collecting money for a certain Socialist paper. We call the attention of all the English speaking comrades to this important fact: That the said EDMONDO ROSSONI has nothing to do with our National Italian Socialist Organization, nor with our press, but he is a bitter enemy and a vulgar defamer of our International and National movement.

"We also take this opportunity to inform all the comrades that the only Socialist party papers published in the Italian language are: LA PAROLA DEI SOCIALISTI, official weekly organ, $1.00 a year, 874 Blue Island Ave., Chicago, Ill., and LA FIACCOLA, 50 cents a year, 127 West Eagle St., Buffalo, N. Y. Sample copy free of charge.

"Requests for speakers should be address to our National Office, 205 Washington Street, Chicago Illinois. (Signed) Joseph Corti, Translator-Secretary.

The National Office has received an order from Local Philadelphia for one thousand platforms and leaflets for free distribution.

An order for one hundred copies of Congressman Berger's tariff speech has been received at the National Headquarters from E. W. Darling, Papeete Tahiti, Society Isles.

The Young Socialists' Magazine.

The Woman's National Committee is making special effort to reach the children. The earnest men and women in the Socialist party are eagerly inquiring for something to place in the hands of the children that will give them a true understanding of social conditions and make them intelligently conscious of their own class interests.

There is a magazine devoted to this very work. It is filled with history, interesting stories, everything to interest and educate the growing boy and girl. The Young Socialists' Magazine should be in the home of every Socialist. Do you want your child to develop into a class-conscious, scientific Socialist? Then subscribe today for The Young Socialists' Magazine. Address, 15 Spruce St., New York City. Price 50 cents per year.

The National Executive Committee by vote has extended the organizing tour of Comrade E. J. Squier in Vermont for a period of six weeks.

The equal suffrage petition provided for by the Woman's National Committee and the National Executive Committee will be sent to all locals about October 1. Extensive preparations are under way to make this the largest petition ever sent to Congress. Comrade Berger will present it and demand that provision be made for granting equal suffrage to women. Petition blanks will be sent to each local. The Socialists alone through active agitation should roll up a million signatures for this plank in their platform.

If more blanks are needed, send to the National Headquarters for them. They will be forwarded promptly.

The call for nominations for members of the National Executive Committee and National Secretary will be sent out from the National Headquarters October 1.

Since last reported charters have been granted to locals in unorganized states as follows: South Carolina—Bowman, five members; Lexington, seven members. Organized by J. L. Fitts. Alaska—Tofty, eleven members; Fairbanks, thirty-one members; Olnes, fifteen members; Cleary, seventeen members. Organized by Geo. H. Goebel.

ADVANCE ORGANIZERS FOR LYCEUM BUREAU.

Indiana State Socialist News.

(James Oneal, State Secretary, 309½ Ohio Street, Terre Haute, Ind.)

Never in the history of the party in Indiana has so many requests been received for speakers and information regarding organization. The dues to the national office have steadily increased, and this month at least $100 will be paid by the state for national dues.

The small local chartered at Rockport with 8 members last week already reports a membership of 35. More speakers are also asked for, and they will be sent.

Local Fontanet has been dead for many months, but after a lecture by Florence Wattles, which stirred the town, the comrades report they will reorganize next week.

Corydon, the old capital in the southern part of the state, organizes and applies for a charter with seven members. They have caught the contagion for organization from Georgetown and other nearby towns.

Indiana harbor has organized with 20 members; and as it is a ward of East Chicago, it will receive a branch charter from this local.

Gary reorganizes under the old charter with 30 members, and is ready for extensive propaganda work.

Ashley, up in Steuben county, has organized a local, and starts with nine members. They also take Walter Millard for a meeting, and expect to increase their membership.

Indianapolis let one week go by without organizing a branch, but caught up with their record by organizing two more the past week, and Chairman Henry reports a call for a meeting to organize at Fortville in Hancock county.

Brasil seems to take on the activity of years ago, and now reports a membership of 26. This city, like many others, had a long struggle to maintain a continuous organization.

Local Hartford City orders a second supply of stamps, and had a good meeting on short notice without any advertising, with Comrade Garrison as the speaker. This local now has a promising future after repeated failures.

Local Jasonville is preparing for the town election in November, and judging from the big Debs meeting there on Labor Day, the Socialists will take a few offices from "our friends."

Comrades Keller and Redmon, of Kokomo, went over to Arcadia and held a meeting, and later received a letter to come back and "do it again." They now have 13 signatures to an application for a charter there.

There seems to be a concerted effort in a number of Indiana cities to suppress free speech when exercised by Socialists. Fort Wayne was reported last week, and now Muncie may be involved in the same kind of a struggle. The local at Muncie is preparing to preserve this right by calling on speakers in nearby towns to assist them.

The Socialists at Lewis, in Vigo county, do not like to remain out of the party fold when so many other small town are organizing, and word comes from the miners there that at least 35 are ready to join the party, and instructions on "how to do it" have been sent.

The membership has increased so fast that the supply of the August monthly bulletin has been exhausted and the order has been increased to 3,000. Unattached Socialists desiring a copy can secure it by dropping a card to the state secretary.

Ohio Pen Information Comes Via Pittsburg.

The allegations below are published for the benefit of officials who propose probe of the Ohio Penitentiary, which is to begin this week. The substance of the charges was told by an ex-convict just released from the Ohio Penitentiary in this city more than two weeks ago. His records had, he said, been given to a fellow prisoner who left the pen two days previously. Both men were shadowed by detectives and driven from town before they could make known the facts they claimed to have. This explains why the first publication was made in Pittsburg and not in Columbus.

The charges certainly furnish some chance for the probers to strike pay dirt.

The articles in The Columbus Socialist published a few weeks ago, drew attention to the conditions at the pen.

It is asserted that there has been a change for the better over there.

PITTSBURG, PA., October 4, 1911. Since "JUSTICE" has begun its exposure of conditions at the penitentiary of Western Pennsylvania, we have been besieged by people willing and able to give us information about this and other penitentiaries in the country. We have just received a batch of information about conditions at the penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio, which is so damning that we have postponed for a couple of weeks our exposure of conditions at the penitentiary of Western Pennsylvania in order to give this information to our readers.

A copy of this paper containing the charges will be mailed to Governor Harmon of Ohio. It will be up to Harmon either to brand these charges as a lie or to order a sweeping investigation.

Paroles Bought and Sold.

At the Ohio penitentiary you can obtain a parole provided you have enough money. We do not know who gets the money which is extorted from the prisoners, below, however, we give the names of some of the former prisoners of the Ohio State Penitentiary who obtained a parole for a consideration.

Pays Eighteen Hundred Dollars.

——— Byers, of Cleveland, Ohio, sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for embezzlement. Obtained a pardon after spending only four months in jail. Paid eighteen hundred dollars for his pardon.

Thirteen Years, One Thousand Dollars

——— Jettuce, senteced to the Ohio Penitentiary for [illegible] years. Charge, manslaughter. Was paroled after seven years. Paid one thousand dollars for his parole.

This prisoner two months after his release, killed another man. Was sentenced to death. His sentence has now been postponed three times.

Serves Fourteen Years—Not Guilty.

Cop or Kop (colored) sentenced for life. Crime, rape. Applied for parole three times. The first time was told to pay six hundred dollars, which he paid. Second time was told to pay four hundred dollars, which he also paid. Third time paid again four hundred dollars. Then the girl confessed that she lied and that the prisoner had not raped her. Pardoned.

Good Job for Bankers.

If you are a banker and have lots of money you will have an easy time of it at the Ohio State Penitentiary.

——— Waringer, a banker from Cincinnati, who stole six hundred and forty-three thousand dollars, had a job "got-ready" for him. When the prisoner arrived at the penitentiary the guard shook hands with him in the dining room before all the prisoners and told him within the hearing of all the other prisoners, that in about three days they would have a job "ready for him" at the construction office. This prisoner was allowed to remain in the dining room until his "job was ready for him," a privilege allowed no other prisoner.

Job Waits For Thomas.

Another banker by the name of Wise, had a job waiting for him. A week before this prisoner arrived, another prisoner by the name of McQuirer asked for a job at the office. He was told that Wise was coming in a week and that the job was kept open for him. Wise got the job.

Politician Pays One Thousand.

A politician by the name of Densmore who stole a few thousand dollars from the city was promised that he would get only one year if he paid one thousand dollars. He paid the thousand and the promise was kept. Densmore received only one year, although his confederate, another politician by the name of Slader, guilty of the same crime, received four years. After Densmore was sentenced he was told that if he would pay another two hundred dollars he would get an easy job in the deputy's office. Densmore paid the money and is now smoking cigars in the deputy's office.

Guard Refuses Bribe—Did Deputy Take It?

A guard by the name of Moore was offered $25 by a prisoner if he would give him a better job. The guard refused the bribe. Thereupon the prisoner went to see the assistant deputy. Immediately after his interview with the assistant deputy the prisoner was transferred to another department.

Conway Pays Fifty.

A prisoner by the name of Conway paid $50 for a job in the photograph gallery. He worked there two months, then was fired. He was told that he could have his job back again provided he paid another fifty.

Woman's Local Committee.

The Women's Local Committee held a very interesting and successful open meeting Friday evening, September 29, 1911, at 15½ E. Gay street. Speakers were Ella June Purcell, H. Anna Quinby and Ella Reeve Bloor. During the evening little Miss Seamen sang, Mrs. Emerin Campbell Yates, the visiting actress, rendered several dramatic selections and Mr. Aubrey Yates sang. The Woman's Committee is growing but every Socialist woman in town should feel it her duty to join the organization. The committee is accomplishing many things, but it needs active members. Meetings every Monday at 15½ East Gay street, in the Woman's Lunch Room, at 7:30 p. m.

The Past Week's Agitation Meetings.

The propaganda meetings held the past week under the direction of the Campaign Committee have been attended invariably by large audiences in spite of chilly weather. Last Saturday evening the West Side Rally on Broad, near West Park, was addressed by Comrades C. E. Belcher, J. C. Little and others, while Comrade Ella Reeve Bloor spoke to an immense crowd at Town and High with Comrade A. C. Martin as chairman. The band was at both places and Comrade A. C. Eby was in evidence for brief addresses.

On Sunday, despite the rain, a large crowd gathered at Livingston Park and insisted upon listening to Mrs. Bloor. A little rain does not hurt the folks down that way. At Goodale Park another crowd assembled and were addressed by Comrades A. C. Eby and F. E. Johnston.

This week Mrs. Bloor closed on Monday evening a most effective engagement here and her return at any time will be welcomed.

John M. Collins, of Chicago, and Walter J. Millard, of Ohio, are now in a series of outdoor meetings that are stirring the voters to a wonderful degree.

Welcome to the Exiles.

The former Rail-Light employes, who were obliged to leave town to get work after the strike last year, are expected to reach the Union Depot in this city at 10 o'clock tomorrow—Sunday.

They will be met by the Socialist Band, a committee of reception and all who wish to greet the undaunted men who struck and struck hard. All the people who desire to show their welcome to these men are asked to be at the Union Depot before 10 o'clock and join the parade which will march south to Munich (Old Red Lion) Hall, 335½ South High street, where dinner will be served. After dinner the parade will march to Schiller Park, if weather permits, where the program of speaking will take place. In case of bad weather the meeting will be held at Munich Hall. D. J. Farrell, J. H. Henderson, E. L. Fries, C. Margraff and E. McGovern are the local committee.

Socialist Saves the City Money.

"Council reawarded the contract for the printing of legal advertising. A week ago the contract was awarded to The Democrat at a price of 75 cents an inch for the first insertion and 45 cents for following insertions. After the contract was awarded The Socialist made a lower bid and The Democrat came in later with a price of 35 cents for the first and 18 cents for following insertions. The Democrat received the contract by council's action last night."—Ohio State Journal.

The above is incorrect and misleading. The bid of The Democrat was submitted at the same time as that of The Socialist and was 90 cents for first insertion and 50 cents for the second. The Socialist bid 35 cents and 20 cents. The council first awarded the printing to the highest bidder. This was ruled out by the City Solicitor. Then The Democrat revised its bid to 35 cents and 19 cents.

The Socialist's action has saved the city from $8,000 to $10,000 on this printing deal, and has shown up a bunch of councilmen in their true light.

New Castle Free Press Wins Seditious Libel Case

"Not guilty" was the verdict of the jury in the celebrated seditious libel case at New Castle.

Thus victory crowns the struggle of the famous fighting Socialist weekly, the Free Press, after a bitter battle of eighteen months' duration. The four comrades, Hartman, McCarthy, McKeever and White, being acquitted Saturday, September 23. But three of them, White having been dropped for lack of evidence, must pay one-half the costs of prosecuting the case against themselves.

Indictments against the four comrades was found in March, 1910. The case was tried at June term of court that year, and jury agreed to acquittal of defendants, but couldn't agree on placing costs. Under the law of Pennsylvania a jury may find a man not guilty, but charge the whole of the costs or part of them against him, or upon the prosecutor, or divide them between defendant and prosecutor.

After the trial last year attorneys for the Free Press argued for the quashing of indictment, but Judge Porter did not hand down his opinion until too late for September or December term of court, and nothing was heard of the matter until March of this year. The comrades here thought the case would never be heard of. When they heard of the intention of the officials the Free Press published a series of caustic comments on the attempt of the servile Steel Trust tools to force a conviction on the charge of seditious libel. These comments stung local officials, especially Judge Porter, with the result that a new charge—that of constructive contempt of court—was made against them.

The June grand jury this year indicted them. The district attorney then attempted to try the contempt case first. The defendants carried the case to the Superior Court, but lost the fight there. Meanwhile the seditious libel case, the first of its kind in more than a century, was adjourned to September court.

At the September term of court just closed at this writing, both cases were tried, the contempt case coming first. Conviction was obtained in that case, under old English law, but an appeal has been taken to the higher court.

Immediately after the close of the contempt trial the prosecution put on the seditious libel case, hoping to use conviction in first case as a club for conviction in the bigger case. The legal battle lasted four days, and the jury was out fifteen hours before reaching agreement.

The decision in the seditious libel case is the most important decision handed down in any labor struggle in recent years. The action against the Free Press for seditious libel was tried under old English common law also, and a verdict of guilty would have menaced the Socialist press in every state in which the common law is unabridged. Local Socialists are jubilant over their triumph, as it assures freedom of the press.

The fight has dragged along for eighteen long months, and has cost several thousand dollars. The [illegible] Socialists have given to the limit of their resources, the Free Press is in financial straits as a result of the heavy expense, it has been under, as well as from the crippling of its plant during the trials. Outside aid is coming very slowly.

The real prosecutor is undoubtedly the Steel Trust, Chief of Police Gilmore being a mere figurehead. Unless help is forthcoming from Socialists all over the country the Trust may win, and the Free Press be silenced.

The fight against the little weekly paper grew out of its loyalty to the tin mill workers during their strike in 1909 and 1910 against the Steel Trust. That strike lasted sixteen months, and the workers were defeated and forced to return to the mills on the Trust's terms.

The workers are lining up behind the Socialist party in large numbers, their eyes having been opened by the strike and the attack on the Free Press, and unless all signs fail New Castle will be in the hands of the Socialists after November 7th. So the victory if the Socialist party will undoubtedly be a twofold victory.

Women and School Board Election.

By Ella June Purcell.

In Ohio women pay taxes but are not represented. They are not the natural guardians of their own children. They are bound to obey laws they had no voice in making. They are not permitted to be notaries. They are brought before men judges in whose election they had no part. The public prosecutors are men. Juries are composed entirely of men. Women are still in the infant-idiot-criminal-class in Ohio.

To a certain extent women are themselves to blame for this. Most of them cannot be persuaded to use the vote they now possess. Why should they expect a further responsibility?

For many years women have been permitted to vote at school elections and they are eligible to election to Board of Education. Many people claim that a very small percent of the men would vote if their right to vote was limited to participation in school elections. This would seem to be true when it is such a difficult matter to drag them to the polls at a general election. However, this is not the issue. Women have the right to vote at school celctions and they should consider it their DUTY to do so.

There is no American institution more important than our public school system. Children spend the impressionable years of their lives in school rooms. Their mental, physical and even moral welfare are largely influenced by the training received at school. The schools are managed and controlled by the Board of Education. Every woman interested in the welfare of the children should therefore take a personal interest in the selection of members of the board. Women should be interested in the teachers who help to mold the characters of children; they should be interested in the number and kind of subjects taught; in the methods of presentation; in the number and locations of school buildings, etc. In short women should have an intimate knowledge of school conditions and school management and should feel that they are responsible for the election of members to the Board of Education.

Particularly, it should be the duty of all women to give attention to the candidacy of women to the Board of Education. Women should be elected because they will give that attention to details that only women would give. Possibly women would consider some things important heretofore ignored.

It may be important for the superintendant of schools to be provided with an automobile, but why not provide the children with free text text books? We have not a sufficient number of schools in Columbus to provide decent accommodations for the children of school age. Is this a subject that the mother of this city can afford to ignore?

The women of Columbus should not neglect to vote at the coming election. They have the privilege of voting, they should consider it their DUTY. Men leave a large part of the management of the homeand children to the women. Women should not shirk responsibility. Register and vote!

The End of An Epoch.

By Frank Bohn.

The past six months have been rich with events which now mark the direction of the new currents. On November 5th, 1912, we shall know whether these strange new forces are to be impelled along their way by the gigantic powers of national government, or whether for a period of four years they are to be blocked by reaction, with the capital of reaction at Washington, D. C.

With the nomination of McKinley by the Republican party and of Bryan by the Democratic party in 1896, up to and during the special session of Congress this year, the political forces moved along straight line and can easily be comprehended. In 1896, the Republican party was reorganized by Mark Hanna. Mark Hanna was easily the most powerful and far-seeing American politician since the Civil War. His time of power, from the nomination of McKinley in 1896 until the latter's death in 1901, was the most momentous period in American History since 1861-5. It was the period of the organization of the first great group of trusts. The balance of power in American industrial and commercial life passed to the great Wall Street group which, since then, have, with unlimited nerve and sway, tyranized the nation. Mark Hanna was its prophet and political general.

In opposition to this mighty constructive power in industry and politics stood the middle class, captained first by William Jennings Bryan, then by Theodore Roosevelt, and finally by Robert M. La Follette.

The single cry of these three great popular leaders has been, "Bust the trusts." They have wielded large political power both in and out of office. They have retired from place and influence the Republican "Old Guard," Aldrich, Hale, Burrowes and Foraker. Yet they accomplished nothing. One way or another the trusts were bound to rule. Political opposition backed by the middle class might build a political career, but it would not "bust the trusts."

THE WORK OF WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

It has remained for Taft to complete the work so well begun by Mark Hanna. Why this "conservative" agent of the trusts was nominated by Theodore Roosevelt has long been surmised. His slow mind, his uninteresting personality and his tendency to commit ridiculous political blunders were meant by Roosevelt to force the Republican party in 1912 to again nominate Roosevelt. The nomination of Taft by his predecessor was undoubtedly the most Macchivellian piece of politics ever worked in America. Its final failure next year will be due to primary political forces over which no man nor group of men can have control.

Taft was exactly the man needed by the constructive, progressive forces of American life at this time. Out of a hundred trusts there must be organized the single great trust—the industrial empire of North America. This great trust was bound to be developed by the group which controlled the Nation's credit system. This group needed above all things to be let alone. It required for President a lawyer, and by all means, if possible to secure, a fat lawyer—one who saw the forms but not the forces behind them. William Howard Taft was just the man "to preserve and defend the Constitution of the United States." And the Constitution of the United States needed little mending. Had it been written by Mark Hanna in 1897 it could hardly have been better suited for the purpose of the trust oligarchy.

One difficulty remained to be gotten out of the way. That was the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. The passage of this law was an egregious blunder for which capitalism has long since atoned. It was passed in the years of the growing vote of the Populist party. John Sherman and his colleagues were driven by the debt-ridden farmers of the west to devise this piece of impossibilism in 1891. Its existence was so widely advertised by Roosevelt that it must needs be altered. The trusts were here. The Sherman Anti-Trust Law stated that they must be gone. That must "be amended." How? The slow mind of the uninteresting President was ready with an answer which would have done honor to John Marshall and Mark Hanna combined. This dangerous law should be amended by court decisions. Taft appointed as the members of his cabinet a group of safe and sane corporation lawyers. He followed this by appointing to membership on the Supreme Court a group of four corporation hirelings whose selection, in face of the bitter popular opposition to the trusts, was simply cold-blooded. Only ignorance of the public mind and a hopeless inaptness for practical politics, coupled with a desire to serve the interests of Wall Street unblushingly can account for those appointments.

THE GREAT TRUST DECISIONS.

The Supreme Court "Anti-Trust" decisions of 1911 were legislative in character. They did far more than merely rewrite the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. The Supreme Court declared that it was to decide in what cases the Sherman Anti-Trust Law was to be enforced and in what cases it was to be annulled and so placed itself outspokenly above Congress and the President as the law-making power of the land. The Supreme Court thus took the last and most important of those many steps which have led to the realization of the absolute power of the Supreme Court. With all the slyness of John Marshall himself the Court seized the opportunity furnished by the Standard Oil Case to make itself popular by ordering the dissolution of the lilac beast among trusts, while at the same time vastly increasing its own power.

These great decisions cleared the way for that apparent reversal of policy on the part of both the political sponsors of the trust oligarchy and the present discussion.

The gist of the whole matter is simply this. During this year and the next Insurgency under the leadership of Senator La Follette must completely revolutionize itself. Instead of crying "Bust the trusts," it will demand public ownership of the trusts. Of course the first demand will be nationalization of railroads, telegraphs, telephones and municipalization of all local public services. This position, to which the logic of events have long been forcing the middle class, is now absolutely thrust upon them by the absolutism of the Supreme Court. What effect can all anti-trust laws have upon trusts if the Supreme Court refuses to enforce such laws? Yet the trust decisions have merely hurried the result. Without them the Insurgents and the radical Democrats as well, would have been driven to the same conclusions.

THE COMING OF STATE CAPITALISM.

During the Controller Bay affair a bill was introduced in the House of Representatives authorizing and directing the Executive Department of Government to build railroads, to mine coal, to transport the coal by sea to the Pacific Coast cities, and there to sell it at cost. SENATOR ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE ADVOCATED THIS BILL.

On that day there closed an epoch in American History. For just fifteen years the trusts had been organizing and fighting off the bitter reactionary attacks of the middle class. At last the middle class forces in a new epoch—that of the agitation for government ownership of the trusts.

This reversal of policy forced President Taft to completely alter the nature of his public expressions. In the most important speech yet made on his present tour, that at Detroit, he used the following language:

"The decision of the Supreme Court as it grows to be understood in the near future will be a signal for the voluntary breaking up of all combinations in restraint of trade within the inhibition of the statute, and will, I hope, lead to a complete revulsion of feeling on the part of the business men of this country and to a clear understanding by them of the limitations that must be imposed by them on any business combinations made by them in future."

And the next day at Bay City he declared that the competitive system must be restored or the country must proceed to "state socialism" and let the government run every business. He said that the decision of the United States Supreme Court on Standard Oil and Tobacco had been needed to teach the business public that competition is not to be supplanted by monopoly.

"Trust busting"—government regulation of trusts—enforced return to competition—these will henceforth be TALKED by Taft and his adherents, who well know how impossible of realization such theories must be. But in all his public utterances, Taft will henceforth be a reactionary.

Meanwhile La Follette or Bryan, if the latter has the courage to follow La Follette, will be possible as a candidate and as a victorious candidate of the middle class. Enthusiastic hosts will rally about them. In that host will be included five millions of farmers, a million or more members of the American Federation of Labor, besides several millions of small business men, professional men and high salaried clerks, all of whom are now screaming against the high cost of living. One-half of the propaganda now being conducted by the Socialist party will only help to build up such a "government ownership party." If in 1912 Bryan, Hearst, La Follette, Cummings, et al., can get together and then be pushed on by the renomination of Taft, their victory is assured.

The next stage in the development of the United States is government ownership of the great industries—state capitalism—state tyrann, the rebuilding of a new middle class of government bond holders, who will buttress capitalism.

In revolutionizing his policy Robert M. La Follette will, by the spring of 1912, have changed from a reactionary to a real progressive. Has he the courage to break from the Republican ranks and, joining with the radical democracy, help to build a party for the present and immediate future?

Socialist Equal Suffrage Petition.

The following petition, with the accompanying instructions, is being sent out by the tens of thousands from the National Headquarters of the Socialist party. If each of the 80,000 dues-paying members of the party secure but fifteen signatures, they will roll up a demand from 1,200,000 persons who stand for equal rights for women and men.

Trade unions, women's clubs, and other progressive organizations are uniting their efforts in this attempt to force the United States Congress to make provision for votes for women.

Victor L. Berger, Socialist Congressman from Wisconsin, will present the petition, and at the same time submit the necessary amendments to the National Constitution.

"Petition to the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States:

"We, the undersigned citizens of the United States over 21 years of age, hereby request you to submit to the Legislatures of the several states for ratification, an amendment to the National Constitution which shall enable women to vote in all elections.

Instructions to Workers for the Woman Suffrage Petition to Congress.

1. Write the name of your State at the top of your petition.

2. Women and men will sign the same petition.

3. The signatures of men and women should be readily distinguishable, and therefore they should be asked to sign their full names.

4. Every signer should add his or her occupation immediately after the name. Women who receive wages for housework should be called housekeepers, as distinguished from homekeepers.

5. Every signer should add his postoffice address; otherwise the signature is without value.

6. When one petition is filled, paste on another WITHOUT CUTTING OFF THE HEAD.

7. Make a house to house canvass to secure the signatures of women and go in the morning when they are at home.

8. Make a systematic canvass of the business section.

9. Canvass factories, workshops and schools at the noon hour.

10. Canvass all gatherings such as trade union meetings, teachers, institutes, Women's clubs, Churches, lectures and fairs.

11. When filled, send petitions to National Headquarters, Socialist party, 205 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois. If small, fold the petition and place it in a long envelope; if several petitions have been pasted together, roll them and wrap carefully with protective covering.

OVER THE FENCE.

The ion war between the American Flint Glass Workers and the Green Bottle Blowers, Association is about over. Committees from both sides have signed an agreement pledging themselves to no longer interfere with each others' jurisdiction or be be used as strike-breakers by employes.

The Davenport machinists convention voted to increase the per capital tax of the organization from 45 to 75 cents per month. This will increase the income of the union $100,000 per annum. With the present income it is estimated that nearly a million dollars a year will flow into the I. A. of M. coffers, and the organization will be in a position to make a fight against the enemy anywhere and at any time.

SOCIALISTS IN ACTION.

News From The World Wide Movement Of The Workers.

General Socialist News.

Last week in the first ballot to fill a vacancy in Parliament at Dusseldorf, Germany, the Socialists had the high vote, 35,312, a gain of 2,423 since last election. The seat was held for years by the clerical.

At Bristol, Conn., last week, the Socialist candidate for Mayor led all others in the primaries. He had within 147 votes of the total polled by all old party candidates. Now the latter are combining against the Red.

It is reported from Bridgeport, Conn., that that city is likely to be swung by the Socialist party this fall. On account of the failure of the Legislature to enact an employers' liability and workmen's compensation law and other measures promised by the politicians a big revolt is setting in against them. The unionists of Bridgeport are flocking into the S. P. in bunches.

Rev. John Wesley Hill, the great Socialist smasher of New York, is going away and leave us in the lurch. J. Wes. is about to sail for Japan to lecture to the helpless inhabitants about the wickedness of Socialism. He will carry with him letters from President Taft, Secretary-of-State Knox and to her workingmen's friends. Good bye, John; don't stay long. We need you here to amuse us.

A dispatch from Vienna says that the Socialist members of the Austrian Parliament are putting the responsibility for the riots of Sunday of last week squarely up to the government. The refusal of the government to take off the duties on imported food stuffs and thus break the high prices has strengthened the Socialists' claims. The Socialists demand that such duties be removed and that the state take up the furnishing of sanitary homes for the workers to curb the greed of the landlords. The situation throughout the empire is said to be critical.

Mayor P. H. McCarthy was defeated at the primaries in San Francisco by James Rolph by a vote of about two to one. Andrew Furuseth, president of the National Seamen's union; Walter Mac Arthur, editor of the Seamen's Journal and other union officials, deserted the McCarthy standard and supported Rolph. The Socialist vote cannot be learned at this writing, but seems to have been held down to its previous average owing to the sharply drawn lines between the McCarthy and Rolph organizations, Rolph was supported by the bosses of both old political parties.

A new method of fighting Socialism has been adopted by the Chicago authorities, according to the Daily Socialist. Policemen broke into the headquarters of the First Ward Branch of the Socialist party, drove out the watchman and arrested Fred Scott, a member of the branch. When arraigned in court no charge was preferred against Scott, and he was dismissed. When Organizer Williams attempted to tell the judge of the conduct of the police, he was interrupted with, "I don't want to hear about this. Case dismissed." Vicious attempts had been made for months by the police to stop the street meetings, but they failed.—Cleveland Citizen.

The big plutes of Los Angeles have formed a committee of 50 "best citizens" ostensibly to fight woman suffrage, but in reality to combat Socialism. Such distinguished gents as J. A. Graves, president of the union-hating Merchants and Manufacturers' Association; Oscar Lawler, the first lieutenant of former Secretary Ballinger and former American representative of Dictator Diaz; John T. Gaffney and Joseph Mesmer, two Democratic party bosses, and a bunch of bankers, Republican politicians and the like. They don't want woman suffrage because the working class women would assist the men in smashing the old machines and taking the iron heel of plutocracy from labor's neck. The Los Angeles Herald admits that the committee was organized to fight Socialism.

L. J. Irish defines Socialism as follows: "Socialism is that messenger of peace that has come to the world with her hands unstained by human blood—tuning anew the harpstrings of harmony—implanting within the breasts of the workers of the world hopes of a better day. Socialism is that star of hope that has arisen out of the destruction wrought by the black hand of capitalism. Socialism is that happy reunion of the principles of brotherhood and social democracy, bringing together the workers of the world, uniting them into a political party, where 'comrades' is the word that inspires hope—there pledged to bring about their own emancipation."

The graft sheriff of Westmoreland county, Pa., who is said to have cleaned up $50,000 in attacking the striking unions, has been found guilty on three charges that were so bare faced that he couldn't hide them. But he will get away with it at that.

From National Headquarters.

The Suffrage Petition, with accompanying circular letters of instructions, is being mailed from the National Office. Every local should take these up immediately and give them thorough circulation. Do not let any man or woman, over twenty-one years of age, escape you. If more blanks are needed, send to the National Headquarters, 205 West Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois. They will be forwarded at once.

The call for nominations for National Executive Committee and National Secretary is being mailed to the locals. Any local not receiving the same should write to the National Headquarters for it.

J. L. Fitts, who has done valuable pioneer field work for the movement for a number of years, has accepted a position in the National Headquarters. He will have charge of the routing of the advance organizers of the Lyceum Department and also the routing of the Lyceum lecturers.

Indiana Socialist News.

(James Oneal, State Secretary, 309½ Ohio Street, Terre Haute, Ind.)

Word comes from Lyons in Green county that the Socialists have 50 names on the list for a charter and a singing club has also been organized. To make their work complete, the comrades propose to nominate a full ticket for the town election.

North Judson, in Starke county, comes forward with a list of 9 applicants for a charter. They do not wait for a speaker, but go ahead and do the job for themselves.

The Kokomo comrades finished the job at Arcadia by organizing a local of 8 members, with the prospects bright for a good increase in the membership.

Word reaches the state office from Tefft, in Jasper county, that a speaker is wanted in two towns there, and that instructions on how to organize would be appreciated. This has been one of the barren counties, that so Socialist speaker has ever entered.

Local Winchester reports fine prospects for a membership of 50 soon, and like reports come from many other locals that in former years found it impossible to retain the interest of the members.

The state office has paid dues to the amount of $115 during September, which is the largest sum ever paid to the national office by Indiana in the history of the party.

Excellent reports are being received of the work of Florence Wattles. She is on the job at all times and is enlisting the support of many women.

In addition to the many meetings held each week in Indianapolis, the speakers there are branching out and helping nearby towns. Comrade Meims of Milwaukee has also been engaged for a large meeting on October 5th. The suggestion is made that the national convention be held in Indianapolis next year. It would be a good idea to have it held in the city where McNamara was kidnapped.

Every party member should carry application cards in his pocket, and let no man who calls himself a Socialist escape without presenting him with an invitation to join the Socialist party.

Vote Women!

There is a phrase, "the brotherhood of man," which we have heard so many times and oft that its real significance counts for but little; and too often we treat it as we do the precepts of the golden rule, dusting it carefully and folding it away out of sight, reverently enough and in lavender perhaps, but out of sight and away from our lives, for it is only a beautiful theory—though hardly a standard to live by as yet.

And why not? Oh, because human nature is the same the world over and you cannot change human nature. The old story! Neither do we wish to change human nature, nor could we if we did. But we do intend to and will change the present conditions which surround those evil conditions which offer daily to human nature the many pitfalls wherein, struggling, it is caught and held and lost in the merciless maelstrom of capitalism.

The "brotherhood of man," the fraternity of man, meaning the fraternity of both men and women, a unity, the perfect unity of the entire race; this is the meaning of the phrase, and to establish its operation among us, each individual should labor with all the strength that is his.

The attainment of this unity we, as Socialists, believe will be brought about through the ballot, when that ballot is sufficiently strong to place the principles of Socialism at the head of the government of the nation. We believe this because Socialism stands for all that is good and free and progressive and against all that is ignoble, base and degrading. But Socialists believe that the right of franchise should belong equally to women as well as men. Article II, of the National Constitution of the party in relation to membership says: "Every person, resident of the United States of the age of eighteen years and upward without discrimination as to sex, race, color or creed, who has severed his connection with all other political parties, and subscribes to the principles of the Socialist Party, including political action, shall be eligible to membership in the party."—Is there another political party in existence in our land today whose membership requirements are so broad and universal, or tends more to the bringing about of the brotherhood unity than does this party? Could any better principle be given to the world than the safety of letting every human being have the power of its protection in its own hands? Anything less than this is slavery, against the principles of true democracy and against the teachings of nature itself, for there all things have their counterpart: light has its complement in darkness, storm in calm, day in night, heat in cold; the duality cementing a perfect whole. And just so will the enfranchisement of both the sexes work to the betterment of government, for to man's strength will there be added the refining and conscientious woman influence; and the polls, now the seat of corruption at whose mart men's honor is bought and sold like so much merchandise, will be purified into dispensary of justice, drawing together and knitting more closely all kindreds into the true brotherhood, making for the emancipation of the race. These reasons are why women need the ballot. They need to protect the every day interests of their lives. This bond is shared by all women in common. That time has gone by when one, in selfish disregard of his fellows, permits himself to care only for the welfare of his own. You and I are one. Mankind is one. Your good is my good and my good is the good of all mankind.

As yet, however, in many places in the United States women are not allowed the ballot on all questions. Here in Ohio their voting is restricted to members of the school board. This may seem to many of little consequence, and yet the fact should not be ignored, nor should women treat the subject with indifference and refuse to exercise their right in the matter. Voting this fall for members of the school board means vastly more in the city of Columbus than it has ever meant before because of the fact that two Socialist women are on the ticket and should be elected in the interest of good and beneficial school government.

These Socialist women are Comrade June Purcell, a local attorney of this city, and a young woman of marked ability and standing in her profession; and Comrade Georgia Crooks, for many years a tireless worker in the party, and one who would, if elected, do all in her power to promulgate the principles of Socialism in the management of the schools of our city.

Here are a few of the measures these two candidates stand upon and pledge themselves to support, if elected. Free text books for children of all grades. Too long have the school board combines been allowed to wax and grow fat off of the hard working parents of school youths in our land. There are many ways in which these books may be kept in good sanitary condition; so an argument along that line by those opposing this measure would be futile. These women believe in the establishment of a free kindergarten system throughout the city, declaring that the tax rate is sufficiently high to support such an enterprise. One can hardly overestimate the help this would mean to thousands of struggling mothers and later to the teachers of the primary grades.

These women believe that the school houses, buildings wherein thousands of dollars of public money have been expended, should not be closed against the public during vacation periods or at night, but that their doors should be thrown open without cost to speakers, along educational lines, for education should continue throughout one's entire life.

Then, lastly, there is a distressing fact that confronts those interested in the welfare of children of the school age. A recent examination of 10,707 school children in New York City revealed the sad fact that 4.1 per cent had no breakfast on the date of the inquiry, while 9.22 per cent exhibited anaemic conditions, apparently due to lack of proper nourishment. Upon investigation the teachers found that the breakfast of the 9.22 per cent consisted either of coffee only, or of coffee with bread only. Only 17.22 per cent had begun the day with an adequate meal. These problems are by no means peculiar to New York City, they obtain in all large cities—they are with us here in Columbus.

The Socialist women candidates for members of the school board would be compelled, if elected, as Socialists, to investigate these conditions here and agitate the establishment of wholesome lunches to the necessitous children, for Socialism guarantees to every school child a good home, food, clothing and an education, which will later on give to the nation a race of healthy, educated and helpful men and women.

Women of Columbus, think over these matters. They affect you and your home vitality.

POLICE JUDGE—Enoch B. Eubanks, carpenter.

POLICE CLERK—Alois Nick, tailor.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE (two to be elected)—L. B. Taylor, shoemaker, and R. M. Woody, anvil maker.

CONSTABLES (four to be elected)—E. L. Appel, laborer; F. E. Johnston, bookkeeper; Clarence Margraff, shoe worker, and Jacob Moninger, clerk.

COUNCILMEN-AT-LARGE (three to be elected)—Dr. C. W. Albright, physician for Jeffrey Manufacturing Co.; J. C. Little, insurance man, and W. E. Bunn, railroad telegrapher.

MEMBERS OF SCHOOL BOARD-AT-LARGE—Miss Ella June Purcell, attorney, and Mrs. Georgia Crooks.

DELEGATES TO CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION—Marsh C. Green, carpenter; Dr. E. E. Adel, physician, and J. H. Henderson, machinist.

This is the time of the year when the politicians are looking for the crop of suckers who will accept their promises as the binding agreements of honest men.

President Taft, at Waterloo, said: "I wish to invite your attention to the relation of the federal government and the federal statutes to the BUSINESS of this country." That is just what we have been doing for a long time. It has been a very close relationship, according to our observations.

Now it is former Secretary Ballinger who sees a bogie-boo which he calls Socialism, coming down the road. All of these excited reports by prominent men are naturally the result of their fright. Socialism is coming, but it is not the awful thing which they picture it.

The conservative union leaders are fast being relegated to the rear. The working class is becoming revolutionary. And conservatism never won concessions. It might leave an impress upon the exploiters of labor, for a conservative labor leader is looked upon as a safe and sane man who will do the right thing at the critical time. The right thing usually keeps the working class bound hand and foot. To get results from the capitalist class labor must fight every inch of ground. Labor must not delude itself with the theory that the masters will give some of the profits if they are not compelled. And conservative leaders can always be convinced that the working men on strike are in the wrong. The rank and file must rule if the unions are to accomplish anything.

Running Their Own Affairs.

The men in the Harriman shops have not heeded the advice of those who warned them that this is an "inopportune time to strike," and that the form of union launched is "dangerous." They know that the opportune time to strike is when the men are literally forced to it. They know that if federation or consolidation of weak competing lines into a strong system has been good for the Harriman roads, then the organization of small, weak and often warring unions into a federation covering all the trades employed will be good for the workers.

In this instance the workers have decided to run their own affairs, instead of turning them over to friends or leaders who desire to give both "capital and labor what is due them."

Lynch Law.

From first to last the case against the McNamaras has violated every right the inhabitants of this country are supposed to possess. After the dirty work done by Burns, the kidnapping of the accused men, the burglarizing of union headquarters and the campaign of slander conducted against the Iron Workers' Union, there has not been a single bit of news concerning the actions of those who are fighting the union that is not of the same stamp.

Now it seems that the Erectors' Union paid $5,000 to Prosecutor Baker for his examination of the iron workers' records. The Erectors' Union stood ready to pay $7,000 more. Surely for $5,000 an investigator should have been able to "find" something of interest to the employers. Burns could have done it.

The investigation of the records was the duty of a public official, and Prosecutor Baker is supposed to be one. But the fact that the Erectors' Union paid him so liberally indicates that he is an employe of that organization, though his usefulness comes through his public position.

The Advantages of Being A Gorilla.

Two interesting stories appeared in close juxaposition in the columns of the New York papers.

The first related that the janitress of the tenement house at 206 East 98th street, hearing faint moans from a room on the third floor, after listening at the keyhole, called the police. The door was burst open by the officer, and on the floor they found three small children, two girls of 9 and 3 years of age, respectively, and a boy baby a year old. All were unconscious, and it was speedily discovered that they were at the point of death from starvation. A few crumbs of bread were scattered about the floor. The children were taken to the hospital, and the opinion of the doctors is that the girls may be saved, but "little Sammy," the baby, is too far gone and has but a "small chance" for his life.

Alongside of the above appeared a special bulletin from Bronx Park Zoo, imparting the happy news that "Miss Ningo," the young gorilla, took a decided turn for the better yesterday. Dr. W. Reed Blair is constantly by her bedside, and Curator Ditmars reports that she ate half of a four-foot plantain stalk and half a banana, and seemed to like the skin of the latter somewhat better than the pulp. An animal nurse sleeps in a cot by her "apartment," and every half hour administers a large dose of quinine to "Miss Ningo" for the purpose of stimulating her appetite.

If "little Sammy" had only had the good fortune to have been born a gorilla, he might have had something better than a "small chance" for his life. But no such luck.

These two incidents furnish additional proof of the evolutionary theory that human beings are "descended" from monkeys, but few of us seem to realize how great that "descent" has really been.

Perhaps in a million years or so, through the slow and painful process of evolution, we may one again commence the ascent, and ultimately attain the status of the gorilla. Who knows!

And as a first step in the ascent, we suggest that the children be raised from the degredation of the tenement hovel to the diguity of an "apartment" in the Bronx Zoological Park.

The Austin Dam Disaster.

The Austin, Pa., dam disaster is an indictment in itself against the profit system. It proves beyond doubt that the capitalists, in their mad race for gold, care nothing for the lives of the community in which their factories are situated. The officials of the Bayless Pulp and Paper Company were in New York at the time of the tragedy. It is reported that the dam was known to have been in a dangerous condition for a year preceding the disaster, and that at one time there was some talk of repairing the cracks in the walls of the dam, but apparently this was not done, with the result that two hundred souls were hurried into eternity without warning because the Bayless Company refused to allow their earnings to be decreased by a stoppage of their works. The demand for dividends by the nonproducing capitalist class prevented the officials in charge from doing their duty. The men at the other end of the line therefore are responsible for this wholesale murder of women and children and the making of 2000 workers homeless. It's one of the worst crimes of the present century, and now that the deed has been committed, the State officials talk of a State investigation to bring those responsible for the calamity before the bar of justice.

State investigations in the past have been a farce. The proof of this statement can be proven in the results achieved in the Johnstown, Pa., flood tragedy; and again in the steamship Slocum disaster, when 1000 women and children were carried down to a watery grave because of the negligence of the corporation that owned the boat. Were the heads of this corporation convicted and sent to prison? No; but the skipper of the boat, who was compelled to obey the orders of his masters under the penalty and power to revoke his license if he disobeyed orders, was given seven years in New York state prison. His name was Van Shack, and he was recently released from prison at the suggestion of the real murderers, the men who owned the Slocum.

The capitalist system was responsible for the Austin dam disaster. It proves that the dollar is greater in value in the eyes of the capitalist class than human lives. And as long as the capitalist system stands, just so long will property be of more value than life.

Welcome to the Exiles.

"The Exiles," otherwise the former employes of the Rail-Light, who had to seek jobs outside of Columbus after the strike last year, will come in tomorrow (Sunday) morning on a special train from Cleveland, and will be given a loyal welcome by their old neighbors and friends.

When men go forth to war, above the strains of martial music can be heard the weeping and wailing of the mothers, wives and children who are left at home to mourn their departure. But how different the scene of the home-coming. All is joy and gladness, the past is forgotten and every soul breathes the air of future hope and happiness.

The heroes of our wars are the subjects for hero worship because they left home and family to fight for a principle. This is true not only of national strife, but also of industrial strife. Hence, midst the joyous throng stand the heroes of the war honored by all because they fought for a principle they believed to be right.

Listen! The bands are playing. Look! See men are forming to parade; but yet they wear not the uniform of their country. No, they are the pioneers of the great industrial army. They have returned to see their battlefield. They have returned more especially as victors, to view the dying embers of the vanquished foes. These are the exiles, the men who rather than surrender their rights as honest citizens, established homes where the rights of citizenship are respected. This country was won by self-sacrifice and self-denial, and you, my old comrades, will find your names written in the annals of industrial fame. We greet you, we honor you as our guests.

Defeat never meant dishonor.

Socialist Nonpartisan Candidates.

The above caption has a peculiar sound, but the fact is that under our very peculiar election laws there are a number of Socialist candidates whose names will appear on the ballot without any party designation. The list is as follows:

For Delegates to Constitutional Convention:

E. E. ADEL,
M. C. GREEN,
J. H. HENDERSON.

Judicial Nominees—For Judge of the Police Court:

ENOCH B. EUBANKS.

For Justices of the Peace:

L. B. TAYLOR,
R. M. WOODY.

Members Board of Education—At Large:

GEORGIE CROOKS,
ELLA JUNE PURCELL.

Districts:

JOHN L. MICHEL,
W. H. BROOKS,
W. R. DRAPER,
C. H. DE LONG.

These candidates have all been endorsed by the Socialist party and are Socialists. Become familiar with these names and the places for which they are candidates so that you may not be confused when you vote.

The Result in Dusseldorf.

It is easily one of the most significant victories ever achieved by the German Socialists. Seven out of each ten inhabitants of Dusseldorf are Catholics, and the Centrum, the Catholic political party, has steadily and systematically campaigned against the Socialists. Yet in the Centrist stronghold the Socialists elected Karl Haberland by a vote of 39,264 to 36,111 cast for his Centrist opponent, Dr. Friedrich.

Two points in connection with this election are especially important: The anti-Socialist crusade is making Socialist votes; the world-wide unrest is now manifesting itself in Socialist sentiment.

A few days ago when 200,000 German Social Democrats assembled in Treptow Park to protest against the Morocco incident, the press tried to detract from the significance of the event by saying that it was a manifestation of Berlin Socialist strength rather than anything else.

But now in the anti-Socialist stronghold of the Rhine district the Socialists defeat the very party that has carried it in election after election since the formation of the empire. Magnificent as the Treptow Park demonstration was as an indication of numerical strength, of discipline and intelligent understanding of political affairs, the vote in Dusseldorf is equally important as indicating the growing general working class solidarity of the German Empire. The appeals to religious prejudices have been especially acrimonious, but they failed ignominiously.

The working class everywhere is awakening and everywhere uniting.

Rotten Tomatoes as an Argument.

The Socialist must now face a new argument presented by the old parties. It takes the form of rotten tomatoes and was first used in this campaign Thursday evening of last week at the corner of West Fifth and Highland, where a Socialist meeting was in progress. Comrade J. W. Freeman presided and Comrades F. E. Johnson and D. J. Farrell were the speakers. The tomatoes came while Farrell was talking, but the aim of the thrower was poor. They never touched him. Some of the attentive audience was spattered by the Demo-Rep. missiles, however. The disturbance made Socialist votes as it was plainly apparent that rotten tomatoes were about the best the old parties could put up.

Mud-Throwing Begins.

The mud-throwing of the campaign has already commenced, but the attention of the dear people is called to the fact that the Socialists did not start it nor do we propose to indulge in it. Mr. Wayne B. Wheeler, a Marshall supporter, threw the first gob of muck when at a ministers' meeting last Monday he revived the old report about George Karb's alleged ownership of property used for immoral purposes. We will now expect the Karb people to retaliate by publishing some of the rumors that have been circulated verbally concerning the great and good George Sidney Marshall. Let them go to it, comrades. It's none of our funeral. We are advocating principles and the personality of candidates does not concern us. The past official record of any candidate is the property of the people, however, and we claim the right to discuss the same.

OHIO FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Just another week and then comes the O. F. of L. Convention.

About 135 credentials have so far been received by Secretary Thomas and that indicates a large attendance, as the great bulk of the credentials always come in the week before the day the convention opens.

THE MELTING POT.

The Rev. Charles Stelzle, in a recent article, deplores the epidemic of strikes. The reverend gentleman computes the vast sums of money used to sustain strikes and combat them, and urges both sides in the controversy to meet and lay plans for greater cooperation. This is good advice, but the men above the crowd do not realise the condition of the men below. The time has passed for words; the situation demands action. Strikes are the result of oppression. If a critic wishes to abolish strikes, he must help abolish the system that allows some to oppress others. It may be well to remind the Mr. Stelzle that one of his main supporters, the Baldwin Locomotive Works, is one of the worst labor crushing institutions in the country. The money that he has received in the past from this company to preserve industrial peace was very much tainted with corporate greed. There is only one hope left for the workers; that is the ballot box. And at this place many of the starved workers expect to protest against the present industrial system.

Could any citizen outside of the Columbus School Board inform some of our readers where Mr. Loren came from? This is the gentleman who is to train the boys for the machinist trade at the Front Street school house. This is the manufacturers' plan of studying the WELFARE of the boys at the HELLFARE of their parents.

James McGreevey, of the Buffers and Polishers, has recovered from his illness and is in town to line up his craft. So far "Jim" has done good work, and we look to see a thriving local of the Shiners in the near future. Line up and keep off the hunger strike.

Comrade Adam Schaffer has returned to Davenport, Iowa, to take up the study of medicine. Adam will return before the election and we Hope he will bring some "Eve" with him. No stronger Socialist ever came to Columbus than Comrade Schaffer.

The Iron and Steel Workers Journal contains several amendments to their constitution. It looks good for a progressive administration. The reactionary policy of the past has glutted the organization, and with new men at the helm we may expect to see the steel workers move up into the front ranks. Such moves are fashionable these days.

An embalmed trade unionist was bemoaning the fact that President Gompers had lined up with the Socialists in the City of Bad and Good Angels, because it would prevent some good fellows getting political jobs. Gompers has waited for the mountain to come to Gompers and now Gompers has gone to the mountain. It's the result of the natural trend of things.

COMPROMISING LABOR.

It is said that labor in Pittsburg, Pa., is receiving marked recognition from the politicians. Ex-President P. J. McArdle of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers was recently appointed a member of the city council under a promise that he would be a candidate on the Republican ticket. We have no reason to impugn Mr. McArdle's motives except to express our profound wonder as to how a true union man can consistently compromise his union principles with the notorious plunderbund. We thought that the exposure of colossal graft in the smoky city would deter Mr. McArdle from accepting the appointment; but evidently the bait was bigger than the man. It requires considerable moral courage to resist a tempting salary of $6,500.

But probably Mr. McArdle reasoned that one who belongs to the National Civic Federation and the militia of Christ can well afford to form a "triple alliance" by casting in his lot with the Republican party. Of course we grant any man the right to serve under any party, especially if the sinecure is handsome; but there is a vast difference between self-interest and the interest of Labor.

How Mr. McArdle proposes to serve labor on the Pittsburg plunderbund we don't know. We know this much, however, that the Republican party in Pennsylvania, including the Pittsburg council, is controlled by the steel trust. The policy of the steel trust has been and is to exterminate organized labor, including, of course, the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. We feel sorry for Mr. McArdle because apparently he has departed from the path of duty. Truly, only a spark of class-consciousness would have been sufficient to open Mr. McArdle's eyes. But he believes in compromising labor. So there you have it.—Mine Workers' Journal.

SOCIETY DOINGS AND HOW SOCIETY DOES.

Mrs. DeLoftyairs has returned from Europe. She not only brought over a foreign made $10,000 automobile, but she had the good fortune to secure one of the mongrel nostench breed of poodle dogs. This little $5,000 pet was seen in the arms of its mistress at Mrs. Beatallmycreditors' pink tea. Mrs. DeLoftyairs wore the latest Paris creation and nothing more. Anthony Comstock agents did not attend.

Mrs. Clancy has returned to the washtub after sojourning in bed for the last few days. Mrs. Clancy has purchased one of the $5 new noiseless American baby buggies. Mrs. Clancy was one of the guests at "Bally" Ricket's Canning Festival. Mrs. Clancy was kept busy attending to the wants of her two twins. Mrs. Clancy wore the latest church decoration rummage sale garments.

Mr. George T. Spahr appeared before the Public Service Commission to protest against the right of the citizens to deprive him and his fellow stockholders in the Columbus Railroad and Light Company of the right to increase their dividends by increasing the price of gas.

Public School Hearing.

Every Socialist interested in the public schools is urged to attend the public hearing on the question of the medical inspection of school children at the Board of Education building on East Town street next Tuesday evening.

Mr. Spahr was informed that his protest would be investigated. Mr. Spahr does not believe in unions because they organize to increase wages. But this is not where the shoe pinches.

George Barr recently was one of a committee that appeared before his employer to protest against the right of the employer to decrease his wages. George was told about BEANS and RICE and the next day GEORGE was told that he was not wanted any longer. George secured another job. Recently the foreman told George he wohld have to let him go because he was an AGITATOR. GEORGE IS STILL GOING—to hades.

Smokey Blobb's gambling joint was raided by the police. The judge told Smokey he had no right to allow a game of chance to exist on his premises. Smokey promised to heed the warning.

Caries Gurrish and Tom Bust were once prosperous saloon keepers. A friend advised them to play the TICKER CHALK AND BOARD game. They entered into the mysteries of the mysterious and daily watched the board until one day they found they had forgot the BOARD BILL. One named George owns this building. GAMES OF CHANCE ARE PERMITTED daily. They play on WHEAT AND CORN that has not yet been SOWN. What?

THE AGE OF CHRISTIAN CIVILIZATION.

These facts were taken from the daily press: "Who wants a little baby boy? Mother is willing to give up the child so she can go out and make a living for herself and the older children."

Owing to a fire at the Ohio State Penitentiary is was made necessary for the electrical staff to work all night on the dynamo which was damaged by the flames, so they could electrocute one of the annex inmates the following night. The law must be inforced, says the powers that be, when it comes to taking the life of a friendless convict. But this is not the case, when it comes to taking a BOLT CONTRACT AWAY FROM A GANG OF HUMAN VULTURES.

AN ECHO OF DEATH VALLEY.

"Little" Captain Bush was promoted to the position of major in the National Guard for bravery exhibited in crushing starving workers in the battles of Beans and Rice, Death Valley, and the West Side Hurricane. Others received theirs in the form of meat contracts.

PLEASURE JAUNTS FOR SCHOOL BOARD.

The Columbus School Board has decided to give School Superintendent Schawan an automobile, at the expense of the taxpayers, Dr. Timberman, the fashionable manicured member of the Columbus School Board, was honest enough to show the ulterior motive behind this infamous conspiracy to use the people's money to provide luxuries for politicians. "For," says Dr. Timberman, "the machine can be used by members of the board when it is necessary for them to visit schools in outlying districts." What, with the appointment of political friends to positions in the manual training department and now the purchase of automobiles for their easy tools; is this not inducement enough to cause the voters to elect men who have the interest of all the community at heart, instead of consideration for their future political advancement?

Swansea, Eng.—Tin plate boys are on strike at Swansea and girls at Owmfelin are also engaged in an industrial struggle. About 800 boys and girls are out and 3,000 men will have to stop work unless an early settlement is reached.

Hull, Eng.—The Dock Laborers' Union at Hull has submitted to the local Federation of Transport Workers a proposition instructing all members of the Federation to refuse to handle all products of the Messrs. Jamesons' Rope & Hemp Mill.

THE NORTH SIDE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND THE UNION LABEL.

By some mistake the secretary of the North Side Chamber of Commerce gave the printing of their directory to an unfair firm. When the time came for the proof to be read it was found that the firm did not carry the Union Label. The directors of the board were called together and the contract was cancelled, the unfair firm was paid the damages for the work already turned out and he in return gave the directors a lecture on [illegible]ocurage, but nevertheless the North Side Chamber of Commerce had courage enough to demand that their work be done where good wages are paid. The cheap workman buys cheap goods. What a difference there is between the Columbus Chamber of Commerce and the North Side Chamber of Commerce.

THE HARRIMAN SYSTEM RAILROAD STRIKE.

The fight is on in the Western country. The Railroad Federation demands that all wage agreements be signed on the same day. This plan will prevent the officials pitting one organization against the other. Some day the Railroad brotherhoods must adopt this plan or be wiped out of existence. James O'Connell ordered the Machinists not to participate in the federation strike, but the Davenport convention overruled his and the Executive Board's commands. O'Connell thought that it would be good policy to adopt the tactics of the late P. M. Arthur, but it failed to work with the Machinists, and now they are out fighting like honest men, not for the company, but for the community.

HE WAS ONLY A WORKER.

Thomas J. Chase, the Neil House employe, who was recently killed, was allowed to lie in the lobby of the hotel for twenty-seven minutes before he was taken to a hospital. The excuse given was "waiting for an ambulance." Yet at the same time there was at least twenty automobiles waiting service outside the doors of the hotel. The victim died of lockjaw, and thereby hangs a tale.

PRINTED FOR THE BENEFIT OF JUDGE SAMUEL OSBORN.

This definition may help some of the Columbus Bar to render decisions within the meaning of the law itself. At the present time it is impossible for a man to practice law unless he carries a card with the lawyers union (BAR ASSOCIATION.) If a man tries to do otherwise he is prosecuted. The workers demand the same right that's all "Judge."

SCAB.—A mean, dirty, paltry fellow. A nickname for a workman who engages for lower wages than are fixed by the trades unions; also, for one who takes the place of a workman on strike.—Webster's Dictionary.

STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETS.

Organizing a speaking bureau, issuing charters to new locals and laying out a plan for campaign in Ohio cities and villages, the state executive board of the Socialist party met last Saturday at state headquarters, 121½ East Town street.

Comrade Josephine Bates, of Toledo, a member of the committee, was appointed routing secretary for speakers. She will act under the supervision of the Executive Board.

It was announced at the meeting that Eugene V. Debs, former candidate for president of the United States on the Socialist ticket; William Haywood, of Colorado, and Ben Wilson and Charles Russell, of New York, will fill speaking engagements in Ohio before election day.

Farmers Denounce the Kidnapping of John J. McNamara and Line Up With Organized Labor.

Washington, Sept. 23.—Organized farmers, realizing that their interests and those of the members of labor organizations are identical, have expressed themselves in unmistakable terms.

The State Executive Committee of the Farmers' State Union of Oklahoma has passed resolutions condemning the kidnapping of John J. McNamara, and the delegation to the conventions of the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative Union of America, in session at Shawnee, Oklahoma, have passed resolutions denouncing kidnapping and for the establishment of closer relations with organized labor.

The resolutions adopted by the State Executive Committee of the Farmers' State Union of Oklahoma follow:

"We feel that it is appropriate, as well as our sacred duty, to give an expression against the outrageous kidnapping of John J. McNamara, Secretary of the Iron Workers' Union, by a hired detective agency, without due process of law. We join our protest with the millions of loyal toilers who feel this outrage most keenly, and we denounce this kidnapping as villainous, un-American, and a burning disgrace to modern civilization. The weakness of the cause of plutocracy is clearly shown by this unlawful outrage."

The following resolutions were adopted at the convention of the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative Union of America:

"Resolved, That the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative Union of America stands firmly for the enforcement of and compliance with the laws of our states and nation; more especially by those who occupy an apparently semi-official position.

"We demand the punishment of crime through the enforcement of law.

"We denounce the act of kidnapping a citizen of one state (regardless of the crime with which he may be charged) and spiriting him away to another state without due process of law, as of itself a crime that strikes at the very foundation of our civilization; a crime, which if permitted to go unrebuked and unpunished, must inevitably have a far-reaching effect in lessening respect for law, and encouraging further acts of anarchy and vandalism; a crime that will go far toward destroying the security not only of our property but of our homes and the lives of ourselves and families."

At the same convention the following resolutions were adopted:

"Resolved, That the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative Union of America recommends a closer cooperation between the union men of the farm, railroads, mines, mills, factories and shops, to the end that a greater good may result to the masses."

A Blessing For An Unknown.

From New York Call.

About an hour before this present writing, the business manager, after informing us that he had filled 305,000 orders for the broad sheet containing the cartoons of Gordon Nye and Art Young, with editorials attached, and that the orders were still pouring in, placed before our astonished gaze something that rarely indeed appears on an editor's desk, to-wit, a Blessing.

Knowing from long experience that such things are not usually showered upon editors—the reverse being nearly always the case—we were inclined to surmise that it was not intended for us, and a second look confirmed our conjecture.

It was not for us. Nor do we know the special individual for whom it was intended. But if he reads this he may, perhaps, recognise himself as the intended recipient. We know nothing more of him than that he is presumably a resident of Brooklyn, and a member of that invaluable fraternity known to New York Socialists, as the tribe of "Jimmy Higgins." May the tribe increase.

The benediction in question was typewritten on the lower right hand corner of the broadsheet above mentioned, where the membership application blank appears. The name, address, age and occupation of the signer were properly filled in thereon (we do not feel at liberty to divulge them here), and underneath was this footnote in typewriting:

May blessings be upon the head of the man who this Sunday morning put this application and editorial upon my doorstep. My vote has been yours for three years, but, like a sneak, I was always GOING TO JOIN. But now I MUST. Thanks.

At first glance it does not seem a very important matter to lay a piece of literature upon a man's doorstep, but in the present case it will be readily seen that it was really the one important thing. If "Jimmy Higgins" had not been on the job, the socialist party would have been minus a member, the distributor would have gone without the benediction, and this editorial, giving an opportunity to say something of the importance of joining the party, would not have been written.

And our new member is besides, a discerning person, knowing exactly where his blessing should be bestowed. Not upon the cartoonists or the editorial writers, but upon the man who put their products upon his doorstep.

For we have cartoonists and editorial writers to burn—and sometimes to be sure, we do roast them—but we haven't enough of the "Jimmy Higginses," and never can have enough of them. They are "it," and to them be all the praise, honor and glory, as it is rightly due them.

We pen and pencil pushers may write miles of editorials and cover acres of cardboard with our scribblings, but if the same are not distributed, it is as if all the writing and sketching had never been done. It is the man who puts them on the doorstep of the "ultimate consumer" that does the real work, the vital work of getting members to join the party, of enlisting recruits for the world-wide battle against capitalist robbery, and for human freedom.

This man voted for us for three years. He knew we were right. He knew, too, that we were fighting his battle, but he stayed in the rear. He feared to get into the front ranks and stand in the firing line, and he says so, which shows in turn that he knew he ought to be there, and for three years his manhood and his fears struggled with each other. He knew us, but we did not know him, did not know of his vote for Socialism or even of his existence. And we would never have known him or recognised him as a fighter in the common cause, had not an obscure but willing Comrade placed that piece of literature on his doorstep, the reading of which endowed him with the necessary backbone, screwed his courage up to the sticking point, shamed him of his fears, started him out of that hell of good intentions of "going to be," confronted him with the inexorable MUST, and brought him with one bound into the front rank to stand shoulder to shoulder with his Comrades, in the conflict for the emancipation of his class, and through them of the human race.

In the next year this man will do more for Socialism and for himself, ten times over, than he has in the three during which he was with us but feared to say so openly.

He may become a speaker and stir audiences to their depths with powerful presentations of Socialism.

Or he may become a writer and reach thousands with his pen rather than hundreds with his voice.

Or he may become an organizer, weighty and powerful in the councils of the party.

Or better and more important still, he may become a "Jimmy Higgins" and lay upon innumerable doorsteps of other men, perhaps like unto himself, the same kind of literature that brought him into the Socialist camp. And he could do more useful or honorable work in the party than that.

For today the man who increases the party membership by bringing the message of Socialism to those still outside is the man who is doing the most vital and important work for Socialism. Upon him and his unfailing, freely given energy, often unrecognized and unrequited, depends the writer, the speaker and the organizer, for the effectiveness of their work.

Who this particular comrade may be in this special case we do not know. But it is to him and such as he that the recognition must be paid. It is to him and such as he must be ascribed the fact that more than 300,000 copies of this one piece of literature has been circulated inside of twelve days. And in the next twelve, with the same persistence another 300,000 can be as readily distributed, and then some after that. This is the work that counts. The rest is secondary.

Go after them, "Jimmy Higgins!" Go into the highways and byways and compel them to come in. Put the message on their doorstops, where they MUST see it, and MUST come in as a consequence. They will bless you for it as this comrade does. And even if some curse you, the curse may turn to a blessing afterward, as it often has. We who write and draw the things you distribute, acknowledge that you are entitled to it, as freely as does the comrade who bestows it on one of your unknown members as in this case.

How to Join the Socialist Party.

All persons desiring to become members of the Socialist Party should fill out the following application for membership and hand same to the Socialist Party organization in their respective city or ward. If unable to locate same the applications should be mailed to the Local Secretary, D. R. Kissell, 124 East State Street, or J. C. Schaaf, State Secretary, 121½ East Town Street, Columbus, Ohio.

WHAT THE KNOWING POET HEARD PUSS SAY.

By John P. Lyons.

Before the blazing fire, on a downy Turkish rug,
Lay Pussy gently napping, quite as snug as any bug;
She looked supremely happy, and most musically purred,
Nor imagined for a moment she was being overheard;
But I happened to be present and caught every word she said,
And this is quite the train of thought that ran in Pussy's head:
"Oh, What a grand and glorious thing it is to be a cat!
Yes, every day I live, I grow more positive of that.

"For all the great, big busy world—as is quite right and meet!
Comes humbly every day to lay its tributes at my feet;
For down within the damp, dark earth the grimy miner goes,
That I on chilly nights may have a fire for my toes;
Brave sailors plow the wintry main, through peril and mishap,
That I, on Oriental rugs, may take my morning nap;
Out in the distant meadow meekly graze the lowing kine,
That milk, in endless saucerfuls, all foaming, may be mine;

"The fish that swim the ocean, and the birds that fill the air—
Did I not like their bones to pick, pray think you they'd be there?
But first, of all who wait on me, pre-eminent is man;
For me he toils through all the day, and through the night doth plan;
Especially the gentleman who keeps this house for me,
And takes such thoughtful, anxious care, that I should suited be.
He stocked his fine old attic with the finest breed of mice,—
A little hunting, now and then, comes in so very nice!

And furthermore, the thoughtful man, a wife has married him,
To tidy up the house for me, and keep it neat and trim;
And both of them with deference my slightest fancy treat;
And as I'm quite fastidious about the things I eat,
They never offer me a dish, to please my appetite,
Until they've tasted it themselves, to see if all is right;
And to entice my palate, when it's cloyed with other things,
All fattening in a gilded cage, a choice canary sings.

"But best of all, they're training up, with pains that can't be told,
Their children, just to wait on me, when they have grown too old.
Oh, truly I am monarchess of all that I survey;
No rules or laws I recognise, no bells or calls obey.
I eat and sleep, and sleep and eat, nor ever have I toiled;
No kind of base, degrading work my paws has ever soiled.
Oh, truly 'tis a gladsome thing to be a pussy-cat!
I'm truly glad, when I was born, I stopped to think of that."

—From St. Nicholas.

THE LAZY CHILD.

In many ways the world is growing less cruel. For this we must largely thank the scientific spirit, which is daily recognizing more and more of the affairs of life which belong to its department. It is coming into fashion not to kick the man who is down, and that leads naturally to helping him up. This new method is to be welcomed most of all, as it bears upon the destinies of little children.

The new scientific pedagogics no longer divides children summarily into good and bad, stupid and clever. On the contrary, it takes close cognisance of the wonderful relation between mind and body, stomach and brain, and learns thereby that persons, and above all children, are much more naturally divided into the sick or the well, the hungry or the fed, the weak or the strong.

Both in this country and in Europe investigations of this matter have been made with significant results. One fact proved by them is that there is no such thing as a "lazy" child. The normal child is interested, alert, bright-minded, full of waking curiosities about the world into which he has come, and endowed with an almost unquenchable physical vivacity. What, then, is the matter with the little, inert, stupid, dull-eyed creatures, forever at the bottom of the class, who never put a question, or seem to pass a given point?

The matter is that they are ill. Some of them are hungry, and it is as hopeless to expect a child to study well when he needs food as it would be to expect a fire that needs fuel to burn well. The hunger may be due to an actual lack of food, or it may be that the teeth are in such poor condition that the child cannot chew, and therefore does not digest. Or it may be that the food offered to it at home is entirely unsuited to its needs.

Some of the children cannot hear well and some cannot see. They do not complain, because they do not know what is the matter. They accept constant rebuke and defeat with the dumb mystification of ignorance. Many of them have never drawn one natural breath since their birth, owing to the presence of enlarged tonsils and adenoids.

These children can never compete with their fellows until all these hindrances have been removed. Some recent investigations made by a French physician show that among well-nourished children only nineteen per cent. have physical defects, while among poorly nourished over sixty per cent. suffer from these defects.

This question of feeding is being met in many cities both here and abroad by the supplying of a substantial luncheon, either free or at a nominal cost.—From Youth's Companion.

Poverty and Monopoly.

By Walter Thomas Mills.

It is agreed by everybody:

1. That the earth is large enough and rich enough in soil, climate, forest and mines so that no one needs to be poor for any fault of the earth.

2. That the great machines are good enough, and are so productive when in use that no one needs to be poor for any fault of the machines.

3. That there are workers, skillful enough, and willing enough to produce enough, so that no one needs to be poor for any lack of the power of labor to produce.

4. That, because of these facts, poverty is needless.

Why, then, poverty, and all the world of suffering, ignorance, vice, disease and death which are caused by poverty?

If anybody will think a little, he will readily discover that he already knows the cause of this needless poverty. To get the answer you do not need know more. You know enough now. The answer will come, not by learning what you do not know, but by thinking about what you do know already.

Here are some of the things everybody knows:

1. That millions of people who must occupy and use the earth, and in order to use the earth must use the great machines with which to use the earth, do not know either the earth or the machines with which to use the earth. You know that, don't you?

2. That the few who do own the earth and the machines with which to use the earth, will not let the rest of us use the earth or the machines unless they fix the terms on which we use them, and when they fix the terms, the terms are such that the many are doomed to poverty and the few are made rich, idle and useless.

If you do not see that, you know this is true; don't try to talk about it. There will be no use in reading about it. You will soon see that you have always known it. Whatever your wages, your salary, or your income may be, if you earn it, after you have paid the Land Trust, the Sugar Trust, and the other week's expenses, you are then without means, pending the next pay day.

Most of the wealth created by your labor, your wages could not buy at all. You get so little when you sell your labor, or the direct products of your labor, in a market where the sellers are many and the buyers few, and you pay so much when you buy your food and shelter in a market where the buyers are many and the sellers a private monopoly, fixing the prices for all other sellers, and for all buyers you along with the rest, that you are always poor. What the workers produce and can buy back with their wages keep them alive, but it keeps them poor. What the workers produce more than their wages will buy, the owners of the private monopolies get. That is what makes the useful people poor, and the useless people rich. Don't you know that this is true?

Why, then, does this needless poverty exist? It is because of land monopoly, mining monopoly, manufacturing monopoly, market monopoly. It is because the few privately own what all must together use; that is, the earth, and the machinery with which to use the earth. That is what is called capitalism.

What is the remedy?

It is very simple. Make every privately owned monopoly a publicly owned monopoly instead. Then all those things which all the people use together, all the people, acting through their government, will own together. Then, because there could be no one privately profit at the loss of others, the wages, the salaries, incomes must rise and the cost of living must fall until the useful people, who produce all the wealth, will be able to buy, and enjoy the use of all the wealth, they themselves produce. That would make an end of poverty to all useful people, and it would make an end of private fortunes in the hands of those who never earned them.

This is what is called Socialism. Where do you stand—for the continuance of capitalism, with all its wrong or for the beginning of Socialism, with its universal, well earned wealth for all mankind.

The Unorganized Worker.

The Socialist Movement is Big Enough For All the Toilers.

A workingman, who is not a member of a labor union, wants to know if the Socialist party stands for the unorganised worker as well as for the organised workingman.

We answer MOST EMPHATICALLY, YES.

The labor union is one of the weapons with which the working class, or large portions of it, fight their employers for larger shares of the value of the products of their toil.

The Socialist party is a weapon with which the workers can fight their exploitaers FOR THE POSSESSION OF THE ENTIRE MACHINERY OF PRODUCTION.

We advise the workers to use all the weapons they can get. Experience has proved that these two weapons, the economic and the political movement, are the best.

Every workingman is in a position to join a labor union and combine his labor-selling power with that of others in order to get better terms from his employers, we say that he ought to do it. If he cannot do so, or if he is not yet educated to the necessity of such action, we do not cast him into outer darkness.

We do not cast him into outer darkness if he fails to vote the Socialist ticket, the ticket of his own class, but wait patiently for his further education.

Of course we are opposed to traitors of the working class wherever found. Spies and strike breakers receive nothing but the severest condemnation from Socialists.

The Socialist party, by legislation for the benefit of all workingmen, will help both the organized and unorganized workers.

The spread of Socialist philosophy among the members of labor unions will make those organizations stronger as a result of a clearer insight into the nature of the struggle before them. It will make the union members see that to insure permanent success they must make greater efforts to take in all of the working class into their economic organizations, and, meanwhile, spread the benefits of their victories to as many as possible.

On the other hand, the Socialist party, teaching the existence of the class struggle, the unity of interest of the whole workingclass, will do more than anything else to bring into the unions the greatest possible number of workers as rapidly as possible.

The unorganised worker has no hope of improvement of his conditions, except through political action by a Socialist movement. The organised workingman has little guarantee of keeping the benefits he has gained by economic organisation, except as the Socialist party gains political power to assist him in his battles.

The Socialist party stands for ALL the workers. Let them all join its ranks under the motto, "Workingmen of the world, unite."—Chicago Daily Socialist.

The United States Constitution.

By John M. Work.

The Constitution of the United States was written in 1787.

At that time not a single one of the great labor-saving and comfort producing devices of modern times had been invented. Not a mile of railroad track had been laid on the face of the earth. Not a rod of telegraph or telephone wire had been stretched. The marvels of steam and the miracles of electricity had not been dreamed of. The postal system was undeveloped. It took weeks to get a letter from a distance of a few hundred miles. Newspapers and magazines were few and far between. There were no libraries, no public schools. There were but a few stage lines. The tools with which the farmers and the mechanics worked were primitive—almost barbaric. Household conveniences were rare and rude. Not so much as a friction match had been devised. When the fire went out, it was necessary either to strike a new one from a piece of flint or go to a neighbor's house and borrow a supply of coals. Manufacturing, commerce and retail business were carried on on a tiny scale by individual proprietors. Chattel slavery existed in the South and the indenture of bonded servants in the North. But most of the people worked "on their own hook," as the saying goes. The newness of the country and the primitiveness of the tools made it practicable to put into operation the theory of "every fellow for himself." Modern division of labor and complication of ndustry were unheardof. The people were largely independent of each other.

The constitution was framed by the well-to-da class. And it was framed to fit their own interests under the social conditions described above.

Manifestly, a Constitution framed to fit such conditions could not be thoroughly adapted to fit the conditions of the present day.

For, since those days, gigantic changes have taken place. The simple agricultural tools have been followed by the marvelous machinery now in use. Individual production in trades and manufactures, with primitive tools, has been followed by the factory system—modern industry—with its infinite division of labor and its prodigies of labor-saving machinery—so entirely wonderful in character and variety as to beggar description. The stage coach has been followed by the railroad train—a change which it is easy to recite, but which is so stupendous that it requires a mental effort to realise it. The almost total lack of communication has been followed by the telegraph, the telephone and the postal system. The tallow dip has been followed by the gas jet and the electric light. Newspapers, magazines, books and schools exist in numberless quantity and variety—though most of them are available to only a few. The triumphs of chemistry, mathematics, astronomy, geology, zoology, the fine arts, the liberal arts, the industrial arts, etc., etc., have opened up fields of study, investigation and research which afford the keenest pleasure to the human intellect that has the opportunity to grapple with them. The industries have developed into great trusts and combines employing myriads of men and women carrying on business on a huge scale. The great masses of the people no longer work "on their hook." They are no longer independent of each other.

They are interdependent upon each other. It is no longer practicable to apply the theory of "every fellow for himself." We are now capable of giving every boy and girl a liberal education—but we do not do it. Steam, electricity, the wonderfully improved agricultural machinery, and the perfect forest of labor-saving machinrey used in the mills, mines, factories and other industres have made us capable of producing, in a fraction of our waking hours, enough to provide every human being with all necessaries and comforts of life, including the leisure and the means for physical, mental, moral and spiritual development. We do not do it. But we must do it. In order to do it, we will have to introduce Socialism.

These, in brief, are the reasons why we have outgrown a good deal of the United States Constitution.

But do not worry.

This obstacle is not half of formidable as it looks.

Among others there is one splendid clause in the Constitution which we have not outgrown. It is the one which gives Congress the power to do anything that is for the general welfare. Under that clause we can introduce Socialism without a constitutional amendment.

Again, the Supreme Court has no legal power to declare a law unconstitutional. Certain isolated statements on the part of a few colonial politicians, and an overweening keenness to prove that the Constitution is a class document—which can easily be proved without resorting to exaggeration—have led some Socialists to believe that the courts have such power. But it is not so. Therefore, if the judges nullify the laws passed by a Socialist administration we will just ignore them and go on about our business of introducing Socialism.

And yet again—if we want to amend certain provisions in the Constitution, for example, to introduce equal suffrage or to abolish the Senate—we can do it by majority vote. Any provision which is opposed to majority rule is null and void and should be so treated.

So I say, you need not worry—for this constitutional obstacle is not half as formidable as it looks.

For a further discussion on this subject I will refer you to the chapter entitled, "The Constitution," in my book, "What's So and What Isn't."

THE SOCIALISTS' CITY PLATFORM.

We, the Socialist Party of the City of Columbus, Ohio, assembled in mass convention, reaffirm our allegiance to the principles of International Socialism as embodied in our National and State Platform.

The first consideration in all municipal affairs should be the interest of the working class. The Socialist Party is organized not only to elect good and efficient men to office but to control the powers of political government in order to guarantee to the workers the possession and operation of the means of production and distribution and the full social product of their labor.

As measures calculated to strengthen the working class in its fight for the realization of its ultimate aim, and to increase its powers of resistance against private capitalism, we advocate and pledge ourselves and our elected officers to the following program:

FIRST: For the more perfect application of the Initiative and Referendum in all municipal affairs.

SECOND: For the Recall of all elective officials.

THIRD: For the public ownership of all public utilities and the abolition of the contract system and all convict labor when in competition with free labor.

FOURTH: For the elimination of unneccessary officials, a reduction of all salaries that excessive and a minimum wage of $3.00 per day in all public works.

FIFTH: For the Eight Hour Day for all labor on public improvements and in all municipal departments, and a uniform pension system to apply to all city employees.

SIXTH: For the City to furnish work to the unemployed to the fullest extent possible under present conditions.

SEVENTH: For the rigid inspection of all stores, factories, workshops and places of public assemblage and the strict enforcement of all laws to protect the lives of the workers.

EIGHTH: Human life and health being more sacred than property, should be the first consideration in the enforcement of the sanitary laws.

NINTH: For public parks and playgrounds within easy reach of the workers, and public comfort stations as well as public drinking fountains, wherever essential to the health and comfort of the workers.

TENTH: For the City to provide municipal hospitals free from every taint of Charity.

ELEVENTH: For free text books in all grades of our public schools and the use of one room in each school house for public assemblage.

TWELFTH: For the free administration of justice and the election of a public "Defender" as well as a public "Prosecutor" as at present.

THIRTEENTH: We pledge ourselves to secure from the State, such authority as will give the municipality the right to establish, own and operate all industries that pertain to the city's activity.

General Otis Is To Be Blamed.

Negligence on the Part of the Times Company in Construction of Building Causes Loss of Life.

Washington.—"Truth crushed to earth will rise again. The eternal years of God are hers." Truth cannot be crushed even by General Otis and suits that will be brought against the arch enemy of organised labor prove conclusively that relatives of the victims who perished in the explosion in the Los Angeles Times on October 1, 1910, believe that their loved ones were hurled into eternity through the negligence of Otis.

Three petitions have been filed on behalf of two widows and one father whose husbands and son lost their lives in the times building. The petition asks that Mrs. A. Mattie Wasson, widow of Walter E. Wasson, and Mary Crane, Widow of Henry L. Crane, be appointed administratrix of the estates of their deceased husbands, and L. Joseph Courdway be appointed administrator of the estate of his son, Howard Courdway. The petition sets out that this is desired in order that damage suits may be brought against the Times and officers of the corporation.

The suits will allege negligence on the part of the Times Company, particularly in regard to the construction of the building.

Voters Forced to Register Under Bertillon System.

Thousands of voters in Columbus are mad—they have a right to be angry. Under instructions issued by a Capitalistic board of elections and construed by numb-skull registrars, citizens were forced to give last Thursday, a minute personal description even down to scars and birth-marks, color of eyes, hair, occupation and name of employers. It did not please these free-born citizens any to read in Friday's papers that the whole thing was a blunder, and that this rig-a-marole was only necessary where a citizen's right to register was challenged.

The Masters have gone just one step too far in trying to humiliate the working class.

Register next Thursday, if you have not yet done so, comply with the rules and SMASH THE SYSTEM by voting a straight Socialist ticket on Election Day.

Prison Contracts Are Condemned.

Governor of Arksansas Says: "None But State Should Get Profit From Convict Labor."

Washington.—That there is something wrong with the present system of convict labor is apparent, when prominent men like Governor W. Donaghey of Arkansas has this to say:

"The management of the Arkansas penitentiary has been a perplexing problem to the people of the state for many years. The penitentiary is designedly a place for the punishment of criminals, and should not be made a football for politicians to toss here and there, nor a means of personal profit to individuals, corporations or contractors. Every phase of monetary profit coming from convict labor to anyone except the state should be eliminated. This can never be done under any form of leasing convicts to contractirs. Under the best system of management for penal institutions, the men directly in charge of convicts become negligent of the proper protection of convicts against bad treatment. But when a convict is hired out and with the thought uppermost in the mind of the guard or warden that the convict is in the penitentiary to be punished, it is not difficult for a contractor, having nothing at stake but the money he is to make in the transaction, to influence the protectors of the State's interests to become more neglectful of the welfare of the helpless criminals in their charge. As an instance of adverse conditions under the lease system, I will make the prediction that an investigation of the facts would show that the deaths of a large majority of the convicts for the past two years have occurred in cases where they were, or had been, hired out to contractors. I will also venture the statement that escapes are made from the same camps in about the same ratio as these deaths occur. Any form of the lease system also promotes disorganization of the State's interests and discontent in the minds of the convicts. When the State works her own convicts directly on her own work and on her own premises, there is no incentive to overwork, underfeed or badly clothe the prisoners. I was told by the warden on the State's farm that during the past year, on a certain occasion, he sent eighteen convicts two miles away from headquarters without a guardd, to clear some land. That they went to and from work daily without giving the least trouble. Then, as a matter of actual experience, we find the expense of maintenance to be materially less when working the convicts directly for the state. On our convict farm if there had been a free guard employed in the past two years it was a useless expense. During my several visits there, I have never seen one, and the statement of the warden to me was that there were no free guards on the farm. All were convicts and those I noticed were mostly cripples or otherwise disabled so they could not have made full hands at other kinds of labor. But when convicts are hired out to contractors, it not only takes free guards, but also more of them to a given number of men than it would require on the farm.

From City of "Good" and "Bad" Angels.

Washington.—General Harrison Gray Otis, the union hater, who has tried to fasten the crime of blowing up the Times building on organised labor, will now have to strive to keep the crime from being fastened on himself. Relatives of some of the workmen who lost their lives in the explosion have awakened to the realisation of the fact that the general and not the union is responsible for the death of their loved ones. The following dispatch from Los Angeles appeared in the Washington Star: "Suit for $50,000 damages has been brought against the Los Angeles Times by the widow and mother of A. Churchill Harvey Elder, who died as a result of the disaster at the plant of that newspaper, October 1, 1910.

"The suit was directed against Harrison Gray Otis, president and general manager of the Times; Harry Chandleer, treasurer and assistant manager, and Harry E. Andrews, managing editor.

"The plaintiffs allege that the explosion in the Times Building was caused by gas. They charge the defendants with having negligently permitted the establishment to become filled with gas and with having failed to provide proper means of escape from the building in accordance with city ordinances.

"Elder was assistant city editor of the Times, when the explosion occurred. He jumped from the third story window and was so severely injured that he died."

Well Deserved Victory.

Washington, Sept. 30.—In Los Angeles, the "Open Shop City," the abiding place of General Otis and the stronghold of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association organised labor has scored a decided and well deserved victory. Eight years ago the firm of Charles Levy and Sons, spurred by the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, locked out its union tailors. During the eight years the union men have never ceased in their efforts to unionize this shop, and they have had to fight General Otis and the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association every hour of the day, every day of the week, every week of the month, and every month of the year. They are the victors. General Otis and the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association have been routed, and this firm, one of the largets and most substantial business houses in the city, has deserted the camp of the enemy and signed an agreement with the Journeymen Tailors' Union.

The business men of Los Angeles are awakening to a realization of the fact that it is bad business policy to associate with labor crushers whose chief aim is to compel workmen to labor for starvation wages. Well paid workmen have money to spend and the merchants get it. Poorly paid workmen have little to spend, their employers spend it, mostly outside of the city and the merchants do not get it. The organized labor movement in Los Angeles is going up. The Merchants and Manufacturers' Association is going down.

What Strange Bedfellows?

There is an old adage which says, "Politics make strange bedfellows." This was most strikingly illustrated at a recent meeting of the Buckeye Republican Club. The occasion was a "love feast" gathering of the successful and defeated candidates for nominations on the Republican ticket. George Sidney Marshall spoke first, and looking straight into the eyes of Lloyd W. Buckmaster, candidate for councilman at large, said, "I am for the entire Republican ticket." When it came Buckmaster's turn to talk, he, looking lovingly into the eyes of George Sidney Marshall, said, "I am for the entire Republican ticket." 'Twas a sight to make angels weep. Only a little more than a year ago Buckmaster, in a published statement, declared that Marshall was insane, or words to that effect. Marshall's followers fought Buckmaster at the primaries, but Buck won. Now they are together, both backed by the Chamber of Commerce and the Republican organization, which means the Rail-Light.

That Eby Canard.

Mr. Someone is holding the bag. We don't know who paid for the story about Eby, but they received a gold brick. Let the "beelers" stay away from the labor movement. When union men want to find out the character of a man they will go to the unions and not to political headquarters. A. C. Eby is too clean for some people. There are hundreds in this city who are not Socialists. They are willing to come forward at the proper time and prove that Mr. Eby was not in the city at the time of the Jeffrey strike. Besides the draughtsmen at the Jeffrey Company never went out on strike.

Socialist Ticket of Defiance, O.

The Socialists of Defiance have placed the following municipal ticket in nomination:

For mayor, Thomas J. Eller; president of council, Isaac Savage; auditor, Milo Miller; treasurer, J. W. Stewart; council at large, Peter Zens, Edward Palm, C. E. Weisenburger; council, First Ward, E. R. Towle; Second Ward, A. G. Allis; Third Ward, no candidate; Fourth Ward, Edw. Goldfuss; assessors, First Ward, Harry J. Myers; Second Ward, Andrew Tennyson; Fourth Ward, G. Richardson; board of education, Dr. G. W. Huffman, E. D. Williams and Theo. Keffer.

The Circulation of Currency.

Each citizen of the United States, under an equal division, would have $34.35, the per capital circulation on October 2, according to the circulation statement of the treasury department. The total money in circulation amounts to $3,243,182,715. On October 1, 1910, the money in circulation totaled $3,164,627,681.—News Item.

The newspaper paragraphers will now write alleged jokes about "Who's got our $34." People who don't understand the first principles of Socialism will point with glee to the small amount due each person under a "divide up" plan.

These folks will not listen when we try to explain that it is not an equal share of the currency that we Socialists are after, but the common ownership of the means of production and distribution and an equal chance to use them.

The Fifth Ward.

The Fifth Ward Branch met in the hall corner Main street and Miller avenue last Monday evening and made arrangements to meet there in the future.

Immense Karb Meeting.

On Thursday night last week George J. Karb addressed an audience of SEVEN people at Munich hall on South High street. Great enthusiasm prevailed.

Our Candidates.

The nominees of the Socialist party for the city and county offices are not running on a platform of personal pulchritude, but The Socialist, in this issue, presents portraits of almost the entire ticket. The editor of The Socialist desires to say that the men and women whose faces are reproduced on pages two, three and six, are a mighty good looking set of folks. We have no apology to offer for devoting so much space to these portraits. Our candidates stand squarely upon the Socialist platform. They belong to the Socialist party and when elected—as they surely will be—will not be controlled by Mal Karshner, Jimmy Ross or the Chamber of Commerce, but by the Socialist party.

VOTE FOR YOUR OWN CLASS.

The Registration Days.

If you have not already registered, YOU MUST DO SO NEXT FRIDAY AND SATURDAY. If you wish to smash the Capitalistic System, do not neglect to register.

Comrades and Friends.

All those who are interested in the Socialist Dramatic Club are cordially invited to attend our meetings 7:30 p. m., every Sunday evening, at 235½ South High Street. The purpose of the organization is to furnish entertainments to all branches of the Socialist party. The young people whose parents are members of the Socialist party are urged to come into this club, which is both for the pur- [illegible] Come and spend an evening with us and you will stay with us.

Bohemians Line Up.

Bridgeport, O., Oct. 2, 1911.

Dear Comrades—Your letter of August 30th received and acted on, and the result is that Local West Bridgeport orders "The Socialist" for six months, for which you will find enclosed money order for 50 cents. I must tell you that this is a Bohemian local and that we have but two or three members that can read English, but they would like to see the paper first because they did not see "The Socialist" as yet. This is all for this time, but we hope that we will be able to do better the next time.

Wishing you the greatest success possible, with comradly feeling, from Bohemian Local, West Bridgeport, I am yours for the revolution.

HENRY KASIK, Sec'y.

Amusement Notice.

The George S. Marshall Continuous Vaudeville Tent Show played before 600 people at Schiller Park last Tuesday night. "Them darned Socialists" had 6000 people at the same place last Sunday. There is a difference.

Ohio Socialist News.

Local Portsmouth claims to have broken all records in this state by initiating 64 new converts in one day. That surely is going some.

Socialists of Norwalk have organized, stacked up a ticket and advertise their platform in the Evening Herald to the extent of nearly a column.

Lorain Socialists put this ticket in the field: Mayor, Thomas Pape; auditor, Fred Jacobs; treasurer, Orin Ech; president of Council, Fred Meyer; councilmen-at-large, David Hundt, Albert Nore, E. W. Plumley and Frank Warner; ward councilmen, P. I. McGurty, Harry Meyers, Frank Keszmnoski, John Harrard and Charles Strang; school board, H. Wirsh, F. W. Goll and Anna stork; constables, George Plumley and Harry Scheibar; Justice of the Peace, Michael Heins, David H. Cook and Howard Rumsey.

Splendid Meetings Held by Socialists.

Political Plutes Are Paralyzed by Progress of Proletarians.

Saturday Evening and Sunday Witness Immense Gatherings.

An enthusiastic audience thronged the Chamber of Commerce auditorium last Saturday evening to greet the speakers who presented the Socialist cause for consideration. Fifteen hundred people paid ten cents admission and then, after Comrade W. J. Millard's address, contributed $42.55 to the campaign fund of the party. That sort of thing cannot be understood by the old party leaders. We do not wish that they can understand it. Comrade C. E. Belcher was chairman of the meeting. The Socialist Glee Club Forward sang some stirring songs of the Revolution and the Socialist Band made the welkin ring with its strains. It was a typical gathering of the masses, but only one of the many being held.

Comrade Walter Millard of Cincinnati, one of the national organizers of the Socialist party, explained how a Socialist administration would eradicate graft.

"As long as the one-man power exists, graft also will exist," he said. "It is not to the interest of the business men who control our politics to do away with graft, because they want to get it. Under Socialism graft would be impossible."

Comrade Millard's speech made a profound impression.

In the course of his address, Comrade Frank Bohn said:

"I want to ask Mayor Marshall, who, I hear, is here, if he stands for the system that is robbing the people of the results of their labor."

The mayor made no reply.

Mr. Bohn reviewed the Ohio legislative graft and concluded by saying that there was more graft in the shops where working people were employed than in the halls of government; that the money, rightfully the possession of those who produced it, was stolen from them by their employers.

A. C. Eby, Socialist candidate for mayor, outlined his stand on the light plant extension ordinance, saying that he stood for the extension and a uniform rate to all consumers.

SUNDAY'S DEMONSTRATION.

The greeting given the 250 men who came from Cleveland Sunday was like the welcome accorded veterans returning from a campaign of battles. Nearly three hundred former employes of the Columbus Rail-Light, who are now on the street car lines of Cleveland, arrived at Union Station at 10:40 A. M. They formed in line and marched out to High street carrying the banner of the old local street car men's union and the BLOOD RED FLAG OF UNIVERSAL BROTHERHOOD. They found awaiting them the Socialist Band of 40 members and 2,000 workingmen and women, principally Socialists. The march north to Goodale and south to the South End street car barn was a triumphal progress. The crowds along the way, as familiar faces appeared among the visitors, broke into cheers and the Cleveland Exiles replied with shouts. The Cleveland delegation was in charge of Brothers J. A. Lehman, E. F. Heston, John Evans, James Orr and Parker. At the court house the visitors had their picture taken enmasse with their flags and banners to show they were still free men.

AT SCHILLER PARK.

In the afternoon at Schiller park, six thousand people assembled to show their allegiance to the cause of the working class. Comrade D. J. Farrell of the Pressmen's union, presided, the Socialist Glee Club Forward sang and the Socialist Band blew its best.

Comrade J. M. Suddick, of the Carpenters' Union, who walked last year and is still walking, delivered the address of welcome, which was responded to by Comrade H. F. Heston, of Cleveland.

Comrade W. J. Millard, "Our Walter," who was here last year through the storm and stress of the strike, gave an address which, for force, cutting satire and unanswerable argument, has seldom been equalled. Then he called for a collection and that crowd poured $25.11 into the treasury of the Socialist campaign fund.

Comrade A. C. Eby, candidate for mayor, responded to calls to speak and briefly stated the Socialist local program.

Comrade John M. Collins with his Irish wit and sense showed the clear lines of the class struggle as apart from all religious issues.

Frank Bohn, of the International Socialist Review, scholarly, eloquently and radically set forth the growing strength of industrial unionism.

NEWS FROM NELSONVILLE.

Last evening Comrade D. J. Farrell spoke to a good large audience here on the public square.

There is a very perceivable growing interest in Socialism. People who never took any interest before are asking for books. People of all denominations who in the past have clung to their dogmas for relief are looking Socialistward as the only hope. The new faces in Comrade Farrell's audience last night gave strong evidence of the great awakening.

Comrade Farrell is an earnest, logical speaker and his points sank deep into the think-tanks of some of the hardest headed men in Nelsonville. This is a mining town. The workers are organized against capital but they they have never voted against it, and they are beginning to see the cat.

Under the influence of Comrade Farrell's eloquence, the listeners could see the garbage pile of capitalism. Upon it they could see the ruins of their best hopes—of their lives—of the lives of those gone before and of those to come. But above this garbage heap they could see the tree of Socialism unfolding its green leaves, they could inhale the fragrance of its flowers, and they began to long for the ripened fruits because they were made to see that it will be the fruit of the tree of Life—of the tree of knowledge. They realize that God is Love and that the power of Love is the power of God.

Nelsonville, O., Oct. 11.

Conspiracy of Silence.

The daily papers of Columbus seem to be in a "conspiracy of silence" or what is the same thing, in regard to the Socialist movement in Columbus. The splendid gathering at the Chamber of Commerce last Saturday evening, the great parade of Sunday morning with 2,000 men in line and the magnificent outpouring of people at Schiller Park in the afternoon where 6,000 eager listeners applauded every utterance of our speakers, were all passed up by the daily press of Columbus with but scant mention. Not a single daily in Columbus seems to be able to estimate properly the force of the Socialist movement. It may be that the business interests have threatened the "recall" on advertising.

New Socialist in Town.

A new Socialist arrived in town last Monday and is being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Southard on Fifteenth avenue. He follows Tom's practice and doesn't wear a hat yet.

Latest Tip from the School of Political Infamy.

We are given to understand that the schools of political corruption are planning various devices to be worked on election day. The latest scheme works as follows. The political tool is given a marked ballot by the workers on the outside of the voting booth. He then enters the booth, folds up the marked ballot and places the ballot which he received from the judge of elections in his pocket. The marked ballot is voted and the other one is returned to the vote-buyer by the vote-seller.

The Local Referendum.

The referendum taken by Local Columbus on the lecture course proposition, resulted as follows: For National Committee course, 34; against, 121. For local course 123; against 17.

The Fifteenth Ward Quartette.

The Thirteenth Ward will soon have a quartette organized to furnish melody. Comrades C. E. Warren and N. C. Gallentine are pushing the enterprise.

TO THE WOMEN OF COLUMBUS.

The women of Columbus are not permitted to vote on questions of taxation. They may, however, vote for members of the Board of Education as the state has recognized the need of woman's influence in questions affecting the welfare of children. A large part of the physical, mental and moral training of children is received in school. Every woman in the city should, therefore, consider it her duty to take an active and intimate interest in the selection of members of the Board which governs and controls the schools.

The Socialist party has two woman candidates for members-at-large of the Board of Education:

Miss Ella June Purcell, Attorney, and
Mrs. Georgie Crooks.

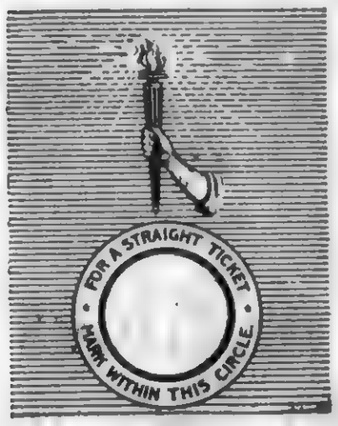
If elected to the Board of Education of the City of Columbus, these candidates, as women and Socialists, will work for the following propositions:

1. FREE KINDERGARTENS. The mothers of Columbus have long felt the need of free kindergartens. With economy and management this city can afford them.

2. FREE USE OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS FOR PUBLIC MEETINGS. The school buildings are public property; they are built for the advancement of public education; they are erected with public money. Why not permit any respectable organization whose aim is the upliftment and education of humanity the free use of school buildings for public meetings?

3. FREE TEXT BOOKS IN ALL GRADES. Books are now furnished free to pupils through the sixth grade. They should be furnished through the high school. They should be kept in a sanitary condition, by frequent cleaning and fumigatinn. Free books are a logical part of a free school system. Is not the tax rate of this city high enough to allow an appropriation to provide them?

4. FREE MEDICAL INSPECTION AND OTHER PROGRESSIVE MEASURES.



To be entitled to vote for members of the Board of Education at the election November 7, 1911, ALL VOTERS MUST REGISTER.

"Morgan so well pleased he pays twenty dollars for a shave." He has shaved some people pretty close himself and he recognizes an artist when he sees one.

Every man has a right to live and he often defends that right even at the cost of his life. The right to work should be as free as life itself. Under present conditions 80 per cent. or more of the people have to ask permission of another for the right to work to secure the means whereby life may be prolonged. The denial of the right to work means a denial of the right to live without the consent of another. If that is not so, why do so many suffer hunger and some starve to death because there is no work for them in privately owned industries?

"Ill fares the land, to hast'ning ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay;
Princes and lords may flourish, or may fade—
A breath can make them, as a breath has made;
But a bold peasantry, their country's pride,
When once destroyed, can never be supplied."
—Goldsmith.

Who Are the Conspirators?

John J. McNamara and his brother John B. McNamara are members of the Structural Iron Workers' Union. John J. has been honored recently by his fellow union workers by being re-elected National Secretary-Treasurer. This position demands all the time and energy possible of the incumbent of the office until his term of office expires, because the men who fill the offices of local secretaries are not recruited from business colleges, banks or state universities. They are workers who do the best they know how and leave the man at the other end of the line to decipher their hieroglyphics. The man at the other end of the line is John J. McNamara, and the proof of his ability as a business man is proven by the confidence that his fellow workers have in his honorable service.

At the present time John J. McNamara is not in his office at Indianapolis, because a military tyrant by the name of Grey Wolf Otis demands that some one be prosecuted because of a gas explosion that wrecked the Los Angeles Times building which was owned by Grey Wolf Otis of whom Governor Sherman Johnson of California once said:

"In the city from which I have come we have drunk to the very dregs the cup of infamy; we have had vile officials; we have had rotten newspapers; we have had men who sold their birthright; we have dipped into every infamy; every form of wickedness has been ours in the past; every debased passion and every sin has flourished. But we have nothing so vile, nothing so low, nothing so debased, nothing so infamous in San Francisco, nor did we ever have, as Harrison Gray Otis.

"He sits there in senile dementia, with gangrened heart and rotting brain, grimacing at every reform, chattering impotently at all things that are decent, frothing, fuming, violently gibbering, going down to his grave in snarling infamy. This man Otis is the one blot on the banner of Southern California; he is the bar sinister upon your escutcheon. My friends, he is the one thing that all California looks at when, in looking at Southern California, they see anything that is disgraceful, depraved, corrupt, crooked and putrescent—that is Harrison Gray Otis."

Iron workers do not work in newspaper offices. They build lofty skyscrapers. Then why should these two men be kidnapped from their home state to a foreign state to be tried before a foreign judge on a charge that is as foreign as honest upright principles are to Harrison Grey Otis?

It is reported that huge sums of money have been collected to prosecute these men and some of the "Grey Wolves" have shown their fangs, and whine about "sending to the gallows these martyrs to the cause of industrial freedom." Some of these wolves wear the raiment and badge of the American Bankers' Association. This organization was in convention at Los Angeles, California, at the time of the Times Building gas explosion.

The Bankers have always been the first to denounce the efforts of organized labor and we quote from the Chicago Chronicle, 1904, from a speech delivered by one of the members of the Bankers' Association: "There will be no effectual suppression of labor union murders until the responsible men in the organizations are proceeded against as any other criminals would be." These are the bitter words of convict and banker, John R. Walsh, late of Chicago. At the present time this polished crook is a prisoner at Leavenworth penitentiary with seventeen other bankers.

Who are the conspirators? Why should the moneyed interests be allowed to poison the minds of the people through magazines and subsidized papers, owned by a gang of commercial lawbreakers who go the limit in denouncing honest men, and when their bubble bursts, what about the victims who carried them on their backs? What about the widows and orphans ruined by Convict John R. Walsh, the man who helped to breed prejudice against the labor unions?

Labor demands that these two men shall have a fair trial.

Let Harrison Grey Otis remember that the day has passed when courts can mold their verdict by the strength of the venom of their persecutors. England has had her Guy Fawkes fiasco. This farce was planned to incite religious hatred with the masses. Then came the London Times with its Piggott Confession. Piggott claimed that James Stewart Parnell was responsible for the assassination of Cavendish and Burke in Phoenix Park, Dublin. Piggott afterwards confessed he was paid $25,000 dollars by unknown parties to make the false confession and then he blew his brains out, at least the papers accused him of doing so. Anyhow he was found dead.

And now in this Free Republic, we have the acts of monarchies imposed upon the working class. Stewart Parnell was demanding Home Rule for Ireland. Organized labor asks real home rule instead of the rule of hunger. Ask yourself the question, Who are the conspirators?

To Comrades and Working People:

Look over the advertising in your paper. Patronize those who patronize you. Remember those who refuse to advertise in a labor paper are unfair to labor and are not worthy of your patronage.

Peaches Are Plentiful.

Two Ohio counties, Ottawa and Sandusky, with bumper peach crops, are in the market to rival the state of Kansas in its cry for laborers. According to W. C. Gear of the state dairy and food commission, who recently returned from a trip through the northern part of the state, orchard owners have been forced to see thousands of bushels of peaches go to waste because of their inability to secure help to harvest the crop. "Peaches," said Mr. Gear yesterday, "differ from grapes, for instance, in that they demand extreme care in their handling. They not only must be picked but sorted into at least four classes. This takes more help."

Mr. Gear said peaches of fair quality could be secured for nothing. All that was necessary to obtain them for several days has been a willingness to get them out of the road of orchard owners.—Ohio State Journal.

This is the old story of the dearth of laborers at critical periods in the agricultural regions, that goes the rounds every year. Just what the "help" would do, as soon as the crops were gathered, has been shown, recently in the west where certain sections were terrorized by men released from labor in the fields and who had no particular place to go to.

Yes, this is a beautiful system where fruit rots unpicked and people in the towns and cities pay high prices or go without nature's bounteous products. The railway trust, the commission trust, and the retail trust, stand between the overflowing orchards and the multitudes who suffer for food.

Harriman Railroad System Strike.

The railroad managers have declared that they will have no trouble in securing help because there are so many workers unemployed. This statement will prevent the politicians talking about an era of good times and it will find the workers "standing pat" for Socialism. This is only the beginning of the industrial strike in the United States. President Gompers recently informed the press that there was an epidemic of social unrest prevalent all over the country. This declaration, coming from the lips of one of the most conservative labor leaders in the world has caused the Master Class to become alarmed. For many years the railroads have depended upon the leaders to preserve industrial peace. But when hungry wolves came to the door of the workers' homes they found that their individual organization had allowed them to be torn to pieces. The smouldering embers of the American Railroad Union strike has become a burning beacon of industrial liberty and those who see its light will follow the paths that its flames illuminate. The men of the West made the western country prosperous and the machine guns are not made powerful enough to drive them from their homesteads. These men are not cooped up in cities, they are where the soil will nourish and satisfy the wants of nature. The Railroad Federation members are putting into action the maxim, "UNITED WE STAND, DIVIDED WE FALL." IT MEANS VICTORY.

"Going Up."

At the end of last month there were more than 100,000 members of the Socialist party, and the number increases every day, according to the latest report issued by the National Secretary.

For a political party but ten years old and which costs every member in good standing 25 cents per month, the announcement, to say the least, may be "reported as progress."

There is yet a considerable addition to be made to the number. Germany, with some 25,000,000 less population than this country, shows a Socialist party membership of some 850,000, a number which is also steadily growing.

In the latter country the proportion of the national vote to the party membership is about four to one. With us it is about ten to one, which, by the bye, presages a vote of considerably more than a million in the national campaign next year.

It may, of course, be possible to overestimate the value of a movement, by merely considering the number of its membership, but when all allowances are made, it is a fair criterion of progress. The quality of this membership is, of course, not all that could be desired, but it is all that could be reasonably expected.

An idea which is a legacy from the past still remains current, that membership in the Socialist party presupposes that the applicant is thoroughly grounded in the fundamentals of Socialism. Which, though a thing to be desired, is not so, and cannot be so.

The Socialist party is not a reservoir in which the finished Socialist product is received. Membership therein is part of the process of education, an education that is never finished.

Its function is an educating and qualifying factor, though not so widely recognized as its uses for purposes of propaganda, is no less real and no less important.

In the last ten years it is quite probably that at least an additional 50,000 people have joined the party, who have dropped out for various reasons after a longer or shorter stay. Any comrade who has been recording secretary of a branch of any size for a few years can verify this by looking over his membership lists.

These temporary members, however, are not wholly lost to the movement. In all probability seven-eighths of them still vote for Socialism. Their six months, or year, or two years as party members has left upon them an impression sufficiently deep to hold them to Socialism ever after. They do not come out as they went in by any means.

In this sense party membership can be regarded as a sort of sieve into which a stream of people is continuously pouring. Some pass through, other are retained, the latter being those sufficiently interested to engage permanently as far as they can in the work of organization, education and agitation. And the number of such continually augments. The others, to a much lesser degree, of course, also permeate their localities with the ideas acquired during their connection with the Socialist movement.

Columbus Federation of Labor.

This body convened October 9th. Communication received from the National Office of the Musicians Union relative to dispute with the colored musicians in this city. After some discussion the matter was referred to Vice President George W. Bope for adjustment.

Communication received from the Molders' Union relative to the unfair product of the Taplin-Rice Clerkin Co., manufacturers of the Climax Stove and Ranges. This company is running its works with imported thugs. It has also declared for the open shop and against Labor Unions. Most of the imported strikebreakers are negroes. Motion made to notify the dealers. Also that we lend our best energy to prevent the importation of this unfair product into Columbus. The delegates are requested to bring this matter before their members.

One of the important issues for the good of the movement was in the form of a union label resolution:

Be it resolved, that no person shall be seated as a delegate to this body until they have been investigated by the credential committee as to whether all of the garments, shoes and hat worn by them at the time they present themselves for obligation, have the union label of the respective organizations making such articles as worn by them.

After a great deal of discussion the matter was laid over for the next meeting.

The special committee on hall and future welfare of the Federation took up the matter of increasing dues and the amendment to the constitution for the election of Federation Representatives. This matter was laid on the table until next meeting when it will come up as a special order of business.

RESULTS OF MACHINISTS CONVENTION.

Conventions abolished. Referendum will be used.

Change of headquarters to be submitted to referendum. Convention recommends either St. Louis or Indianapolis. These cities will be balloted on.

Law committee will hereafter meet at headquarters and arrange amendments to constitution to submit to referendum.

Frank Mulholland of Toledo retained as legal adviser under a fixed salary.

Expense accounts of vice presidents increased.

Helpers to be chartered under Machinists. President and executive board ordered to draw up working rules to govern Helpers, who will have locals of their own, under Machinists' jurisdiction.

District sections abolished. System federation favored. This to be submitted to referendum.

Salaries of special organizers raised to equal that of vice presidents.

Raise dues 25 cents a month, to be divided as follows: 75 cents to grand lodge and 50 cents to locals This to be submitted to the referendum.

A $3.50 assessment was levied on each member to carry on the Harriman and Illinois Central strikes.

A per capital tax will be set aside to prepare for a general eight-hour movement in the near future. Date to be set by the incoming president and executive board. Delegates to A. F. of L. instructed to take up with other metal trades the question of making a joint movement for eight-hour day.

THIS MAY BE YOU.

When a union elects a member to an official position, it does so not to make him a target for censure and abuse, but that he may be a center around which the members shall gather to make effective the work of the organization. This is a lesson that has not taken hard enough hold on the minds of the members.

There is a peculiar perversity possessing many union people that makes them knock the men they have elected to office. They seem to have an idea that because they have elected a brother to office they have a right to dog him to their heart's content. They treat him very much the same way the Indians used to treat their squaws, only worse. The Indian made his squaw do the work, but he didn't have much to say, while the union man piles all the work of the organization on the shoulders of the officers and a heap of abuse on his head.

If the union members who are guilty of this folly would have as much to say in the way of boosting as they have in the way of knocking, how easy would be the work of the officers and how successful the organizations!

Recent dispatches from England prove that the strike is far from settled. At the present time the men are awaiting the orders of their leaders for further action. So far the work of the Arbitration Board has accomplished little in the way of satisfying the workers. The troops are being kept in readiness. The British Isle is on the verge of a revolution.

The recent investigations into the condition of the brass working industry prove a most revolting condition of affairs. The average life of the brass worker is fifty years and in the majority of cases the victims are incapable of doing arduous toil at the age of forty.

PRINTING TRADES VICTORY IN DENVER.

The United Labor Bulletin, Denver, Colorado, announces the successful termination of a strike in which Press Assistants' Union No. 14 secured a satisfactory agreement with the master printers of the city and an increased wage scale. "Under the terms of the agreement the cylinder pressmen's assistants will get an advance of $1 a week from September 1, 1911, until September 1, 1913, with an increase of 50 cents a week thereafter for the succeeding two years.

"The compromise scale agreed upon is as follows; All presses day scale, $16; ready prints, $17; apprentice pressmen not less than $17; cylinder feeders, night work, $18; apprentice pressmen, night work, not less than $19; automatic feeder operators not less than $17; an increase of 50 cents a week for the second and third years in harmony with the foregoing scale.

"The strikers asked an increase of $1.50 a week with a 50 cent increase for two years after the first year. Under the new compromise scale they will get $1 a week increase."

AMERICAN DRUGGIST SYNDICATE LABOR CRUSHERS.

Three hundred men, women, boys and girls employed in the plant of the American Druggists Syndicate in New York have gone on strike as a protest against unbearable conditions. The strikers have been the recipients of exceedingly small wages and have been compelled to work from 7:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. Recently a system similar to the Taylor system was established; the workers protested and declared they could not stand the strain, and their complaint was answered by the issuance of an order requiring them to work from 7:30 a. m.

AMERICAN FOUNDRYMEN

Using Women and Children to Increase Their Profits.

Following the discovery of women employed at the hardest kind of labor in foundries in Massachusetts come another shocking revelation in the plant of the Henry B. Worthington Co. at Harrison, N. J. It has been revealed that between 150 and 200 women are employed as coremakers in the latter place. The work is exceedingly hard and rough and the women are required to labor in a stifling atmosphere impregnated with the fumes of gasoline, burning coke and coal. They shovel sand and lift all kinds of forms and molds and perform tasks that eventually cripple and unfit them for womenly duties. Their faces and hands are begrimed with black dust and grease, and were they not required to wash themselves before leaving the plant, they would present an unseemly appearance on the streets.

The reason for the supplanting of the male coremaker is plain. The men got from $3 to $3.50 a day; the women get from $1 to $1.35 a day.

Discussing the revelations in Massachusetts, the Boston Common, under the caption, "How Labor Is Protected," has this to say: "In the plant of the Wolworth Manufacturing Company, to cite one example, a reporter found 57 women and girls making cores of sand, flour, water, molasses and fish oil. A dozen girls worked on one bench within ten feet of a furnace. The heat was intense. Their eyes were inflamed and their attire is light as frequently seen on the densely populated streets in the tenement districts during the hottest days in summer. These girls are paid an average of about $6 a week. Some get as high as $9. The manager admitted that the girls had displaced male core makers who had been paid from $12 to $18 a week. What is more, some of the girls liked the work, or at least preferred it to working in a department store, where they would receive less money and have to pay more for clothes."

AGAIN THE BREWERY WORKERS GET THE MUD.

Because the Brewery Workers, delegates had the nerve to stand and protest at the Indianapolis State Federation of Labor against the nefarious acts of Governor Marshall, who allowed the McNamara boys to be kidnapped from the State of Indiana to the State of California, some of the labor faking decoys are crying out that the Socialists are trying to break up the Labor Movement. The Brewery Workers are a class-conscious organization and they do not care what the Judases think or say about them. Most of their past enemies have fallen by the wayside, and Jim O'Connell, of the Machinists' Union, heads the list.

SPECIAL LOCAL LABOR NEWS.

J. H. Tapken passed through the city on his way to Pittsburg. Brother Tapken is the business agent for the Smoky City Blacksmiths, and his reason for stopping off was to try and reorganize the Columbus craft.

The Wesley Chapel congregation intend to open an employment agency. At the present time we have a STATE FREE EMPLOYMENT AGENCY and the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION EMPLOYMENT AGENCY. What the members of the churches had better do is to find the JOBS FOR THESE agencies to send their victims to. Of course the ulterior motive could be printed in these words: "NO UNION MEN APPLY."

Michael Giblin of the Brewery Workers and George Miles of the Glass Blowers are in Cleveland this week as delegates to the Ohio Federation of Labor convention. They will make their report at the next meeting of the Federation.

The Secretary of the Navy has decided that he will not suggest the development of the Taylor System at the various navy yards. This sop will not prevent the workers voting for their own class interests.

The Brewery Workers are entering into their dull season. Many of the boys are scattered over the city. Well, they are good missionaries and Columbus needs them.

Arthur Larison, the business representative for the Electrical Workers, has returned from the National Convention at Syracuse, N. Y.

MACHINISTS' UNION.

The last regular meeting on October 10 was one of interest. Representative Jim Liddy came up with several new applications and the members reported several on the way. Comrade Ulrey won the attendance prize and the lodge was more than satisfied with the results. This month's Journal is full of interest to the craft. The dances are in full swing and it's time for some of the Bachelor Brigade to get a permanent partner. The dance season looks well for a successful result to the local sick benefit fund.

THE SOCIALIST, ONLY $1.00 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE. ARE YOU A SUBSCRIBER? IF NOT, WHY NOT?

Watch Us Grow.

The Socialist party membership for the month of September, just closed, has passed the 100,000 mark.

There was great rejoicing wher, on Saturday, at National Headquarters in Chicago, just before the close of the month's business, a check for $400 was received from the state secretary of Pennsylvania in payment for 2,000 dues stamps.

This last order made the total for the month more than 100,000. This is a remarkable figure when the age of the present Socialist party in America is considered.

The Socialist party of today dates its beginning from the "Unity" convention in 1901, at Indianapolis, Ind. The membership as well as the vote at that time was very small.

In 1910, when the vote approximated 607,000, the membership was about 60,-000. On the same basis of proportion as has been taken in previous elections the vote ran in the ratio of 10 to 1. At the present rate of increase in the membership the vote for 912 will far exceed 1,000,000.

It has long been the ambition of the Socialists to swell the membership to the mark reached during the past month. It shows a wonderful mark of stability when a political party is able to enroll 100,000 members paying at the rate of 25 cents per month for the maintenance of the organization.

The greatest increase in the party membership was noted immediately following the fall election of 1910. Within three months the party membership had frown from sixty to eighty thousand. This average was maintained during the summer months.

Another Blow at the Courts.

Washington, Sept. 30.—In an editorial note Pearson's Magazine for September has this to say of the courts:

"It may be put down as a fact that the majority of the people is not satisfied with the brand of justice that our courts are handing out. The majority understands only the results of decisions. And with the results much the greater part of the people are dissatisfied. They are particularly dissatisfied with those decisions which have annulled the people's will. That's just what the courts do. The people, by constitutional right, assemble and make the laws which they want. The courts, if they please, without constitutional right, destroy those laws. The constitution which the judges in their decision appear to hold sacred does not give the judges the right to kill legislation. They are simply taking the right. Holding the Constitution as a sacred and inviolate instrument when it concerns other people—and some folks think stretching a point when it concerns a few people—they forget that it does not give them the right to do some of the things they do. How about that? The courts must be the bulwark of the nation, and not the "bulwark of privilege," as they have been called. They cannot be the nation's mainstay when their decisions on public matters displease the great mass of the people. And when some of those decisions are based on an usurped power you must begin to think about it."

King George Insists He Must Have His Durbar.

Despite the protests of the people of India, King George insists on his royal show at Delhi. This will cost the starving populace of India not less than $100,000,000. In that land such a sum would feed the millions of the famine swept districts for a long time to come, would save hundreds of thousands of lives, but who of money or blood aristocracy ever cared how much suffering or death they inflicted upon the rank and file? This is as true in America today as in England, in Russia, in the France of the days of the Jacquerie, or the Commune, in the period of the slave wars of Rome. You are the servants (servus means slave), the canaille, the sans culottes, the common herd, the mob, the scum of humanity on whom they, the full flower, look down with unconcealed contempt and loathing. This is no exaggeration. You know it is true.

More of the Capitalistic Circus.

By Silas Hood.

Admirers of the capitalistic system should be proud of the present and recent evidences of the system's failure. Here is a magnificent list of achievements brought about by the capitalist plan of savagery:

"Riots, threatened revolutions and war spectres are thick on the map of Europe today. Not since the Russian-Japanese war have the "powers" faced as serious a situation. Besides the Franco-German fuss over Morocco there's a multitude of trouble.

"Germany is torn by Socialistic activity. France has just passed through an open revolt against the high prices of food, at St. Quentin, Lens and Paris.

"With the assassination of Premier Stolypin at Kiev, Russia fears another slaughter of the Jews, while Nicholas hides in terror at St. Petersburg.

"Spain and Austria are in the throes of revolt. Barcelona threatens repetition of bloodshed and revolution. Valencia, Sargossa, Seville, Gijon, Cadiz, Bilboa, Spain, are in revolt.

"Food riots in Austria result in martial law at Vienna and at Prague. The people are crying, 'We want bread!'

"Iron workers are on strike in Wales and in Scotland many trades are in difficulties.

"At Dublin a great mass meeting declares for a general strike throughout Ireland.

"Socialistic demonstrations are occurring in Holland and even the papal see has ordered new rifles and amunition for the Swiss guards at the vatican."

The foregoing indictments against the misrule of the commercial pirates and their allies on thrones and in the legislation halls of so-called republics are not the ravings of any terrible Socialist agitator. The list is taken from the columns of the capitalist press of September 20.

The American capitalist press is liberal with its news about the serious unrest in Europe, but is comparatively silent about the unrest in the United States.

Capitalist newspapers always fail to make its news incomplete so we shall add the following to the foregoing list:

Fully 5,000,000 persons constantly in the army of the unemployed in America in 1911.

Poverty in every city and hamlet in free America.

Millions dying annually from preventable causes.

Strikes threatened or in actual operation in every state in the Union.

Eighty-five per cent of the population confronted with the spectre of apprehension because of the unsettled industrial conditions, or worrying about the high cost of living and uncertainty of employment.

Tens of thousands of babies dying every year, the cause officially being called "malnutrition." That is a polite word for starvation. In new York City alone the annual malnutrition baby victims number nearly 20,000.

The list could be made columns long. But what's the use. And, the publication of these indictments would be inexcusable if there were a sound reason why they should exist. They bear no excuse for existence because a collective ownership and democratic management of the means of life would wipe away the stain of poverty and the disgrace of strikes.

Poverty, bread riots, malnutrition, crime and degradation will thrive as long as the capitalist system survives. But when the Socialist co-operative commonwealth is ushered in by the votes of the majority in America, and when things are made for use instead of for profit the ulcers of the present system will be no more, and the abundance that nature has provided will not be denied to the millions of workers who are now deprived of the free use of the means of production and distribution. And the ballots to be cast this fall will be an indication of how much longer the working class intends to uphold the present system.

Respectable Trickery.—To halt the march of the toilers toward Socialism, steal the Socialists' thunder, is the belief of Sir George C. Marlow, a member of the English parliament, who has just arrived in Philadelphia from London.

Why University Men Should Know Their Socialism.

Students in the colleges and universities are learning those things presumed to be of sufficient importance to make them cultured men and women. The greatest movements in history are studied and he is not educated, according to the modern notion, who does not know historical data. The Socialist movement comprises millions of people and is binding the working class of all nations with a tie stronger than religion. And the peculiar fact about it is that this is the first international political movement in the history of civilization. With what minuteness of detail do students learn ancient history! If we should study events and conditions as they were "before the flood," is it not of vaster importance to have a knowledge of contemporary history? One might not know that "all Gaul is divided into three parts," but he should be posted upon the facts of a movement as recent and vigorous as the Socialist movement.

The more the Socialist philosophy is studied by unprejudiced authorities, the more is its introduction as a separate branch of economics encouraged. Many of the great colleges of the country are offering courses in Socialism and studying its assertions in connection with social problems. To this end no person interested in debate or literary subjects can afford to be without a first hand knowledge of this subject. He should be able to detect a truly Socialist allusion the moment it is presented to him in any argumentative or expository discourse.

At every school there attend the sons of the rich and the sons of the workingclass. Some students with good intellects are compelled to slave through school for an education which they can only imperfectly get, while others with little intellect can go through school tuition, board and cigarettes free.

Under Socialism merit and not wealth would determine eligibility to courses and the cost of an education would not give the industrious student more anxiety than his lessons, as is so often the case at present. Besides this, students are robbed in their buying of text books by paying many times what they are worth. This is because someone is making a rich profit and charging all the traffic will bear.

Under Socialism text books would either be furnished free or sold at the bare cost of their production.

Thus students coming from the working class have much to gain by Socialism as students, and those who, upon reaching a voting age, support any other than the Socialist ticket, are not standing for their own interests. Also, those attending state schools should not find it difficult to be Socialists when they realize that their Alma Mater is a Socialistic institution. Such objections as may be raised against state universities are valid only because these, like all other government owned utilities at present, are polluted with a certain amount of capitalism. Under Socialism the universities would be cleansed of these evils, students would have perfect freedom from military drill and instead of being trained in practices of destruction and war, they would be educated for usefulness and peace. The sons of the working class in schodl and out of school have no business being other than Socialists. In this age of commercialism, when education is looked upon as a mere medium for money making and true learning is despised because it is not a paying asset, Socialism, with its freedom from these commercial standards, should appeal to every man and woman who has a proper sense of the value and pursuit of knowledge.

Already the Inter-Collegiate Socialist Society has chapters in all the large universities of the land. Sooner or later the torch of revolution will be borne by the young men of the schools and as has been the case in other countries where students have taken a hand, the movement will receive a great impetus.

GEO. BIDDLE, O. S. U. '13.

THE SOCIALISTS' CITY PLATFORM.

We, the Socialist Party of the City of Columbus, Ohio, assembled in mass convention, reaffirm our allegiance to the principles of International Socialism as embodied in our National and State Platform.

The first consideration in all municipal affairs should be the interest of the working class. The Socialist Party is organized not only to elect good and efficient men to office but to control the powers of political government in order to guarantee to the workers the possession and operation of the means of production and distribution and the full social product of their labor.

As measures calculated to strengthen the working class in its fight for the realization of its ultimate aim, and to increase its powers of resistance against private capitalism, we advocate and pledge ourselves and our elected officers to the following program:

FIRST: For the more perfect application of the Initiative and Referendum in all municipal affairs.

SECOND: For the Recall of all elective officials.

THIRD: For the public ownership of all public utilities and the abolition of the contract system and all convict labor when in competition with free labor.

FOURTH: For the elimination of unneccessary officials, a reduction of all salaries that excessive and a minimum wage of $3.00 per day in all public works.

FIFTH: For the Eight Hour Day for all labor on public improvements and in all municipal departments, and a uniform pension system to apply to all city employees.

SIXTH: For the City to furnish work to the unemployed to the fullest extent possible under present conditions.

SEVENTH: For the rigid inspection of all stores, factories, workshops and places of public assemblage and the strict enforcement of all laws to protect the lives of the workers.

EIGHTH: Human life and health being more sacred than property, should be the first consideration in the enforcement of the sanitary laws.

NINTH: For public parks and playgrounds within easy reach of the workers, and public comfort stations as well as public drinking fountains, wherever essential to the health and comfort of the workers.

TENTH: For the City to provide municipal hospitals free from every taint of Charity.

ELEVENTH: For free text books in all grades of our public schools and the use of one room in each school house for public assemblage.

TWELFTH: For the free administration of justice and the election of a public "Defender" as well as a public "Prosecutor" as at present.

THIRTEENTH: We pledge ourselves to secure from the State, such authority as will give the municipality the right to establish, own and operate all industries that pertain to the city's activity.

News From Wisconsin.

Still the Milwaukee Anti-Socialists are worrying over last Sunday's big mass meeting. How did the Socialists do it? How did they secure the subscription of $8,000 to the bonds of the Socialist daily in about ninety minutes? In an off year—when there was no campaign, no excitement, no political fireworks—why should 7,000 men and women meet just for the privilege of paying their money and starting a Socialist daily paper? That is the puzzle which is bothering our capitalist politicians.

Never before, perhaps, did the Milwaukee Socialist movement show its real strength as clearly as at this meeting last Sunday, since the enthusiasm with a well-planned and deliberate purpose behind it is far ahead of the hurrah excitement of a political campaign.

The big hall in the Auditorium was filled to the roof. The speakers were Mayor Seidel, Congressman Berger, President-elect Johnston of the Machinists, and Carl D. Thompson. All presented the necessity of a Socialist daily in Milwaukee.

The applause, and more especially the financial response, showed that they carried with them the hearts of the audience. Besides the $8,000 subscribed for the daily bonds, a collection of nearly $300 was taken to defray the expense of the meeting.

A party which can do that in an off-year is not going to be defeated at the polls next spring!

Here is an interesting fact for trades unionists. The Socialist supervisors of Milwaukee are starting an Agricultural Academy in this city—an institution, by the way, which will be of solid benefit to our farming community on this side of the state. Now this new building will employ a great many men and a good many trades. But every part of the work will be done by union labor, in all trades where union labor can be obtained. This is the first time in Milwaukee that a building of this size has been constructed under union labor conditions. The trades unionists of Milwaukee are realising the benefits of a working class organization.

Compare with this the recent action of the Milwaukee School Board. There are only two Socialists on this board.

The question of appointing non-union teachers in the Milwaukee Trades School came before the school board last week. The two Socialist members fought against these appointments, justly contending that in a trades school only trades unionists should be permitted to teach and train the future wage-workers of Milwaukee. The Socialists, however, were voted down. Non-union teachers were supported by those school directors who were elected on the so-called Anti-Socialist ticket. It will be remembered that these Anti-Socialist tickets were distributed in the churches of Milwaukee, that the priests brought women in carriages to the polls with instructions to vote this ticket, and these women were told that it would be a "mortal sin" not to vote for the Anti-Socialist candidates! The workingmen are beginning to find out who are their true friends and who are their real enemies.

James Oneal, State Secretary, 309½ Ohio Street, Terre Haute.

Sullivan, the county seat of Sullivan county, makes application for a charter, and starts off with 18 members. This is the result of one meeting held, with Comrade Wattles as speaker.

Comrade Wattles next proceeded to Carlisle, where after her meeting she organized a local with 7 members. Carlisle has taken all the speakers sent that way this summer, and the local expects to report an increase in membership soon. These two locals make 8 for the county, and they have fine prospects for a good county organization.

Comrade Wattles also secured 15 names to a charter application at Bloomfield, in Green county, and after adding a few more names it will be sent in. Her literature sales are also the largest for any speaker traveling in the southern part of the state.

Word comes from Medora that the Socialists there have been out in the cold long enough, and 9 are reported signed up for a charter, and after getting a few more it will be sent in. Comrade Wattles will be there later for two meetings.

The Socialists at Shelburn have nominated a full ticket, and have good prospects for an excellent vote. Diamond will do likewise after hesitating for some time. This is the proper thing to do, as it is useless to organize for political action and then not enter the political field when the opportunity presents.

The new local at Attica is getting down to the active work of distributing literature. Orders for the Appeal, Social Advance and Social Democratic Herald indicate what they are doing.

Local Eaton has been a "dead one" long enough in the estimation of the Socialists there, who have revived the local, and ordered a set of local books from the national office. That is evidence that they mean business.

From Gleaen, in the southern coal fields, comes the word that they want speakers, and that the township will be carried by the Socialist party in the next election. The miners have all they can stand of capitalist "prosperity."

Local Columbus is preparing to give a course of winter lectures which it hopes to make a big success. Among the speakers they expect to secure are Lucien V. Rule, S. M. Reynolds, Ira Tilton, Florence Wattles, Janet Fenimore, May Strickland and James Oneal.

Local Jeffersonville now has 28 members and the local is printing a series of small leaflets that are distributed each week over the city. This is work that will count and that other locals might well follow.

Chairman Henry of Indianapolis reports visiting Fortville and organizing a local of 13 members. The application will be held to get the signatures of a few more. Comrade Henry delivered the first Socialist speech ever heard in the town to a large and enthusiastic audience. He reports good prospects of organizing a few more locals in the next few weeks.

General Socialist News.

A great victory seems to have been won by the Socialists in Sweden, in the general elections just held, reports of which seem to have been suppressed. Incomplete returns show that the Conservatives elected 81 members to Parliament, sustaining a heavy loss of 18 seats; the Liberals ejected 33 members, a gain of 8, while the Socialists increased their seats from 35 to 36 and will doubtedly win several more of the 36 districts to be heard from, thus being in a fine tactical position to force through complete universal suffrage and many laws for the protection of the working class. It will be recalled that when the great general strike was abandoned last year it was stated in this paper that the workers of Sweden would transfer their fight to the political field as much as possible and attack the employers' associations through the ballot-box, which prediction has been fulfilled despite the fact that thousands of workers were robbed of their votes by being blacklisted and driven from their homes. There is great rejoicing among the workers of Sweden, according to information at hand, while their oppressors are correspondingly depressed, for they see the end to their brutal reign.

The newly organized Socialist party in Winnipeg, Man., made a good showing for a starter by polling 2,000 votes for its candidate for Parliament in the recent national election. Good gains are also reported from other parts of the Northwest.

Socialists of Italy have just won another seat in Parliament, carrying the district of Lari against the government candidate. The latter received 564 votes to 3,196 for the Socialists, who never before held the seat. The war game is evidently not nearly as popular in Italy as the censorized press attempts to make the reading public believe.

Wm. Brandt, the Socialist who was clearly elected a member of the City Council in St. Louis last spring and counted out, and who took his case into court, was defeated by a political judge who ruled on a technical point. Brandt will be nominated for an election on Nov. 7 to fill a vacancy—that is, if the party bosses permit the election to be held, which is not yet certain.

The Los Angeles Times is fearful that Riverside, Cal., may be captured by the Socialists. It says that 40 "best citizens" in the town organized for the purpose of combining all parties against the Reds, but even the merging of the old gangs doesn't hold out much hope of victory. Riverside has come into the national limelight as the place where an Otis court declared the California eight-hour law for women workers unconstitutional.

JEWISH WORKINGMEN'S CIRCLE AIDS STRIKERS.

The Jewish Workingmen's Union gave an entertainment for the benefit of the striking Lady Garment Workers. The speakers were Mr. C. Gould, J. H. Henderson, and others. The speakers gave a history of the causes for the strike and described the vicious attitude of some of the Columbus police authorities. The fight in Cleveland is going along and the prospects favor the strikers. One of the strikers by the name of Becky Fisher has been arrested 36 times in eleven weeks. Becky is the hero of the strike. At the present time Becky is on the road soliciting funds to carry the fight over the winter. The strikers are determined to stand for a 50-hour week, the abolition of the sub-contract system and the abolition of the charge of 25 cents per day for the use of the machine.

How George Loves the Workers.

STATE OF OHIO,
County of Franklin, ss.

Harold B. Gatch, being duly sworn, deposes and says that on or about the 25th day of April, 1909, he was employed as one of the attorneys to defend George B. Dickert, who was brought up before the Police Court on the charge of vagrancy. That during the pendency of that action he went in person to George S. Marshall, who was then City Solicitor, and asked him to instruct the Police Prosecutor, who was acting under him, to be fair and try George Dickert for the offense of which he was charged and not to bring into the case that he wrote letters to other cities with reference to the deplorable conditions of the working class in Columbus and not to prosecute him because he was simply attempting to organize the "white wings."

City Solicitor Marshall replied that he did not propose to have any of the city employes tampered with by Labor Unions and that he would not in any manner interfere with the prosecution of the case.

Socialism Sweeping on to Victory.

"Mayor Marshall, as an officer and as a professional man, has failed to show a keen appreciation of the importance of his office. In a speech a few nights ago in the Fourteenth Ward, he declared that Socialists should not vote their ticket in the city election, but could do so consistently in state elections and the one which will select delegates to the constitutional convention. While running for the office, he infers that the mayoralty is not an issue and that municipal politics have nothing in common with principles."

Thus spoke Mayoralty Candidate A. C. Eby before a Socialist meeting in Franklin Park Sunday afternoon. Aside from taking time to pay this attention to the mayor, Mr. Eby confined his remarks to a discussion of the principles of Socialism. Other speakers were Walter J. Millard, of Cincinnati, and G. W. Scott, of Findlay, Ohio. Five thousand people applauded the speakers at Franklin Park.

At Guerr's Park on the Hilltop Sunday afternoon three thousand people listened to the radical utterances of Comrades Jacob L. Bachman, D. J. Farrell, R. L. Brown, the colored orator, and J. M. Collins, the Irish Socialist.

"I invite Mayor Marshall to talk with me on this or any other platform, before any crowd, and I'll show him whether Socialism is an issue in this campaign. I'll make him look like 30 cents in as many minutes," said A. C. Eby, Socialist mayoralty candidate, last night at an open-air Fourth Ward rally in Livingston Park. Mayor Marshall and Mr. Karb are direct representatives of the capitalist classes. The profit system is the real issue. If you want to produce $2500 and receive $500 in wages vote for Mr. Marshall or Mr. Karb."

Mayor Marshall, Mr. Eby said, spilled water all over himself when he tried to carry it on both shoulders in the car strike. He charged him with stealing thunder of the Socialist party.

Peter Kinnear, councilmanic candidate, charged Mr. Karb was president of a subsidiary Standard Oil company. He asked how many had their taxes reduced under Mayor Marshall, and there were cries of "We haven't." He asked Mayor Marshall what would have been the result had the firemen struck for more pay when he raised the salary increase ordinance. Mr. Kinnear attributed consumption of 900 fewer kegs of beer in September this year as against last year to harder times and increased cost of living.

"On Oct. 12 Columbus discovered America; on Nov. 7 America will discover America," said Walter J. Millard, bringing a volcanic outburst of applause. He read the affidavit of Attorney Harold G. Gatch, to the effect that Mayor Marshall, while city solicitor, in April, 1909, refused to interfere in the case of one George Dickert, who, he said, was driven out of town for trying to unionize the street sweepers. "Marshall said he did not propose to have city employes organized," declared Millard. He said Mr. Karb had declared he was going to turn himself into a perambulator to further the city's business, while he charged Marshall with running on a fly-paper platform.

On Tuesday evening two thousand people cheered the speakers at North High street and Blake avenue. Comrade R. E. Radebaugh presided and Comrades A. C. Eby, W. J. Millard and J. M. Collins spoke.

Country Meetings.

The Socialist Rally at Dusenbury's Hall in Linden Heights last Monday night drew a big crowd. Comrade J. M. Collins and J. M. Henderson were the speakers.

The out-of-town rallies in Franklin county have all been effective, but the [illegible] was particularly so. Comrades Marsh Green, Tom Southard, John Selmer and Gus Tegenkamp were the scouts. The weather being unpleasant, Wm Morris invited and urged the speakers to use his pool room for the meeting and he suspended all business during the speaking. There was considerable good done.

Who Is Afraid to Trust the People?

"It is the people's Constitution, the people's Government, made by the people and answerable to the people. We must admit the proposition or dispute the authority. . . . . We are all agents of the same supreme power. . . . . The people erected this government. . . . . Gentlemen, do not seem to recollect that the people have the power to do anything for themselves."—Daniel Webster.

The time has come in the State of Ohio to give the people a real Constitution. We use the word "real" to express a demand for a Constitution that will allow the people to be the masters, instead of the servants of those who are elected to serve them in law-making and law-dispensing bodies.

In the Western country the Initiative and Referendum and the Right to Recall has become part of the State Constitutions and the real spirit of democracy is singing in the wind.

In the State of Ohio for the last ten years we have read harrowing newspaper stories about "slush funds," "reigns of privilege," and "legislative prostitution." We have had an epidemic of legislative scandals, bribery trials, and confessions galore, and yet we are told that the people are not ready for the RECALL.

Strange to relate, we are told about the signed pledges of so-called "progressive league candidates," and yet these men declare they are not ready to trust the people they seek to represent with the right to remove the representatives who disobey the commands of the people and by so doing help perpetuate legislative graft and bribing. There seems to be a feeling on the part of the "progressives" that they do not want to hurt anyone's feelings. They represent the court who apologizes to the prisoner he is about to sentence.

If Direct Legislation means anything to all the people, it must be backed up with the power of the Recall and only dishonest crooks need fear its power.

If the people are not fit to be trusted with the Right of Recall, the same can be said of the Initiative and Referendum. The recall is what the key is to the lock, hence, one is no good without the other.

The men who are afraid to trust the people should not be allowed to represent them. Perhaps it would be well to allow these doubting "Thomases" to go off to some quait place and prepare a constitution according to the dictates of their flexible consciences. After they were through we would be ready for a monarchy. Let these Afraid-to-trust-the-people sealots remember, that the hope of kings rest in the belief that the people are not able to rule themselves. Let them who fear the wrath of the people remember the words of James Russell Lowell

"Have you founded your thrones and altars then
On the bodies and souls of living men
And think ye that buildings shall endure
Which sleelgye the noble and crushge the poor.

Comrades! Beware of Hissing Vipers.

The political character assassins are at work. One of these infamous villification agents recently charged that the head of the Socialist Ticket was a strike-breaker. The man who denied the falsehood were not Socialists and this cowardly assassin was compelled to take to the hills.

For the information of truth-seekers it should be recorded that the candidate for Mayor on the Socialist ticket came to the Jeffrey Manufacturing Company more than a year after the Iron Molders' strike. The craft that Comrade Eby works at never had a labor organization in the history of the American labor movement. And furthermore, the said Jeffrey Manufacturing Company NEVER had a STRIKE or ANY OTHER LABOR DISPUTE with the WORKERS employed in their DRAUGHTING DEPARTMENT. The writer was employed by the said Jeffrey Company up to the time of the Molders' strike and vouches for the statement herein. To quote the words of a citizen who is a non-Socialist, "Mr. Eby is an honest man, and if we are to judge men by their home life, Mr. Eby is capable of being President of the United States."

JAMES H. HENDERSON,
President of Columbus Federation of Labor.

Schumm Takes Up Fight for Shepard.

The suit of John A. Schumm vs. The Columbus, New Albany and Johnstown Traction Company for $500 damages was filed in Common Pleas Court on Wednesday of this week by Bachman and Bachman, attorneys for the plaintiff. The allegations set forth that Saturday evening, October 14, 1911, John A. Schumm entered a car of the defendant company at Mt. Vernon and Twentieth streets, and paid a cash fare of 5 cents. At Taylor and Atcheson the conductor demanded an additional fare of 5 cents from Schumm, who desired to ride to Shepard, a point within the city limit of Columbus, Ohio. Upon Schumm refusing to pay the additional fare, he was ejected from the car about a half square east of Taylor street. For this cause John A. Schumm, who is a candidate for council on the Socialist ticket from the Sixth Ward, within which the former village of Shepard lies, asks damages in the sum of $500 under Section 9135 General Code of Ohio.

For a long time the people living east of Taylor street have been held up for a fare of ten cents or fifteen cents round trip in order to reach even the East Side and return. The people at Shepard, now part of Columbus, are subject to the same extortion. They and the residents of the East End have determined to find their rights under the law. Comrade Schumm was the only man who was able or willing to make the fight.

HE HAS STARTED IT.

Pure Food and How to Get It.

By Annie Minturn.

If the women of the nation could vote, it would not be so difficult to secure pure food and drug legislation, nor to enforce laws properly when those were enacted. The women, above all others of our population, are intensely interested in pure foods and pure drugs because they realize how much these things mean for the happiness and welfare of the home and for the lives and health of the children and other members of the family. If woman suffrage were not desirable for any other reason, it would be worth while to have it to have better food laws and better enforcement of those we have.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley.

"Your order, please." It was noontide, and the working girl who had stopped in at a department store for her noon luncheon, held the menu card in her hand trying to decide which sandwich would be the most nourishing and which drink the most nutritious.

Alas, there is about as much nourishment in the foodless foods of today, given to those who cannot enjoy the benefits of home cooking, as there is in so much clay.

The girl called for chicken sandwich and hot chocolate. This looked appetizing on the card and seemed to be just to her notion. The order was brought to her in a temptingly dainty manner. The chicken was carefully boned and pressed and spread upon two slices of the whitest of bread, cut in neat triangles and placed upon a china plate. The chocolate was dark and rich and piping hot and upon the top there floated some billowy bubbles of whipped cream. And the girl eat the sandwich and drank the chocolate with a relish and went again to her work.

Later a severe attack of poisoning came upon her and she suffered great physical pain. And Why? All because a chicken in the seemingly harmless sandwich had been a cold storage fowl, hatched many, many springs ago, killed and embalmed and carefully laid away to rest. Then finally in the course of commercial events, the grave had given up its dead,—its long dead,—and, reeking with the foul benzoate of its preservative, had been spread upon a sandwich for a working girl to eat. And somehow, too much benzoate had gotten into this particular bit of her chicken. And, then, the bread of the sandwich was, of course, whitened with alum, for natural wheat flour is of an umber line. And thus we have the blend of benzoate and alum.

And the chocolate! Well, to be sure, there was only a small per cent of the pure cocoa in the mixture, its principal ingredient being an adulterant of brown mother earth. And thus we have the benzoate and alum and earth!

And what of the "whipped cream" that made the beverage look so dringable? That was only a preparation of soapbark, which really beats up to a nice froth and is about as helpful to the stomach as is so much lather. And thus we have the exquisite mixture of benzoate, alum, earth and soapbark! Is it any wonder the combination caused sickness? Thousands of working girls are taking these concoctions into their stomachs every day in the year. When they eat canned peas they swallow a poisonous green coloring matter with them; when they pour catsup over their meat, they eat a poisonous, red coloring matter; when they eat bakers' cakes, they eat cakes made of rotten eggs over which a poisonous solution must be poured to keep the mixture from becoming putrid; the fruit in their mince pie is decayed and maggotty, needing to be embalmed before it can be used; the jams they are compelled to eat are but gelatine, aniline and timothy seed; the soda they drink are but impure substances over which drugs both dangerous and pernicious in character are thrown.

All this is but slow poison and sooner or later, when thoroughly absorbed by the system, will act as a deadly heart paralyzant and cause general premature breakdown.

We have a pure food law, you say. Yes; and there is scarcely a law upon our statute books, which, by its wording, permits of so much abuse. A portion of it reads as follows: "In the case of articles labeled, branded or tagged so as to indicate plainly that they are compounds, imitations or blends, and the word 'compound,' 'imitation' or 'blend,' as the case may be, is plainly stated on the package in which it is offered for sale, the term 'blend' as used herein, shall be construed to mean a mixture of like substances, not excluding harmless colors or flavoring ingredients used for the purpose of coloring and flavoring only."

This law, as it is written, not only allows, but INVITES FRAUD. What poisonous substitutes cannot creep into the foods we eat under the name of "blend." And again, since colorings and flavorings are not excluded, is there any limit to the coal tar we must swallow?

These abominations must cease. The evil of impure food affects every man, woman and child in our land and even the tender little babies, since their milk has its portion of formaldihide.

Perhaps one of the most successful ways of eliminating this evil in our midst would be by permitting women the right to vote on the subject. Women would at least give us an era of pure and wholesome food. And if, enjoying the franchise, they did nothing else nor ever brought about another reform, this would be to the nation a blessing like unto "apples of gold in pictures of silver."

contumely,
The pangs of despised love, the law's delay,
The insolence of office and the spurns
That patient merit of the unworthy takes,
When he himself might his quietus make
With a bare bodkin? Who would fardels bear,
To grunt and sweat under a weary life,
But that the dread of something after death,
The undiscovered country from whose bourn
No traveller returns, puzzles the will
AND MAKES US RATHER BEAR THOSE ILLS WE HAVE THAN FLY TO OTHERS THAT WE KNOW NOT OF?
Thus conscience does make cowards of us all;
And thus the native hue of resolution
Is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought,
And enterprises of great pitch and moment
With this regard, their currents turn awry,
And lose the name of action."

Sassy Sayings of an Organizer.

By O. F. Branstetter.

"I'm a Socialist all right but I ain't agoin' to join the party. I was a Greenbacker, and a Knights of Labor, and a Populist, and I know just how them things go. Jest as soon as you begin to git strong them a lot of your leaders begin to trade and compromise and sell you out jest to git jobs for themselves.

"Socialism is all right, if it wasn't for that, but how're you goin' to keep your leaders from sellin you out, I'd like to know?"

"Oh, but they can't, comrade. You see—"

"They can't, hey? Well, I'd jest like to know how you'll keep 'em from it? I'd jest like to have you tell me how you'll—"

"Well, if you will just shut up and give me a chance, I WILL tell you. If you knew anything about the Socialist party you would know that we don't depend upon the honesty or incorruptibility of what you call our "leaders."

A Socialist knows that there is no more community of interests between the working class and the capitalists politically than there is industrially. He knows that a political party cannot serve two masters, but that all the old parties represent only the interests of the capitalist class, which finances, controls and owns them.

And so he has organized an entirely new political party, a party separate and distinct from all parties controlled by his masters. It is a party which is financed, owned and controlled by himself and his comrades and he has put the best of his brains, his energy and his enthusiasm into making it a party which will represent the working class, and the working class ONLY.

And so, in this new party he has builded for himself, he has taken for one of the cardinal principles, and the slogan of his party, "NO FUSION—NO POLITICAL TRADING."

And therein he has shown his wisdom. It is good tactics. It is the only possible way in which he can secure his demands—by supporting and putting into power a political party which stands for his principles and for his interests. And more than that—IT IS HIS ABSOLUTE SECURITY AGAINST BEING SOLD OUT.

With that principle he resists the flattery and false promises of the old parties and detects the traitors and designing politicians within his own ranks. No traitor, no matter how willing, can work much injury to the party so long as he votes and uses his influence to have every other Socialist vote for the principles, platforms and candidates of the Socialist party, AND FOR NO OTHER.

No trust, no corporation, and no old party politician will pay very much to have a man advocate those things.

Whenever they buy or corrupt a Socialist leader, either national, state or county, they pay him to support some principle, platform or candidate other than those of the Socialist party.

And as soon as he does that the honest Socialist has him spotted. Either he is NOT A SOCIALIST and does not understand the principles and tactics of the party, OR HE HAS SOLD OUT FOR MONEY OR FOR VOTES.

"The question now remains, will the honest Socialists sanction the corrupt deal made by this leader?"

Certainly not. They will make the ignorance or the treachery of this leader absolutely harmless by the simple expedient of VOTING FOR THE SOCIALIST PRINCIPLES AND CANDIDATES—AND FOR NO OTHER.

I have never heard of a corporation or an old party politician bribing a man to vote the Socialist ticket, or to influence others to vote the Socialist ticket. If they did so no one would be the gainer except the Socialist party; the losers would be the chumps who paid the money.

When the interests corrupt a candidate or a leader in any party, it is not the leader's vote which they are buying, but the votes which he can influence in THEIR INTERESTS.

And no "leader" can influence the membership of the Socialist party to vote against their principles or their candidates. Whenever he tries to do so he ceases to be a "leader." The corporation is gold-bricked when it purchases his influence, because he has no influence when he attempts to use it in the interests of the old parties or their owners.

The so-called "leaders" can never "sell us out" for their personal benefit so long as we stick to that slogan, "NO COMPROMISE—NO POLITICAL TRADING"—and WE ARE GOING TO STICK.

GOOD WORDS FOR WILSON.

At the last regular meeting of the Pattern Makers Association of Columbus and vicinity, resolutions were passed endorsing the candidacy of Brother Frank M. Wilson, candidate for councilman on the Socialist ticket from the Tenth Ward.

Knowing Brother Wilson as we do, from past services as an officer and member of this association, we heartily commend him to all voters of his ward who have the cause of good government at heart, and who stand for justice for the workingman.

Brother Wilson is at present serving this association in the capacity of delegate to the Columbus Federation of Labor.

Fraternally,
A. E. BROWNLEE,

Reply to Cardinal Gibbons

In the course of his jubilee sermon delivered at the cathedral in Baltimore, Cardinal Gibbons is quoted as expressing unqualified disapproval of three important political propositions which have commanded a large share of public attention, namely, the election of United States senators by the direct vote of the people, the initiative and referendum proposal and the recall of the judiciary.

The cardinal is quoted as saying, "The election of senators by the votes of the people involves the destruction of a strong bulwark against dangerous popular encroachments. . . . To give to the masses the right of annulling the acts of the legislatures is to substitute mob law for established law. . . . To recall a judge because his decisions do not meet with popular approval is an insult to the dignity, the independence and self respect of our judiciary. . . . The constitution of the United States is the palladium of our liberties and our landmark in our march of progress. Its wisdom has been tested and successfully proved after a trial of a century and a quarter. It has weathered the storms of the century which is passed, and it should be trusted for the centuries to come. What has been good enough for our fathers ought to be good enough for us. Every change, either in the political or religious world, is not a reformation. Better to bear the ills we know than fly to those we know not of. Do not disturb the political landmarks of the republic."

Our answer to Cardinal Gibbons is brief. We will merely state the facts in the case and leave it to the intelligence of the American people to decide for themselves.

The election of senators by the votes of the people does involve the destruction of a strong bulwark against popular encroachments. As to whether these popular encroachments are dangerous, suffice it to say that popular encroachments have always been considered dangerous by those whose interests were endangered by popular education and self government.

The Cardinal is afraid to trust the masses. He insinuates that law by the masses is mob law. Now, the word "masses" in America is a synonym for "the people," "the public," "the sovereign people." The masses are the creators of our legislatures and yet the cardinal would deny the public the right to annul the acts of its legislators. Let the cardinal remember that "Governments are instituted among men deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

On the recall of the judiciary Cardinal Gibbons agrees with President Taft. To recall a judge, the cardinal thinks, would be an insult to the dignity, the independence and self respect of our judiciary. President Taft thinks so too. No doubt Judge Grosscup would have thought so had this principle of popular government been instituted against him.

It does seem strange how fearful men high up in church and state are of popular encroachments upon the established order of things. How solicitous they are about the dear old Constitution!

Why, if any ordinary man on the street were to say to his neighbor, "What has been good enough for our fathers ought to be good enough for us," words attributed to Cardinal Gibbons, he would be "dubbed" a mossback, old fogy, ignorant, unprogressive, and undesirable and a poor citizen. He would in truth be the Rip Van Winkle of his community, the laughing stock of the town.

And then, as if to crown his dissertation on the political economy of our time, the cardinal attempts to quote from the immortal Shakespeare. The cardinal says, "Better to bear the ills we know that fly to those we know not of." What Shakespeare really does say is to be found in Hamlet's soliloquy, Act III, Scene 1:

"For who would bear the whips and scorns of time,
The oppressor's wrong, the proud man's

Let's Dance on It's Grave.

By Frank Bohn.

On Tuesday, September 26th, the A. F. of L. "labor party" of San Francisco, the official representative of San Francisco's labor fakirs, prostitutes, contract and franchise grafters and professional gamblers, was buried by the votes of a long deceived working class.

But four months ago some well-meaning but gullible Socialists were talking compromise with this filthy outfit. The defeat of McCarthy by so overwhelming a vote at the primary as to make a further election unnecessary, will put an end, let it be hoped, to the "labor party" bogey for all time.

The "labor party" of San Francisco went in primarily as the agent of big business against little business.

Little business is puritanical. Big Business is pagan. The "labor party" sought to make San Francisco the "Paris of America." Little business wants "honest" government. Big business is willing to divide up with the political P. H. McCarthy and Co. got theirs. But the gang seemed to be too stupid to realize, as they put out all their sails, that the brisk wind was blowing them down Niagara River. After the fire and earthquake the workers in the building trades were paid from five to eight dollars a day, in fact they got as much as they asked for. At one time when the electrical workers were receiving five they demanded six. McCarthy would not let them have it. It would "injure the city," he said. I do not know whether or not McCarthy was a California "Native Son," but at any rate he was a San Francisco patriot. When the earthquake threw up wages McCarthy said, 'I did it, I and my little gang.'

The writer once sold copies of "Value, Price and Profit" at Socialist street meetings in San Francisco. At that time he regretted that McCarthy did not get one. Wages went up when the earthquake knocked the buildings down. Now that the buildings are up wages have gone down. Men who are supposed to get six dollars because they pay dues in a certain union get three dollars when they are on the job.

It is all very natural. When a carpenter got eight dollars and McCarthy said he did it, why should not the carpenter vote for McCarthy for Mayor? Now that wages have been cut in two, McCarthy may as well stand his drubbing and grin.

No, dear reader, the American Federation of Labor is not going to elect Sam Gompers President of the United States. The Socialist party has still something to live for.

A View of the Political Situation in Columbus, as Seen by an Old Party Politician.

A representative of this paper made a friendly call upon a well known Democratic politician of this city last Sunday afternoon. In the course of a friendly conversation it was natural that the political situation should be discussed.

The Representative was surprised when this gentleman expressed the opinion that the Socialist party would win at the polls in November. When asked his reasons for this statement, this gentleman expressed himself freely, and, as no promise was exacted that the conversation should be considered private, I have reproduced his words. They impressed themselves so strongly upon me that I believe that I have almost quoted him word for word:

"Any political party which would command any respect from thoughtful men should unswervingly advocate public measures and pursue policies at all times based upon certain well defined fundamental principles of government and social economy.

"Whether the citizen be a radical or a conservative, or have inclinations which lead him to steer a middle course, if he is thoughtful and aware of his duty to himself, his family and his city, he will ask of any party which seeks his support what its aims are. He will inquire whether those aims tend to realize his conptions of city government.

"The rapid changing of majorities between the Democratic and Republican parties in this city of recent years is due to the operation of this principle; and the fact that these changes have been both frequent and rapid is proof that these two parties have not pursued a consistent policy.

"The Democratic and Republican parties in Columbus have in fact become Opportunist, that is, they seek only the rewards of victory. They advocate today the policies they believe can win an election. Failing today, they change their position tomorrow.

"Parties dominated by men so void of definite principles, so ready to accommodate themselves to what they believe will win today, so forgetful of the broad and fundamental principles which gave life to their party and rewarded it with victories, cannot be expected to be otherwise than we find them in our city today.

Indifferent to Progress.

"They are indifferent to the demands of a progressive time. In defeat or opposition they are demoralized and ineffective. In times of when victory brings power and opportunity, they betray their trust. They seek only the selfish and personal rewards of the victory. The expectations of civic pride and patriotism are disappointed. The demands of those who can satisfy their greed alone receive consideration.

"And so the citizens of Columbus have swung from one party to another, not because either has satisfied the expectations of thoughtful men, but because the party in power has always signally disappointed them.

"The Democratic and Republican parties have held their strength in spite of these conditions because they have powerful organizations supported by powerful newspapers; and they have the advantage of an honorable and glorious past which older men remember; and for the additional reason that no new party has ever opposed them with policies which could appeal to the majority.

"I believe that, in so far as this city is concerned, such a party is now appealing to men and will be successful until the older parties return to the sound principles and the constant, public spirited and honorable conduct of their early leaders.

"The purposes of the political activity of men is to increase the pleasures and lessen the pain of this life; that is to say, we seek to make life more pleasant, to surround ourselves with all the conveniences with increase of wealth and the development of science, art and philosophy; to give to each person the best that they can obtain in return for the ability and effort that each contributes toward the production of the things we consume.

Purpose of Government.

"Stated in the terms which Jefferson and Lincoln might have used in applying this broad principle to practical politics, government should direct its energies to:

1. Secure to every person an opportunity to develop his capabilities, and to direct his efforts, that is to say, to study, plan and work, to the end that he may produce more and give to himself his family and his neighbors the best that is in him.

2. To secure to all the opportunity to develop the mind, to contemplate nature and to enjoy the rational pleasures which make greater effort possible.

3. To secure to each person the fruits of hi efforts.

4. To give to each person freedom and opportunity of choice of the occupation he will engage in.

"These are fundamental. They form the basis of the political philosophy of Jefferson and Lincoln. But the political methods by which these are secured to men necessarily change with the progress of the people.

"The legislation, the laws safeguarding men against the encroachments of selfish interests, that were sufficient in the time of Jefferson, cannot be effective now.

"Laws designed to prevent Regrating and Monopoly were necessary in the fifteenth century to ensure equal opportunities to all. But those laws were designed for an industrial condition in which traders met infrequently at Fairs, when the mechanism of trade was simple, when machanics were comparatively few, when the number and quantities of things manufactured were small.

"In Jefferson's day corporations were a small factor in our life; transportation was slow, communication was difficult, wealth was scattered.

"It would be absurd to believe that the laws designed then to give to all men equal opportunities in the pursuit of life, liberty and happiness.

"Populations have increased in our cities. The rural dweller has been brought closer to his neighbor and to the villages and cities. New discoveries and advances in mechanics have kept pace with the increasing needs of men, and the new conditions have brought new problems which old laws and old theories cannot solve.

In the city of Columbus the Democratic and Republican party leaders have never understood these changes. In fact they have been indifferent to them. The old ideas, the old policies, the old political methods are still followed by them. The warnings of frequent changes of majorities are misunderstood They do not now realize the meaning of the large registration in all Ohio cities. New political ideas appear to them to be but a passing fad, breaking now and then in spots, but destined to be forgotten. They have no well defined principles and no definite line of action.

People Ready For Change.

"A majority of the people of our city would be pleased to have an opportunity to support a party having such principles and advocating a well defined civic policy. Certainty of securing men who have civic pride and patriotism, who present a complete programme of political action, and whose enthusiasm and sincerity are apparent, would be preferable to most men to the continuance of the old uncertainties. An experiment with the new is much better than further experiments with those who have always failed us, year after year, and whose promises can not be depended upon.

"Such a new party has gained strength in our community. The Socialist party has presented men who are enthusiastic, sincere, and as capable as any presented by the other parties. And they have the additional merit of offering a complete platform of civic action which is as Republican as Lincoln and as Democratic as Jefferson and as advanced as Karl Marx."

Is Vagrancy A Crime?

JUDICIAL DESPOT ON POLICE COURT BENCH CONTINUES MERCILESS PERSECUTION OF JOBLESS VICTIMS OF THIS SYSTEM OF CAPITALISM—TOOL OF BIG BUSINESS SEEKS RE-ELECTION.

Within three weeks of a municipal election we can read in the daily papers the continuous and cowardly persecution of the working class of this city by the infamous mouthpiece of the Chamber of Commerce sitting in police court. We have had cases where workingmen have been arrested on the streets of this city (without any real cause) and thrown into that rotten stink hole on the bank of the polluted Scioto, a place not even fit to be inhabited by the poisonous insects one finds there upon entering. After a mock trial lasting only a few moments this poor unfortunate is sent to that profit grinding hell on West Main street (which could hardly have had a better name, The Workhouse) for from 30 to 300 days, making rat traps, grinding out profits for the masters, while in many cases their families at home are in immediate need of food and clothing, and for the horrible crime of being out of a job. Compare these cases with his rulings during the car strike, giving the strike breaking thugs imported to this city by E. K. Evans and Rice, headed by Ex-Convict Coach, permission to carry guns and these scabs using these guns to shoot innocent men, women and children, and in one case we know of, club Foly killing a peaceful citizen. These are just a few cases to illustrate to what extent the working class were made to suffer, because this tyrant who occupies a place where all are supposed to receive justice, hears his master's voice and is compelled to jump every time they pull the string. And it is with bitterness that we realize the votes of workingmen are responsible for the placing of such a tyrannical tool of our masters in a position to give us in return for our ballots, workhouse sentences, knowing positively it was by votes of the workers this ingrate was put in office. Mr. Workingman, can you tell me why you vote for such men as this? You certainly must go into the polls like one in a trance. Any workingman voting for this incompetent judge with full possession of his mental powers should serve life in Siberia. Arouse from this life long indifference. Vote to put men in office who are duty bound to protect and support the man who earns his bread by honest toil. Then and not until then can we, the soldiers of this great industrial battle, expect our emancipation. And it can only come by the elimination of the profit system through the Socialist party. Now from this time until emancipation day this must be our slogan, "Columbus for the Workers."

Elmwood Place Reds Are Intensely Active.

Will No Doubt Elect Their Local Ticket in November.

An enthusiastic meeting was held on the corner of Main and Walnut streets, Elmwood Place, at which Comrade Beery spoke to several hundred people. The crowd was carried away by his earnest appeal to study Socialism and elect workingmen to office. The campaign committee is now preparing for another meeting at the town hall and will try and get some good speaker to present the principles and platform of the Socialist party. The town is waking up and a Socialist administration is not only possible but probable.

The local ticket at Elmwood Place is as follows: Mayor—Valentine Knecht; Clerk—Eric Weber; Treasurer—Herman Staps; Councilmen—Charles Wollfram, James Manning, Harry Haynes, Fred Theil, Robert Staps, George V. Scott, Marshal—John Kluempke.

The comrades will distribute 700 copies of The Columbus Socialist this week and other literature.

THE UNION LABOR SONG.

There's a precious little emblem
that's familiar to you all;
It's a tried and true protector, come what may,
And where Labor stands united in response to duty's call,
This precious little star lights up the way;
Its mission is to bring about the Brotherhood of Man;
There's nothing that your rights so well defend.
Help it on with deed and word in every way you can;
Don't forget the Union Label is your friend!

Chorus:
It will make improved conditions, better homes and better wage;
And your aid to its advancement yo should lend;
It will make the country better, it will brighten history's page.
Don't forget the Union Label is your friend!

Though apparently so silent, yet it spreads throughout the land
For the noble cause it's striving to uphold;
To free sweatshop slaves the Union Label takes its stand
From the wretchedness and misery untold.
It will educate the people to the evils that exist.
And success will crown its efforts in the end;
Help it on its noble mission, it will win if you persist—
Don't forget the Union Label is your friend!

Socialist Nonpartisan Candidates.

The above caption has a peculiar sound, but the fact is that under our very peculiar election laws there are a number of Socialist candidates whose names will appear on separate ballot without any party designation. The list is as follows:

For Delegates to Constitutional Convention:

ELMORE E. ADEL,

MARSH C. GREEN,

JAMES H. HENDERSON.

Judicial Nominees—For Judge of the Police Court:

ENOCH B. EUBANKS.

For Justices of the Peace:

LEONARD B. TAYLOR,

RUFUS M. WOODY.

Members Board of Education—At Large:

GEORGIE CROOKS,

ELLA JUNE PURCELL.

Districts:

Third, WILLIAM H. BROOKS,

Fifth, WILLIAM R. DRAPER,

Seventh, CHARLES H. DE LONG.

These candidates have all been endorsed by the Socialist party and are Socialists. Become familiar with these names and the places for which they are candidates so that you may not be confused when you vote.

Modern life has no more tragic figure than the gaunt, hungry laborer wandering about the crowded centers of industry and wealth, begging in vain for permission to share in that industry, and to contribute to that wealth; asking in return not the comforts and luxuries of civilized life, but the rough food and shelter for himself and family which would be practically secured to him in the rudest form of savage society. "Civilization we have and lots of it, but does the worker partake of it, even though it be the result of his own skill and labor? He is still living in a savage society." So says John Hobson. Think it over. You have more work to do than to pay rent, rear a family and to assist in the accumulation of surplus for dividends. You are drafted soldiers in the great struggle for freedom. Are you ready?

Why Vote the Socialist Ticket?

The fight is now on. Are you with your class, or are you against them?

Who did you hike the streets for last year? Was it for the benefit of Mayor Marshall or the Chamber of Commerce protege, George Karb? Remember that George Marshall counts among his friends such labor crushers as Major Bush and the despiser of organized labor, Colonel Kautzman, who recently tried to issue some "rat" city printing. George Marshall saw no harm in sitting down to a banquet with these tin soldiers in spite of the fact that their main business is to crush the workers when they go out on strike.

Did you ever hear of your fellow worker Eby being invited to one of those military "love feasts?" "No!"

"Why?" Because he is of your class, the working class. Comrade Eby has no use for such vicious friends. He stands for the working class all of the time.

Where will you stand on November the 7th?

Light Extender.

Now since George Karb has announced himself in favor of a Light Extender Bond Issue (but not before he found out Eby's position in the matter) it will not do any harm to find out whether he is sincere in the matter of a Light Extender or not.

George is more interested in votes, especially Socialist votes, than he will ever be in a Light Extender. The very people fathering his campaign, and councilmen nominated by the Democrats, are opposed to a Light Extender, especially has Councilman at Large Mahanna shown himself opposed to a Light Extender by his vote. May be for votes he now favors a Light Extender also up to election time, as sincerely as Karb.

However, George Karb cannot favor a light extender and be true to the men, the big men, that are financing his campaign. If they thought that he did earnestly favor a light extender with a flat rate for all consumers, they would throw their support to Marshall, as his views, a high rate for the small consumer and a low one for the large consumer would favor them materially. However, a great many of the large manufacturers are supporting Marshall, because he favors such a proposition.

To the Rail Light, a light extender selling power and light will mean that practically all of its service plants will become confiscated, and the investments held by widows and orphans will not be worth the paper they are written on.

Now the question arises, what is it worth to the rail light to knock out the light extender, and keep its three service plants from becoming nothing but old iron?

This is a serious question for the voter to decide, and above all, he must beware as to where support in this campaign is going to. The Rail-Light will not support candidates for mayor and council, without expecting favors in return, and a reactionary council it has been demonstrated is as good as controlling the mayor.

Now, will Karb disown Mahanna, who does not favor a light extender? Only by the company they keep can we know practical politicians who boast that they have never been defeated. Karb, not having disowned Mahanna, who owes his political life to the same man that Karb does, James Ross, we take it for granted that the light extender is only a huge joke in their mind's eye, one that can be used to capture votes with, but further than that—nothing doing.

We feel though that between now and election time the public eye will discover things as they really are and not as they seem, by voting for the party that really does stand for a light extender, in the best interests of all, especially the small user of light, the Socialist Party Ticket.

Heavy Registration a Bad Omen for Both Old Parties.

With two registration days over with and practically two-thirds of the voters in the city registered, it speaks well for the intensity of the people's interest in this coming fall election.

We know of men who have not registered or voted for the last ten years, from the fact that they never had anything to vote for, as they considered both old parties owned and controlled by the money bags, registering this fall.

Why?

Because the Socialist party with its campaign of intelligence, conducted all through the summer, has impressed itself on the voter's mind as being something different politically from both old parties that in the past have been controlled by bosses. The voter has come to the realization that there must be a revolutionary change in the industrial oligarchy that the American people are facing today.

Knowing now that there is a party in the field, the Socialist party, that stands for the change that is bound to come, he has thrown off his political indifference by registering and will vote his sentiments at this fall election.

Men imbued with a definite principle do not have to be coaxed to go to the polls to register. Neither do they have to be hauled to the polls in automobiles to register their protest in favor of the change that is bound to come and that will emphasize itself for the second time in the history of our country, as it did for the first time in Milwaukee, by the capturing of the city of Columbus by the Socialist party.

Up, comrades, and doing. We have them on the run and victory is ours.

Socialists Attention.

Don't forget to tell your friends that the DELEGATES to the Constitutional Convention are on a SEPARATE BALLOT. This also is true of the Judicial and School Board candidates. Spread the NEWS.

Reveille!

On October 12th 1492, Columbus discovered America and on Nov. 7th 1911, I confidently believe that America will discover Columbus.

Never have I seen such enthusiasm, such willingness to give of time and money as I have seen the working people of Columbus exhibiting during this campaign.

Before such a self-sacrificing volunteer organization as Local Columbus Socialist Party, the well-paid but spiritless mercenaries of the capitalist political machines stand powerless for open warfare and must necessarily resort to the underhand methods of personal villification and appeals to race and religious prejudice.

The pitiful cry of Mayor Marshall in his Fourteenth Ward speech shows how utterly even a reformer (so-called) misunderstands the genius of Socialism when all he can offer is a patchwork platform hastily constructed in a delirium of political ambition.

The renowned Karb handshake has lost its power since E. K. Stewart undertook to give culinary instructions and formulate working-class dietetics on a basis of rice and beans. I wonder whom Stewart will vote for for mayor?

The enormous factory meetings have been an inspiration to me for they give the proof that our message is now listened to and accepted by the most important sub-class of the working-class, that is, by the worker whose family cares and responsibilities has tinged with caution.

I feel sure that the record registration is accounted for only on the theory that thousands of working men have in the past refrained from voting because of their disgust with the low moral tone of politics. Their curiosity was aroused by the vote of last election. Since then they have satisfied themselves on three points. First: That we are as clean and cleaner than the reformer because of the class of men and women who make up our party. To some people it is still a paradox that even though we repudiate all puritanism, yet a drunkard in the Socialist party is as rare as a white blackbird. Secondly: This careful, home-loving workingman has learnt that we as a party have shown in Milwaukee that we have a capacity for government undreamed of before. And we have paid him the greatest compliment in history by seeking this talent, not in the lawyer's office, but from the ranks of his shopmates.

Thirdly: He is satisfied that if he votes the Socialist ticket in this election, he will come within measurable distance of commencing to get what he really wants because of the thousands who were willing to "throw away their vote" for the same thing last election.

To sum up, I believe that the propaganda of the past year has aroused the confidence of the working-class of Columbus, both in the party and in themselves. This is a far greater achievement than making them mere Marxian scholars and theoreticians.

The reunion of the "exiles" was but the preliminary to the reunion of the "walking-clubs" that will take place on November 7th, when the workers of Columbus will march in ballot-formation on the City Hall. Up, guards! and at 'em.

Yours for victory,

WALTER J. MILLARD.

Strenuous times are ahead of us, according to all the evidences. The great boost in the prices of certain foods due to private capitalist ownership has added to the unrest of the people. In Europe the people have broken through their natural reluctance and are actually rioting against the high prices. Wall Street is secretly talking of a coming panic, and news comes from New York that the bread lines of the unemployed are lengthening. Reports of increasing unemployment come from various cities. Winter is dreaded. The recent strikes in England were only settled temporarily and the people still mutter. The press and pulpit there are voicing warnings. The throne in Spain is again shaking. In Ireland the people are revolting against high prices and low wages. In France the cost of living is producing portentous unrest. In fact, the cost of living promises to become a world-wide issue. As long as parasites rule, wrong relations will exist and must be resisted.

WILLIAM J. BURNS AND ORGANIZED LABOR.

The subsidized press is trying to breed public venom against the McNamara brothers now on trial in Los Angeles. Every time the trains carrying their emmissary W. J. Burns stop, the reporters are rushed to the train to see what "Burns has to say."

Those who have read the pages of past historical conspiracies and kingly murders realize that were it not for the strength of organized labor the McNamara brothers would have been hung long ago. It must be remembered that Burns is the servant of the oppressors, while on the other hand the McNamara's are suffering for the oppressed

Apparently Mr. Burns has taken upon himself to speak for organized labor regarding their financial resources and the "defence fund of $1,000,000" and again when he says "ninety per cent of organized labor believes the persecutors right. Let Mr. Burns read the denunciation of his friend Grey Wolf Otis, as expressed by Governor Hiram Johnston of California. Organized labor will not stand for the bloody rule of Mammon. Too long the workers have suffered this reign of industrial despotism. Today more than one silent tongue is expressing its sentiments at the ballot box. Their gatling guns and pilfering sneaks will not be able to thwart the will of Organized labor's stands for Courts of Justice and not for capitalistic inquisitions, Mr. Burns.

CONVENTION DOINGS.

The Photo Engraver for October is a work of art. The issue contains some fine views of the city of Detroit and a series of quaint cuts of some of the delegates. The lady delegates are classed as suffragettes and anti-suffragettes. There does not seem to be much "anti" in their looks. The convention was one of importance to the craft at large and progressive in principle.

The Bakers and Confectionery Workers Convention went on record for greater effort to found a system of co-operative bakeries. This is one of the most progressive moves made in the history of American labor. The Bread Trust now is to fight the workers with a new weapon. The problem now is to secure the flour from the flour trust. We hope that when the flour mill workers meet they will lay plans to operate their own flour mill. The co-operation of industry is a success in Europe and it can be made so here.

Why Ponder? Fellow Worker Are You Blind?

Fellow worker, you are today like the traveller in the snow storm. YOU ARE TRYING TO FIND SOMEONE WHO WILL SHOW YOU THE WAY HOME. Fellow worker, YOU are standing at the cross-roads of adversity. We have seen you climb the signpost and seemingly wipe the snow off the directing boards so you could find the right road. At the present time it is not snow that blinds your vision. It's political salve. You have been looking in the window of future selfish expectations and the sight has strained your eyes, and now you are walking backwards. You appear to be trying to get away from yourself. WAKE UP and look in the other window and see LITTLE MAJOR BUSH with his GATTLING GUN trying to terrorize your striking fellow workers. Look! see that gang of thugs beating the heads of your fellow citizens down in DEATH VALLEY. YOU have just woke in time to see THUG BRADY DISCHARGED from the COURT. Look, there goes his crippled female victim! Listen to the cries of the wife and babies of the men behind prison walls! They were convicted on the evidence of the THUGS AND THIEVES brought here to take the jobs of honest citizens. Wake up! Wash the SALVE OFF YOUR EYELIDS!

There are three roads for YOU TO TRAVEL. Fellow workers, one leads to industrial tyranny. YOU can take EITHER the KARB or MARSHALL ROAD. You will find the ditch at the end of both roads. But if YOU want TO TRAVEL to INDUSTRIAL FREEDOM, take the EBY ROAD. You will find the river of Social Justice at the end of the Socialist road.

The Iron Trades conventions so far have moved the membership into the progressive lines. The cause of this is the attitude of the employers on the "open shop" programme. The day is not far off when the iron trades will march under the banner. When this comes, many of the "little leaders" will be registered no the "missing" list. The Printers, Brewery Workers and the Miners are moving onward because they stand for industrialism. It's time for the rank and file to move for progressive principle. If we do some of the reactionary leaders will steer the ship of Labor on the rocks.

JESUIT PRIEST SCORES THE PARASITES.

In a speech bristling with satire and wit, Father Bernard Vaughan, London's famous Jesuit orator, flayed grasping capitalists, made a plea for ashigher and broader Christianity.

The famous "Mayfair Jesuit" whose sermons on the sins of society aroused all England last year while speaking to a vast audience in the Twelfth Regiment Armory, New York City, held his listeners spell bound as he denounced dishonest and grasping employers. Here are some of his aphorisms:

"Some people work well at their meals, but not between them."

"It is bad economy to starve the poor that the rich may wallow in luxuries."

"Every human being has a right to live as a human being."

"Any employer who does not give a living wage or enforces excessive hours of work or does not provide sanitary surroundings for his employes is a sweater, and the sooner he is taken by the scruff of the neck and shown the Hudson River, the better."

"Our spiritual vitality is threatened by material luxuries."

"The Christian Church, today, needs men to be lifted up in ideals."

CATHOLIC PRIEST VOUCHES FOR REIGN OF TYRANNY.

The following statement is from the New York World: "Franklin Furnace, N. J.—This mining village of 1,500 persons has within the past fortnight witnessed lawless scenes worthy of the California of '49.

"After the New Jersey Zinc Company had denied the right of its employes to organize a labor union and had discharged a score or more of its men who had enrolled as members, an armed mob of vigilantes took upon itself to invade miners' houses, drag them to work or order them out of town.

"Franklin furnace lies in the picturesque valley of Walkill and is a straggling settlement. Its one industry is that of the New Jersey Zinc Company. The center of things is known as green spot, the main entrance to the mine, near which are situated the company's offices, the company store and homes of the officers in charge. At different widely scattered points of the company's property—and nearly everything in Franklin Furnace belongs to the company—live the miners and other employes."

The New York World is authority for the statement, given by employes, that armed men broke into their homes, assaulted them and their wives, dragged them to jail and banished them from the town because they would not give up the union. Father McGuinness, the village priest, said: "Men were told if they did not dress and go to work they would be taken to jail. As a result the local jail contained that day a good complement of men. They are all out now. I don't know where."

IN MEMORIAM.

Labor must never forget her friends. The death of Colonel W. A. Taylor was one of the men in the early days of the labor movement who dared to take the side of organized labor. It was Colonel Taylor who as one of the Cincinnati Enquirer correspondents reported the Hocking Valley strike. All his writings favored the workers. He has gone, and we feel sure, to the reward merited by all heroic souls.

O. F. OF L. REPORT.

In our next issue we shall endeavor to give a digested report of the resolutions acted upon by the O. F. of L. We wish to await the issuance of the report of Delegate M. J. Gillis at the Columbus Federation of Labor meeting.

THE TRUTH IS STRANGER THAN FICTION.

Recently the Knights of Columbus gave a banquet in this city. Among the guests were several prominent FREE MASONS. In a recent issu of one of the Catholic papers, the members of the Catholic church are warned, to beware of SOCIALISM, because it is the fore runner of free masonry. The article goes on to say that MASONRY and Socialism have made France a nation of infidels.

It was at this banquet that Attorney General of Ohio, Timothy Hogan denounced Woman's Suffrage, regarding it as a joke. Y t even while he was hurling forth his villification against womanhood the wires were ringing from the Western shores with the song "Votes for Women."

Some day the laymen of the Catholic church, will get wise to the tricks of these church politicians who cry "beware" of Masonry and Socialism because they claim it means infidelism. It is a well known fact that such hypocritical acts are driving earnest christian into the ranks of the "indifferents." "Truth is stranger than fiction" at a K. of C. banquet.

TALES OF THE STREET.

A prominent High Street business man was discussing the political held in Columbus. He placed the figures for the Socialist vote at a very low margin but he admitted the fact that from experience and acquainance with Socialists they were in the habit of voting a straight ticket.

Some of the plutes are worried for fear the Socialists will elect a police judge. Comrade Eubanks is just smiling and making ready to take his seat. Some of the wise ones say Police Judges must be lawyers. But those who really do know the law say that this requirement is not imperative on the elected official. Comrade Eubanks does not profess to be acquainted with the tenets of the Common law but he graduated with honors from the school of good common horse sense.

Comrade "Bob" Radebaugh is testing his penmanship. Bob experience in the business world has fitted him for the office of City Treasurer.

The Socialist don't have to be pledged for the light extender question. They stand for the people all the time. But wait till they take there seats.

Why Not Investigate the Investigators?

The Ohio Penitentiary Scapegoat.

Those who read the stories of the State prison wind investigation are lead to believe that Warden Jones is responsible for the sad state of affairs inside the walls. It would be well for the readers to remember that the governor of this state of Ohio is aspiring for the nomination of president on the Democratic ticket and the revelations might hurt his chances, so the attorney general has been called into the limelight to give the people a bottle of smoke investigation. Of course when the cork is taken out of the bottle there will be nothing left.

Warden Jones is a true humanitarian and he refused to allow the grafting bolt contractors to impose upon the unfortunate under his care. But the bolt contractor went elsewhere for their privileges, and from that time on the BOLT CONTRACTORS have run the prison to suit themselves. In the past the contractors have run things to their advantage and so have some of the past wardens. The prison for years has been a place of persecution and special privilege. The men in charge have become rich at the expense of the taxpayers and the unfortunates in their charge.

It's amusing to hear Mr. Timothy Hogan rant about "the enforcement of the law." Why does he not enforce the mandates of the WERTZ LAW and drive out prison contract labor? Mr. Hogan, why don't you put your stunt on at Keith's? It certainly is funny. You might call your act "For the Love of Man," and that man is Judson Harmon. It's a joke, sure.

THE OHIO FEDERATION OF LABOR

Convention Convened in Cleveland, Ohio, October 9th, 1911.

The delegates to the Cleveland convention of the Ohio Federation of Labor have returned to their homes to ponder over the results of their deliberations. The next matter is the presentation of their report of the things proposed for the benefit of organized labor and the accomplishments of the past year.

The men and women who were present as convention delegates deserve credit for their being there. If there is any criticism to be made it should be laid at the door of the organizations who refused to send delegates to voice their newly expressed sentiments.

To a certain extent the body was reactionary. While it has gone on record for the Initiative and Referendum and the right of Recall, those at the helm in many instances have failed to take advantage of Direct Legislation efficiency

One of the delegates was heard to express himself on the absence of the "radical element." This utterance proved that the delegate was not representing the real pulse of the movement because the only conservatives are those who have jobs and the radicals are those who are jobless or fear they may be so.

The removal of the name of E. L. Hitchens from the list of state vice presidents is a sad loss to the Ohio Labor Movement. Brother Hitchens has won the respect of his auditors on every occasion when he has appeared before the Ohio Legislature. His work in behalf of the woman's nine hour bill (the measure which Governor Harmon refused to sign) lifted Mr. Hitchens into the front ranks of the world's labor exponents. Brother Hitchens is one of the scholarly orators of the labor movement.

Harry Thomas was re-elected state secretary and for small mercies apparently we must be satisfied at this time.

A resolution was introduced to give power to a committee to be appointed by the president for the selection of speakers for the Ohio Centennial Labor Day. This censorship will keep in the background the inmates of the gunroom and will allow the manicured ballroom politicians to exalt their earthly wisdom and prove their political strength before their masters. This was the purpose of the resolution and we hope the means will justify the end. It may be probable that the coal miners will be part of the next convention. This will infuse new [illegible] into the movement and we hope broader views. The present body could pass through the eye of a needle and never touch the sides.

The convention was full of "Harmony" without the "y" and now the convention is dead. Peace to its ashes. Someday it will rise greater in force and examples. Therein lies our future hopes.

On the Free Use of Public School Buildings.

The public school buildings are public property, built by public taxation. The people, therefore, should have the right to use the buildings for all legitimate, public purposes, free. In fact, it seems an utter absurdity that the taxpayers of Columbus, who pay hundreds of thousands of dollars to build and maintain school buildings should be prohibited from using them for the general public good.

Our public school system was founded, primarily, for the education of children. But why should not the possible good of the system be extended by opening the school buildings for the advancement of humanity in general? Can you see any insurmountable objection to permitting any respectable organization whose aim is the education or upliftment of mankind the free use of the public school buildings for public meetings?

At present we are not getting the proper return for the money invested in the school buildings. They are used seven or eight hours a day, five days a week, for eight or nine months a year. The rest of the time they stand vacant, worthless, unproductive. Socialists can see no logical reason why the public should not receive as much value from the money invested in the buildings as is possible. The expense of allowing the free use of the buildings in the evenings and on Saturdays and Sundays and holidays would be trifling; the good to the people would on the other hand, be inestimable.

For example, why not throw open the public schools—when they are not being used for school purposes—as public club houses? In many parts of this city there are hundreds of people who have no place in which to spend their evenings. Shall we continue to permit the saloon to be the "poor man's club house" when public buildings are standing idle?

If one room in every school building in Columbus were to be opened for public meetings and as a social center, we believe the good results in one year would constitute an unanswerable argument in favor of opening all the rooms of all buildings.

ELLA JUNE PURCELL.

Notes from Regions Beyond.

Columbus as the "Storm Center of Socialism" is decidedly upon the map as a hasty glance over sub orders from Ohio will indicate.

Local Hamilton County through its secretary, Comrade Oekelmann, ordered $5 worth of sub cards last week. This shows that there is Socialist life down there.

Canton fires two new subs in for three months each.

Comrade E. E. Bauer of Local Wadsworth sends in a good list of new subs and renewals and reports a wide awake organization.

Comrade L. H. Scholl of Local Pomeroy sends in nine new subs from that reservation.

MY UNCLE PETER.

By Emma A. Opper.

My old Uncle Peter 's a famous relater
Of marvelous stories; but my Uncle Peter
Is a vigorous foe and a rigorous hater
Of wile and of guile, he despises a cheater;
He's frank and sincere on a very large scale,
And this is his manner of telling a tale:

"Oh, once in the chivalric days of old,
In the wonderful long ago,
There dwelt a Giant full bad and bold
(But this is not fact, you know,)—
In whose darksome dungeon a maiden fair,
Whom atrociously he had stole;
She languished and wept (to be candid, there
Was no such a girl, nor hole.)

"But, lo! on a rapturous morn there rode
A valorous Knight that way;
His snowy palfry he brave bestrode
(Don't credit this fiction, pray,)
And straight he sprang from the noble steed;
His sword it gleamed in the sun,
And the dragon that guarded the gate (a deed
Which he could by no means have done.)

"He falled at a blow, and with mighty force
He battered the dungeon wall,
And he seized the sorrowing maid! (of course
It never transpired at all)—
And he slew the giant, the dauntless youth,
And the beauteous maid he wed
(But you mustn't imagine a grain of truth
In a single word that I've said)."

Oh, my old Uncle Peter 's a famous relater!
But I wish, goodness me! that my old Uncle Peter
Could be rather more of a prevaricator—
His stories would be more absorbing, and neater;
I wish his integrity didn't prevail
In so stern a degree—when he's telling a tale.

From St. Nicholas.

AT DANCING SCHOOL.

To most little girls and many little boys dancing-school is a delight, but not to all. The mother of one small boy, who usually accompanies him to the class, partly to encourage him—regularly as the fateful hour approaches he is sunk in resentful and despairing gloom—and partly to enjoy the pretty spectacle, noticed one afternoon lately that although he had bowed correctly before several little girls in turn, he had failed to secure a partner. She beckoned him to her side.

"Why wouldn't any of those little girls dance with you, Bobby?" she inquired. "Did you ask them nicely?"

"Well, mama," admitted Bobby, reluctantly, "I'm not sure whether it was nice, exactly, but it was truthful; and you say I'm always to tell the truth. I said, 'May I have the pain of this dance with you?' and they wouldn't any of them dance with me. But you know perfectly well, mama, it wouldn't have been true if I had said 'pleasure.'"

Bobby's partners, when he was induced to use a formula somewhat less frank, were almost always selected from among girls older and larger than himself. His mother remonstrated, adding, as she indicated a light and graceful little girl of something less than his own years, "Why do you never ask little Katharine? She dances beautifully."

He turned a baleful eye on Katharine, who was indeed an admirable dancer, but a rather overdressed, precocious and noticeable child, and demanded with indignant scorn:

"Do you s'pose I'd be complicated by that kid?"

His feelings were respected, and he was allowed the modified "pain" of selecting a more sedate partner.

The shy little daughter of a distinguished novelist, who was recently sent for the first time to dancing-school, had long dreaded the ordeal. Her father, knowing her fondness for poetry, tried to overcome her fears by familiarizing her mind with alluring songs and poems, picturing the joyous sportiveness of the dance; and he appeared to have succeeded. Especially was she pleased with the airy charm of the Shakespearian injunction to the fairies to "foot it featly here and there," and with the Miltonic invitation to Come and trip it as ye go

On the light fantastic toe.

Thus poetically inspired, and sheered also by the possession of a pair of fascinating bronze slippers with beaded bows, she started off in fair spirits. But alas! once arrived, bashfulness overpowered her, and she found the afternoon an embarrassing and unhappy experience. Returning home, she cast the treasured slippers wildly from her as she entered, flung herself into her father's arms and sobbed in a voice of miserable disillusionment:

"I don't want to foot it featly, papa, I don't want to! And oh, I don't want my toes fantastic! I like my every-day common-sense feet lots better!"—From Youth's Companion.

(The following letter was written by a boy in New York, soon after last spring's election, and was printed in the Little Socialist Magazine, which is now called the Young Socialists' Magazine.)

To the Editor of the Little Socialist Magazine.

I write to tell you how my teacher spoke about the Socialist Party.

The following afternoon, after election, my teacher was speaking about politics, when she came to speak of the Socialist Party. Then she said: "Don't ever vote the Socialist ticket, when you grow up to be men. I think there isn't a boy in this class whose father votes the Socialist ticket.

I knew there was a boy in her class whose father voted the Socialist ticket, which was my father.

One little girl was courageous enough to defend the Socialist Party, and asked the teacher, why he condemned the Socialist Party and not the rest of the parties.

The teacher replied: "When Russian people land at Ellis Island, and they know not our language, then the Socialists force them to wear red flags, and to down the government."

The little girl asked: "What about child labor?"

The teacher replied: "You read the wrong paper, and you didn't read the answers in the others, as 'The New York Journal.' The teacher said, "The government of New York is the best in the world. Nowadays a poor man gets treated as good as a wealthy man."

The Socialists don't know what a good government is, and the last thing she said was: "I hope no scholar in this class, when he or she grows into manhood and womanhood, will vote for the Socialist Party or be an Anarchist."

Respectfully yours,
HUGO HAFFNER.

Make Things Hot For the Mayor of Canton, Ohio.

Canton, Ohio.—Notwithstanding a continuous downpour of rain from 5:30 to about 9 o'clock, Eugene V. Debs addressed an audience of about 3,500 people in the Auditorium of this city. His address was one of the most masterful efforts of his life. The audience seemed to be with him from start to finish. The Massillon socialist band rendered a half hour's concert preceding the lecture.

When Harry S. Schilling, Socialist candidate for mayor; Attorney Allen Cook, candidate for city solicitor, and George D. Brewer, Debs' manager, appeared upon the stage, there was a demonstration that struck terror to the hearts of their opponents. The applause and cheers was indescribable.

The Republican ticket, headed by C. D. Burns as candidate for mayor, is no longer considered in the fight. The campaign is now waged between Mayor Turnbull on the Democratic ticket, who is up for his fourth term, supported by all the grafters, bribers, sycophants, wine rooms, houses of ill fame and the Socialists, who have an able, clean ticket in the field and who are receiving the hearty support of a majority of the intelligent voters of the city.

The Socialists openly charge Mayor Turnbull with grafting on the houses of ill fame; the gambling dens; the forty or more wine rooms that are run wide open seven days and seven nights in the week, luring young girls to their ruin; with attending cock fights on Sunday in wide open saloons; with incompetency and dishonesty in street paving, water works and practically every department of the city government, specifically naming the charges and how and where committed.

Neither Mayor Turnbull nor any one connected with his administration have publically denied these charges, notwithstanding they have been defied to do so by the socialists of this city.

The Union Reporter, the alleged trades union organ of Canton, is opposing the Socialist candidate for mayor, Harry S. Schilling, notwithstanding he is an able man and a member of the printers' union in good standing.

It is advocating the election of Mayor Turnbull, who is the foe of trades unionism and who ordered the policemen's club upon the heads of the members of the striking Amalgamated Association in this city about one year ago. The trades unionists of Canton and surrounding cities are dropping the Union Reporter as an enemy of the movement.

Meetings are held in various parts of the city practically every day and evening and are addressed by local speakers. Frederick Strickland, John W. Slayton and Ben F. Wilson are engaged for large meetings during the latter part of the campaign. Keep your eye on Canton.

Indiana State Socialist News.

(James Oneal, State Secretary, 309½ Ohio Street, Terre Haute.)

The Socialists at Lyons must have been watching with envy the record the Socialists at Dunkirk made by organizing with 58 members. At any rate, the Lyons comrades went Local Dunkirk one better by organizing with 54 charter members. They should now see which can secure the largest number of members in good standing for the next month.

The old local at Medora has revived, and starts with 18 members. Report from there has it that the revived local will prove to be a permanent one, and as evidence of good faith, they are arranging two meetings for Comrade Wattles.

The former local at Staunton has followed the example of Medora and revived with 18 members, and with good prospects for an increase in membership shortly. Local Staunton will also nominate a ticket for the fall election.

Florence Wattles organized a local of 14 members at Bloomfield which, together with the strong locals at Linton, Lyons and Jasonville, provides the basis for another good county organization. One of the comrades who has received word from the railroad company that his political ideas belong to the company, and that he should not be so active in politics. The nerve of the exploiters is a wonderful thing.

The application for a charter from Fortville reported last week has arrived with 18 signatures of Reds attached. The comrades at Pendleton, a few miles north of Fortville, are now anxious to organize a local, and instructions on "how to do it" are in their hands.

The Socialists at Spencer and Shirley have been out of the fold for a long time, but are now anxious to get back in and nominate tickets for the fall elections. The comrades at Worthington have also nominated, and even their opponents admit that they have the best qualified men in the town on the Socialist ticket.

The Linton comrades have been attacked because they carried the red flag in the Labor Day parade, and as a result of the attack the local received 18 applications for membership. A knock from the enemy is always a boost.

The Boy Scout movement is being introduced into the public schools of Fort Wayne, and the local will see to it that proper information is circulated making known what this training of children in the ideals of blood-lust means.

Local Hartford City is attracting a good deal of interest to the movement following two addresses by Ira Tilton. A local physician has challenged the local to a debate, which will be held October 29th, and E. C. Garrison will accommodate the doctor. It is safe to say that the debate will result in increasing the membership of the local.

Many of the small towns in the state will have town elections this fall and wherever Socialist tickets have been nominated the comrades are urged to get the vote of the last town election, and send it, together with the latest returns, to the state office, so they can be reported to the party press.

A FEW QUESTIONS.

The Survey for September has published an article by Miss Isabelle C. Barrows, of New York, in which the searchlight has been directed toward the Ohio Penitentiary, its management and the conditions that make it unsanitary and generally unfit for the purpose for which it is used.

In addition to her comment, I wish to call the attention of the public to a few matters beyond the ken of Miss Barrows.

The statement was recently made, by local newspapers, by authority of the management of the penitentiary, that there were at present over 6,000 bushels of potatoes at the penitentiary farm, at Morgan Station. If this is true, why are potatoes being purchased elsewhere at an exorbitant price? Why, if potatoes are so plentiful at Morgan Station do they not use them?

Since the removal from office of Messrs. Quinn and Randall, the quality of food has been bettered, but there are still hundreds of men who are doing man-killing work in Bolt Shop No. 5, and in other of the ILLEGAL contract shops, which are run to increase the already swollen fortunes of the Lanman family, who have nothing but bread and jelly(?) or molasses for their morning meal. When the prison restaurant was in operation, these men were permitted to buy their own breakfast, but now they literally starve during the forenoon, as their meagre breakfast does not give them strength to cope with the toil they are forced to do. Why not change the breakfast menu?

The soil buckets used in the cells are in a frightful, unsanitary condition. Chloride of lime is used only on Sundays and then very sparingly. The stench from these buckets is nauseating; but imagine the atmosphere of the cell-house when a large percentage of the buckets are leaky and unfit for use. Can't the State afford a new supply?

The prisoners are not all financiers; in fact many are penniless. Yet many of the latter kind are denied the privilege of washing their clothes, as it takes too much of the valuable time the contractor has bought. As a result the place is reeking with body vermin and no effort seems to be under way to alleviate these conditions. In fact it seems to be getting worse, for only last week the warden, T. H. B. Jones, issued orders depriving the prisoners of individual washbasins, most of which were their personal property.

Do the people at large indorse filth, simply because a man is a prisoner?

Several months ago the warden had all the lamps removed from the cells and confiscated, yet these same lamps were sold to the prisoners, with the same warden's consent, at a fixed price. Does that savor of honesty of purpose or the "Square deal?" The money was not returned.

Warden Jones has accomplished many things beneficial, during his regime; for instance the abolition of the paddle in the prison court, yet under his management, more men have suffered, in broken scalps, arms, etc., by a club in the hands of a guard, as is evidenced by the reports in local papers, than under any previous administration. Previous officials first tried the man in prison court before punishing him; today the prisoners are beaten with a club FIRST and tried afterward, at the slightest provocation. If Warden Jones is the head and in full control, why is this allowed if his principles are humane, as he says?

Now, that the ball is rolling, why not keep it on the go, until all the spots have been reached and remedied? Why are bankers, politicians, etc., allowed to live on the "fat of the land," while other poor devils, who stole because of hunger or necessity, are compelled to sweat and swelter for the bare chance of being permitted to serve their sentences, without having their heads cracked open by some ILLITERATE, DRUNKEN, IMMORAL, LOW-BROWED guard, who outside of his "political pull" is incompetent to care for pigs, much less men?

There are some guards who are conscientious, God-fearing men, but there are others who are worse than beasts.

Knowing your paper to be honest, fearless and just to all, I ask that you publish this to inform the public of the real INSIDE condition of affairs at the Hotel De Jones, as seen by "a prisoner's SISTER."

SISTER.

DIALOGUE.

First Mule—"I want to go to town today, but I can't go."

Second Mule—"Why can't you go?"

First Mule—"Got nobody to ride me."

Second Mule—"Can't you strike out without anybody riding you?"

First Mule—"Are you crazy? Who ever heard of such a proposition? That would be like laboring and enjoying the whole product of your toil yourself."

Second Mule—"And that would be SOCIALISM. Don't want it."

Destroying the Home.

By W. S. MORGAN.

One of the scarecrows crooked by the crooked and cranky cuckoos of capitalism is that Socialism will destroy the home. This is such a monstrous and palpable lie that any man who will believe it ought to be bored for the simples. Of course there are lots of people who do believe it; but there are lots of people who need the above mentioned treatment.

Under the present system the man whose earnings, or rather whose wages, are enough to enable him to do so, buys or builds him a home. The love of a home and a family is an universal law of nature, and no political creed or religious dogma can change that inexorable law. Its foundations are physical, intellectual and spiritual, and are too deeply rooted to be changed by any kind of environment, even that of vice.

Since under a system of Socialism every man who would work would receive the full reward of his labor, a much greater number would be able to own their own homes. Collective ownership of homes is not in the creed of Socialism. Whatever is for private use shall be privately owned. Put that in your pipe and smoke it. The home is not for public but for private use.

It is capitalism that is breaking up the homes from both a moral and material standpoint. Capitalism robs the workingman of a portion of that which he creates and makes it much more difficult for him to own a home.

In the abstract of the twelfth census, pages 132 to 135, appear figures relative to the ownership of homes in the cities of the United States having over 25,000 population. From the rented and mortgaged houses capitalism draws its tribute. Socialism will eliminate this tribute. Study the figures below:

	Free.	Mortgaged.	Rented
Chicago, Ill.	39,246	48,735	253,553
Birm'gh'm, Ala	794	284	6,694
Canton, O	1,920	1,324	3,592
Cedar R'p's, Ia.	1,632	1,192	2,351
Akron, O	2,912	2,001	4,238
Cincinnati O.	9,735	4,915	56,384
Columbus, O.	4,446	3,204	17,822
Dallas, Tex	2,233	539	5,685
Denver, Colo	5,000	3,114	21,215
Kans. City, Mo	2,451	1,227	28,456
New York City	35,050	48,002	617,474
Philadel'a, Pa.	39,028	24,012	196,124
St. Louis, Mo.	16,097	9,699	90,963
Springfield, Ill.	2,306	1,223	5,674

A careful study of the above table will show that in the large cities, and in the smaller cities where there are extensive manufacturing interests the percentage of free homes is disproportionately small.

In New York City, where a great amount of capital is aggregated, there are only 35,050 free homes, 48,002 are mortgaged, and 616,474 are rented. Only 35,050 free homes out of a grand total of 690,526. In the smaller cities where there is little manufacturing carried on the percentage of free homes is much greater, as in Dallas, Texas, Denver, Colo., and Akron, Ohio. In Birmingham, a great manufacturing center, there are only 794 free homes, while 284 are mortgaged, and 6,694 are rented.

The showing of farm homes is some better. Of the 18,066,473 farm homes, 4,739,914 are owned free of mortgage, 3,180,223 are mortgaged, and 5,346,747 are rented.

As bad as the above showing is for capitalism and its lazy, lying scoundrels who charge that Socialism will break up the home, the table showing the distribution of wealth makes it much worse. In showing the distribution of wealth makes it much worse. In showing the distribution of homes the home of the capitalist, although it may have cost millions of dollars, is pitted against the modest cottage of the wage-worker, or the log house of the owner of a very small farm.

An eminent authority gives the wealth distribution as follows:

Of the wealth classes, who are worth $50,000 and over, there are 125,000, and they own $33,000,000,000 of the wealth of the United States, or about 55 per cent of it.

The well-to-do classes who are worth from $5,000 to $50,000 own $22,000,000,000 or about 33 per cent of it. Of this latter class there are 1,375,000 persons, but few wage-earners could be included in the above classes. We, therefore, have 1,500,000 persons, or less than two per cent of the population, owning $56,000,000,000, or 87 per cent of the wealth of the United States.

Then comes what we might term the middle class, or those who own from $500 to $5,000. Of these there are 5,500,000 who own $200,000, or about 12 per cent of the wealth.

Next we have the poor, or those who own less than $500. Of these there are 5,500,000 who own $800,000,000, or about one per cent of the entire country.

It is the two latter classes who create nearly all the wealth of the United States, yet they own but 13 per cent of it.

To a man up a tree it looks like there had been some "dividing up," and the non-producers got the biggest pile.

How does it look to you, Rube?

How does it look to you, John Henry?

"Button, button, who's got the button?"

There's the wealth; who made it?

There's the wealth; who's got it?

Why is it that men who created it do not own their just share of it?

With your share of that wealth you could own your own home.

Socialism will give you your share of it.

Socialism does not divide the wealth of the great rs with the non-producers.

These questions are up to you, Mr. Workingman.

Which would you rather do, have the full reward of your labor and thus be able to own your own home, or listen to the howling Dervishes of capitalism who favor a system that has produced the condition so plainly shown by the figures quoted above?

It is the system of capitalism that destroys the home and the above figures prove it.

(NOTE: The above figures represent the assessed valuation of the property in the United States. As the rich are the greatest dodgers of taxes a comparison based upon the actual value of property owned by all classes would make a worse showing than the above.)

THE SOCIALISTS' CITY PLATFORM.

We, the Socialist Party of the City of Columbus, Ohio, assembled in mass convention, reaffirm our allegiance to the principles of International Socialism as embodied in our National and State Platform.

The first consideration in all municipal affairs should be the interest of the working class. The Socialist Party is organized not only to elect good and efficient men to office but to control the powers of political government in order to guarantee to the workers the possession and operation of the means of production and distribution and the full social product of their labor.

As measures calculated to strengthen the working class in its fight for the realization of its ultimate aim, and to increase its powers of resistance against private capitalism, we advocate and pledge ourselves and our elected officers to the following program:

FIRST: For the more perfect application of the Initiative and Referendum in all municipal affairs.

SECOND: For the Recall of all elective officials.

THIRD: For the public ownership of all public utilities and the abolition of the contract system and all convict labor when in competition with free labor.

FOURTH: For the elimination of unnecessary officials, a reduction of all salaries that excessive and a minimum wage of $3.00 per day in all public works.

FIFTH: For the Eight Hour Day for all labor on public improvements and in all municipal departments, and a uniform pension system to apply to all city employees.

SIXTH: For the City to furnish work to the unemployed to the fullest extent possible under present conditions.

SEVENTH: For the rigid inspection of all stores, factories, workshops and places of public assemblage and the strict enforcement of all laws to protect the lives of the workers.

EIGHTH: Human life and health being more sacred than property, should be the first consideration in the enforcement of the sanitary laws.

NINTH: For public parks and playgrounds within easy reach of the workers, and public comfort stations as well as public drinking fountains, wherever essential to the health and comfort of the workers.

TENTH: For the City to provide municipal hospitals free from every taint of Charity.

ELEVENTH: For free text books in all grades of our public schools and the use of one room in each school house for public assemblage.

TWELFTH: For the free administration of justice and the election of a public "Defender" as well as a public "Prosecutor" as at present.

THIRTEENTH: We pledge ourselves to secure from the State, such authority as will give the municipality the right to establish, own and operate all industries that pertain to the city's activity.

We've fed you all for a thousand years,
And you hail us still unfed.
Though there's not a dollar of all your wealth
But marks the workers dead.
We have yielded our best to give you rest
While you lie on a crimson wool,
But if blood be the price of all your wealth,
Good God, we've paid it in full.

There's not a mine blown skyward now,
But we're buried alive for you;
Not a wreck drifts shoreward now
But we are its ghastly crew.
Go reckon our dead by the forges red
And the factories where we spin,
For if blood be the price of your accursed wealth,
Good God, we have paid it all in.

We've fed you all for a thousand years,
For this was our doom, you know,
From the days that you chained us in your fields
To the strike of a week ago.
You have eaten our lives, our babies and wives,
And we're told it's your legal share,
But if blood be the price of all your wealth,
Good God, we have bought it fair.

TO LABOR.

Shall you complain
Who feed the world,
Who clothe the world,
Who house the world,
Shall you complain,
Of what the world may do?
As from this hour
You use your power,
The world must follow you.

You hold the whole world in your hand,
Your strong right hand,
Your skilled right hand.
You hold the whole world in your hand,
See to it what you do.
Or wrong, or right,
Or dark, or light,
The world must follow you.

Then rise as you ne'er rose before,
Nor hoped before,
Nor dared before,
And show us as was ne'er shown before
The power that lies in you.
Stand all as one,
See justice done,
Believe and dare and do.

THREE CHEERS FOR EBY.

We are confronted with a problem,
Of more than ordinary thought;
Although we may be wise,
And our wisdom may have bought.
The question which arises,
Is "Which will win the fight,
Between Marshall, Karb and Eby,
Or which is in the right"?

We've had boodling and corruption,
Unto our hearts content,
So we thinks there should a change be made,
Before our lives are spent.
We can't look to Republicans
For any great relief.
The Demmies are no better,
Neither is a chicken thief.

If we've got to stand for robbery,
I would take it at a glance,
That we ought to give the poor man,
A little measley chance.
For we know our workingmen
Are Socialist good and true,
If they would only vote their sentiments,
That's the very thing they'd do.

So here's three cheers for Eby
Give him a little show,
This Political monopoly
We want to overthrow.
There is no difference which old party
Is elected; 'tis the same,
We will have to stand for robbery;
That's the Monopolistic game.

More Marshall Economy.

The city firemen at No. 8 Engine House are employed at the present time CLEANING BRICK and laying the same in and around their ENGINE HOUSE. We would like to ask the city officials WHO PAYS FOR THE UNIFORMS that the firemen wear while doing work outside of their regular duties. Yet Mayor Marshall is not in favor of the firemen receiving an increased salary.

There Is A Difference.

At Flaeger's Hall,—Barthman and Parsons, last Wednesday night, an immense crowd of thirty (30) people met to hear Congressman E. L. Taylor speak for Marshall and Republicanism, and most of the audience left before the speaker finished. The reason for this was that a square or so away at Hoepck and Parsons, there was a Socialist meeting addressed by Rev. G. W. Scott, the negro orator, and Peter Kinnear, candidate for council from the Third Ward. Nearly 1,000 people cheered the speakers, contributed $7 to the Socialist campaign, and bought $8 worth of Socialist buttons.

Does this mean anything?

The Karb and Marshall heelers are paralyzed.

Victory for Socialism is in the air.

Socialist Party Program for State Constitution for Ohio.

Adopted by the Referendum February 1911

The Socialist Party of the State of Ohio enters upon the campaign for election of delegates to the constitutional convention with a solemn warning to the workers of the state that this election is of the most momentous importance for the life and destiny of our class.

The constitution to be adopted will be the fundamental and supreme law of Ohio for many years to come, and it will very largely determine the political conditions of the state, and the industrial relations, civic rights and general welfare of its citizens.

The constitution of Ohio should, under no circumstances, be modeled after the constitution of the United States or any of the constitutions of the other states of the Union. For since the adoption of the old constitutions more than a century has elapsed, and this century has witnessed tremendous changes in the life of the country. New economic conditions have developed, new social relations have been created, new needs have originated, and new problems have sprung up.

The introduction of modern machinery propelled by mechanical motive power, the general improvements of our methods of production and the development of railroads, steamships and other means of transportation and communication have increased the productivity of labor and the wealth of the nation a hundredfold. From a country of poor and struggling pioneers the United States has become one of the richest countries on the face of the globe.

But also this wonderful transformation was largely the result of the collective ingenuity and labor of the multitudes of workers of present and past generations, its fruits have been appropriated by a small portion of the population—the capitalist class. The capitalists own, as their private property, or control, all the land or its products, together with the natural treasures hidden in it; they own our railroads and telegraphs; they own our factories, machinery, and the tools indispensable for the production of the necessaries of life; they own the food, clothing and shelter of their fellow men. They own or control the country with all its wealth and resources, while the great mass of the population, the workers in the factory, farm and other fields of useful activity, whose labor has created our so-called "national" wealth and still maintains our national life are destitute of property, and depend for their right to work and live upon the pleasure of the capitalist.

The anomalous fact that a group of capitalists are permitted to use the country's resources and social tools for their individual profit, and to make the production of the necessaries of our lives the object of their competitive enterprises and speculations, is at the bottom of all the social evils of our time; the anarchy in production, the exploitation of the workers, the wide-spread poverty and misery of the people and all forms of political and civic corruption.

The Socialist Party maintains that the evils of the present system will be removed only when the American people wholly abolish private ownership in the social means of production, collectively assume the management of the industries, and operate them for use and not for profit, for the benefit of all and not for the enrichment of one privileged class. In this the Socialist Party stands alone in the political field of America.

But the Socialist Party also believes that the evils of the modern system may be materially relieved and their final disappearance may be hastened, by the introduction of social, political and economic reforms which will have the effect of bettering the lives, strengthening the position of workers and curbing the power and domination of the capitalists. The Socialist Party, therefore, always supports the progressive struggles of organized labor and of the laboring farmers against the exploitation and oppression of the capitalist class, and is vitally concerned in the efficiency of the instruments of such struggle.

Heretofore the people have almost invariably been defeated in their struggles against capitalism, principally because the capitalists have always owned the dominant political parties, and through them they have dictated the laws and prescribed the manner of their interpretation and execution. But the principal instruments in the hands of the dominant classes for the subjugation of the workers have always been the written constitutions. In the hands of the dominant classes and their agents on the bench and in the executive offices of the country and the states, these documents have been made the unfailing means of nullifying or preventing all measures for the relief of the workers and warding off all attacks upon the privileges and immunities of wealth. The written constitutions are largely responsible for the fact that the United States is today the most backward country of the civilized world in the domain of factory reform and social legislation. In theory our unchangeable constitutions are the weapons by which the dead rule the living, in practice they are the instruments by which the classes rule the masses.

The citizens of Ohio should take warning at the fate of the people under older constitutions. They should see to it that the constitution of their state shall leave the government in the hands of the people at all times, that it be flexible and easily amendable, and, above all, that it be adapted to the conditions of our times and the needs of the workers.

With this object in view the Socialist Party demands that the following provisions be included in the constitution of the State of Ohio:

I. BILL OF RIGHTS.

1. The political power of the state shall at all times be vested in the people and shall be exercised for their protection, security and welfare. The majority of the people shall always have the right and the means to freely amend, alter or abrogate all laws.

2. The constitution of the state shall be considered as a mandate to the legislature and as a guide for the people, but no court, judge or other official shall have the right to set aside any law or legal provision enacted by the people or their chosen representatives, as offending against the constitution or public policy or on any other ground.

3. The military shall at all times be held in strict subordination to the civil authorities. Civil government in this state shall never be replaced or suspended by martial law. The state militia and the police power shall never interfere in industrial disputes.

4. The writ of injunction shall not be issued by any court or judge in any action or proceeding arising out of an industrial dispute, and no person shall be punished for contempt of court unless on conviction after trial by jury.

5. Every person shall have the absolute right to freely speak, write or publish his sentiments on all subjects, and no law or ordinance shall be passed to restrain or abridge the freedom of speech or of the press, or to make such right dependent upon any permit or other condition.

6. The people shall have the right to assemble for the purpose of discussion, deliberation or petition in a peaceful and orderly manner at all times in private and public places.

7. The right of the people to keep and bear arms shall never be abrogated.

8. All property and property rights of any kind and nature are held by the consent of the state, and their use should always be subject to the regulation and control of the state and to its right of eminent domain. The state shall at all times have the right to seize the property of any person or corporation refusing to comply with the law.

9. The right of the state and of all counties, municipalities or other divisions of the state to engage in any enterprise, business or occupation shall not be denied nor prohibited.

10. The state shall never alienate any part of the school lands or other public lands now held by it.

11. All charters, grants, franchises and licenses issued by the state or other division of it shall be revocable by the people at all times.

12. All counties, cities and towns of the state shall have the absolute right of local self-government.

13. The workers shall at all times have the right to organize for the advancement of their interests, to abstain from work for any employer individually or collectively, for any reason deemed sufficient to them; to attend peacefully in any numbers in and about any place of work for the purpose of giving information about pending labor disputes to any persons, or peaceably persuading any person to abstain from work for any employer. The people shall have the right individually or collectively to abstain from dealing with or patronizing any individual, firm, partnership, association or corporation, and to persuade others to do so by speech or print or in any other manner.

14. No private police or constabulary shall be allowed to operate in this state or to give testimony in any court.

II. SUFFRAGE AND ELECTIONS.

1. All citizens of the United States, over the age of twenty-one years, without distinction of sex, race, color or creed, who have resided in the state six months, shall be qualified electors at all national, state and local elections, and eligible for all public offices. No citizen shall be deprived of the active or passive franchise on account of payment or non-payment of taxes or on account of any property or educational qualifications.

2. The right of the citizens to vote and to be voted for in all elections shall never be limited or qualified by the requirement of fees upon registering, nominating or voting or in any other manner. All elections for public office shall be on the secret Australian system and either by ballot or voting machine.

3. In all elections for members of the legislature and in all other state and local elections in which two or more persons are to be elected for the same office, such officers shall be elected at large by the entire state, district or locality, as the case may be, and all political parties shall be given representation among the officers so to be chosen in proportion to the number of votes respectively cast by them in such election.

III. LEGISLATION.

1. The legislature of the state shall consist of one house of representatives.

2. Upon the demand of any three counties in the state or upon the demand of a number of individual citizens equal to at least five per cent of the number of all voters at the last preceding general state election, the legislature shall forthwith refer to the people any proposed new law or measure or any law or measure passed by such legislature, to be adopted, ratified or rejected by the people upon a general vote.

IV. ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

1. All judges and magistrates of all courts shall be elected by the direct vote of the people and shall hold office for short terms.

2. Justice shall be administered speedily and freely and no fees or charges of any kind shall be exacted from litigants.

3. In criminal cases the state shall conduct the defense as well as the prosecution, free of charge.

4. Neither capital punishment nor money fines shall be imposed for any crime.

5. No person shall be convicted of a crime within the state, nor shall any person be extradited upon the demand of any other state, without a trial by jury.

6. No person shall be imprisoned for debt and all household furniture, implements of work and homesteads shall be exempt from levy under execution.

V. PUBLIC OFFICERS.

1. All elective officers of the state, counties and municipalities shall be elected for short terms.

2. The representatives of this state in the Senate of the United States shall be elected by the direct vote of the people.

3. Upon the presentation to the proper authorities of a petition for the recall of an elected officer, verified by ten per cent. of the voters of the district represented by such officer, a new election to fill the said office shall forthwith be called. Upon such new election the name of the incumbent in office shall be placed on the ballot, together with any new candidates who may be nominated for the said office, and the candidate receiving the largest number of votes in such election shall fill the office during the unexpired term thereof.

VI. TAXATION.

1. Neither the state nor any political division of the state shall levy indirect taxes.

2. The burdens of taxation shall be distributed among those most able to carry them and deriving the largest pecuniary benefits from the protection of the state—the possessing classes. Among the taxes to be levied by the state there shall be a substantial inheritance tax graduated in proportion to the amount of the bequest and to the nearest of kin, and a graduated income tax.

VII. EMPLOYMENT OF WORKERS.

1. The legislature shall fix a maximum workday, not exceeding eight hours, for all workers, and shall by proper legal enactment shorten such workday from time to time in keeping with the increased productiveness of modern machinery. It shall likewise provide by law for a rest period of at least a day and a half in each week for workers in all industries.

2. Employment of children under the age of sixteen years and contracting of prison labor shall be prohibited.

3. All wages shall be paid at least once in each week in United States currency.

4. All workers injured in the course of their employment and the dependents of all workers killed in the course of their employment shall receive compensation, regardless of the cause and manner of the accident, from a state compensation fund to which all employers shall be required to contribute pro rata. Such compensation shall be equal to the full economic loss caused by the injury, and shall be recoverable without delay or litigation.

5. The legislature shall by proper enactment provide for suitable safeguards and sanitary regulations in all occupations, with ample provisions for frequent and effective inspection of the places of employment, machinery and appliances.

6. The State shall insure all workers against sickness, invalidism and old age and shall provide public industries for the unemployed.

VIII. EDUCATION.

1. The state shall maintain a free system of public education, including the furnishing to the pupils of free text books and school supplies and free meals and clothing when necessary.

2. Education shall be compulsory for all children up to the age of sixteen years.

IX. AMENDMENTS.

1. The constitution may be amended at any time by a majority vote.

2. Proposed amendments to the constitution may be initiated and shall be voted upon in the same manner as above provided from the popular initiation and referendum vote upon ordinary laws and measures.

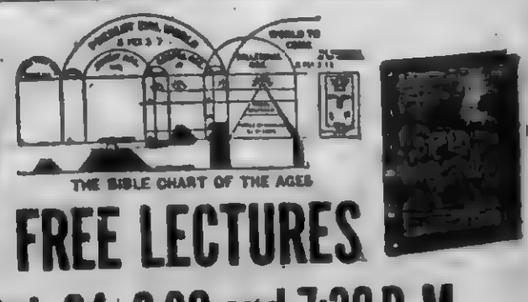
Its purpose is the unbiased study of the philosophy of Socialism. Many of the members are dues paying members of the Socialist party. It is their purpose to become more efficient in Socialist propaganda through a wider understanding of that subject.



Outside speakers will be dated from time to time. Frank Bohn, an alumnae, addressed the initial meeting Oct. 8. A fair sized audience was present and much interest was added to the Socialist Student movent in O. S. U.

Vote the Socialist Ticket Straight.

The Socialist has positive information that the Democratic City Committee has employed one hundred men whose duty it is to root for Karb. These men wear Socialist party buttons. Anybody can buy a Socialist button. These hired heelers go around in certain sections and, like the "Green-eyed Poll Parrot," recite the same story: "I'm a Socialist, but I'm afraid there is no chance to elect Eby or anyone. I'm going to vote for Karb."

Spot every man who talks that way. He is a paid pimp for the Capitalist Masters.

No intelligent man will be deceived by this sort of dope.

It is fortunate that the Socialists discovered this dirty trick in time. We are onto all your schemes, you political bosses and heelers in the hire of the Chamber of Commerce and the Rail-Light.

The meeting will be called to order when the parade reaches the hall. The details for this parade are in the hands of the committee and every ward will be in line, besides delegations from the country.

Monster Meetings the Past Week.

Crowds Gather Wherever A Socialist Assembly Is Held.

It Means Revolution.

Two thousand people, one of the largest of 1911 campaign, attended the Socialist meeting in the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium last Saturday evening. Many who were unable to find seats sat on the steps in the aisles of the galleries or stood at the ends.

A. C. Eby, Socialist mayoralty candidate, who made the first speech, declared that Socialism, which would abolish the profit system, responsible for the downfall of women, was the only remedy for the social evil.

Comrade Eby said: "Marshall stands for a lot of the immediate demands of the people, but he would not dare to stand for the real issue, the abolition of the profit system. Karb is only the dying wail of the Democratic party. His only issue is the open saloon. Bread and butter, not booze, is the issue."

Comrade D. J. Farrell made the appeal for the collection which amounted to $72.

"What Columbus calls a religious service is only a dress parade on Sunday," said Rev. W. A. Prosser of Pittsburg, who followed Mr. Eby. "The religion of Jesus Christ is dead today. The brotherhood of man, for which he stood, is practically non-existent. Promising graduates of theological seminaries are bought and controlled from the time they enter the ministry by the moneyed interests in the churches."

Rev. George W. Scott, a colored Socialist minister of Findlay, declared that the colored race was in a slavery worse under the present labor system than the chattel slavery of ante-bellum days, and called upon white laborer and black to join in lifting their burdens.

A parade, headed by the Socialist Band, preceded the meeting at the Chamber of Commerce. About 800 people were in the parade, and the line of march was made brilliant with red fire.

Sunday's Meeting.

Despite damp ground and chilling breezes, nearly 800 men and women stood for two and a half hours Sunday afternoon in Goodale Park, listened to a concert by the Socialist band, and talks by Mayoralty Candidate A. C. Eby and R. L. Brown, the colored speaker.

Comrade Eby said he had been asked why he didn't have the nerve to address his fellow-workers at the plant of the Jeffrey Manufacturing Co. "I have the nerve to tell the truth anywhere," he explained. To make good the declaration he announced that he would address two noonday meetings at the plant next week. The collection amounted to $12.

On Monday night at Parsons and Jenkins, fully 2,000 people [illegible] Auditorium by Comrade A. C. Eby, C. E. [illegible] and Peter Kinnear. Comrade Fred Zimpfer, candidate for council, presided. Before the meeting a parade of over 600 marchers woke the echoes and lighted up the ward. The parade stampeded Marshall's tent show audience at Innis and Seventh and George S. was real mad.

Third Ward Blazing.

The Third Ward meeting Tuesday night at Bruck and Schiller gave the lie to the malicious report that that section was not solid for Socialism. A parade of 1,000 marchers with the Socialist Band, red fire and tin horns left a trail of glory over many streets. At the meeting 3,000 people stood, listened and applauded addresses by Comrades A. C. Eby, Peter Kinnear, candidate for council from the ward, and Rev. G. Washington Scott, the colored orator. It was simply great.

A Forecast of the Result of the Election.

There were 45,764 registered in the city. There is usually 10 per cent fall off on the vote, but we think it will be less this year. The vote will probably be around 43,000.

What the Democratic Committee Claims.

This committee claims that Karb will be elected over Marshall by 2,000 to 2,300, and also claims that the Socialists will cast not to exceed 6,000 votes.

If this is true, then the vote would be:

Karb	19,666
Marshall	17,333
Eby	6,000

The Republican committee claims substantially the same figures as the Democratic committee, only reversing the same in their favor.

But They Are Both Mistaken.

We have reports now from every ward. THE SOCIALISTS WILL CAST 17,816 VOTES. This figure will, if anything, be increased. Of this number we are now certain.

Taking the views of both the old party committees of a plurality of 2,300 over the candidate of the other party, but crediting our party with the actual number of votes it will cast, the figures will be:

Eby	17,816
Karb	13,742
Marshall	11,442

or,

Eby	17,816
Marshall	13,742
Karb	11,442

IN ANY EVENT WE WILL CARRY THE CITY.

Socialists should not be deceived into a belief that we will not win. We WILL win. We have it won now.

Stand pat for your candidates.

DO NOT PERMIT SELFISH POLITICIANS TO LEAD YOU TO SCRATCH A SINGLE MAN ON YOUR TICKET.

EXPLOITED vs. EXPLOITER.

Argument For the Mass Against the Class.

Mass and Class, Exploiter and Exploited, Master and Servant, are but different terms that express the struggle between Special Privilege and the Common People that is as old as history.

Special Privilege, the Morgans, Guggenheims, Hills, Rockefellers and their ilk, through their agents and emissaries, always favor concentrating the powers of government into as few hands as possible.

The Common People are ever demanding more democracy, more governmental power in their hands, as a defense against the greed and corruption of their natural enemies, the Privileged Classes.

The keenest weapon that has yet been forged with which to meet the political cunning and trickery of the Privileged Classes is the Initiative, Referendum, and the Recall, which Special Privilege dreads most of all.

In the election of delegates to the Constitutional Convention the efforts of the agents of Special Privilege will be concentrated against the candidates pledges to work for the Initiative, Referendum, and the Recall.

The nature of this Class conflict has been ably described by the Columbus Citizen in editorials and feature articles advocating the Initiative, Referendum, and the Recall from which quotations are here given.

"The Ohio State Board of Commerce is taking the lead in the fight that Big Business is making to prevent the adoption of a progressive constitution in Ohio. The reason is to be found in the membership of the state board. As shown by its own rolls, the Ohio State Board of Commerce is at present controlled by giant business organizations—the kind that place DOLLAR RIGHTS above HUMAN RIGHTS. The State Board of Commerce is the political lobby through which 2000 of Ohio's most powerful and richest banks, railroads, gas and electric, telephone, coal and iron and steel and life insurance companies, and individuals, operate to get what they want when it comes to making laws or constitutions."

Here is the Columbus Citizen's editorial introduction to Judge Wanamaker's articles advocating the Initiative, Referendum, and the Recall:

"Ohio is in the midst of a battle over the selection of delegates for a constitutional convention. Progressives of all parties are lined up to fight for an up-to-date constitution providing for the Initiative, Referendum, and the RECALL. All the standpat leaders of the state, backed by the big money interests, are fighting to secure a new constitution as reactionary as may be."

Here are some quotations from Judge Wanamaker's article that appeared in the Columbus Citizen of September 5th and 6th:

"The whole progressive movement is not one to destroy representative government, but to preserve and promote it and to make it truly representative of the people's will."

There has been recognized the right to petition—which is not obligatory upon the officers addressed; the right to impeach—which is a recall—but which is uncertain, technical and rarely effective, and the right to investigate, which is really no remedy and has degenerated into "whitewash".

SCANDAL IN PUBLIC SERVICE.

"That these ways are wholly inadequate is shown by constant scandal that attaches to the public service—legislative, executive and judicial. An elected or appointed officer can betray his trust and be reasonably safe from punishment, hence the need of a RECALL in a more direct and effective form than by impeachment.

Suppose you were trying to sell stock in a corporation and it was known that every foreman, manager, officer and director was to serve a definite term of service no matter how inefficient, incompetent, corrupt or unfaithful he might be, would anybody invest money in it?

If it is wise in private business to keep the right to discharge the officers, why not in the conduct of public business? What is the difference?

If a public officer has a right to resign and compel his employer—the public—to find a new employe, has not the employer—the public—the right to discharge—RECALL—the official? Why should the contract be binding on one side only? Is it because the office holders originally made the laws to govern their own employment?

CRY OF MOB ASSURD.

"It is said that the RECALL will make public officers play to "the frenzy of the mob", but this can be no more true of a RECALL election than of an election in the first instance. He who makes this objection really denies in the people a capability to elect an official. Of course, this is absurd.

It is said that the people will make mistakes in the RECALL—will recall good men. Probably they will, and the greater the probability is, the greater the chance that they will make mistakes in electing their officers in the first place.

But the same people will be less liable to make a mistake in a RECALL election where they are considering a man on the record he has made and his official conduct than they will in originally electing him. In private business does not the employer act on surer knowledge when he promotes or discharges a man who has worked for him and whose fitness for his job has been tested than he does when he originally hires the man—often "on trial"—in the first place?

OFFICIAL IS AN EMPLOYE.

And why should the rule be any different in a matter of men employed to transact public business?

Let us remember that a man is still a man whether he sit in congress, on the bench, or on a gorgeous chair, and that he is an employe and is working for his employers just as surely if he is making, interpreting or executing laws, as if he were making machinery or testing it in a factory or operating it.

If we remember that the public service and private service are essentially the same, the "RECALL" loses its terror and becomes a simple and rational thing.

But many who agree that the RECALL would be good as applied to law makers and executive officers, hesitate when it is proposed to apply it to judges. I am a judge myself, sitting on a bench in an Ohio court, and tomorrow I will consider in an other article the matter of the RECALL of judges."

RECALL OF JUDGES.

"Every reason for the RECALL of public officers in general is applicable to judges most of all. Here is the reason:

Our government is supposed to be one of "checks and balances." The law makers are a check on the executive, for they may define his duties and they hold the purse strings. The executive is a check on the law makers, for he has the veto power. The court may enjoin or mandamus the executive and may declare the work of the law makers null and void. But how about the judges? Where and what check has the legislative or executive branch on them except the obsolete and ineffective right of impeachment?

If it is proper for the people—who are the nation—to check, to restrain and recall the lesser branches of government, is it not more necessary that they wholesomely, patriotically and effectively control the judges, since the court has now seen fit to assert and exercise a supreme power?

MORE POWER, MORE CHECK.

The greater the power the more need for proper and effective control. There is more need for a brake on an automobile than on a wheelbarrow. The stock argument against the RECALL of judges is that the independence of the courts will be destroyed. Where is there authority for this exaggerated notion of an independent judiciary? Where is there statutory or constitutional law, sound reason or political doctrine, tending to establish the courts supreme to all reasonable control in matters of vital public policy?

TOO RADICAL CHANGE ARGUMENT ABSURD.

"It is said that the RECALL is too radical a change. Consider how radical was our whole government when it was planned and made! It was revolutionary and founded upon a seven years' war! A war of the people against kings and courts and parliament! A thing is radical only BEFORE it has become the established order of things.

In effect some of the New England states now have the RECALL of judges, for the judges' terms are only one year. Judge Redfield of Vermont was elected twenty-five successive times for one year each time and he was one of the nation's greatest judges. He would not fear a "recall" and he feared no "mob." His people loved him and trusted him.

WHO OPPOSE THE RECALL.

"Last of all let us see who is for the RECALL and who is against it, for there is no surer way to test a man or a measure than calling the roll of friends and enemies. OPPOSED TO THE RECALL IS EVERY BOSS, MACHINE AND OLD POLITICAL ORGANIZATION; EVERY MAN WHO OPPOSES DIRECT PRIMARIES; EVERY MAN OPPOSED TO THE ELECTION OF SENATORS BY DIRECT VOTE; EVERY MAN WHO DEFENDED BALLINGERISM; EVERY MAN WHO DEFENDS LORIMERISM; EVERY GRABBER OF LANDS AND PRIVILEGES; EVERY MAN WHO OPPOSES THE CONTROL OF PUBLIC UTILITIES; EVERY BENEFICIARY OF SPECIAL PRIVILEGE; EVERY MAN WHO SEES IN CORRUPT COURTS A POWER THAT WILL FULL THE TEETH OF PROGRESSIVE LEGISLATION.—ALL THESE ARE OPPOSED TO THE RECALL OF JUDGES. Many "good men" oppose it, but none I have named favor it. Does that not mean much?"

Another article from the Columbus Citizen of Sept. 18th gives the position of Samuel Gompers president of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Gompers toured the Pacific coast speaking for the Initiative, Referendum, the RECALL and equal suffrage. In the article referred to he says "Adoption of the Initiative, Referendum, and RECALL cannot come any too soon. In Oregon there is more co-operation on the subjects of civic development and sociological and political reform than I have seen anywhere else I have been. Meeting many men in all walks of life, I found them all agreed upon its benefits. THE IDEA THAT ANY MAN NOW, IN THE 20th CENTURY, SHOULD STAND UP AND OPPOSE THE INITIATIVE, THE REFERENDUM, OR THE RECALL IS AN INSULT TO THE INTELLIGENCE OF THE AMERICAN NATION."

The State of California has recently adopted the Initiative, Referendum, and the RECALL. THE Initiative and Referendum were carried by a vote of two to one; the RECALL by a vote of TEN to ONE. The conclusion is inevitable that the people are not only ready for the three measures but are more clamorous for the RECALL than the other two.

A COMPROMISING ORGANIZATION.

The original movers for the so-called united-constitutional committees were in favor and were advocating the RECALL as a part of their platform. Something happened. That something was just what always "happens" when a group of individuals contending for a fixed set of principles reach out and take in numbers regardless of conflicting interests.

This small group of reformers, with the Columbus Citizen as its organ, sincere in its desire to obtain a really progressive constitution, but ignoring the class conflict in the desire to secure power, received all who came on the mere declaration of being "progressive". When it came to a vote on the principles for which this group had been contending, they found they were hopelessly in the minority. The organization that had its inception in the minds of men who had a real desire for "reform", because the mere tool of interests who are ever ready to compromise Principle for Power.

AN OLD TRICK.

One of the oldest tricks of Big Money Interests, and one that has been the most successful in the past in controling legislation, has been their success in placing their agents and emissaries in the ranks of organizations having as their object the securing of more democracy in government, and steering such organization in "safe and sane" channels. "Safe" for the interests, and "sane" for the "steerers."

The weak form of organization of the so-called united-constitutional-committees, was very susceptable to such influence; and what assurance have we that this method has not been used by Big Money Interests, and was at least partially successful, in view of the fact that the RECALL, which Special Privilege dreads most of all, has been eliminated from their original program.

The Citizen warned the public that the Big Money Interests were fighting to obtain a constitution as reactionary as possible, and were opposing the Initiative, Referendum, and RECALL.

The fact that the RECALL was eliminated from the original program shows that the warning was needed though not wholly successful in preventing "reactionary influences."

CAN A MAN SERVE TFO MASTERS?

That "no man can serve two masters" is as true in a political sense as in the religious sense.

The Columbus Citizen—the organ of the united-constitutional-committees—in an editorial under date of October 18, 1911 says, "One good and sufficient reason why Harbarger, Knight and Peters should be elected delegates to the constitutional convention from Franklin county is that they have bound themselves by a solemn pledge in writing to work and vote for a constitution that will be in the interest of ALL the people! (Citizens capitals.) This same article further says that "this ought to satisfy the most exacting voter that Harbarger, Knight and Peters will be the delegates of ALL THE PEOPLE if they are elected." (Citizens capitals.)

The candidate that pledges himself to represent "ALL THE PEOPLE" thereby pledges himself to represent "the Ohio state board of commerce controlled by giant corporations—the kind that place DOLLAR RIGHTS above HUMAN RIGHTS," the National Manufacturers Association, the Rail-Light, and all others of the same brood. He is also pledged to represent the great mass of people, the wage earners, the farmers, the small business men, who are exploited by these corporations.

Such a promise simply leads to mystery and uncertainty as to which of these conflicting interests such a candidate really does represent.

IN CONCLUSION.

We believe 90 per cent of the people want a really progressive constitution including the RECALL. If you are one of them, the candidates that you support should be pledged to represent your interests ONLY, and no doubt or uncertainty should exist as to their position.

The only candidates that are so pledged are Elmore E. Adel, Marsh C. Green, and James H. Henderson, who stand pledged to work and vote, if elected, for an up-to-date and really progressive constitution including the Initiative, (the right of the people to propose any law), the Referendum, (the right of the people to pass upon any law passed by legislative bodies), and the RECALL, (the right of the people to recall any public official, including judges).

Preserve this article for reference as all names of candidates for delegates to the constitutional convention will appear on a non-partisan ballot; then vote for ELMORE E. ADEL, MARSH C. GREEN, AND JAMES H. HENDERSON.

PRINTERS START CO-OPERATIVE PURCHASING COMMISSION.

In Indiana union men are going to make an effort to inaugurate a plan that will reduce the cost of living. Typographical Union No. 7 of Indianapolis has taken the lead in the matter and a meeting will be held on October 29, at which representatives of the various unions in the city will be present. At this meeting an effort will be made to arrange for some form of co-operative purchasing that will eliminate the middle man and his exorbitant profits.

Woman's Suffrage.

California voted for women's suffrage. One of the ladies who will participate in the big motorcycle races at the Driving Park this Sunday afternoon (Oct. 29) lives in California and is a Suffragette. Go out and root for her to win the cup.

The Best He Can Do.

When Christine Nilsson made her concert tour in the United States in 1884 Signor Brignoli sang with her. He caused much merriment when he came forward in a Missouri town to apologize for Nilsson's indisposition. "Madame Nilsson ees a leetle horse," he said. Noticing a ripple of laughter among the audience, he repeated the statement that Nilsson "was a leetle horse, a leetle colt."

Whereupon a facetious occupant of the gallery brought down the house by remarking, "Well, then, why don't you trot her out?"

General Socialist News.

In the election for members of the State Legislature in Oldenburg, Germany, the Socialists captured eight seats in the first ballot and are certain of winning three and perhaps four more in the second ballot.

In Muhlhausen, Germany, the eight candidates for the Socialists were triumphant at the special election just held. The Socialists won on the first ballot, receiving more votes than the Clericals and Liberals combined.

Debs has been having great crowds during the past week on the eastern tour. The newspapers all repeat that the halls are usually filled to overflowing. They are unable to understand how it can be done where an admission fee is charged.

The United Hebrew Trades of New York, one of the strongest central labor bodies in the country, last week endorsed the Socialist party by unanimous vote. Many of the affiliated local unions are raising funds to assist in spreading the propaganda of Socialism.

James H. Brower, one of the best known Socialists in the country, author of "Mills of Mammon," and a speaker of exceptional ability, died at Davenport, Va., of Typhoid fever. Brower was a carpenter by trade and for several years a national organizer for the Socialist party. His friends were legion who will mourn his loss.

A call has been issued for the third annual convention of the Intercollegiate Socialist Society, which will be held in New York, Dec. 28 and 29. The society now has chapters or organizations in 23 educational institutions, with three alumni chapters in Boston, New York and Washington. The Socialist societies include Yale, Harvard, Columbia, Chicago University and nearly all other large colleges. Readers of this paper are requested to send the names of college men and women, graduates and undergraduates, who may be interested in the work of the Intercollegiate Socialist Society, to Harry W. Laidler, the organizer, room 903 Tilden Building, 105 W. 40th street, New York City. The executive secretary and the organizer will be pleased to send the literature of the I. S. S. to those interested, and to furnish any information which may be desired concerning the society's activities.

There is quite a debate taking place in the Living Church, a well-known religious monthly, upon the subject of socialism. Bishop T. S. Spalding, of the Episcopal Church, takes a fall out of the "antis" in this manner:

"The class struggle is a fact whether we like it or not, and Marx is to be thanked for making those who want the truth see the falseness of a statement like 'the interest of the capitalist and the laboring man are identical.' Under the present competitive system the interest of capital and labor are opposed. If capital is to pay interest, insurance, profits and rent, it must buy labor as cheaply as possible. I think I speak for more Socialists than myself, when I say that Socialism enables me to be more patient and charitable than I could be if I believed that God's method of making mankind good and strong was to give to a few persons great wealth in order that they might bestow it in alms upon the poor, or as benefactors support colleges, charities and churches. We feel that human society will not be organized according to the will of God until justice takes the place of charity, and the Co-operative Commonwealth replaces the regime of individualistic competition."

Now the Socialists are carrying their propaganda right into the heart of capitalism—Wall Street. A news dispatch says: "An unusually successful meeting was held by the Socialist party at the corner of Wall and Broad streets. The attendance was at least 1,500. The speaker, Charles Solomon, was at his best. He clearly traced the origin of capitalists' production, and showed how capitalism was being driven to the wall by the same economic forces that called it into existence. A notable feature of the meeting was the revolutionary fervor with which Solomon spoke and the enthusiasm with which his remarks were received. He drew the attention of his audience to the general unrest in Europe and in this country, and interpreted its significance. Capitalist law and morality were mercilessly analyzed. As Solomon concluded his remarks, some newsboys came down Nassau street lustily proclaiming a drop in steel. A bystander handed the speaker a copy. The scarehead was shown to the audience. 'Do you know what this means?' asked Solomon. 'It means that the middle class is being wiped out, and the working class is groveling; the newsboys are singing the dirge of capitalism.'"

Democrat Admits Socialist Success.

A gentleman of this city, not an active politician, but one who has always had the confidence of the Democratic leaders and who sympathizes with the Socialist movement in so far as it affects the city government, but who for business reasons prefers to be one of the unknown supporters of our cause, told the editor yesterday that he hoped to congratulate the people of Columbus through our Campaign Committee for the success of our ticket. When asked the reason for his confidence in our success, he said:

"If the Socialists of this city only knew their strength, knew how the managers of the old parties fear them, knew how these same managers have come to rely for success in November upon their power to convince individual voters that Mr. Eby will meet certain defeat, they would close their campaign with greater hope. The fact that the Socialist party is young and has won no victories is being taken advantage of. I know that in every precinct of Columbus the henchmen and supporters of the Democratic and Republican parties have instructions to surround the individual Socialist, to hammer into him the fear that he is throwing away his vote, and to persuade him that he can vote his principles by casting a vote for his ticket excepting its head, and at the same time make his vote count by voting for Mr. Karb or Mr. Marshall, as the case may be.

"The committee rooms of the old parties are alive to the necessity of successfully weaning away from Mr. Eby enough votes to elect their respective candidates. Only last Tuesday one of the managers of the Democratic party told me that the Socialists would probably carry the Council and their entire ticket with the exception of the head. These committees have taken a poll, as nearly correct as they could procure it, of the Socialist vote. This was not done with a view to obtaining a forecast of the probable result, but for the purpose of being able to send their workers to individuals. They know now what they have to do to win, and they are trying to do it. Both Democratic and Republican candidates now relies upon his bid for individual support from this Socialist vote that they have polled. And both candidates claim victory because they believe that they have worked the old game, so often played against third parties, that of convincing its supporters of the supposed weakness of their cause.

"But from what I have heard from the committee rooms of at least one party, and from what I have personally seen of the temper of the voters, I believe that this attempt is to be abortive. The workingmen, the small storekeepers, the students, many of the professional men and even some of our manufacturers and larger merchants of the city seem to be alive to the necessity of a change in our city administration. Not the old kind of a change from one political machine to another equally obnoxious. Not a change from one set of selfish politicians to another set equally forgetful of the demands of our people and the needs of our city. But a change into the hands of men as well trained and as well equipped for civic administration as any officials we have ever had, and having the additional merit of being unselfish and honest."

Indiana Socialist News.

James Oneal, State Secretary, 809½ Ohio Street, Terre Haute.

The cold weather does not cool the ardor of Indiana Socialists for organization. The former members of Local Stonebluff have reorganized and start with 10 members, 5 of them paying back dues and 5 being new members.

State Chairman Henry held one meeting at Shirley in Hancock county and revived the old local with eight members. Th comrades now have two locals in the county, the other one being at Fortville.

From West Lebanon in Warren county comes an application for a charter with seven signatures attached. This is one of the counties that has been hard to reach, but more will be heard from it later on.

The comrades at Marion in Grant county are getting up one of the best county organizations in the state. Comrade Malott writes that they contemplate organizing six branches in the city alone. They will have delegates from these branches to the central organization, and from Van Buren, Upland, Gas City, Swayzee, Fairmount, Jonesboro, Jalapa and Sweetser. Many more are paying dues, and interest is on the increase. With a splendid organization like this, there is every reason why the Socialists may expect to retire the old party rings in the near future.

From Redkey and Michigantown come requests for instructions on how to organize a local of the Socialist party. Redkey wants to place a ticket in the field, and has evidently caught some inspiration from the big local at Dunkirk, a few miles from there in the same county.

The Socialists of Salem in Washington county are also anxious to organize and have speakers, and will arrange for Florence Wattles on October 26th.

Local Rossdale called a meeting to nominate a ticket, and was surprised at the number of Socialists who responded. More members were added to the local and more speakers will be heard before the election.

Locals should remember that where town elections are held it is necessary to watch the count of the vote. Watchers' certificates will be supplied by the state secretary on application.

Local Indianapolis reports the organization of another branch and many new members are reported.

Newcastle recently witnessed a "love feast" of prominent Republican politicians. Vice President Sherman spoke to about a dozen workers and one or two stray dogs, and the audience appreciated it highly.

Another Dog Funeral.

Child Slaves Toil to Pay the Price of His Casket.

Another society woman down east has buried her pet bulldog in a costly satin-lined coffin.

It is reported that the dearly beloved creature—the dog, we mean—was a conspicuous figure on the fashionable drives of his native city for many years.

His life was spent in manicured ease. From his lofty perch on madame's carriage he looked with unaffected disdain upon ordinary curs.

We have no objection to anyone's attachment to any four-footed animal. The cultivation of a sympathy for all living creatures is commendable.

But we do object to the fact that to sustain this cur in a life of pampered idleness and finally bury him in a casket costing several hundred dollars, scores of children have given their life's blood and energy in sweatshops and mills in various parts of the country.

The only theory of justice on which capitalism is defended is that of a "fair proportion in the division of the results of labor" between those who perform the actual toil of production and those who have the custody of the capital or tools of production.

Even such a theory is outraged by the gross disproportion between the rewards of labor and the rewards of capital.

It is this disproportion which emphasizes the faults of the system and calls the attention of the workingmen to the absurdity of entrusting capital in private hands.

Here is a woman who probably never contributed of her own ability and energy one single iota of benefit to the human race.

By no act of hers has there been created one more pair of shoes with which to protect the tired feet of American children, nor one shred of cloth to shield their backs from the elements.

In her name has been placed the title to wealth—capital, the means of production and she has not used it as means of production, but has wasted it in manicuring the toe nails of a dog, in perfuming the hair of this cur that would rather run at large and bark and play in the streets with children.

She has done this, not out of humanitarian instincts, but in the giddy, whirling pursuit of fashion.

While she was wasting wealth upon a dog, thousands of little human beings, underfed, poorly clothed and with blighted lives in mills, factories and sweatshops, were grinding out the price of this extravagance.

This plaintive silence is the damnation of the system. The repugnance of right-minded people for the excesses of fashionable society drives hundreds to a study and understanding of a better order in which dogs shall be dogs and children shall be children instead of slaves.

The Recall in California.

By an overwhelming vote the people of California have declared in favor of making the recall of officials who have proven recreant to their trust a part of the constitution of the state. The recall includes judges of the State Court in its provisions. The initiative and referendum amendment were also carried by a 3 to 1 vote.

FOR CONSTABLES—Charles Appel, Clarence Margraf, Frank E. Johnston, Jacob H. Moninger.

Socialist Nonpartisan Candidates.

The above caption has a peculiar sound, but the fact is that under our very peculiar election laws there are a number of Socialist candidates whose names will appear on separate ballot without any party designation. The list is as follows:

For Delegates to Constitutional Convention:

ELMORE E. ADEL,
MARSH C. GREEN,
JAMES H. HENDERSON.

Judicial Nominees—For Judge of the Police Court:

ENOCH B. EUBANKS.

For Justices of the Peace:

LEONARD B. TAYLOR,
RUFUS M. WOODY.

Members Board of Education—At Large:

GEORGIE CROOKS,
ELLA JUNE PURCELL.

Districts:

First, JOHN L. MICHEL,
Third, WILLIAM R. DRAPER,
Fifth, WILLIAM H. BROOKS,
Seventh, CHARLES H. DE LONG.

These candidates have all been endorsed by the Socialist party and are Socialists. Become familiar with these names and the places for which they are candidates so that you may not be confused when you vote.

Socialism marches with thought, not daggers; it brings peace, not war; it acts upon the plane of love, not hate.

If the laborers would quit using their horny hands so much and use their horny heads a little, they could make the idle rich use their lilly white hands a little.

Yes, laboring man, Socialism will destroy the rented shack you are forced to call home, but if you are willing to do half the work you are now doing it will enable you to build a mansion.

VOTE THE SOCIALIST TICKET STRAIGHT.

If your father had permitted a useless rich man to ride on his back, would you permit that rich man's son to ride on your back? If not, why don't you buck him off. You can do it at the ballot box.

Webster says that profit is "acquisition beyond expenditure; excess value received for keeping or selling, over cost." The Socialists say that profit is that part of the workers' earnings which the workers do not get. Only different ways of saying the same thing. That's all.

Can A Union Man Vote the Socialist Ticket.

Eugene V. Debs is not the Socialist movement.

The men who lead strikes are not always Socialists.

They are honest men standing for a principle.

The more experience men and women have with strikes the more they realise that some one is resorting to the "Abuse of Power."

By this we allude to the fact that some own what the others must hold in common to supply the people with their earthly needs.

We find also that some have jobs and that others are jobless.

We also find that the jobless are a menace to those who have jobs, because hunger makes even honest men—sometimes—forget a principle.

Gene Debs says the "Craft unions have lost their usefulness," and we who have been paying dues for the last twenty years realize the truth of this statement.

Gene Debs is only saying what Tow Lewis and John Mitchell before him have said.

They realize that the hope of the workers lies in CLASS SOLIDARITY.

This is also true of the Typographical Union and the Brewery workers. And the recent advent of the RAILROAD FEDERATIONS proves that the CRAFT UNIONS are passing into the background.

The men who are responsible for the issuance of the pamphlet, "Can a Labor Union Man Afford to Vote the Socialist Ticket," are not UNION MEN.

We admit that ALL UNION MEN ARE NOT SOCIALISTS, but we realize that all the members of Labor Unions are socialistic to a certain degree, especially during strikes. In these times leaders appeal for "unity of action." They urge the unions to forget their craft distinctions. This is what Gene Debs appeals for 365 days in the year. He demands that the workers also have united action at the ballot box in voting for their own interests.

Personally no man should be jealous of those who hold political positions. But let those who receive the rewards remember on whose shoulders they are standing.

Eugene V. Debs is a fighter. To support his argument allow us to ask the question: "What would have been the result of the Columbus Street Car Strike IF the engineers and the firemen, motormen, conductors, barn men, and others had been organized into one industrial union like John Mitchell's union, the Coal Miners?" Under these conditions when the unskilled have a grievance the skilled shut off the power until the grievances are adjusted. This is called CLASS SOLIDARITY. The politicians fear this class of organization because it prevents the workers being divided amongst themselves.

The Socialist eagerly awaits the later issues.

JIM HENDERSON.

"Socialism is not an issue," declared Mayor Marshall. Dear Georgie, that is true. It is no longer an issue, it is a cinch.

COURT NEWS.

The trial of John F. Brady, alias O'Leary, alleged to have shot two women and a little girl during the Columbus street railway strike last year, while he was employed as a strike-breaker, has been postponed again to Nov. 6. On November 7th, the case of the People against the Rail-Light, the Chamber of Commerce, George Solipsimus Marshal, George J. Karb, et al, will be tried before a jury of 45,000 electors of the city of Columbus. Karb is a Standard Oil tool, Marshall is satisfactory to the Chamber of Commerce.

Threats Are Made.

The Chamber of Commerce, through certain banks and wholesale houses, is trying to bulldoze small dealers who are friendly toward Socialism. Threats have been made that if dealers do not line up for Marshall or Karb that credit will be withdrawn.

YOU COWARDS OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, your game is understood. You have gone too far. The people, mechanics, small merchants and property owners and thousands of others, are going to smash you on Tuesday, November 7th.

To Comrades and Working People:

Look over the advertising in your paper. Patronize those who patronize you. Remember those who refuse to advertise in a labor paper are unfair to labor and are not worthy of your patronage.

Coffee up 2 cents a pound all around.

The jobbers here announce that, following the boost in the prices here has advanced on all grades to equal about two cents a pound retail.

This means, they say, that the Arbuckle package that has been selling at 23 1-2 cents will be selling at 25 1-2, while the standard popular "30-cent" brands will be selling for 33 cents.

The jobbers say that without question it will only be a short time before the cheapest coffee will retail at 30 cents a pound, with what has been the popular "high-grade" coffee selling at 30 cents, retailing at 40 cents.

Sugar and Pearls.

Sugar is one of the commonest necessaries of life. Everybody uses it. But how many of us drink champagne or own automobiles, furs, diamonds or pearls? These things are the luxuries of the rich.

Now, see how the tariff duties bear on these various articles :

Sugar	78.7	per cent
Champagne	70	per cent
Automobiles	45	per cent
Furs	50	per cent
Diamonds	10	per cent
Pearls	20	per cent

The woman with six children who uses sugar is paying the cost of government for the woman who wears furs, diamonds and pearls.

BREAD RIOTS.

"The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof"; and as He is "Father of all," having made mankind "of one blood" among all nations, the blessings of the earth belong to His children in general, not merely to the hoggish few.

Yet in the midst of plenty millions of people starve every year; and the hoggish few, called kings and capitalists, continue to grab and graft, to trample and ravage all the more heartlessly.

With one of the most terrible famines ever known in India certain in the near future on account of general failure of crops through drouth, the "King of England and Emperor of India," George the Fifth, insists upon taking a fleet of ships and thousands of troops to India to celebrate the Durbar, which, together with vast local expenses of preparation and assembling of armies for the great pageant, will cost probably $100,000,000, all of which must come at last out of the impoverished lives of the Hindoo peasantry. Meanwhile, no doubt as usual, cholera will add its horrors to the sufferings of the Hindoos, and probably, as has been the case previously, from five to ten million people will perish from famine, most of whom could be saved if the Durbar money were spent for relief instead of idiotic display.

"If the people have no bread, why don't they eat cake?"

The King's cake will cost his crown sooner or later. If it should cost his life while he is in India, who could honestly blame the maddened Hindoo patriot that took it?

There is a very strong objection being made in England, not only among Socialists but among the wise and more humane capitalists, against holding the Durbar this year. George will enjoy the title of Emperor of India just the same if the pageant and ceremony of the Durbar are omitted. But he insists upon his "glory," even though millions perish. A former King George of England lost a vast colonial empire by a far less injurious manifestation of political insanity; and India will be likely to throw off the British yoke all the sooner because of such inhuman and disastrous vanity.

Meanwhile the people in the poorer districts of France can no longer endure quetly their sufferings on account of the high price of food. Popular demonstrations called "bread riots" are occuring in the face of the dark prospect of a devastating war with Germany. But the commercial magnates of France, the inhuman "trustees of Providence" there, are willing for starvation to reign among the people so long as there is money to be made by exorbitant prices—even though it provokes another bloody revolution.

"After us the deluge."

And now the citizens of Vienna, Austria, are rioting 50,000 strong. They are building barricades in the streets and destroying property of certain kinds, demanding a permanent decrease in the price of food, and a better chance to live. But the king's troops are beginning to shoot the rioters down, and the situation grows more serious day by day. The Socialist leader, David, was beaten into insensibility while trying to pacify the crowds and preserve order. The outraged people seem willing to die at the hands of the soldiers, but will not quetly starve.

In the United States the cost of living continues to soar and larger numbers of people are becoming restless and desperate.

All this in a world of plenty, under a "Christian civilization."

O. F. of Labor Convention Summarized.

Brother M. J. Giblin made some impression on the convention. The following resolutions were introduced by the brother and their intent means much to the cause of labor:

Resolution No. 85,
By M. J. Giblin, Brewery Workers Union No. 147, Columbus.

Whereas, Because of the non-enforcement of existing laws, commercial monopolies exist and control the immediate necessities of life in open violation of the State and Federal Statutes.

Whereas, For many years Organized Labor has suffered from the atrocious acts of Federal Judges and subordinate officials of the Courts by means of injunctions, issued against the workers when out on strike, and served upon them to intimidate the organized labor movement and prevent its growth;

Therefore, Be it the sense of the Ohio State Federation of Labor in convention assembled, that we co-operate with the American Federation of Labor and [illegible] bodies to demand an investigation to demonstrate cause for the Courts protecting organized capital while at the same time they are prosecuting organized labor; be it also

Resolved, That those responsible for these deplorable conditions be made subject to the penalties of the law themselves.

Motion to concur carried.

Resolution No. 45.

By Delegate M. J. Giblin of Brewery W. I. U.

Whereas, It is one of the aims of the O. F. L. to bring about better sanitary conditions for society and thereby promote the health of all the people by preventing the spread of contagious diseases;

Whereas, There are many establishments engaged in the bottling of liquid foods that are operated under unsanitary conditions, and in many instances they neglect to sterilize bottles that have been previously used, and put foodstuffs in bottles that contain dangerous bacteria, and in some instances will be the cause of spreading diseases; therefore be it

Resolved, That the O. F. L., in convention assembled, hereby instruct the Legislative Committee to work for a bill at the next session of the Ohio Legislature, said bill to compel all bottlers of foodstuffs, such as beer and soda water, etc., to sterilize their bottles, brush and rinse, and inspect before filling, and said bill to make it compulsory for all bottling establishments to keep their workshops and filling machines and other filling utensils clean and sanitary.

Concurred in by committee.

Motion to adopt. Carried.

Many of the resolutions referred to the effect of convict made goods on the free labor market. The delegates from Toledo presented a resolution to revolutionize our present penal system. Their plans apparently are the forerunner of what will someday be adopted by the State relative to the unfortunates behind the prison walls being allowed certain sums of money for their labor the same to go towards the support of their people who are dependent upon them. The same old resolutions of the century were submitted relative to the strike breaking agencies. Of course this is impossible, because the capitalists use the agencies to supply vote repeaters to retain them and the present system in office.

The McNamara kidnapping case was one of the leading issues of the convention and the body went on record in favor of contributing to their defense fund and further in the demand for justice for the victim of Capitalistic rancor.

The Printers demanded that the various county officials be asked to adopt the union label on their printing. They also demand inquiry into the printing shop now in operation at the Mansfield Reformatory. The resolution to brand Governor Judson Harmon as the easy tool of the capitalist was laid upon the table to the song of "Hail, Hail, the Gang All Here."

The Stage Employes petitioned the body to have the State Building Code so amended to prohibit the use of counter weights and sand bags in the working of stage scenery other than the main curtain. Many of the old time honored resolutions were introduced and the eagle of the reactionaries were always alert to prevent any motion going through that would hurt their material interests.

There were 230 delegates present with a voting power of 239.

National Socialist Headquarters.

Requests for additional suffrage petitions are being received constantly at the National Office. The signed petitions are also pouring in. The whole party organization should work as one vast unit in circulating this petition. We have demonstrated in the past that we can do wonders when we try. Send to the National Headquarters, 295 West Washington street, Chicago, for more petition blanks.

Since last reported contributions to the McNamara Defense Fund have been received at the National Office, and forwarded to the office of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, as follows: V. Wendzinsh, Chicago, Ill., 50 cents; Local Union No. 369 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, located at New York City, $500.00.

The National Executive Committee met at Bridgeport, Conn., October 14th. Three sessions were held on the 14th and two on the 15th. The complete minutes of the meeting, printed in leaflet form, have been distributed through the usual channels of party information, and will be republished in the November issue of the Monthly Bulletin.

After November 1st the price of the Berger Tariff Speech will be thirty-five cents per hundred. It has hitherto been sold at a loss. Address all orders to the National Secretary, 295 West Washington street, Chicago. They will be sent to you in bulk and you can write the addresses on the envelopes and mail them out without postage. The National Office cannot undertake to address them to individuals.

The price of the Old Age Pension Speech remains twenty-five cents per hundred, as heretofore.

It will be a convenience to the National Headquarters if comrades who have occasion to write to the Headquarters on matters pertaining to the Lyceum Department will not mix such matters with letters on other subjects. In fact, it is a good rule never to write on more than one subject in one letter. Otherwise, a letter has to be switched from one department to another, which occasions delay.

State Secretary Max Wilk, of Georgia, reports that the Socialist Party of Georgia, will hold a state convention at Macon, October 29. It will be called to order at the Court House at 10 a. m. Candidates for governor and other offices will be nominated. Plans for organization work in the state will be considered, also the establishment of a bulletin or party [illegible]

The Fighting Tenth Ward Arranging for Big Haywood Demonstration.

The Tenth Ward Branch met in their new headquarters, 755 West Broad street, Monday evening, and had an exceptional good meeting, having a larger attendance than any meeting for some time. The committee on Haywood Parade has made arrangements to have printed 10,000 cards to hand out to residents of the Tenth Ward, inviting them to march to Memorial Hall to hear the Big miner. They are also having three banners made, and we are going to confer with the Ninth and Eleventh Ward in order to come to High street in a body, and if possible, have a band, for we are coming. "You Two Georges, 20,000 strong."

Socialists will report not later than 7:15 p. m. Saturday evening, November 4th. What a sight it would be for the Plutes to witness. Enough to cause them to yell for their Tin Soldier Brush. Anyone wishing to march with the Tenth Ward meet at Hall, 755 West Broad, Saturday, November 4th, 6:30 p. m.

VOTE THE SOCIALIST TICKET STRAIGHT.

MR. PROGRESSIVE, WHY NOT PUT THE "RECALL" IN THE NEW STATE CONSTITUTION?

The United League in presenting the candidates, who seek election to the Ohio Constitutional Convention, take pains to inform the people that their nominees were recruited from the business, professional and labor ranks.

They further inform the voters that these gentlemen have been pledged to vote for the I. and R. But they have so far refused to indorse the recall.

The candidates named by the Socialist party were recruited from no particular class. They are pledged to voice the demands of the majority of the people.

By the Initiative and Referendum the people will be able to demand for themselves such legislation that demands immediate enactment for the well being of all the citizens of this Republic.

The Socialist candidates are pledged to demand that the Right to Recall be made part of the new Ohio Constitution. The reason for their so doing is the belief that the people should have the right to discipline those who disobey the commands of the common people.

The command of the people represents the majesty of the law.

Those who propose to make laws which carry no penalty for their disobeyance would make the new State Constitution a farce, and thereby destroy the reverence and majesty that becomes laws that are equitable and expedient in their functions.

The Right to Recall placed in the hands of the people will spread civic confidence over the State, restore patriotism and abolish the prevalent distrust in public officials.

The Socialists realize that the nation that is least governed is best governed. Therefore it will be necessary that the new State Constitution be plain in the interpretation of its tenets and effectual in its function.

Therefore we affirm a solemn declaration to demand for the people of Ohio a Constitution that will represent the real voice of all the people. That the same shall not follow but MEd other States who have suffered through methods of political corruption and legislative pollution. To this end we demand that the Initiative and Referendum and the Right to Recall be part of the State Constitution.

We stand subservient to the wishes of all the people, believing that the commonweal can be trusted with the full powers which belong to a real Republic.

WHEN THE PEOPLE OWN THE COAL MINES.

There is no need for explanation as to "why" the people should own in common what they need in common, because this extract taken from one of the leading papers explains the question itself. We recommend this article to those of our fellow citizens who are afraid to trust the people with that which belongs to the people:

"The government has proved that it can mine coal more efficiently and more cheaply than can private parties. The government owns a mine at Williston, N. D. Coal is produced there for $1.60 per ton; coal from private mines sells for $2.50 per ton. Moreover, the government mine is a model mine. It is equipped with every known safety device. There has never been a man killed in it. The miners work only eight hours a day, six days a week, and earn at the rate of about $100 per month. In view of these facts, why turn Alaska over to the Morgan-Guggenheim outfit? Why shall not the United States both own and develop Alaska? Why shall not the government build the railroads and mine the coal? It has proved its ability to do both. Not only is labor pleased with government ownership, because it gets better hours and better pay in the government service, but the consumer is pleased also, because he gets better service and lower prices."—The Public.

THE THEATRICAL MECHANICS' ASSOCIATION.

The above organization will give a dance at Columbia Hall, November 6th, 1911. All friends of the Stage Hands should be on hand for the big doings.

Sunshine or Snow.

Whether the sun shines bright or the white flakes fall, the big world's championship motorcycle races by ladies will be pulled off this Sunday (Oct. 29) at the Driving Park. Weather conditions won't stop the Socialists voting strong on election day, it shouldn't stop them on the big race day.

Men Will Also Race.

While the ladies motorcycle races at the Driving Park this Sunday (Oct. 29) will be the real feature, fast men racers will also compete. Admission 25 cents, grandstand free.

Are Government Employes Criminals?

We are told that the new Columbus Federal Building has been so constructed that spies can patrol certain galleries and watch honest citizens at work. From all reports this building is to be a modern inquisitorial chamber, where unknown to their victims certain reptiles will prowl in search of prey. The hunters will apparently pursue their work with diligence, because they have made themselves believe that they themselves are the only righteous people on the earth. The majority of these men are creatures of low environments and a great per cent of their convictions are secured by their own imaginations. In their hearts they know of their being despised and rejected by their fellow men. Their sneaking pilfering countenance make them social outcasts. Hence they live in an atmosphere of evil intentions, bred by dreams and imaginary scenes and developed by continual intergourse with those of the same mind. They know not the meaning of the word "consolation." This is the class of men who will daily prowl upon honest men. It's the worst stigma ever hurled against the government employe. Let those who devised these plans visit Leavenworth Federal prison and they will find that the greater per centage of crime exists in the higher grades of the service where the men who devised the peep holes and sneak chambers are located. If this government must exist by the underhanded work of a spy system, somebody had better inspect the foundation of the Republic. Are we a nation of thieves? If not, why resort to the tricks of criminals? Don't torture! Crucify thieves. But please don't take the word of a paid sneak. His mission is to convict—by ruthless energy—at all times and places.

Vote To Abolish the City Hades.

At the coming city election the voter will be asked to appropriate money to erect a new city prison. We are given to understand that the two leading candidates on the old party tickets are against the bond issue.

In taking into consideration the fact that there is a distinct expression of class privilege in the proceedure of law at the Police Court and that the "privileged" citizens seldom occupy the pest hole beneath the ground where a condition of dungeons exist that would shame the annals of history concerning the Spanish inquisition, there can be no need for comment as to why the manicured pinacles of society are against the humanitarian efforts.

But remember that the men who are placed in these dungeons in the majority of cases are the traveling unemployed workers. When these men are released from the city pest hole they are so rotten with vermin that they become outcasts.

The class that is against the new city prison was in favor of parks and boulevards. You defeated them before and on the 7th day of November vote in favor of a new city prison.

Comrades! Beware of Hissing Vipers.

The political character assassins are at work. One of these infamous villification agents recently charged that the head of the Socialist Ticket was a strike-breaker. The man who denied the falsehood were not Socialists and this cowardly assassin was compelled to take to the hills.

For the information of truth-seekers it should be recorded that the candidate for Mayor on the Socialist ticket came to the Jeffrey Manufacturing Company more than a year after the Iron Molders' strike. The craft that Comrade Eby works at never had a labor organization in the history of the American labor movement. And furthermore, the said Jeffrey Manufacturing Company NEVER had a STRIKE or ANY OTHER LABOR DISPUTE with the WORKERS employed in their DRAUGHTING DEPARTMENT. The writer was employed by the said Jeffrey Company up to the time of the Molders' strike and vouches for the statement herein. To quote the words of a citizen who is a non-Socialist, "Mr. Eby is an honest man, and if we are to judge men by their home life, Mr. Eby is capable of being President of the United States."

President of Columbus Federation of Labor.

Challenge to Joint Debate in Cincinnati.

I notice in today's issue of the Enquirer under the general head of "Political Gossip" an item to the effect that Theodore Horstman, Lincoln Independent candidate for the office of Mayor of Cincinnati, suggests that certain candidates for this office engage in a joint debate at Music Hall about next Saturday nig....

As the SOCIALIST CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR, I wish to add my second to this suggestion, with the proviso, however, that ALL candidates for the office of Mayor of the city of Cincinnati be invited to participate, not excepting the Socialist Labor party candidate, Wm. R. ..ver, and the writer of this letter, who is the choice of the SOCIALIST PARTY for the principal executive position in our city.

The Socialist party will pledge itself to support such a joint meeting in every respect, and offers fair and reasonable inducements towards securing same, not excepting MORE than our share of the financial.

We have every reason to be willing to go before the citizens of Cincinnati and explain our position to them, and if, in fair and open debate, it is shown that we are visionaries and unfit for active participation in government duties, and that either of my contestants are better fit personally or by reason of party affiliation than the writer to serve as Mayor, the successful orator will not only sway the general opinion of the citizens assembled, but will also secure the Socialist vote of this city, especially in this true since SOCIALISTS are, if anything, reasonable men and women. A joint meeting and debate of this kind would be of real educational value and not useless, as is the case in the usual political or campaign meetings, where refutation has no place, and questioning (except at Socialist meetings) is unknown.

Trusting that this will meet with your hearty approval, I am yours for "MORE LIGHT."

LAWRENCE A. ..TT.

GENERAL NEWS THE WORLD OVER.

The "Tailor" for October contains one of the best written articles on the advance of Socialism and Syndicalism. The writer proves that the end must result in the historical "Hunger Strike" and the facts taken to support his argument are plain and historical. The labor journals of today are far ahead of the movement and the membership had better begin to lay on the oars themselves.

The Cigar Makers' Journal breaks into the progressive ranks in spots. The most healthful side of the labor question with the cigar makers lies in the truth of their untiring efforts for the support of the Union Label. At the present time they are teaching the people the dangers of the cellar made stogie, and also the startling information of the moistening of the wrappers used on the Havana Cigars by the lips of the plague-stricken natives. To be on the safe side patronize home products and see that the Union Label is on the article you purchase with your money.

The Glassworker gives the trade the impression that they are able to adjust the interests of the glass workers to the conditions of economic changes. They give special attention to the "Want Column" which contains advertisements for all kinds of skilled mechanics. All the articles prove that the machine is being controlled by practical men. It also proves that every advantage is given to the employers to co-operate for the best development of the product required for the market. The issue contains the masterly Address of John Voll, the energetic president of the Ohio Federation of Labor.

News from the Mine Workers' Journal is worthy of earnest consideration at all times. The editor makes the following comment on the "Craft Union" conditions now existing on the Harriman railroad system. We hope the gentlemen who sent out the folder, "Can a Labor Union Man Vote the Socialist Ticket," will read the same:

"The strike of the shop, office and yard employes of the Harriman railway system is being bravely fought by the men involved. They deserve all the support organized labor can give them. But there is one disgusting spectacle and that is the brotherhood of engineers, conductors and trainmen hauling scabs all over the system."

The Shoe Workers' Journal is one of the liveliest on the labor question. The editor says the man who steals $100,000,000 is called a genius, the man who steals $10 is a thief, and the man who steals a ham is at war against society.

Scabs No Longer Considered Heroes.

At East St. Louis, Ill., three of Elliot's "heroes" were arraigned in court and given until sundown to get out of the city. Tattered, hungry and weather-beaten they presented a piteous spectacle, and when they told the court that they had been picked up in a Bowery lodging house in New York, locked in a car on a special train with 166 other "heroes" and given no food on the journey from New York to East St. Louis, the court and the spectators realised that the railroad company had little regard for the "heroes" it expected to route the strikers.

On their arrival in East St. Louis the master mechanic of the local shop had refused to put them to work. Penniless, tired and hungry they had drifted into the streets of the city only to fall a prey to unfeeling policemen who failed to recognise them as heroes, called them "bums" and drove them back to the shop. There they received scant courtesy, were bundled on a special train and started for Chicago. But "heroes," like every day men, need something to eat and they dropped off the train and made another effort to satisfy the demands of the stomach. The police grabbed them again, and when they appeared in court, even the city authorities seemed loath to provide them with the scant, coarse fare of the criminals, and they were driven from town. Alas and alack for three of Elliot's heroes.

At McComb, Miss., a whole train load of heroes found a very hostile reception from the citizens of all degrees. Like heroes of outlaw fame they had guns and on arriving in the Mississippi city they began to use them like outlaws. They pumped lead into the citizens, and said citizens resented the mode of entry of the "heroes." But when the "heroes" added insult to injury by heaping indignities on the women of the community, the united citizenship asserted itself and the "heroes" were compelled to depart, guarded by troops.

At New Orleans, Mayor Behrman, in addressing 5,000 strikers showed conclusively that he too was no admirer of the men that Professor Eliot had tried to immortalize. He assured the men, who were battling for their rights, that he would exercise his moral right to compel the railroad company to deport all "undesirables" who may be brought to the city to take the places of the strikers.

The day has passed when traitors to their fellow workers can merit the approbation of the great American public. The day is here when true manhood is appreciated and the rights of the toilers must be respected. Eliot's "heroes" are passing—the true heroes are coming.

Convention Notes.

The recent convention of the International Typographical Union adopted amendments to the death benefit clause in the constitution which will be submitted to a referendum vote of the members. The scale of benefits provided is as follows:

For a membership of one year or less, $75.

For a continuous membership of two years, $125.

For a continuous membership of three years, $175.

For a continuous membership of four years, $275.

For a continuous membership of five years, $400.

For the payment of the above amounts an assessment of one-half of one per cent on his earnings of the members is proposed. The weekly old age pension benefit was increased from $4 to $50.

The legislature of the state of Indiana passed an employers' liability act which removes the employer's defense, sustained by common law, of contributory negligence, assumption of risk and fellow employes' negligence. The states of Kansas, Nevada, Indiana and several others passed compensation laws which operate automatically in the payment of damages in accident cases. The law passed by the legislature of the state of Wisconsin, which is not as farreaching in removing the common law disabilities as that of Indiana, is disputed on constitutional grounds. It is now pending in the Supreme Court of the state.

The Socialist Vote.

If as many people attend the ladies' motorcycle races at the Driving Park this Sunday, (Oct. 29), as vote the Socialist ticket this fall, what will that vote be? Answer, 15,000 to 20,000.

The McNamara Trial.

All eyes are now turned to Los Angeles where one of the greatest trials of the century is going on. The National Manufacturers' Association and its auxiliaries are attempting to fasten a crime on organized labor and will spend millions of dollars to accomplish that end. Organized labor, strong in its sense of innocence, is giving battle to the organized employers and their attorneys say they will present a defense so strong that its enemies will be confounded.

The following facts and figures give an approximate idea of the magnitude of the McNamara trial:

Number of witnesses to be called by the prosecution, 426.

Number of witnesses who will probably be called for the defense, 126.

Number of lawyers who will appear in the court room for the defense and prosecution, 10.

Number of lawyers associated with the defense and the prosecution who will not appear in the court room, 40.

Number of detectives employed, 600.

Length of time estimated for the first trial, 180 days.

Estimated number of words which will be contained in official transcript of the case, 7,200,000.

Approximate expense of the defense and the prosecution, $2,000,000.

Number of states where witnesses will be secured, 15.

Number of spectators who may secure daily entrance to the court room, 74.

Bookbinders' Victory.

When the bookbinders of New York City presented demands to their employers, the latter refused to entertain them and made a declaration of their determination to "run their own business." The bookbinders went on strike and in less than a week the employers came to the conclusion that they could not run their own business, and that no business could be done until the employed return to work.

As a result of this revelation the employers decided to do business with the union. They called for and held a conference with a committee from the labor organization and they are all doing business today.

The union gained a complete victory, the employers conceded every demand that they had previously refused to entertain, and the strikers returned to work realising more than ever the necessity for organization.

As a result of the agreement the wages of the gilders will be increased $5 a week and the stampers and gold leaf layers will receive an increas of $3 a week. For the bookbinders a flat minimum rate of $18 a week has been established, an increase in wages from $3 to $3 a week. The settlement affects every bookbinder in New York City.

On Throwing Away Your Vote

By ELLA JUNE PURCELL.

"There was a man in our town
And he was wondrous rash;
He voted for a Republican,
And thus lost half his cash.
And when he found what he had done
As guiltless as a calf,
He voted for a Democrat,
And lost the other half."

Every time I meet a man who will not vote the Socialist ticket because he does not want to throw his vote away, I wonder how long it will be before the world's supply of idiots will be exhausted. There are many false and silly reasons advanced why men will not vote the Socialist ticket, but none are more irritatingly illogical than this one.

Men who have voted for roosters and donkeys for fifty years with undisturbed calmness are horrified when you ask them to vote for themselves this time. Men who have voted with unfailing regularity for one of the old parties and have gained absolutely nothing by their voting, hesitate to cast their vote for a new, reform party. What change for the better can you, Mr. Working Man, notice when a Republican goes out of office and a Democrat comes in? Honestly, now, what change can you notice? Are your wages higher, is the cost of living lowered, are taxes lessened, is graft ended? You must answer,—it makes not the slightest difference.

And why should it make any difference whether the mayor calls himself Democrat or Republican? Is there any actual or material distinction between the two old parties? You know there is not. There are really only two parties in name; they are separate wings or factions of the same party,—the Capitalist Party.

If you, Mr. Workingman, do not get some definite, tangible result from casting a ballot, you are wasting your ballot. Yet you must confess you have been able to discern no especially good effect from your ballots for years. What we ask in this election is: Stop throwing away your vote, make it count, cast it for an equal opportunity for all, for the People's Party, the Socialist Party.

Our little Mayor Marshall says you should not vote for parties but for men in this election. He thinks that because privately he is an honest and honorable citizen he is entitled to be the mayor of Columbus for two years more. The Hoe Co. tell you, Mr. Workingman, to vote not for men but for principles. The Socialists tell you, Mr. Working Man, that however brilliant an attorney the little mayor may be, and however kind a father he may be, if he is unable to make it plain how he is going to HELP YOU, do not throw away your vote on him!

He says he is in favor of extending the municipal electric lighting plant for commercial purposes, but says private citizens should pay a rate higher than corporations. Mark his reason. A certain Hoe and Co. is within a stone's throw of the light plant, and the residence of a certain Mr. Deshler is four miles away. Marshall says the citizen four miles away should pay more than the corporation. So far we can not discover what rate he would have the residents pay who are near the plant and what rate he would have the corporations who are four miles away pay.

If you vote for the little mayor are you going to help yourself, Mr. Workingman? Certainly not. You are voting for the interest of the Hoe Co.

The candidate of the Socialist Party believes in equality of opportunity for all. In justice to all. He can not understand the little mayor's logic. Can you?

Men Wanted for the Army.

By Annie Minturn.

"Men Wanted for the Army." This sign can be read in many prominent places in the city. The words, in large type, are above a very alluring picture. A few tents are seen in the midst of green fields, and soldiers, erect and commanding, stand in the foreground in the splendor of uniforms. Naturally this picture appeals to young manhood very strongly, because it is associated in their minds with love of country and its protection. But there is neither honor nor patriotism in being a soldier in the time of peace. The gallant boys of 1861 fought gloriously and won because they were enlisted in the cause of humanity, and fought for justice, equality and right. Today, however, the boy who dons the uniform of Uncle Sam, but swells the rank of protectors to the interests, for it is in their service his help will be most needed. There is no glory or display of patriotism in shooting down a defenseless striker; yet this is what "Men Wanted for the Army" are called upon to do.

But the picture, while bringing many an unsuspecting youth within that great body of government parasites, has not swelled the ranks sufficiently to suit the whim of Master Interest. His possessions are mighty; they are oft in danger; they must be protected. So in looking about for a means to make doubly sure the safety of his treasures, what better aid could be rally to his standard than the men of the army who fight beneath the banner of the stars and stripes? This army should serve him; for is he not greater than his government. This army must not be allowed to dwindle. And so he devises a plan, whereby in his blindness, he fancies he may hold fast unto himself and his being forever, his ill-gotten lands, his palaces thereon and his chattels he has stolen from the poor. The opportunity comes to him in the form of a message from far aw Africa. He reads the account of the siege of Mafeking where every able bodied man is pressed into service to defend the city. Then, at a critical moment messengers are needed; no men can be spared, and finally, Lord Cecil saves the day by using the boys for this service. The Boys! Master Interest awakes to the wonderful possibilities in the magic word. They will solve his problem; they will save to him his own. But, mark you, how he proceeds! All at once he discovers and begins to lament the fact that we no longer have with us the old fashioned little "barefoot boy, with cheeks of tan," that little boy, who, in olden times was nature's special protege, roaming the woods and fields at will, content with only the gold of the waving grain; the silver of the sparkling brook, the music of the wild bird's note. That little boy who watched with rapture "the wild bees' morning chase; who knew of "the wild flowers' time and place," who could tell "how the robin feeds her young, and how the oriole's nest is hung."

And "where the whitest lillies blow,
And the freshest berries grow."

Ah, where had that dear little boy gone? True, a few miles' drive in his machine would have taken him to the grave of that little barefoot boy, in his own mill or his mine or his factory. But he preferred to ignore this ugly fact and rather to sit in his palace, built by the toil of those little boys' hands, while he moralized how to bring back to them the heritage of their lost Kingdom. He would organize them into a society "for service to mankind." And each little boy in this society, begotten of war, wearing the military khaki, and being under military surveillance, should be required to perform one good act every day. And the real meaning of the organization which plainly is, "Men Wanted for the Army," should be hidden under the guise of the outdoor sports in which they would be drilled and encouraged, and which are so dear to all boys, for Whittier's barefoot boy is none other than our little boy today if his opportunities were but the same. And so, later on, the Boy Scouts, for this is the name of the organization Master Interest has so kindly fathered, will many of them be the "Men Wanted for the Army." Although, Master Interest would impress upon you that the organization of Boy Scouts is not military. In proof of this his magazines today are full of the denial; but, on the other hand, the most charming of sketches and stories are written about the movement, its helpfulness to humanity, its growth and popularity.

And what of the little boy, who in his ignorant innocence, fancies he is being benefitted by joining a camp of these Scouts? Day by day the poisonous spirit of hellish warfare is being instilled into his childish brain. He is learning, together with his wood lore, to be a soldier in the interest of greed. And when later he levels his rifle and shoots down the man who is begging for bread, the good deeds he has so faithfully performed each day will be wiped out by the innocent blood of the man he has murdered.

"Men Wanted for the Army?" Yes; men are wanted for the army, the great army of peace which is marching toward the goal of human brotherhood; the army of righteousness, equality, justice and love,—and the name of this army is [illegible]

THE SOCIALISTS' CITY PLATFORM.

We, the Socialist Party of the City of Columbus, Ohio, assembled in mass convention, reaffirm our allegiance to the principles of International Socialism as embodied in our National and State Platform.

The first consideration in all municipal affairs should be the interest of the working class. The Socialist Party is organized not only to elect good and efficient men to office but to control the powers of political government in order to guarantee to the workers the possession and operation of the means of production and distribution and the full social product of their labor.

As measures calculated to strengthen the working class in its fight for the realization of its ultimate aim, and to increase its powers of resistance against private capitalism, we advocate and pledge ourselves and our elected officers to the following program:

FIRST: For the more perfect application of the Initiative and Referendum in all municipal affairs.

SECOND: For the Recall of all elective officials.

THIRD: For the public ownership of all public utilities and the abolition of the contract system and all convict labor when in competition with free labor.

FOURTH: For the elimination of unnecessary officials, a reduction of all salaries that excessive and a minimum wage of $3.00 per day in all public works.

FIFTH: For the Eight Hour Day for all labor on public improvements and in all municipal departments, and a uniform pension system to apply to all city employees.

SIXTH: For the City to furnish work to the unemployed to the fullest extent possible under present conditions.

SEVENTH: For the rigid inspection of all stores, factories, workshops and places of public assemblage and the strict enforcement of all laws to protect the lives of the workers.

EIGHTH: Human life and health being more sacred than property, should be the first consideration in the enforcement of the sanitary laws.

NINTH: For public parks and playgrounds within easy reach of the workers, and public comfort stations as well as public drinking fountains, wherever essential to the health and comfort of the workers.

TENTH: For the City to provide municipal hospitals free from every taint of Charity.

ELEVENTH: For free text books in all grades of our public schools and the use of one room in each school house for public assemblage.

TWELFTH: For the free administration of justice and the election of a public "Defender" as well as a public "Prosecutor" as at present.

THIRTEENTH: We pledge ourselves to secure from the State, such authority as will give the municipality the right to establish, own and operate all industries that pertain to the city's activity.

In addition to the ladies' Motorcycle races at the Driving Park, Sunday, there has been added several new features.

There will also be a 10-mile automobile race, a 5-mile handicap between men and lady riders, the ladies being given three-eighths of a mile start. There will also be a 10-mile handicap between the lady winner of the cup and an automobile. The lady will be given three-fourths of a mile start.

A real big feature will be a one mile handicap between an automobile, a motorcycle, a horse and a man on foot. The motorcycle will be given a one-eighth mile start, the horse one-fourth mile and the man three-fourths. This will be the first time in history a race of this kind was ever attempted.

WOMAN AUTHOR ADDRESSES TWO BIG DAYTON AUDIENCES.

Dayton, Ohio.—Charlotte Perkins Gillman, lecturer, author, magazine writer, editor of the Forerunner Magazine, and Socialist, spoke here to two large Socialist audiences at the Auditorium with Frederick Guy Strickland.

Mrs. Gillman is here attending the sessions of the Ohio Woman Suffrage Association, and her address was mainly on "Socialism and the Woman Question." While Strickland addressed an audience in the lower hall Mrs. Gillman spoke to the audience in the upper hall, and then the speakers were reversed.

HEAR WOMAN TALK ON FOOD QUESTION AT DEFIANCE.

Defiance, Ohio.—Ella Reeve Bloor spoke to an audience of about 500 people in the Opera House here. She spoke at some length on the food question and told how Roosevelt's commission tried to ignore the indictment of "The Jungle" and painted the conditions in the stockyards in glowing white terms. She held the strict attention of her audience throughout her entire talk.

What Will They Do Next.

By Frank Bohn.

The Wholesale Grocer states that SIX MILLION BAGS OF COFFEE (2,400,000 pounds) WERE THROWN INTO THE SEA OFF THE COAST OF BRAZIL. THE PURPOSE WAS TO HOLD UP THE PRICE OF COFFEE IN THE AMERICAN MARKET. The number here given seems excessive. But were it 600,000 or only 60,000, the character of the deed would still be the same.

The following news item appeared in the Chicago Daily Journal, October 13:

"Coffee hits highest price in 30 years. Advanced 110 per cent since 1909; best grade 35 cents a pound, wholesale. When coffee, best grade Brazilian, hit the 35-cent-a-pound mark at wholesale today it set a record that has not been neared in score of years. When this top notch figure was reached it represented a 110 per cent increase in the last two years and marked the success of the so-called manipulation by the Brazilian government and the money powers in Germany, France, England and the United States. 'The only relief we may expect in the future,' said one prominent dealer, 'is a reform in the Brazilian government or an improbable softening of hearts of the money powers.'

Upon a foundation of slavery the profit system has erected a pyramid of crimes. The pile is made up of every form of cruelty and wickedness which the ruling classes of the ages have handed down one to the other.

Each ruling class, with accumulating power, with greater knowledge and more unbridled greed has added stone unto stone. The top stone of the pyramid which bears down upon the flesh of the working class has now been set in its place.

The profit system starves millions. The profit system fosters wars. The profit system creates hundreds of thousands of criminals whom it thrusts into foul prisons where they labor, go insane and die.

These crimes against humanity are degenerating our race and preventing civilization.

The culminating crime is now being accomplished by the trusts. Upon first thought it does not appear in all its naked meaness and wickedness. It seems to have to do with property alone. The human aspect appears only upon second thought.

The facts are briefly as follows: The Morgan Banking Syndicate loaned to the government of Brazil $50,000,000. As payment for interest, perhaps principal also, it was guaranteed the Brazilian government's share of coffee crop. This share amounts to, in at least many cases of large land holdings, to one-third of the whole harvest. This year the crop was immense, unprecedented. The part which the Brazilian government had to turn over to the Morgan Syndicate is reported to have amounted to 6,000,000 bags, four hundred pounds in a bag. This was enough to give 24 pounds to each inhabitant of the United States. To have offered this for sale in the market would have reduced the price so low that for once each citizen in the world might have had all the real coffee they wanted. But it is cheaper for the trust to sell chickory, dried pigs' liver, etc., in place of coffee. Under the old competitive system, when the workers had heaped up products which they were too poor to buy back, there was always a panic. The trust can prevent a panic and increase profits at the same time. How? By throwing the surplus food into the sea while the hungry workers who produced it look on and starve.

Where the trust has developed a monopoly it is quite possible for it, within certain limits, to control prices. With 6,000,000 bags of coffee at the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean, it is possible for the trust to make bigger profits than with 4,000,000 more bags of coffee for sale for profits in the markets of the world. And this in the presence of soaring prices, unemployment and the actual starvation of unemployed and over-worked alike.

The universal excuse given by capitalism for the profit system has been that both Labor and Capital have been paid for their services—that profits became new capital and that labor was thus again employed. What excuse can the defender of the profit system offer for the wanton destruction of the bounties of nature—the product of labor—the necessities of life?

Prices continue to rise. Wages do not rise. Let it be told the workers in every nook and cranny of the land that while they and their family have not enough to eat that the plutocratic system commands them to destroy with their own hands the food they have produced lest they get too much of it back again at too low a price.

If any act of captialism ever merited an investigation and nation-wide attention this does. We hope that Wm. Berger will honor himself and serve the Cause by making one of his first acts at the opening of the new session of Congress the introduction of a bill providing for an investigation of this matter. Let the plutocratic agents in Congress vote it down if they will. They will get their answer from the Socialist Party during the next campaign.

Is any further argument needed to prove to the deaf, dumb and blind that the machine process permits the workers to provide enough and to spare for all? Who dares say that poverty is longer necessary? Who dares oppose a shorter work day? How long will the proposition of the social ownership of the earth and the machines be opposed by a working class enslaved like beasts of burden in the industries and hounded like vermin from the feast their labor has provided?

FLOUR IS RISING.

Price Goes Higher—Coffee, Too, Makes Ascension.

Spring wheat flours selling at 40 cents more a barrel than last week, and it is said the end of the increase is not in sight.

"We are now compelled to sell spring wheat at $6.60 wholesale," said a local dealer yesterday, "and the retail price naturally is still greater, being $7.20 a barrel. That is 40 cents higher than last week. We only hope it does not go higher. Old wheat flour, which is becoming scarce, is selling at prices ranging from $5.20 to $5.40 a barrel."

While the cheapest quality of coffee still can be purchased for 25 cents a pound, the tendency in price is upward, and it is predicted that before long that particular article can not be purchased for less than 30 cents.

Socialist Rally, Memorial Hall Tonight

Mighty Meetings of Past Week.

The Socialist meetings in Columbus the past week have been beyond all precedent in attendance and enthusiasm.

Five thousand people stood for three hours last Saturday evening near Broad and High in the chilly air and cheered the utterances of Comrades D. J. Farrell, candidate for President of Council, A. C. Eby, candidate for Mayor, Carl Minkley, of Milwaukee, Wm. Bessemer, of Cleveland, and C. C. Martin, candidate for Council from the Eighth Ward. The crowd contributed $46 to the campaign fund. The parade before the meeting illuminated the down town section.

Another five thousand people gathered at Schiller Park, Sunday afternoon, where Comrades A. C. Eby, D. J. Farrell, J. L. Bachman, candidate for City Solicitor, Carl Minkley and William Bessemer spoke. The Collection was $55.

On Monday night 300 people met at Cleveland and Grove, despite the drizzling rain and listened to local speakers and Comrade Bessemer. These meetings which cannot be adequatedly reported, have already spelled VICTORY for Socialism.

Wm. D. Haywood of Colorado.

Who for 18 months sat in the shadow of the gallows because he was a workingman,

WILL SPEAK TONIGHT, SATURDAY,

AT MEMORIAL HALL.

Do not fail to hear this Fearless Fellow Worker. He has a Message that will make your blood run quicker and nerve you for [illegible]

Figures from the Inside.

There is worse than "gloom" in the camps of the two wings of the Capitalistic parties. There is consternation among the political bosses. The Republicans completed their fourth poll of the city last Tuesday and here is the result from their official summary:

Eby, 15,117.
Marshall, 11,319.
Karb, 9,232.
Noncommittal, 7,334.

Defeat, dire and sad, awaits the bosses next Tuesday.

THE LAST CALL.

On next Tuesday the electors of Columbus will record their votes for the men and women who will conduct the affairs of this city and school district and for delegates to the Constitutional Convention. In villages and townships of the county local officials are to be chosen. It is hardly necessary to urge every Socialist to "be on the job." The real Socialist always is.

There is much detail work to be done and the challengers, watchers and other workers who are to be on duty election day are called to meet at 335 1-2 South High Street tomorrow (Sunday) at 7:30 P. M., for final instructions and conference. THIS IS IMPORTANT. Let every Socialist be present, there is something for you to do.

WARNING.

The Executive Committee of the Socialist Party has canvassed the list of voters on the registration lists of this city and has found hundreds of glaring "irregularities" to put it mildly. These cases have been traced down, and any person voting illegally will be made to answer to the law. BEWARE.

W. D. HAYWOOD,
J. M. COLLINS,
WM. BESSEMER,
ELLA REEVE BLOOR,

This will be the last big rally for this campaign in Columbus. It will be a mighty mass meeting that will show the strength of an outraged and aroused people who will on the following Tuesday record their mandate at the ballot box. Let nothing keep you away.

The meeting will be called to order when the parade reaches the hall. The details for this parade are, in the hands of the committee and every ward will be in line, besides delegations from the country.

Some Plain Law Points for Just Common Folks.

The Bill of Rights in the constitution of Ohio contains the following declaration: "ALL POLITICAL POWER IS INHERENT IN THE PEOPLE." As our government is divided into three coordinate branches, the legislative, the executive, and the judicial, the common folks that hold the reins of government would naturally be expected to have power as follows:

FIRST, To legislate, that is make such laws as they want.

SECOND, To enforce the execution of their laws.

THIRD, To judge what the law really is.

As we all know, these common folks make no such use of their "political power."

The only use they do make of it is to give it away.

They give ALL their power to make laws to legislatures, councils, etc.

They give ALL their power to enforce laws to governors, mayors, etc.

The balance of their power is given to or assumed by judges.

Thus the people give away ALL of their political power.

Between election days they have no political power.

As our government now is, election day is only ABDICATION day.

If however our constitution provided that the people could by petition,

FIRST. Originate any law they chose and compel it to be submitted to a vote for acceptance or rejection....(THE INITIATIVE.)

SECOND. Compel any questionable law passed by the legislature to be submitted to a vote of the people.....(THE REFERENDUM.)

THIRD. Call an election to fill the place of a corrupt or inefficient official.....: (THE RECALL.)

Then, with these three measures added to our present form of representative government, we would truly have a "government of the people, by the people, for the people," instead of a government in which the common folks keep the shadow of political power and give away the substance.

If you are through PRETENDING that you are one of a "sovereign people," and want to put life in the dead boast that "ALL POLITICAL POWER IS INHERENT IN THE PEOPLE," the way is open by electing the ONLY CANDIDATES PLEDGED TO WORK FOR THSE THREE MEASURES, (including the RECALL of judges) if elected as delegates to the constitutional convention. Their names will appear o na non-partisan ballot and should be marked thus:

X	ELMORE E. ADEL,
X	MARSH C. GREEN,
X	JAMES H. HENDERSON.

Comrades and Friends Beware.

There is a conspiracy formed between Big Interests and the Capitalist Parties to defeat our candidates.

Some of our candidates have been called on as many as 6 times by representatives of Capitalist Parties trying to induce them to trade votes also trying to get our candidates to consent to link their names with the Capitalist Parties' candidates for the purpose of dividing the strength of the working class.

All literature being circulated that has not been endorsed by the Socialist Party is false and misleading. Vote for all Socialist candidates and thereby defeat those conspiring with the Big Interests.

WHAT DID COUNCILMAN EVANS DO?

TO THE VOTERS OF THE NEW EIGHTH WARD.

This Councilmanic Record of A. E. EVANS.

Believing the voters should know what interests have been represented by the present Councilman, A. E. Evans, from the old Sixth, now the new Eighth Ward, and a candidate for renomination, the following information has been compiled from the minute books of the City Clerk who records all proceedings of Council:

Councilman Evans was a member of Council from April, 1897, to April, 1903, six years. Those years constitute what may be termed the franchise-granting era of our municipal development. He again entered Council January 1, 1906, and his present term expires the 31st of next December, four years, making a total of ten years in Council, and he is asking for another term!

A CORPORATION RECORD.

During Councilman Evans' first six years more than a score of ordinances were passed granting to corporations certain rights and privileges, many of them being 25-year franchises. In only one instance (in which case the interests of two large corporations conflicted) do we find him voting in the negative. The following list taken from the City Clerk's minute books are the more important, the numbers and dates being given for purpose of verification, if any one doubts the accurarcy of the statements made:

No. 15,291, June 12, 1899—25-year franchise to the Columbus Citizen Telephone Company.

No. 15,564, July 31, 1899—25-year franchise to the Federal Gas and Fuel Company.

No. 16,676, April 23, 1900—Franchise to the Columbus, London and Springfield Railway Company.

No. 16,803, April 30, 1900 Franchise to Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction Company

No. 17,802, Jan 22, 1901—Franchise to Central Market Street Railway Company.

*No. 17,801, Febr. 4, 1901—25-year renewal franchise to the Columbus Railway Company.

No. 18,105, April 8, 1901—25-year franchise to the Indianola Land and Power Company.

No. 18,338, July 1, 1901—Fixing rate to be charged by natural gas companies. (Evans not present to vote.)

No. 19,436, March 31, 1902—Additional franchise to Central Market Street Railway Company.

No. 20,191, July 7, 1902—Franchise to Urbana, Mechanicsburg and Columbus Railway Company.

No. 19,650, July 7, 1902—25-year franchise to East Columbus Heating and Lighting Company.

*The proceedings in connection with some of these ordinances make interesting reading, but space prevents giving details. However, attention to a few of the amendments offered to Ordinance No. 17,801, renewing the franchise of the Columbus Railway Company (now operated under lease by the Columbus Railway and Light Company) gives a fair idea of Councilman Evans' position with respect to corporations. The night this ordinance was up for final vote nearly twenty-five amendments were offered and referred to the Finance Committee, of which Evans was a member, to report on later. The following are noteworthy:

Amendment: Requiring the Company to place men with police authority on High Street at State, Broad, Long, Spring, Viaduct and Goodale, at its own expense for the protection of the public.

Amendment: Requiring the Company to pay $500 annually to the City for use of Front Street and Fourth Street Viaducts

Amendmetn: Requiring the Company to arbitrate differences with its employes, thus avoiding strikes.

Amendment: Giving the City an option of purchase of the Company's property at expiration of franchise.

Amendments: To repeal all former grants and franchises in lieu of the benefits to be derived under pending ordinance.

Amendment: To substitute 15 years for 25 years in duration of franchise.

Amendment: To submit the franchise ordinance to the vote of the people at the coming spring election for ratification.

On the night of February 4, 1901, when the ordinance was up for passage, Councilman Evans reported that his committee approved every one of these amendments, and he also voted against [illegible] preventing them from becoming a part of that important franchise. This record is in sharp contrast to that of one our most prominent citizens who was also in council at the time and in practically every instance cast an opposing vote to the Evans' program. Which one was properly representing the people that night?

Pursuing the Evans record in Council during the past four years, the same friendly attitude towards the corporations is apparent. On one occasion, we find him voting against an amendment to reduce the rate of electric lighting in our homes. Although opportunity offered, he failed to champion the interests of the people in Council recently when the natural gas ordinance was under consideration. To have done so would have been inconsistent, when he had requested to be excused from voting on a resolution passed by Council September 12, 1910, providing that while the present Council is in existence there shall be no raise in price of natural gas furnished with the city limits.

Do the voters of the new Eighth Ward want a representative in Council who votes in the interests of corporations? Doo we want a representative who absents himself from Council when an important measure in the interests of the people is up for considerations? Do we want a representative who will dodge the issue of getting excused from voting when the interests of the people are at stake? The proceedings of Council show that Councilman Evans has been guilty of all of these within the past two years.

What are you going to do about it, Mr. Voter?

The Coming Storm

By Hugh McGee.

The Socialist movement in the United States is engaged in as fierce and terrific a struggle in the political field as the struggle of the unions in the industrial field. It is more than that. It is a death grapple with organized society.

All the present laws, all the present customs, all the present beliefs, all the present conventionalities, all the present social actions are based on the present so-called rights of the present profit system.

In Europe there are conflicting conditions, such as castes and the hereditary beliefs in the divine rights of Kings and the vested rights of the landed Aristocracy, while in America the issue is a clear cut fight against the continuation of the present accepted political beliefs of the people of the United States.

Today in the United States, the capitalist system of society compels the recognition of the superiority of the men who inherit money or accumulate money, over all other men, as well as permitting one man or set of men to take what another man has made, or ten thousand men have made, providing wages are paid to these men.

In other words, you can legally take what another man makes if you feed him.

Now the Socialists say that this is robbery, and they propose to stop it.

They propose to make a new law which will say that no man or set of men can take profit, rent or interest from any man, woman or child who is living today or from those who will be born tomorrow.

They propose to make a new law which will make all the people of the United States owners of whatever they make or build or produce.

They propose to make a new law which will say that all the instruments of production and distribution used for private profit shall henceforth belong to all the people of the United States.

They propose a co-operative COMMONWEALTH.

It is a death struggle and it is inevitable that the continued robbery of the many by the few must and will cease.

OTIS, THE BOYCOTTER.

Los Angeles, Oct. 28.—Trade Union Buster Otis, who has inveighed so viciously and continuously against the trade unions and their policies, and especially the boycott, is now participating in one of the most vigorous boycotting programs ever witnessed in Los Angeles. Some weeks ago the owner of the "Evening Express" established a morning paper, the Tribune, in competition with the Times, Examiner and Herald. Since the invasion of the morning newspaper field by the Tribune, it has been impossible to buy the Tribune at any news stand, or of any newsboy who handles the Times, Examiner or Herald. An investigation was made and the proprietors of the news stands and the newsboys corroborated each other's statements that the edict had gone forth from the Times, Examiner and Herald that if they endeavored to handle the Tribune, they would be unable to purchase the three other papers mentioned.

Eby Defers to Socialist Party, Also to Public.

SOCIALIST CANDIDATE TELLS WHAT HE'D DO, AS MAYOR, IF "UP AGAINST IT."

PARTISANS WOULD DETERMINE SALARY—ANSWERS MANY QUESTIONS ON POLICY.

What Would I do in case I were elected mayor of Columbus, had an unfriendly council and wished to have an idea carried into effect? I would be governed in my actions by the local Socialist party. I would go before it as an organization and ask for instructions. Again, I probably would go before the people myself talking in different sections of the city to explain what I wanted and why I wanted it and to ask for moral support as a whip to force council to carry out my ideas. The people are the jury of last resort.

In conversation with a representative of The State Journal, A. C. Eby, Socialist mayoralty candidate, explained his views on various questions agitated in the campaign.

Discussing a higher storage dam which has been made an issue, Mr. Eby said:

"In this as in all other questions, I believe in giving the people the say. If the people wanted it, I would be in favor of raising the dam not only to a height of 53 feet, but perhaps to 60 feet. This could be done under a Socialist administration without endangering the lives of persons in the vicinity.

City To Do Work.

"It couldn't be done under Mayor Marshall or Mr. Karb. The Socialists would cause the city to do the work and eliminate all contractors. Without the idea of profit, the work could be done for service, according to the best engineering ideas, and nothing but the best material and workmanship would be used. I favor using the power from the overflow to generate current at the municipal electric plant."

Mr. Eby would permit Sunday theaters for the benefit of the working class.

"What would you make the minimum wage limit for city employes?" he was asked.

"Three dollars a day."

"Would you close the saloons on Sundays?"

"I would do all in my power to enforce the law. Marshall has not closed the saloons. In my opinion it would require twice the present police force to enforce the Sunday closing law. If the people demanded that I double the police force I'd close the saloons on Sunday and at midnight."

"Would you segregate; restrain or attempt to stop the social evil?"

"I certainly wouldn't attempt to stop the evil. That would be futile. It's a product of the present-day capitalistic system.

System at Fault.

"You must change the system before you try to eliminate one of its results. I don't believe in driving the unfortunate class from one community into another. Marshall has not made the conditions surrounding these people any better. I would do all I could to restrain the evil. Furthermore, I'd use the municipal machinery in an effort to secure honorable employment for the unfortunate girls."

"Would you use waterworks earnings for fine-extension purposes?"

"Yes. All city-owned utilities should be self-sustaining."

He said he would make some radical changes in the police department. "A chief would be appointed who would follow out the principles of Socialism; that is, give justice to all classes," he said.

"Would you appoint and employ all local men in the municipal departments?" was asked.

"Socialists, if in office, would employ practical men, of knowledge in their lines, regardless of where they lived. If we couldn't get the best men in Columbus, we'd import experts."

"You claim to be able to benefit the workingman. How about wages and the problem of the unemployed?"

"It would be our object to do municipal work (improvements, for instance) at a time when factories and shops were running slack. We don't claim to be able to influence the capitalist to raise the wages of his employes."

"How could you decrease the cost of luxuries, foodstuffs and necessities?"

"By abolishing licenses for persons selling foodstuffs in the street; by rigidly enforcing the laws governing honest measure, weight and quality of goods."

"How about housing and tenement conditions?"

"The mission of the party is to make Columbus a better city in which to live. We would do all in our power to secure land for the public parks near districts where the working class resides. We would work for a law which would give the city the right to construct sanitary and modern houses, which could be rented to the working class at actual cost of maintenance. We would enforce the tenement code and make it as rigid as experience might teach us would be necessary."

Regarding a workhouse policy, he said he would "abolish the contract labor system as soon as contracts expire and introduce a system that would make the workhouse an institution of reform rather than punishment."

Salary Up To Party.

"What do you think about the mayor's salary?" he was asked.

"The local party platform answers that. It reads: 'We pledge ourselves to the elimination of unnecessary officials, a reduction of all salaries that are excessive and a minimum wage of $3 a day in all public works.' The Socialist party, not I, would determine whether the present salary of the mayor is excessive. If it favors cutting it—well, I'm a Socialist."

"What utilities should be owned collectively in Columbus?"

"All that are used collectively."

"How would you check the rooming house evil in High street?"

"By application of the law by men who care more for the morals of society than they do for the money they might obtain for not enforcing the laws."

"Would a Socialist administration decrease the taxes?"

"Probably not. We consider the condition of the working class more important than the tax rate. This doesn't mean extravagance."

"How, with an anti-capitalistic administration, would you hope to bring new industries to Columbus?"

"By giving them as square a deal as is given to anyone. We wouldn't injure the city by fighting industries with our mouth."

Working Men and Working Women, Listen!

By JOHN C. CHASE.

You have a golden opportunity, an opportunity to do something which will be historic in the progress of civilization.

You have an opportunity to strike a tremendous blow for the freedom, not only of working men, but the freedom of working women.

There is a petition being circulated throughout the United States requesting Congress to submit to the legislatures of the several states for ratification, an amendment to the national constitution, which will enable women to vote in all elections on an equality with men.

You know that the ballot is the great weapon which the working class can use whenever that class gets ready to use it. You know also, that the working class is about to use that weapon for its emancipation. Do you want your mother, sister or daughter to be able to use that ballot with you?

Are you going to allow yourselves to be weakened in the great conflict by having those so closely interested with you, so closely allied with you in the struggle, deprived of a chance to aid you in the struggle?

Remember that there are millions of women—daughters and sisters, wives and mothers—who are now obliged to work and slave in order to live.

These are all members of the working class and have the same interests as the fathers, husbands, brothers and sons. Will you deprive them, longer, by your carelessness and inactivity, of the privilege of participating in the making of laws which govern their conditions?

The laws of today, in the great majority of states, place women upon the same basis, politically, as mules, imbeciles and criminals?

A mule cannot vote, (if he could he would raise a ruction), an imbecile cannot vote (supposedly, but a lot of them do), and criminals (who are in prison) are denied the right to vote. Do you want your wife and mother longer kept in this class? No, I do not believe it.

The California working men have just placed themselves in the vanguard of progress and have given the women of that state an equal voice with men in the affairs of government. Are you going to lag behind them and be less progressive than they?

Do you know who opposes suffrage for women. Listen! It is the women of the "400" who have their lap dogs, their monkey dinners, their "Adam and Eve strolls" to engage their attention and amuse themselves.

These are the ones who hold up their hands in holy horror at the thought of the women engaging in the affairs of state. It is they who tell the people that it is "unladylike" and "unfeminine" for women to vote.

They know that it would be dangerous to them and their class if the working women, who are in the majority, should be given the ballot.

Don't be fooled any longer by this cry of the dilettante opponents of equal suffrage.

Give your wife, daughter, mother and sister a chance to stand with you, and win or lose with you, in your struggle against your oppressors.

The Socialist Party has flooded the country with petition asking Congress to submit this amendment.

Every labor organization, every Socialist local, every individual working man, every individual Socialist should take hold in this matter and secure the signature of every person in his community to these petitions.

Every one, who believes in freedom and equality before the law, every one who believes women are human beings as well as the men, will sign.

Congressman Victor L. Berger, the first genuine representative of the working class in Congress, will submit this petition to Congress and fight for the submission of the amendment, as only Berger can fight.

Get busy and send Berger so many signatures that he will have to employ the services of every other congressman in the House to bring this petition before that body.

When you have read this, don't hesitate. If you haven't any petition blanks, drop a postal to the National Secretary of the Socialist Party, 295 West Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois, asking him to supply you with them and he will immediately furnish you with all you can use.

Let the voice of the working class be heard in the halls of Congress as it has never been heard before. Let the warning be sounded, that the working class insists that ALL of the workers shall be enfranchised, that the WOMEN who toil will no longer be denied the privilege of fighting shoulder to shoulder with the MEN fo toil in the greatest battle of all time.

The Proper Way of Detecting.

When William J. Burns started out hunting "criminals" the first person he engaged was a press agent. He felt that he might as well let people know what he was doing. Far be it from him to work in the dark when the light of newspaper publicity and the [illegible] platform were so much more remunerative.

Long ago The Call nailed this particular feature of the Burns method—that of creating unfavorable estimation of the men against whom he was working. But it evidently was a good stroke of business policy, even though it may be looked upon as a dirty method. Burns has received more publicity than any man previous to him who ever worked upon a case.

But, of course, Burns was forced to work according to his lights and conform to his ability. In following this out a few lies were necessary, and lied most outrageously about Debs.

Now, if he could lie so apparently, so brazenly, so maliciously, against Debs, who is not on trial, what can he do in the case of the McNamaras, who are on trial? If he has the raw effrontery to assert that Debs instigated a conspiracy against his life, what will he do against a union when he is paid for doing it?

From the time Burns began to talk, through the period when he has himself interviewed, and through the further period when he was glorified by Harvey J. O'Higgins, up to the present, when he is on the lecture platform appearing before college students, there had not been a moment when it was not apparent that he was lying.

The Burns method differs from the deductive detective method or the dime novel method, in that it needs a press agent and an organized falsehood factory to make it go.

He tried that thing on Debs, and the comeback was instantaneous, and doubtlessly disconcerting.

The assertion that Debs had tried to get 300 or 5 or 3 men to kill Burns was a distorted idea that could be born only in the mind of a maniac. Debs is, first of all, a sympathetic individual. Secondly, he is an intelligent human being. He knows how to fight the battles of his class. He knows that, in spite of present appearances Burns is an asset in that fight. He knows that Burns, much as he desires the contrary, is going to help that fight along. He knows that Burns is the big asset in the defense in the McNamara case. So why should he bother about him or have any animosity toward him? Debs knows, as ever other Socialist knows, that Burns has most magnificently reduced to an absurdity all conspiracy against the working class.

He may be interviewed, featured, photographed, magazined and he may appear as a lecturer before colleges. But he cannot show that he is not a cheap conspirator, hired for the purpose.—New York Call.

The supreme purpose of sociology is the betterment of society. If knowledge be had, action will take care of itself.—Lester F. Ward.

The fear of the wrath to come is in the heart of every lick-spittle politician in the pay of the Rail-Light and the Chamber of Commerce.

Note the names of the non-partisan candidates endorsed by the Socialist patyr as published in this paper. Cut out the list and refresh your memory when you vote.

The market system of Columbus is as rotten as the market houses are unsanitary. A horde of inspectors are paid to nag the small retail dealers, but they never molest the storage houses or the commission concerns.

Mayor Marshall said, "Swat the fly." We say, "Swat the Capitalistic System." We can all afford screen doors and decent places to live when we get the full product of our toil.

George J. Karb says that the next mayor of Columbus will be a "Deutch-Amerikan-Burgomeister." Sure he will, but his name will be Eby, as straight a German as ever lived.

The old party bosses cannot understand how the Socialists can hold a dozen meetings every night and take collections ranging from $3 to $72 at each meeting. It is REVOLUTION, you cheap-skate politician. Get down on your knees.

All those workers who like to be robbed of three-fourths of what they produce, will you kindly vote against Socialists?

If the working class elects to keep below the line of poverty and votes others to control their means of livelihood, there can be but little hope for them.

The working class needs leisure more than work. They work too hard and too long. To lighten the work and shorten the hours is the ambition of the toiler who is class conscious.

VOTE THE SOCIALIST TICKET STRAIGHT.

George J. Karb, Democratic candidate for mayor, was and is a member of the Chamber of Commerce that raised $6,000 to buy guns and ammunition to shoot down innocent men, women and children during the street car strike last year. VOTE THE SOCIALIST TICKET STRAIGHT.

The Columbus Socialist has refrained from publishing any charges against the private character of any candidate on the Capitalistic tickets. This was not because there was not material at hand, but because we are fighting for principles, not men.

The struggle for liberty and justice is along a difficult path, wet with the tears and blood of the noblest intellects and finest characters. When you step on that path you are on consecrated soil. No clammy hand of superstition, vice and decay, will meet you there. Be careful not to desecrate it.

If society cannot serve itself better than individuals can or will serve it, then co-operation is a myth. If public effort is not more in line with social advance than individual competition and strife, then it must follow that present evils are a part of an unchanging order. Is this reasoning erroneous? Think it over.

The hodcarrier, the blacksmith, the laborer, stenographer, the garbage man, the plumber, the carpenter, the printer, and all other wage workers must unite in one grand economic and political organization.

"Labor is prior to and independent of capital. Capital is but the fruit of labor, and could never have existed had not labor existed first. Labor is superior to capital and deserves much the higher consideration."—Lincoln, 1863.

Jim Campbell, who, by accident years ago, was governor of Ohio, presided at Karb's meeting in the Chamber of Commerce last Tuesday night. This is the same Campbell, who ridiculed and insulted the working girls of the state, in a speech against the woman's eight-hour bill. Dan Ryan, the Republican, is the attorney of the Manufacturers' Association and a supporter of Marshall. Swat them all by voting the SOCIALIST TICKET STRAIGHT.

The Launching of the New Ship of State.

The citizens of Ohio, on the 7th day of November, will be called upon to select delegates for the Constitutional Convention.

At the present time, a certain portion of our citizens are living in an atmosphere of "doubts and fears" because of the demand that the great State of Ohio move forward to a higher plane of self-reliant citizenship.

For many years the great majority of the people have become indifferent to the things that concern their future well-being. This has transpired because they have allowed others to steer the Ship of State, while the crew has kept the passengers below the decks.

Those in charge of the Ship of State have called at the same ports and entered the same harbors for centuries, but they failed to realize that each year, while they have enlarged the crew, they have not increased the cargo.

Several times has the Ship of State been grounded on the reefs of political infamy while sailing in reactionary waters.

But those who drew up the sailing chart, demanded that we sail on, because "our fathers" used it, and so should we. "Sail on," they cry, "be brave and weather the storm."

These siren songs no more allay our fears. We, the passengers, have decided to change our course. We intend to sail the waters of pure democracy.

The voice of all the people will be the eternal commandment.

The responsibility for the safety of the ship will rest upon all the people, instead of the few. We have no fear for our safety, because every man, woman and child will help furl the sails, and reef the ropes. And what of the wheel? Fear not, ye doubting Thomases. Pure democracy gives the right to recall those who would steer the Ship of State on the rocks of political intolerance.

Why fear the command of all the people?

Give to the people the power that belongs to the people and banish your fears forever.

This is an age of progressive democracy. The curse of the age is the fear of the spirit of democracy. Let those who would talk of its evils remember the blame lies with the abstract and not with the concrete form of democracy.

This is where Elmore Adel, Marsh Green and James H. Henderson stand. We demand that the Recall be part of the new constitution. Those who dare not stand for this principle of pure democracy are unworthy of drawing up the new constitutional chart.

Beware, lest we again sail a frozen sea and remain beyond the great "Recall."

JIM HENDERSON.

VOTE THE SOCIALIST TICKET STRAIGHT.

The Contemplated Rise in the Price of Beer.

Since the Brewers Association met in Chicago a few weeks ago, a movement is on foot to raise the price of beer to one dollar a barrel to the saloon keeper. Notice has already been given to this effect in Milwaukee. The Brewers justify this increase in the price of beer on account of the present high cost of hops and barley. Hops practically have become trustified by our German capitalists across the sea. Therefore the Brewers, being up against the high cost of hops and barley, have only one alternative to successfully stay in business and make dividends for their respective share-holders, and that is to raise the price of beer to the saloon keeper.

However, the question presents itself, what is the saloon keeper going to do in this matter. He either must make his glasses smaller to the trade, or lose one dollar on every barrel of beer that he sells.

This only shows the tendency of the times. Trustification of the necessaries of life, leading to higher prices, will sooner or later mean eithr that wages will have to be increased, or those speculating in the necessaries of life will be compelled to hand over, sooner than they expected, their industries to a half-starved working class.

Straws show the way the wind is blowing.

SMOKE STACKS.

Mr. Karb, at present, is making his campaign cry one of more "Smoke Stacks." However, where the election of Mr. Karb will bring more "Smoke Stacks" into this city is beyond our comprehension.

We do know of a great many factories that at present are shut down, or running half time, on account of the lack of orders. How Mr. Karb could increase demand on the part of the user or consumer of the products manufactured by these different concerns, our humble minds cannot grasp.

However four years ago in the Bond campaign, Brewers intimated very strongly if Bond was defeated and Duncan was elected that they would be compelled to shut down one of their Breweries. Bond was elected by this threat and a Business Administration, and lo and behold, several weeks after the Hoster Associated Breweries shut down the Born Branch. And the strangest thing of all is that it hasn't opened up since.

Why?

Because the consuming power of the public has been lessened by the present high cost of living, that was on the increase under the Bond Administration. Here was a smoke stack that died under a Business Administration with which the Interests never had any complaint.

However, about this time another "Smoke Stack" reared itself in the South End. Those who remember the Home Brewery, especially the small stock holders, mostly Germans, who invested their all, lost every dollar that they put into this smoke stack. The smoke stack is there, but those that built it get the smell and the soot that comes from its mouth, and that is all.

This "Smoke Stack" was built out of the sweat and life blood of these German Citizens, like all other smoke stacks are built; but since speculation of this character is looked upon with suspicion, the smoke stack builders of the past fail to come across to build smoke stacks in the interest of those who later on through stock-jobbing methods gain control of the smoke stacks for their profitable use at a song price.

Yes, we favor more smoke stacks, but in the interest of the smoke stack builders, the Working class.

News of the Labor World

J. H. HENDERSON, Editor.

SOME THINGS THE WORKERS WOULD LIKE TO KNOW.

Why is it that the Democratic and Republican parties in the city campaign have recruited their speakers from the ranks of the BUSINESS and PROFESSIONAL MEN? Are they afraid to trust the workers with the right to tell their experiences or does it prove that their aim is to keep the WORKING CLASS in the background? There is food for thought in this utter disregard for the WORKER'S place in the world. They DON'T want his VOICE; all they WANT IS HIS VOTE.

For many years the LAWYERS' UNIONS all over the country has protested against the LABOR UNIONS, preaching the right of the workers to protect their CLASS INTERESTS. They are on record with charging the UNIONS with depriving the boys of the right to learn a trade because the UNIONS advocate the Apprentice rule. One learned jurist is quoted as saying, "Let no man restrict he or she who desires to improve their earthly conditions." But because "old man Eubanks," just a common old carpenter desires to better his own condition and the condition of others by filling the chair of a POLICE JUDGE, this benevolent Bar Association has decided to get out and work for one of their class and a member of their CLOSED SHOP UNION. Mr. Worker, will YOU do likewise?

"Pukey's" South End bank has closed its doors and Pukey, the tool of the old party politicians is missing. For many years PUKEY has been a court house power. In some cases his very appearance in a court could over awe the law. He has been charged for years with conducting a trick employment agency. On one occasion men were examined for the Hungarian army in his bank building. Those who passed the examination were sent back to Hungary to do military service. PUKEY has always been a privileged subject. WHO gave him those privileges?

AN EMPLOYER WHO DARED TO STAND FOR A PRINCIPLE.

It was Tom Southard who dared to stand before the Ohio Legislature to plead for a SHORTER WORKDAY for the women workers of Ohio. When Tom Southard was asked whether he would go before the Legislature and speak in favor of the eight hour bill for women, Tom said: "What I believe in I will stand for at all time and places." And he turned and made the plutes look sick. We reprint a part of the public hearing copied from the Ohio State Journal, March 28, 1911:

Arguments Re "causeofOmanye -ABTirT

"ARGUMENTS HEARD FOR AND AGAINST NINE-HOUR BILL.—Ex-Governor Campbell Opposed It, Representing Ohio Manufacturers' Association.

"Thomas C. Southard of the Southard Novelty Company, Columbus, made a telling argument for the bill, when he said that his company had tried the eight-hour schedule last year, and that under it there were fewer mistakes, better work, greater loyalty on the part of the employes, more business and a better net gain for the firm.

"His company, therefore, had decided to make the 8-hour schedule permanent."

This is the same Tom Southard who is on the SOCIALIST TICKET FOR CITY AUDITOR.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The gross profits of the Sheffield, Eng., municipal tramways for the last fiscal year were $650,231. The amount transferred for the relief of the district rates was $139,162. This latter sum, as the transfer indicates, is covered into the general treasury and indirectly relieves the rate for taxpayers. Those who do not own property, therefore, do not participate in the profits of the municipal tramway.

Great restlessness is apparent among the employes of the Midland Railway Company, on account of the belief that the company is not conforming to the terms of settlement in the recent strike.

It is reported that the company is dismissing, reducing and removing large numbers of men who came out on strike, and the Railway Men's Union has called on the Board of Trade to enforce the strike settlement with the company. It is stated positively that if this is ineffectual, the men will again be called out on strike. A number of men, with 30-year unblemished records, have been taken on their jobs and supplanted by so-called loyal men, who did not join the strike.

The general price for laundering collars is 6 cents each in Russia, with other articles in that proportion. The hours of service for the employes are from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m., with an hour for lunch, but, with an extra portion of cheap tea, a slice of black bread and a glass of vodka, the employe is usually content to prolong the service until 9 p. m. The wages paid to women are from $4 to $8 per month, with room and board included, but the living quarters are in the cellar and the food of the coarsest kind. Mechanics in these laundries command, under same conditions, about 70 cents a day.

Owing to the strike of the Great Southwestern Railway in Ireland, traffic returns for the past three weeks show a decrease of $165,00 as compared with the corresponding week last year. There has also been a strike of Irish bakers, which began recently in Dublin. The Belfast bakers have now decided to come out on strike unless an advance of 50 cents per week is granted. An effort is being made to form an Irish Federation of Labor to bring all the trades in closer relations.

A general strike has been declared at Cette, France, and 90 per cent of the working people, including all shop assistants, have joined. Cette is the most important French Mediterranean port west of Marseilles.

A general strike among the Building Trades at Paris, involving 50,000 mechanics, is on. Abolition of piece work and pace making, with the establishment of a 9-hour day for the industry, are the issues.

The Miners' Federation of Great Britain determined to establish a minimum wage at its conference. The next meeting will be held on November 14, when it will be decided whether active steps shall be taken to secure an individual district minimum wage for all the workers in mines in the area of the Federation, without reference to working places being abnormal. It is felt to be possible that in a number of districts the employers will agree to fix a minimum wage, thus preventing a national stoppage, should difficulty be encountered in establishing a minimum.

MAY YOU RECEIVE YOUR REWARD.

Recently a communication was sent to this office criticising an article which appeared in these columns concerning the spy system" machinery that has been built inside the new Columbus Federal building. Our critic writes about "lazy clerks" who need watching. Does the writer think that this office is ignorant of the demerit system," whereby the workers are compelled to fulfill an allotted task. He also refers to the case of a clerk in Cincinnati, who was recently convicted for some offence. Does the writer think that this office is not aware of Mr. Hitchcock's retrenchment policy. Men seldom resort to criminal offences when they have the necessities of life. This office realises that these retrenchment policies are imposed upon the working class. What about the railroad graft in the carrying of mails and what becomes of railroad mail clerks who dare to talk about this graft? They are discharged on the evidence of the are discharged on the evidence of the men whom our city seeks to eulogise. Why clerks. Anyone who has read the magazine stories on government graft must be convinced that some persons "higher up" need watching. Honest men have nothing to fear says our critic. This may be the cause for the receipt of the communications. May you receive your reward regarding the title "Comrade." "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet" because the article mentioned was but the voice of those who are "passive resisters" to such practices.

OHIO STATE LINES UP FOR SOCIALISM.

The Democrats, Republicans and Socialists have each held meetings in the Ohio state University Chapel.

Karb's meeting was advertised with posters three feet square and drew an audience of twenty-five or thirty. The Republican rally much to the embarrassment of Mr. Marshall had an attendance of 45.

When Frank Bohn, Socialist, spoke in the chapel, he was listened to by over two hundred people, and the meeting was but little advertised.

This record shows where the enthusiasm lies at least. It's no trouble, getting out crowds to hear Socialist speakers as has been proven repeatedly throughout the present campaign. When enthusiasm picks up in the university sufficiently, the working class will get a good measure of assistance in pushing its cause.

At present by the above and other indications the only politically, live, active men in the university are the Socialists.

The University Socialist club meets on the first and third Mondays of each month. Programs are being arranged and later on in the Symester a course of study in economics will be adopted by the club. All students are invited to join. Now and then open meetings will be held where the public can listen to oration and debate by the Socialists and others.

For Friend or Foe, Which?

Fellow Workers: The day of Victory is at hand. The RESULT depends upon YOUR working for YOUR OWN CLASS in the same manner, that YOU HAVE WORKED WITH THEM all your life.

Fellow Workers: YOU remember the time that somebody was hurt in the shop. YOU REMEMBER, how we started a paper to help our afflicted BROTHER WORKER. What made us do this kindly act? Because he was one of our own class.

Fellow Worker: You surely don't forget the night we took the money to the home of our afflicted brother worker. Don't you recall, how we pondered what to say, when we handed the money to the griefstricken wife. What about their children, who looked into our faces with joy. Was it because of the money we had brought to them? "NO." They knew that their father had friends. They realized that he was respected by his own class, the WORKING CLASS.

Fellow Workers: On the 7th day of November you will have an opportunity to show your RESPECT for your own CLASS. Every nominee in the SOCIALIST PARTY TICKET stands for your class interests. Are YOU GOING TO VOTE for YOUR FRIENDS or for YOUR FOES?

BARBERS' UNION HONORS DECEASED BROTHERS.

The Barbers' Union paid their last respects to their deceased brother, Harry Wilson. The wreath sent by the local brethren proved to those who were assembled at the grief-stricken home that there is something more in unionism than the mere paying of dues. It proved respect and the recognition of the fact that even in death we are not to be forgotten. Reverend Irving Reese read the burial service. No man is better fitted to preach the last rites of men who have dared to stand for a principle than Mr. Reese, because he understands the workers' social conditions. Representative Charlie Apple was in charge of the funeral arrangements, assisted by other members of the union and the expression of sympathy exhibited by those present will mean much to the Barbers' Union of Columbus, Ohio.

SOCIALIST IS FAR IN LEAD AT PRIMARIES.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 1.—Practically complete returns from yesterday's primaries today give Job Harriman, Socialist candidate for mayor, a commanding plurality over George Alexander, his nearest opponent, but not enough to furnish a majority of all votes cast.

The returns show: Harriman 19,236, Alexander, "Good Government" candidate, 10,218; Mushet 8660, Gregory 318.

Job Harriman issued a statement at noon declaring that he is certain of victory when the issue is decided at the general election on Dec. 5. He predicts that 40,000 women will vote at that time and that a large majority of them will be cast for him as against Alexander, who will be his only opponent.

The returns also show that the Socialists nominated their complete city ticket and at the general election this ticket will oppose the complete Good Government Republican ticket.

The Socialist candidates for city council ran but slightly behind Harriman, who is one of the attorneys for the McNamara case.

WOMEN WILL VOTE.

That the fate of the candidates at that election will be determined by the votes of the women of the city is certain. By the constitutional amendment passed Oct. 10 the women will have the right to vote for the first time. That they intend to exercise it is shown by the numbers of them who have registered. Twenty-three thousand have already expressed their intention to cast a ballot and twice that number are expected to register. Sixty thousand are eligible.

AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION IS WORTH A POUND OF CURE.

Fellow workers! The day of the Great Battle for human rights is at hand. On the one side stands the representatives of the MASTER CLASS, while on the other side is the class that YOU belong to—the SERVANT CLASS.

What are they fighting for? "For supremacy." What do we mean by supremacy? "The right to control the policeman's club, machine guns, and bayonets." Why should the SERVANT CLASS seek to control these munitions of war? "So as to be able to prevent them being used on our own citizens when they are out struggling for a LIVING WAGE and a moral existance." Who brought the despicable tyrant, "Captain" Bush to this city? "The Master Class." Who had sheriff deputies sworn in and who armed them with guns and black-jacks and then charged the BILL AMOUNTING TO $8,000 UP TO THE TAXPAYERS? "The Master Class." Who discharged the 82 POLICEMEN WHO REFUSED TO BECOME TOOLS in the hands of corporations? "The Master Class." Who represents the Master Class? "Marshall and Karb." Who stands for the Servant Class? "Your fellow workes, Eby."

Fellow Worker! Who will you stand for on the 7th day of November? Don't Weaken. VOTE THE STRAIGHT SOCIALIST TICKET.

WHAT DO WE ORGANIZE FOR?

The labor movement will exist as long as industrial oppression exists.

The conservative labor leaders inform the people that they are against STRIKES and that they believe in ARBITRATION. These leaders in most cases are ensconced in offices that pay living wages. They are CONSERVATIVE because they are sure of THREE SQUARE MEALS A DAY AND A PLACE TO SLEEP.

There are many Socialists who are members of labor organizations who are against strikes and likewise the things that CAUSE strikes. Therefore they are urging the WORKERS to become PROGRESSIVES and vote to give themselves a JOB so they likewise can obtain THREE SQUARE MEALS A DAY AND A PLACE TO SLEEP.

Industrial oppression is the result of the CAPITALIST SYSTEM. FELLOW WORKER, if YOU want to abolish this system, VOTE THE SOCIALIST TICKET. INSTEAD OF STRIKING ON THE STREET, STRIKE AT THE BALLOT BOX. Vote for your own class, the Working Class.

PREACHERS DEMAND LIVING WAGES.

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 28.—At a convention in this city of Minnesota Baptists, a resolution was adopted establishing the minimum wage of an unmarried minister at $700 per year and that of a married minister at $900 per year. While it has been popular in the past to criticise the organizations of labor for establishing wage scales, it appears that the labor unions have imitators. It is to be hoped that the Baptist Ministers' Union will be successful in establishing its minimum wage without friction. The Baptist Minister's Union is not confronted with the open shop question, as all of the Baptist ministers are members of the Baptist Ministers' Union. The men of labor extend their moral sympathy to the Baptist Ministers' Union in its effort to procure a living wage.

This means more Silent Voters for Socialism.

The Woman Tragedy.

By Annis Minturn.

It was proposed to the Purity Congress while in Columbus, that some sort of national incorporation be made to act as bondsmen and as a probation association that could be appealed to by fallen women at the psychological moment after the midnight raid, for the reason that when they stand before the judge with the necessity of furnishing a bond, the psychological moment in rescue work has arrived.

The Socialist would not say that the psychological moment in rescue work had arrived for these poor creatures at that terrible time, but long, long before; in fact before there was any need of a midnight raid in their lives.

Not long since a weary, tired looking, little clerk in a popular cheap novelty store of the city was overheard talking with a girl who had formerly been associated with her as a sister clerk. "Where are you working now?" asked the tired little clerk. The girl addressed turned her head but did not answer the query. Again the little clerk repeated her question. Then there came an answering gleam into the eye of the girl questioned. "I was here," she answered, "three years working for $3 a week, and I starved, and I had nothing to wear, and only a miserable place to stay. Now, I have three meals a day and a second dress." And the two prisoners of the profit system stood facing each other; one, overworked, anemic, poorly clad and hungry; the other, while apparently well cared for, yet doomed by the choice of life she had been forced into, to live but a few years at best, and die in ill health, in poverty and alone. But she had to be clothed and fed, and she found it in the one way that is always open to such unfortunates; YET SHE DID NOT, AND NEITHER DOES ANY OTHER WOMAN, SELL HER BODY THAT SHE MAY LIVE, BECAUSE OF THE LOVE OF A LIFE OF SHAME.

It is said that we send to the hospital or graveyard one worker every minute in the year. If this statement be true, we may safely add that for every one worker we send to the hospital or graveyard, ten are sent to the brothel. And yet, the psychological moment for their help comes not until after they have struggled and striven and failed, and at last, stand before the judge after a midnight raid. In the name of justice can no help reach them sooner? A fallen woman is the product of a fallen business system. She is the product of the profit exploitation; that alone is responsible for lewd women, their sorrow, their ruin, their misery, their crime, their vice, their degradation, their deaths and damnation.

We are today living in the richest country on the globe, yet in this richest of all countries, the brothel flourishes as in no other nation. Why? Because women have worked and have been unable to buy back enough of the product of the labor of their own hands for their mere existence. The profits of their labor have gone to the few instead of to the many for the general welfare of all. Only when social ownership becomes universal, can women live as free human beings out from under the ban of sex slavery that enthralls them today.

Let us give to the world a system opposed to private interests that is making this earth a hell for the hapless fallen woman, and paving the way for millions of maidens yet unborn to turn from virtue's path into that path that weakens the body, blights the mind and blackens the soul.

Let us labor for a system that suppresses greed and its criminal measures, a system that prevents disease and its terrible suffering; that preserves life into its most glorious fullness and abundance, and that saves human souls, and places woman, sacred mother of the race, beyond the jeers and scorn of men, and beyond the necessity of standing before a judge after a midnight raid.

Still Slandering the Socialists in Milwaukee.

By Carl D. Thompson.

The following appeared recently in a local paper in Camden, New Jersey. Perhaps the fact that it was so far away from Milwaukee led the capitalistic editor to think that no one would know the difference and it would count as a knock against Socialism anyway.

Capitalistic editors should remember that Socialism and Socialists are everywhere. The comrades in Camden sent us the editorial squib which I present here, together with the facts in the case:

"Convicted of petty grafting, the Chief of the Milwaukee Fire Department has been summarily dismissed from office by the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners. Apparently even socialistic municipal control is not an infallible panacea for official corruption."

THE FACTS.

Now, in the first place, no Socialist ever pretended that Socialism was an infallible panacea for all official corruption. Much less do we hold that the capture of one city would put an end to the long drawn debauch of political corruption that the old parties have forced upon the American people.

But our Camden editor evidently knows very little about what is going on in Milwaukee. The fire department of this city is under the control of a commission of five members, only two of which are Socialists.

For years there has been a feeling on the part of the people in Milwaukee that the present fire chief was not the kind of a man to be at the head of this important department. Charges have been filed against him from time to time. He was charged not merely with petty grafting, but with grafting on a pretty large scale. He was charged with bribery; with using his office to further political aims; with coercion; with insubordination, and worst of all with incompetency.

Milwaukee has had in the last few years some very serious fires. The loss of life of firemen has been appalling at times. In some cases several firemen were killed at each fire. And while the people were willing to make allowance for the unusual hazards of a fireman's life, the conviction was gaining ground in Milwaukee that the loss of life could not be accounted for on any other basis than that of incompetency.

So finally, after a long trial extending over weeks of time, the chief was dismissed by a vote of four to one.

The chief, of course, was not and never had been a Socialist, but, on the contrary, was one of Socialism's most bitter enemies.

So much for our Camden editor's case.

Who will be the next to try a whirl at the Milwaukee Administration?

Notwithstand the cold weather in October, more locals have been organized or revived so far this month than in any other, this summer. The total for October is 11, with a membership of 250.

The Socialists of Fairview, a suburb of Clinton, have organized a local with 11 members and nominated a town ticket. They are enthusiastic and want speakers, which they will get.

Florence Wattles organized a local at Pleasant Ridge, Jackson county, with 10 members near'y all of them farmers. The farmers in the southeastern part of the state are becoming revolutionary, and will be heard from when the next election rolls around.

Comrade Zimmerman found the old local at Delphi in a state of chaos, and after a brief talk with the former members organized a new local, which starts with 11 members, and all ready to do business.

Sullivan county comes forward with another local at Rood, making nine in all. As Sullivan county generally rolls up immense majorities for the Democratic donkey, that poor beast's drivers must be getting apprehensive.

The revolutionary miners at Ayershire and Ingalow have been watching the records made at Dunkirk and Lyons in the way of a large charter membership. The miners now come forward with the largest list of applicants for a charter received this summer, namely, 97. Some of these are out of work and unable to pay dues. Who will be the next to break this latest record?

Comrade Wattles has two more locals to her credit besides the one mentioned above. At Marengo she organized with 6 members, and at Hillham with 5. both these applications came from small towns, and farming is the occupation that predominates.

The Sullivan county locals, now numbering nine, will meet in a county mass convention at Sullivan on Sunday, November 12th, and form a county organization. All members in good standing are eligible to seats in the convention, which will meet in the court house.

Oakland City comrades report that the local there has been reorganized, with good prospects for an increase in membership. They also ask for speakers, which request will be granted.

The locals of Lake county met in county convention at East Chicago on October 20th and formed a county organization. This is one of the distinct industrial counties, and has a splendid future before it.

A charter of the Inter-Collegiate Socialist Society has been organized at DePauw University, Greencastle, and speakers will be heard there soon.

General Socialist News.

Election for members of the State Legislature in Alsace-Loraine, Germany, now going on, show that th Socialists are making unusual gains. Five Socialists were elected on the first ballot and quite a number of others will win the second ballots. The increase in the popular vote has been general, which has caused considerable comment, owing to the fact that Alsace-Lorraine has heretofore been one of the most backward states in the empire. A later report says 25 Socialists were elected to the Legislature.

When Debs spoke in New York last week Carnegie Hall, one of the largest auditoriums in the city, was packed to the doors and over 3,000 people stood in the rain outside hoping for a chance to fill in as others came out. Debs discussed the McNamara case. The huge and waved hats and handkerchiefs for and wave hats and handkerchiefs for many minutes when Debs began and closed his speech.

Job Harriman, Socialist candidate for Mayor of Los Angeles, in making some startling disclosures concerning the attempted steal on the part of H. G. Otis and other exploiters who have seized a large tract of land in the San Francisco valley, and are planning to flow the waters from the $25,000,000 aqueduct on to the land of the grabbers. Harriman has also the detailed story of Edwin T. Earl, publisher of two "good government" newspapers, who was the heaviest stockholders in the Union Oil Co., which has control of the "Miner fill" in the city's harbor. This grab means many millions to the people. That old Otis and his fellow-grabbers are squirming under the merciless fire of Harriman in proven in the mud-sling of the organs of capitalism in Los Angeles. But all the agitation is grist for the mills of the Socialists.

From present indications the German elections will be held in January and the height of the campaign will be reached some time during the Christmas week. The main issue of the campaign is Socialism. The government fears that the Socialists may increase their present seats in Parliament to 100 to 150. Since the elections five years ago the Socialists have won nine successive by-elections, as well as scores of seats in state and city bodies. These victories point to the greatest triumphs in the history of the party at the general elections and the government is trembling. Efforts are being made to combine a number of the old parties in order to present a solid front to the Socialists.

It is quite probable that all the Socialist organizations in Great Britain will be merged in the near future as a result of the deliberations of a joint conference at Manchester. A total of 119 delegates were present, representing over 25,000 members. The Social-Democratic party had 96 per cent; the Independent Labor party was represented by 41 delegates from different branches; the newly formed British Socialist party had 13; the Clarion societies, 23; and the rest were from the Socialist Church Union and other Socialist societies. H. M. Hyndman, the veteran writer and speaker, presided during the meeting. A resolution was adopted declaring that it was the sense of the conference that all Socialist bodies in Great Britain be amalgamated, and a committee of 10, representing the different societies, was elected to draw up the constitution, which will be submitted to a referendum vote of the locals which joined in the formation of the new party. Telegrams were received from the Socialist parties of France, Belgium, Roumania and Austria wishing success to the efforts of the English Socialists in forming a united party. Great enthusiasm was manifested by the delegates and visitors who were present, and all agreed that the time had come to sink all differences and prepare to make a combined forward movement. The success of the formation of the united Socialist party, it is claimed, is due to the fact that the Labor party of England has become nothing more than a compromising reform party which is completely under the control of the Liberal party, with the exception of those who belong to the Independent Labor party. Another conference will be called when the committee of 10 drafts the outline of a constitution and secures the consensus of opinion of the various organizations interested.

Why Labor Loses.

Fumbling like a knocked-out prize fighter we sometim s lose the grip and let our courage fail.

Hurriedly looking at the warrior on the other side we discover with awe his equipment.

His figure is dwarfed and his forehead slanted back. His muscles are shrunken and flabby.

We stand there strong and muscular; brainy and alert.

AND YET HE WINS.

What is the matter?

We have simply given over to him our instruments of war.

We have given him the president, the governors, and law makers, the judges, the army, the militia, the police.

He has not robbed us of them—we have given them to him.

With such an equipment what is the use in fighting him.

We have given him this and must take it away if we would win.

And that is what we are up to.

We are up to securing for ourselves our own servants from president down. We will make our own laws and administer them. We will select our own judges and have them under our control.

Stripped of this armor what would the capitalist do?

Then we can begin to take over in an orderly and legal way the industries, the means of life.

Then we can come into possession of all that is necessary for the fullest, happiest life.

Then we will toil and reap the RESULTS OF OUR TOIL.

This is the goal of labor—the full returns of our creation.

And this is the hope of the world.

The mighty host of toilers is waking up and the day is not far distant when we shall see a free, well fed, well clothed, well housed, well grown humanity.

STRICKLAND HAS DEBATE ON THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

East Liverpool, Ohio.—Rev. Frederick G. Strickland and Rev. Milton E. Parker clashed in a debate here on the question, "Resolved, That Socialism offers the only solution for wiping out the evils of the liquor traffic."

Over 2,000 people turned out to hear the debate. Strickland showed that the evils of the liquor traffic were due to poverty and that Socialism in abolishing the profit system would abolish poverty and thereby abolish the evils of the liquor traffic.

He showed how prohibition had been an utter failure in this city, liquor still being sold here, because there was a profit in it, and that the prohibitionists had failed to find a substitute to keep men from seeking liquor.

The general opinion of the audience was that Strickland had much the better of the debate, as Parker simply put up the old time-worn prohibition arguments and tried to play on the emotions of his audience.

The hearts of the people are yearning for Socialism.

THE SOCIALISTS' CITY PLATFORM.

We, the Socialist Party of the City of Columbus, Ohio, assembled in mass convention, reaffirm our allegiance to the principles of International Socialism as embodied in our National and State Platform.

The first consideration in all municipal affairs should be the interest of the working class. The Socialist Party is organized not only to elect good and efficient men to office but to control the powers of political government in order to guarantee to the workers the possession and operation of the means of production and distribution and the full social product of their labor.

As measures calculated to strengthen the working class in its fight for the realization of its ultimate aim, and to increase its powers of resistance against private capitalism, we advocate and pledge ourselves and our elected officers to the following program:

FIRST: For the more perfect application of the Initiative and Referendum in all municipal affairs.

SECOND: For the Recall of all elective officials.

THIRD: For the public ownership of all public utilities and the abolition of the contract system and all convict labor when in competition with free labor.

FOURTH: For the elimination of unnecessary officials, a reduction of all salaries that excessive and a minimum wage of $3.00 per day in all public works.

FIFTH: For the Eight Hour Day for all labor on public improvements and in all municipal departments, and a uniform pension system to apply to all city employees.

SIXTH: For the City to furnish work to the unemployed to the fullest extent possible under present conditions.

SEVENTH: For the rigid inspection of all stores, factories, workshops and places of public assemblage and the strict enforcement of all laws to protect the lives of the workers.

EIGHTH: Human life and health being more sacred than property, should be the first consideration in the enforcement of the sanitary laws.

NINTH: For public parks and playgrounds within easy reach of the workers, and public comfort stations as well as public drinking fountains, wherever essential to the health and comfort of the workers.

TENTH: For the City to provide municipal hospitals free from every taint of Charity.

ELEVENTH: For free text books in all grades of our public schools and the use of one room in each school house for public assemblage.

TWELFTH: For the free administration of justice and the election of a public "Defender" as well as a public "Prosecutor" as at present.

THIRTEENTH: We pledge ourselves to secure from the State, such authority as will give the municipality the right to establish, own and operate all industries that pertain to the city's activity.

A Last Word to the Voters.

Ella June Purcell.

Never in the history of the American nation has there been a time when the spirit of dissatisfaction was so strong as at the present. We are in the midst of a marvelous awakening, of changes, and of progress. The period is one of transition from old, outgrown principles to practical, modern ones. We are at the crucial moment. On what we do now depends the future freedom and prosperity of our country, the development of the great American character, the integrity of our homes. We have had our "trust-busting," "our graft exposures," and "muck raking," our meat-packers clean-up, our Legislative scandals, our white slave reports, our wave of temperance reform, our desire for better health and sanitation measures. A new and peculiar interests has been shown in political economic and moral conditions.

The very foundations of our political institutions have been shaken in this awakening. Our good friends, the Democrats have been divided into Radicals and Conservatives, our equally good friends, the Republicans have formed themselves into camps of standpatters, Progressives and Insurgents. And the strange thing to be noticed is that these old parties have become so very much alike we have heard of Bryan Republicans and Roosevelt Democrats! The political situation is in short, so confused and intricate, that we are no longer a nation of Parties, but a nation of Factions.

What will YOU make the outcome? For You, Voters, have the power to do what you will. Are you going to make what you will. Are you going to make a wild effort to resuscitate to try to re-organize an institution which has outgrown all usefulness and is dying a natural, tho' lingering death,—the Republican Party?

The ballot is the most sacred right you have,—the right to make laws and conditions for the good of your country, your homes and your families. Do your duty. Protect yourselves by the only means you possess, use your ballots intelligently, logically.

You have been thinking along progressive lines. You have been forced into seeing the evils of the day. It is your duty to help change the evils. You cannot help by voting for either of the old parties. Under the Republican regime national conditions have become steadily worse. Local conditions remain uniformly bad, whether Republicans or Democrats control.

The interests of the working men of Columbus are identical. They work side by side, they live in homes of similar surroundings and circumstances, they receive approximately the same recompense for the work they do. They live the same lives, think the same thought, feel the same hopes, know the same longings. Why not VOTE together? When they go to the polls let them remember that their interests are identical, and not divide their strength.

Working men, you have tried both of the old parties. It is absurd for you to suppose that either of the old parties could help you, when the millionaires and corporate magnates are thinking the same.

The Socialist Party is the only party deriving its support from Workingmen. It is a party primarily and essentially by far, and of the Workingmen. Give your support to the only party which stands for principles which protect YOU.

There are 16 Ward Branches and a German Branch of the Socialist Party in Columbus. There are over two thousand dues-paying members. Last year there were over ten thousand Socialist voters. There should be twenty thousand voters this year. Night after night in the campaign which is now closing, thousands of working men have been eager listeners at Socialist meetings,—meetings made possible only by the voluntary contributions of workingmen. The Trusts never contribute to Socialist campaign funds. The success of these meetings has demonstrated beyond any doubt that the spirit of unrest and dissatisfaction is being met by the only sane result,—Socialism.

Voters, who work together, starve together, hope together, — vote together now! You are dissatisfied with panics, strikes and graft. Vote for yourselves by voting for the elimination of these things.

You have changed the name of the governing party more than once. Try a change of principle.

Will Socialism Destroy the Home.

By ROBERT HUNTER.

It is sometimes said that Socialism will destroy the home and when I hear it said I wonder what kind of homes.

Will it destroy the homes of the merry widows of Reno, Nevada?

Will it destroy the homes of the young American girls who have married dissolute foreign noblemen?

Will it destroy the hovels and insanitary, overcrowded tenements in which the poor are today herded like cattle?

Will it destroy the homes of sick fathers and anxious wives and hungry, fretting babies?

Will it destroy the homes of that multitude of women who have married not for love but for support?

✦ ✦ ✦

A few years ago I spent some months in France, where the Socialists control a hundred or more cities.

It is common knowledge that among the poor of France illegitimacy is very common.

To what extent that illegitimacy is due, to inability on the part of the poorest workmen to pay fees for the marriage service is not known.

But we do know that the fees charged by the clergy for performing the marriage service are sometimes exhorbitant.

In any case a multitude of young boys and girls refuse to pay fees to the clergy and limit the marriage service to an announcement of the fact to their friends.

Well, in the great city of Lille the Socialists took action on this question of illegitimacy.

And to overcome it they established a free marriage service, the fees to the clergy being paid directly by the municipality.

Since that time thousands of marriages have been sanctioned under this new act and a great number of children, who could otherwise have been classed as illegitimate, are now legalized.

Does that look like an effort to destroy the home?

Now consider a few other facts. Who does not know that for millions of the poor capitalism HAS destroyed the home.

Go through any great center of industry and see the mothers who are forced to give their children to the street and themselves to the factory.

Some of them had hardly time to give birth to their babies before they were called back to the mill.

And this problem weighed heavily on the heart and conscience of the working people of France.

And when they came into power their first great work was to try to solve the problem of the home.

Among other things they established public kitchens so that soups, meats and vegetables could be obtained warm when the people returned from work.

They established nurseries to care for the babies of working mothers.

They established school restaurants for those children whose parents were imprisoned all day in the factory.

And why? Because CAPITALISM HAS DESTROYED those homes.

Socialists realize that so long as the present system lasts it is impossible for them to free from toil the mothers of their children, or to save the babies from neglect, or children from the streets, or all from actual hunger.

And there are few workmen who would not, if they could, destroy all the public nurseries and school restaurants and maternal homes if at the same time they could RE-ESTABLISH the home and give back to their babies a mother's love and care.

But CAPITALISM has made this impossible.

And it may be a curious and interesting fact to the clergy, who now attack Socialism, that when the Socialists of France came into power they charged themselves FIRST to effect some solution of these very problems of the family and of the home.

And this, gentlemen, is a fair answer to your foul charges; but I know you will not read it or believe it.

Because GOLD has made you blind.

General Labor News.

The Board of Control of Wisconsin is advertising for proposals for the labor of approximately 800 prisoners at the State Penitentiary at Waupun, for a term of five years. The contract will include the necessary power, light and heat, and the necessary floor space for machinery, office and shop room. Accordingly, these convicts are being placed on the auction block, to be disposed of to the highest bidder in a similar manner to the black slaves prior to 1860. Wisconsin is considered a progressive state and it is hoped that progress may proceed along such definite lines as to prohibit in the near future contracting the labor of the inmates of its penal institutions.

The Lithographic Press Feeders in New York City have been granted an increase in wages from 2 to 12 per cent. Negotiations looking toward the increase have been in progress nearly a year and the result has been reached without friction. This is the second substantial increase in the past four years.

United States Judge Ward denied the application of the Review of Reviews Company for an injunction restraining Postmaster General Hitchcock from transporting its magazines as second class mail matter by fast freight trains, instead of by fast mail. The Review Company insinuated that the Postmaster General was actuated by personal feelings in putting the "Outlook," of which former President Roosevelt is an editor, on the express trains, while the "Review of Reviews" was consigned to a fast freight.

Mine Rescue Car No. 7, of the United States Bureau of Mines, after making a quick run to Lava City, Ohio, was successful in rescuing eight men that had been caught in a burning mine. The men's cage, with oxygen helmets and other safety appliances, was responsible for the rescue.

North Dakota has just organized a State Federation of Labor and affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

The Chicago Allied Printing Trades Council has just issued a revised directory of the union printing offices of Chicago, using the Allied Printing Trades Council label. A prominent feature of the directory is a reproduction of the spurious and fake labels now being used in Chicago by dual and unrecognized unions. Three of the labels are the so-called job printers' union, an organization of bedroom printers, open shop advocates and renegades.

The International Union of Pavers, Rammermen and Flagg Layers reports that it has been successful in advancing the wages for its men in the laying of wood block pavement from $3.50 to $5.00 per day, without friction. This international union, not large, has been extremely successful in increasing the wages of its members and securing splendid working conditions.

Socialist Sentiment Growing in Marysville.

Comrade Frank Bohn gave us a scholarly talk and drove home the truths of Socialism. His speech was followed up by Comrade D. J. Farrell who in turn was followed by Comrade T. H. Johnston. These three had worked upon the minds of the workers in this vicinity to such an extent that when Comrade W. H. Spears came to us the working class willingly stood in the cold and listened to him for one and one-half hours and now many are speaking in no uncertain terms of their determination to cease voting the old party tickets and vote for their own interest the rest of their lives and cast their lot with the Socialists. There is much work to be done here and the members of Local Marysville are very grateful to the speakers from Local Columbus who have been so kind as to come to us and help us in this campaign of education. Things look very promising here and our local is slowly growing.

Yours for Socialism,
V. W. MERRITT,
Secretary Local Marysville.

Just A Few Falsehoods Nailed.

One of the favorite methods of political tricksters is to spring just before an election some "roorback" lie or lies calculated to injure the candidates of the opposing party. The usual course has been followed by the Capitalistic bunch backing the Democratic and Republican parties in Columbus. The Socialist is in possession of a circular about to be sprung on the people. This circular is aimed at our party entirely and is a conglomeration of falsehoods. We have only time and space to note a few glaring misstatements :

LIE NO. 1. "One of the Secretaries of a City Socialist Local is a "scab" carpenter." Absolutely and unqualifiedly untrue. Why did not the falifiers name the man. A close inspection of our local roster shows this.

LIE NO. 2. "How long has D. J. Farrell, candidate for President of Council on the Socialist ticket, been a member of the Union." Dominick J. Farrel joined the Press Assistants and Feeders Union No. 26, in March 1898. was transferred to P. A. and F. Union No. 25, June 1910; transferred to Pressmens Union No. 62 in May 1911. Never worked in an "open" shop or with rats. Is delegate to Columbus Federation of Labor and was member of Toledo C. L. U. for several years. Come again.

LIE NO. 3. —"Take the City Socialist ticket for instance—The Socialist Party have nominated for office in our City Columbus, O., a man who is operating a "rat" printing shop, paying less wages than any printing shop in the City." Not true. No candidate operates a "rat" printing shop or any other kind of a shop for that matter.

LIE NO. 4. "A certain Labor Union man was not eligible to be a candidate for Mayor on the Socialist ticket on the grounds that his legal standing as a Socialist was not of sufficient length to entitle him to be a candidate, according to the Socialist Constitution. Yet, we see he has been nominated by the Socialist party as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention at the coming election, same day as the Mayor is to be elected. Was it because he is a Labor Union leader that he was ineligible to be a Socialist candidate for the more important office of Mayor, and in addition to this, the Socialist party is now opposing the candidates indorsed by the Federation of Labor. Look it up." There you go. The Socialist party runs its own affairs and makes its own rules. A man must be a party member one year before he can be named as a candidate. Every constitutional delegate named by the Socialist party was thus qualified when so named. Not a single comrade has sulked or flunked. Socialists do not seek nominations. We pick our own agents.

LIE NO. 5. "Socialists in convention at Utica, N. Y., in the fall of 1910, passed a resolution that any member who belonged to a Church and a Socialist Local at the same time, must withdraw from either, must become one or the other, a Socialist or a church member. Perhaps not all of us are as religious as we might be but we will not stand idle and let Socialism tear down the religion of our mother or our father." This lie is made of whole cloth without a shadow of truth. The Socialist party has declared over and over that Religion is a private matter with which the party has nothing to do.

The foregoing shows the tenor of the circular in question. The Socialist knows its source and is glad to be able to forewarn the people. Put no trust in eleventh hour rumors.

They Are After Sammy Mighty Hard.

The following statement is being circulated by and among members of organized labor. It speaks for itself:

"We, the undersigned, believe that S. G. Osborn, now the Police Judge for the city of Columbus, ought not to be re-elected to that office because it is our judgment.

"1—That he is not a fair and impartial judge.

"2—That he is a part of a vicious and corrupt political machine.

"3—That his campaigns are conducted and paid for by the 'Interests.'

"4—That the Rail-Light Co. want him re-elected that they may use him from the bench four years more at times when workingmen are contending for their rights as citizens.

"5—That because of one whole year last past he has refused to try or dismiss numerous cases pending in his court which cases grew out of the street railway strike, and wherein the defendants are members of organized labor and were arrested for no other offense than that they happened to be standing around on the street or in their dooryards when some soldier demanded that they 'move on.'

"6—That he is the mouth-piece of the Chamber of Commerce on the bench and the street railway company's 'Man Friday' off the bench.

"7—And for scores of other reasons, of which the following is a fair example: Some weeks ago a prominent Columbus capitalist and member of the Manufacturers' Association, whose other name is 'Bob' Wolfe, who owns and operates two newspapers which were bought and are now being financed by the earnings and profits made off of boys and girls employed in his kid shoe factory on Front street, was arrested for running his automobile 40 miles an hour in the streets of Columbus, as the police testified, and this Manufacturers Association-Chamber of Commerce-Street Railway-Brady-Coach detective candidate for Police Judge let 'Bob' Wolfe, better known among working men and women as 'Child Labor' Wolfe, go scot free. This is the reason the Journal and the Dispatch are printing editorials which sing praises unto 'Sammy' Osborn.

"Be it remembered also that the probabilities are that this self-same 'Bob' Wolfe auto was bought by money made off of boys and girls who should be in school instead of being white wage slaves in 'Bob' Wolfe's non-union shoe shop."

WHY THE DIFFERENCE?

Here are the schedules filed by the gas companies of Columbus under orders from the State Public Service Commission. There is a big difference between the rate charged the Common People and that charged the Wolfe Brothers, who only pay 12½ cents, while a competitor, the C. and E. Shoe Company, pays 35 cents. The newspapers pay 30 cents (this does not include The Socialist), while the hospitals pay 25 cents. These facts ought to make the people think. This extortion is possible because of the system of private ownership. The schedule follows:

Republican Business Man "Gets Wise" Politically.

A member of our Campaign Committee was agreeably surprised this week at words of encouragement from a business man of this city, heretofore known as a Republican, who while he endeavored to cast his vote at every election, has never taken any apparent interest in politics. At the request of the Editor, this man was again seen and asked to express his opinions in writing for use in this paper. He consented to do so if his name was not mentioned, for, as he told us, he preferred to not have it known that he took any active interest in campaigns. This is his statement:

"The average man looks upon the political condition of Columbus with eyes of disfavor. Yet they are no different from the conditions which for many years each of us helped to maintain. In fact many of us were part and parcel of the deception, the trickery, and the unfaithfulness of those days.

"To deal secretly with opposing factions; to make solemn pledges secretly to the leaders of each of two antagonistic movements, to make the average man believe that we were opposed to that which we silently favored; to divert the minds of men by raising false issues; to resort to the simple process of attacking our opponents, even falsely, in order that we might create doubt in the minds of those who were moved by attacks upon ourselves, these were the stock methods of a political campaign.

"Roorbacks, attacks made at a time when defense was too late, appeals to prejudices, were considered necessary to prevent voters from thinking too strongly about real issues, and the broader and more vital things that concerned them.

"But the views of men have changed. We no longer are held by party shibboleths. We concern ourselves more with the vital questions of government. We are not so easily carried away by false issues. We inquire as to the real views of candidates and we look to see who is behind them. They are weighed in the balance by an enlightened political judgment.

"This spirit is subversive of party discipline. It destroys Boss domination within the party, and is so completely foreign to the mental attitude of the Boss, and to his conceptions of things political that he cannot believe in its existence.

"He still believes in and follows the old political methods. Much of the old parties is dominated by this class of men. Campaigns are still carried on by them in the same manner in Columbus as they were in the heyday of Old Fashioned Politics. The spoils of victory are still grasped in the same manner as they were when Karb and Walcutt, Black and Schwartz led their parties to victory.

"And when an electorate, indignant at the betrayal by those they had previously elected, turned the defeat of one year into a victory at the next election, these men believed that their success was due entirely to their astute management. They were confirmed in their adhesion to [illegible]

"And so today we see the anomaly of the great body of our citizens aroused to the needs of our city, observant of men and of the movements of politics, with opinions fixed before campaigns are commenced, and anxious to support those whom they can trust; and on the other hand, the bosses who control the old parties still blindly trying to fool the people, still raising false issues, still attempting the old plan of trading candidates, and once more attempting to combine to the end that their mutual friends may be elected, their enemies within the party defeated.

"It is well for our city that a new Richmond has appeared, to wrest our fair city from the grasp of such men. The average man congratulates himself that he can at last turn to men honest in their love for their city, unselfish of purpose and who give hope of new and better things."

WILMINGTON SOCIALISTS ARE WAKING 'EM UP.

Editor Socialist:

Comrade—Believing news from Wilmington would be appreciated, I shall endeavor to keep you posted on the state of affairs here. In 1910 there were 14 Socialist votes cast in the town. January, 1911, we organized a local with 26 charter members, and have been keeping the pot boiling vigorously ever since. Entering the municipal campaign with a full ticket, we have so managed affairs that the other fellows are on the defensive.

The evening of the 14th Rev. Ewell, Xenia, O., spoke to a good crowd on the streets. Being a negro, he addressed himself mostly to the colored people, but was complimented by the antis of both races. In fact he stirred the town as no other speaker has in years past.

Our chief trouble is to supply the demand for literature.

SOCIALISM ADVANCES INTO THE FRONT RANK.

Politicians of Columbus and Ohio Are Stunned by Vote Cast Last Tuesday

Councilmen, Assessors and Members of the School Board Are Elected.

Balance of Power Is Now Held by the Reds in the Storm Center of Socialism.

The Socialist party of Columbus now holds the balance of power in the Capital City of Ohio.

Four Councilmen, Four Assessors and Three Members of the Board of Education were elected last Tuesday by the "Reds."

Last Fall it was charged that our vote was a strikt vote. The politicians do not say so now. The State Journal article reproduced in this paper tells what the Capitalists think. They think what the boy thought after his father had licked him. They think "damn," and they are going to get licked again just for [illegible]

Every vote cast [illegible] city ticket last Tuesday was a straight, class-conscious Socialist vote.

The Socialist party has no apology to offer for its platform, its candidates or the RED FLAG. The working class will understand the true significance of the Red Flag before another election and that emblem of Human Brotherhood will be the insignia of victory. A political trick, aided by the clergy, may win once, but you cannot "fool all the people all the time."

Columbus proudly takes its place with the cities and towns where the Socialist cause shows solid growth. Our increase this year, is equal to our total vote in the city two years ago.

Not a man or woman in our ranks is daunted. Scores have joined the party since election.

'CLOSE UP ON THE CENTER! CHARGE!

The vote of the city is given in detail elsewhere in this paper.

Hundreds of Socialists Are Elected

Cities and Towns in Ohio Line Up With Vote for Municipal Officers That Is Astounding

The Socialists made great gains in the smaller cities of the state, even though disappointed in Columbus, which they confidently expected to carry.

In Salem John McKay was elected mayor over Al Carlisle, a popular Democrat, who had carried that Republican city four times.

In Cuyahoga Falls George Sclianabel is far ahead of the old party tickets, and in Barberton Charles Cutter has a commanding lead. Both are large manufacturing [illegible] close to Akron.

In St. Marys, the second city in Auglaize county, Scott Wilkins was elected mayor.

In Lorain, the seat of the great shipping and steel industry, Pape, the Socialist nominee for mayor, was a winner on the straight ballots counted.

Wycoss, Socialist, has been elected mayor of Martin's Ferry, a steel mill town opposite Wheeling, and has pulled the entire party ticket through with him.

In Canton the Socialists won by four votes. The election is disputed. Although this was President McKinley's home, his party finished third in the race.

Large gains are noted in Hamilton, Norwalk, Marion, Troy and Springfield. Mt. Vernon, the seat of Knox county, where there are several large mills, returned as mayor A. A. Perrine.

Fostoria, which lies in two counties and is a railroad center, elected William M. Ralston, a Socialist, mayor by a decisive vote. At Toronto in Jefferson county, where the larger part of the population works in the sewer pipe industry, Robert Murray, a Socialist, was chosen as chief executive.

That nice stronghold of both Democrats and Republicans at times, Lima, a great railway center, elected Corbin Shook as mayor, and with him two members of council.

THE SOCIALIST SWEEP.

St. Marys, O., Nov. 7.—The Socialists made a clean sweep by electing their straight ticket, Scott Wilkins, for mayor, with plurality of 105; Dunan, Rep., 524; Wessel, Dem., 257; Wilkins, 620.

CANTON SOCIALISTS WIN.

Canton, O., Nov. 8.—The vote in Canton, Ohio, as it now stands for mayor, is Harry S. Schilling, Socialist, 3,413; A. R. Turnbull, Democrat, 3,410; Clifton D. Burns, Republican, 2,059; Rhodes I. Gregory, Citizens Independent, 1,166; Theodore A. Goerke, Socialist Labor, 51; making Harry S. Schilling's plurality three.

This i sthe count of the Board of Elections, but we know of several instances in which A. R. Turnbull was counted a few [illegible] more and Schilling a few [illegible] less than the official b[illegible] will show. We are inclined to think that Schilling's plurality will [illegible] close to 60 votes. This has been the most fiercely fought contest of any campaign ever waged in Canton.

We also elected William Smith councilman in the second ward of this city. Every candidate [illegible] excellent vote. Last year the Socialists of this city polled but 1,221 votes for Tom Clifford for Governor. This year Harry S. Schilling for mayor received 3,413 and probably the official count will show that he received about 3,475. If this increase keeps on over the state, Ohio may pass into the Socialist column in 1912 or 1914.

Yours respectfully,
ALLEN COOK.

SOCIALISTS CONTROL HAMILTON.

Hamilton, O., Nov. 8.—In election yesterday Socialists get control of city council and lost for mayor by only about 140. The following Socialists were elected: Walter W. Hinkle, vice mayor; councilmen-at-large, Chas. Norris and Jos. B. Meyers; councilmen, Lawrence Geis, Third Ward; Jos. Smith, Fifth Ward, and Fred A. Keer, Sixth Ward. Assessors, Clarence Rogers, Fifth Ward, and Joseph Suttor, Sixth Ward.

SOCIALISTS ELECT MAYOR

And Control Both Branches of City Government at Schenectady, New York.

Schenectady, N. Y., Nov. 7.—For the first time in the history of Schenectady county the Socialists have played an important part in an election. Rev. George R. Lunn, Socialist candidate for Mayor, was elected by a sweeping plurality of 2,049 votes, or two-thirds of the votes polled.

The Common Council, now Democratic, will be Socialistic by a majority of at least two Aldermen, and the Board of Supervisors, now Republican, is also likely to Socialist. The only two city offices that were not carried by the Socialists were City Judge and Superintendent of the Poor, which went Democratic by small pluralities.

The chief argument for the election of Dr. Lunn has been his reform platform, in which he advocated the reduction of the

GENERAL SOCIALIST NEWS

Morris Hillquit, a member of the National Executive Committee of the Socialist party, declared in a great mass meeting in New York last week that the membership in the Socialist party has now passed the 100,000 mark. Before the election of 1912 it may reach 150,000. This, Hillquit said, is highly significant, as experience has shown that there are 10 Socialists votes for every party member. If the past experience does not fail, then the next Presidential election will see between 1,500,000 and $2,000,000 Socialist votes. And this, Hillquit declared amid thundering applause, will mean the beginning of the end of the capitalist system.

In looking about for the causes that have produced the movement toward Socialism, Prof. Robert R. Hoxie, of the Chicago University, declares that "It isthe Otises, the Posts and the Parrys' the Van Cleaves and the Kirbys who are most active in raising revolutionary socialism in this country. It is in the boss-ruled, corporation-ridden, tax-burdened city, with its poorly paved, ill-lighted, dirty streets, its insufficient water supply and air-filled gas mains, its industrial firetraps, its graft-protected vice district, its fat politicians, untaxed wealth, crooked contracts and wasted resources that socialism finds its best object lesson and has won its most significant, if not its most numerous success." Prof. Hoxie overlooks the fact—probably obscured by material interests—that Rockefeller, Morgan & Co., by hogging the wealth produced by the workers of the country, prevent an equitable distribution thereof and thus add to the "shame of the cities" and cause the people to revolt through the Socialist movement. Hoxie says there are 435 Socialists in public office in the United States. That number will be materially increased in number when the returns are all in in a few weeks.

The Rand School of Social Science this year begins a work similar to that of the Socialistic party school in Berlin and the Ruskin Labor College at Oxford. It offers a six months, course calculated to fit students for effective work as propagandists, organizers, secretaries, newspaper workers, etc., in the party service. The plan includes four main courses: Socialist and Labor Theory, Socialist and Labor Policy, American Economy and Political History, American Government, in grammar and composition, public speaking, and office methods. Individual attendants will spend 24 hours a week in class work and 24 in preparation of lessons. The corps of instructors includes Morris Hillquit, Algernon Lee, John Spargo, Dr. I. M. Rubinow, Robert W. Bruere and George R. Kirkpatrick. Prof. Beard will also aid as educational adviser. The fee for the course, including text books, is $60. In case of necessity, payment of a portion may be deferred. For further information, address Algernon Lee, secretary, 112 East 19th street, New York, N. Y.

The general elections for members of Parliament in Germany have been set for Jan. 12, and great activity is now being displayed by all political parties in the coming battle, which will be the greatest that ever has been fought in the Fatherland. Alarmed at the popular discontent and seeing the avalanche of Socialist votes which will sweep down upon them in the coming elections, the Agrarian and Conservative parties have appealed to the government to prohibit Socialist meetings. The first night of the campaign the Socialists held 78 meetings in Berlin mainly for the purpose of pointing out the cause and cure of the high cost of food, which is one of the great problems in Europe. The chief demand of the Socialists is the temporary suspension of the tariffs on foods, the removal of restrictions excluding foreign meats and the abrogation of the system of export bounties now encouraging farmers to ship their grain abroad. Owing to the strength of the Conservative opposition to these measures it is admitted that the government is not likely to afford material relief, and the only hope is in electing Socialists. Popular feeling as the winter advances must become much more bitter, and the capitalists and their politicians fear that a series of mass meetings on the food question in such circumstances will inflame the public to acts of violence. The fact that cold weather has set in and that the winter promises to long and severe aggravates the situation.

Indiana Socialist News.

(James Oneal, State Secretary, 309½ Ohio Street, Terre Haute, Ind.)

In last week's news letter 17 new locals, with a membership of 280, were reported for October. Since then three more charters have been issued, bringing the number of locals up to 20 and the new members up to 309. October proved to be still better than the record month of September.

Still another local has been organized in Jackson county by Florence Wattles. The new local is known as Local Mount Zion, which starts with 6 members, all farmers.

Greensburg, the old birthplace of the Coming Nation, has finally succeeded in forming a local, and the comrades start with 6 members. A local was formed there some years ago, but the stolid indifference of the voting ox was too much. Light is now breaking in this stupid town.

The Socialists at Boonville have been on a strike for five months, and all their time was taken up with it. They now reorganize, and start with 16 members. They have been holding meetings regularly every week, and will take a few outside speakers to help along.

The Socialists at Claypool, Kosciusko county, have applied for a charter for eight members, and are the first to make application for November.

The Socialists of Madison, in Jefferson county, have been put to work during the years, but Comrade Wattles organized a local there, which starts with 8 members, and she predicts a splendid future for it.

Local Brazil, after many discouraging experiences, has finally enlisted enough interest in the movement to go to the expense of fitting up a headquarters at a cost of $40. The movement is very much alive there now.

Local Staunton, a neighbor of Brazil in the same county, reports a big revival of interest, and indications are that the Socialists will elect every one of their candidates at the town election. The opposition parties are sailing under the name of the "Citizen's Ticket," in the hope that some wreckage will be saved.

Local Hartford City carries the hide of a local defender of capitalism in its wigwam. Comrade Garrison did the skinning in a debate before a large audience in the City Hall, and the local is ready to arrange for another performance if a victim can be found.

Locals in towns where Socialist tickets have been nominated are again urged to send returns to the state office without delay.

EQUAL PAY BILL SIGNED.

Albany, N. Y.—The New York City School Teachers Equal Pay Bill has been signed by Governor Dix. This bill was enacted, backed by the labor organizations, and provides that in the schedules of salaries hereafter adopted there shall exist no discrimination by reason of sex. This bill sets a good example and it is trusted that other states may emulate the action taken by the State of New York.

SHOVEL WORKERS WIN.

Charleroi, Pa.—An amicable adjustment has been reached in the trouble at the Hussy-Binns Shovel plant, which resulted in the factory being almost entirely closed down for a few days. The trouble has been adjusted by T. H. Flynn, General Organizer for the American Federation of Labor, J. P. McGinley and John Ferry, and the men have returned to work.

THE WORK OF OUR SPEAKERS.

(From Socialist State Bulletin.)

Ben Wilson of Girard has addressed some splendid meetings in Ohio. Piqua has a population of 12,000. Ben and the efforts of the comrades attracted 4,000 of that populace to two Socialist meetings.

Comrade Wilson held two street meetings in Steubenville. The average attendance of each was 1,100. Both Piqua and Steubenville have asked for return dates. By the time this report goes to press, Springfield, Northfield, Shelby, Lorain and Cleveland will be talking about their monster Wilson meetings. On the 22nd of October, Comrade Wilson will begin a ten days' engagement in Summit and Stark counties. He will remain in Ohio until election day, satisfying some of the many solicitations for lectures.

There has been a great deal of rainy weather but that, or any other disadvantage, has not deferred Ella Reeve Bloor. Comrade Bloor closed a sixteen days' engagement for Columbus, October 2nd. While in the capitol city she spoke at the shops at the noon hour, on the street corners in the evening and in the public parks on Sunday afternoons. Mayor Marshall felt relieved when she left Columbus. Troy, Piqua, Defiance and Lima have furnished splendid audiences for Mrs. Bloor. Locals Urbana, Springfield, Middletown, Sidney, Hamilton, Wapakoneta, Bowling Green, Bucyrus and Marion have caused many persons to change their minds because of holding Bloor meetings. At the present writing Comrade Bloor is causing Toledo to sit up and take notice of the Socialist party and its mission.

Wilbur Griffith dotes on spending several days or a week in each place that he may go to the factories, mines and shops. Marietta, East Liverpool, Youngstown, Sandusky, Springfield, Cincinnati and Portsmouth will be added to their local campaigns by several days each of Griffith's time. Steubenville, Girard, Sheavs, Conneaut, Leetonia, Findlay, Bucyrus, Middleport and Ironton have had, or will have, Griffith for single days.

M. J. Beery started a week's engagement with Local Cincinnati, October 8th. Comrade Beery's route will take him to Middletown for three days, Urbana, Washington C. H., Xenia and Jamestown for single dates, Bethel for one week and Marion for a week.

John Collins finished his work for Local Columbus October 19th, and will give Cincinnati a week, Hamilton four days and various points single dates.

Clarence Taylor will give Canton and ... week, beginning October 23rd.

Speare ... Findlay, Allen of Lima, Patterson and Rice of Toledo, Bundy of Warren, Henderson, Farrell and Johnson of Columbus, Prevey of Akron, Clifford, Youtz and Rothenberg of Cleveland have filled week-end needs and special dates.

Lorain, Bucyrus and Marysville take a speaker routed by the state office every Saturday night.

Newark, Springfield and Piqua held regular Sunday afternoon meetings.

Lima, Toledo, Lorain, Mansfield, Coshocton, Canton, Alliance, Warren, Elyria, Zanesville, Marietta and Martin's Ferry have brought the message of emancipation to more than 20,000 persons by conducting Debs meetings.

Many points have furnished large audiences for Haywood.

Strickland and Bessemer are in great demand the state over.

PRISON LABOR NEWS.

Washington.—The Reliance-Sterling Manufacturing Co., commonly known as the prison labor trust, does not seem to be satisfied with its fourteen prison contracts, extending from Rhode Island to South Dakota, and is reaching out for more. It has submitted to the Prison Commission of Kentucky a bid for the labor of 250 convicts at the state penitentiary at Frankfort. Its offer was 67 1-2 cents a day per man, the state to furnish shop room, heat, light and power. Another bidder was the Hoge-Montgomery Co., which has manufactured shoes with prison labor in Kentucky for the past 18 years. The controlling stockholder of the Reliance-Sterling Mfg. Co. is Milton F. Goodman, Secretary of the Associated Jewish Charities. Another director is Judge Ward H. Watson, of the Appellate Court of Indiana. Fred H. Mills, sales agent of the New York Prison Department and treasurer of the American Prison Association, is a director in one of the subsidiary companies of the trust, the Hawkins Shirt Co., which operates the contract at the Baltimore city jail.

DEBS AT CHILLICOTHE.

Owing to the fact that Debs was not to speak in Columbus, a few comrades made the trip to hear our "Gene." Comrades Walter Smith, Fred Willis, Fred Myers, Chris Knowles and Frank Colbert. The lecture was held in Majestic Theater which seats 800. The comardes sold 750 Appeal sub cards and the theater was filled with the exception of about 25 seats. Comrade Brewer opened the meeting with a short talk in which he said: "The Capitalistic papers of Columbus have just about conceded the whole town to the Socialists and judging from the size of this audience you are going to make things interesting here for the old parties. the same is true in Dayton, Mt. Vernon, Mansfield and all cities we have visited. If Socialism was the monster as represented by our enemies we would have nothing to do with it."

At the conclusion Comrade Debs, the same Gene as of old, and if anything looking in better trim that ever, came upon the scene and with uplifted hand he tried to stem the thunderous applause which lasted many minutes.

Starting from the Feudal system and in a simple and plain manner describing the different systems of slavery, pathetic at times, humorous and then as bitter and sarcastic as the occasion demanded, he brought the audience with him up to the present time. Making a special plea to the small farmer. "You small farmers are not as well off as your farm hands. He goes to bed at night and sleeps soundly; but you have that fear of the mortgage coming due and there is a continued gnawing and worrying over failure of a season's crops and you all know what that means. Just think of the confession that Roosevelt made when asked why he allowed the absorption of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Co. He said had he not done so it would have precipitated a panic. Stop a minute and think what this means. The power of a few financial pirates to cause a panic. There were 16,000 commercial failures last year, 89 per cent. mostly small investors. That reminds me of a story of a business man from my home town. He used to say to me, 'Debs, if you would only get a job and quit this preaching your senseless doctrine, you would amount to something.' I asked him if he thought this present system was satisfactory and just. Of course he did. He couldn't see anything wrong with it. I left home on a trip, was gone some time. While gone a Big Capitalist opened up a few doors from this friend's of mine and within one year my friend was a bankrupt. Meeting him upon returning, I hardly recognized him, being in a such a pitiful condition. But, thank God, he had changed his mind, or rather Capitalism changed his mind for him, and he is now in the Socialist movement. I could not have changed him in years; but when he was down and out, then he began to think."

Debs went on to say every little capitalist put out of business makes a recruit for the Socialist movement. A Socialist in the shop today there will be two tomorrow. Later he will have them all. He has an idea, or rather the idea has him. A rather significant incident happened at Lima. A cyclone had visited the town about an hour before the time of our meeting, one-half mile wide, six miles long and it seemed to us it occurred purposely to put Socialism to a test. We filled the hall with 1200 and certainly made good with a vengeance. You will find men today who vote the Democratic ticket because their grandfathers did, and their grandfathers had a good reason, as Jefferson was as revolutionary in his time as we are at present. But everything has changed but the grandson. Our fathers had a right to be Lincoln Republicans, but you young men have no right to be Taft Republicans.

Debs made a plea for women suffrage, saying man has always had ambition to rule the women and they did not look fit to rule themselves and when I look into some of your faces my heart goes out to her. (Applause.)

"King George was overthrown and we are going to overthrow King John D. (continued applause) and establish industrial democracy. I am not here appealing for votes but appealing to your reason and through education and organization we do not fear the results."

Debs spoke from his heart, honest, sincere and loyal to the very last, leaning over the stage with hands on bended knees, he pleaded as only Debs can plead.

"I am not here in the capacity of a leader or some little God, but just like one of you, I have served my time in overalls and always will remain in the ranks. History teaches us that in the past all martyrs who had the courage to stand for their uncompromising principle from ancient times when Socrates was made to drink the fatal poison because he said the people needed light, up to the present. William Lloyd Garrison, Wendell Phillips, Harriet Maritone and a score of others who advocated and fought slavery, were victims of persecution and in many case ended in death."

At the conclusion of his grand lecture he made a plea to the audience to stand by the McNamaras, comparing this case to the Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone case. At that time they had their Harry Orchard. Now they have their Ortie McManigal. Then they had Detective McPartland, now Billy Burns. If they are guilty, why were they kidnapped?

After the lecture Debs was seen to slip out the back door and take a round about way back to the hotel, not caring to be lionized by the crowd, which he surely would have been, as all were waiting outside for him. We comrades called at the headquarters of the Local and had a pleasant half hour with the comrades. We were told one man came from Kenova, W. Va., a distance of 100 miles, and another drove 20 miles. Local Chillicother has 85 members with about 75 in good standing. They meet every first and third Sunday. They have a full ticket in the field. The Local sold about $5.00 in literature, Appeal sub cards, 750, collection $18.34, and Comrade Brewer sold 38 copies of Kautsky's Class Struggle, and 10 copies Life of Debs. We all had a little personal chat with Gene in his room, he receiving us with open arms and expressing his appreciation of our coming from Columbus to see him. He and Brewer were very much interested in Columbus and wanted all the news. When we entered the room Debs was reading a copy of the Columbus Socialist. After a short visit lasting about a half hour, at which time he was not willing to se us go, Brewer had to insist that he must get something to eat. That car was filled with Socialism coming home.

W. G. INGRAM.

VICTORY FOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE CERTAIN.

By Arthur M. Lewis.

One thing rises clear above the ruck of things—the women of this country are going to vote. Every note in our literature, yes, and even in our journalism, tells the same story.

The tide of social evolution has set steadily and surely in that direction and no humming and hawing of pretended friends or open opposition of sworn enemies can stop it or seriously check its flow.

It is plainly written on the order of the day. Its consideration has been postponed long enough and too long. Earnest women and and honest men are sick of shiftless and shuffling excuses.

The social conscience is wincing under the ever-increasing realization of the intolerable wrongs that have been heaped upon the women of the race.

Herbert Spencer described man's treatment of woman, in history, as "brutal." Lester F. Ward, a greater Sociologist than even the mighty Spencer, objected that the assertion was a libel on the brute; that no brutes ever treated their females as men have treated their women.

The time has come for choosing sides. Indifference will no langer pass. You are for, or you are against the Woman Suffrage Movement.

On the side of Woman Suffrage will be all the forces that incarnate human progress. Against will be all the reactionary traditions and the stupid lies that have served these many generations to bar the righting of a great wrong.

If we men are to spend our lives in the blood and dust of the class struggle we need our women to fight with us, side by side. The glory of the battle and the thrill of victory should be theirs as well

You say women are not interested in politics. And in the name of common sence what do you expect so long as they are shorn of every fragment of political rights. How shall they be expected to take interest in questions upon which it has been decreed they are not competent to pass judgment?

The working class in general and the Socialist workers in particular should be in the vanguard. The cause is ours and, as Mazzini would have said, the struggle to win it should also be ours, as ours.

THE SEAT OF INCORRUPTIBILITY.

(Extract from an article on "The Fear of the People," by Dr. Frank R. Crane in the Chicago Examiner of September 2, 1911.)

Ever since the foundation of this Republic a certain class of alleged statesmen have been fearful of popular frenzy and busy erecting bulwarks against it.

One by one the people have smashed these bulwarks, and are smashing. There is the fool system of the Electoral College, practically swept away, although it quadrenially enacts its solemn farce.

There is the Senate, an inheritance from English aristocratic politics, wherein the upper classes were supposed to be as much wiser than the common folk. The whole second chamber, two Houses, idea is a holdover from a theory of government we have absolutely outgrown.

The American people are getting daily more impatient with the Senate, and some day it will have to go. It has become a huge machine for preventing the popular will.

President Taft's idea of the judgeship is the old English idea of the governing class—towit, that to render a judge or legislator incorruptible he should be made independent of the people.

It will not work. The bottom truth about the whole matter is that where there is power there must be accountability. To give any man, be he judge, or king, or millionaire, power over his fellows, and not make him at the same time accountable to his fellows for the use he makes of his power, is to plant the seed of tyranny, cruelty, corruption and obstructionism.

The greatest evils that have beset this country have come from its Senate and the courts. It is from these non-popular bodies that have come the Dred Scott decision, the principle that the Constitution does not follow the flag, and the most stubborn support of high tariffs and all other forms of private privilege.

It was "popular frenzy" that instigated the Revolution and made this country a nation in defiance of precedent; that crushed Secession and liberated the slaves, and that is wresting the natural monopolies from the hands of irresponsible private corporations and lodging them in the hands of the people.

Say what you please of the incorruptibility of the courts, the one permanently incorruptible thing is the whole people. The greatness of Abraham Lincoln lay in the fact that he knew this.

If there be "popular frenzy," the way to cure it is to trust the people.

Any honest judge ought to be glad to go before him masters and give an account of his integrity.

And dishonest judges ought to be compelled to.

A Walking Machine.

Professor Hele-Shaw predicts that, inasmuch as men and animals move upon the angle joint in a way quite superior to that of the rolling of a wheel, the time will come when a mechanical walking machine will be invented to move over parts of the earth where roads do not exist or are still in evil condition. He thinks that the higher his standard of locomotion becomes, and the more he improves the roads the more man will feel the need of such machine, which may possibly move at a speed of twenty miles an hour. There already exists a kind of pedaled wheel for heavy automobile engines, which progresses by steps instead of by rolling.

Delay In Publication.

The Socialist is late this week. This delay is not the result of the election, but simply because the printing plant, where our paper is printed by contract, is being remodeled. A print shop under such circumstances is one hades of a place, and our subscribers must have patience.

Socialists should make a note of the merchants who advertise in The Columbus Socialist. Spend your money with your friends.

The pleasiug information is made public that Rail-Light stock went up the day after election. It ought to rise. The R.-L. certainly spent enough money to line up the floaters.

At the regular meeting of the City Central Committee of the Socialist party, last Wednesday evening, the application of twenty new party members were approved. Just note that, you howlers about the Red Flag.

The Evolution of the "Impossible."

That Frankenstein conjured into existence by the concentration capital, the general strike, threatens once again to return and paralyze the British railroad system, unless higher wages and fewer hours are conceded. Having achieved a slight measure of success in their recent trial of this method of bringing the master class to terms, and what is infinitely more important, seeing the vast possibilities that it opens up for massed action, it might naturally be expected that the British railway workers should again decide to employ it as the chief weapon in their struggle. There is little doubt, too, that it will be much more "general" in character than before. The undoubted fact that the workingmen were to some extent swindled out of the fruits of their victory by the cunning of the employers is likely to bring the strike back in greater volume and with several modern improvements lacking in the first essay.

Much that has been said theoretically about the doubtful character of the general strike as a weapon, and even perhaps of its "impossibility," is undoubtedly true, or may merely for the sake of argument be conceded to be true, but it is very evident that such arguments will have little effect in dissuading the workers from using it. If the concentration of organized labor is the complement of the concentration of organized capital, there is no disputing the question that future strikes must necessarily more and more take the form of massed or general strikes, as labor becomes more closely united for direct economic purposes from year to year. The theorists who declare the "impossibility" of the general strike are thus in the position of watching the "impossible" establish itself under their very eyes. The situation recalls the dilemma of the scientist who issued a learned treatise proving conclusively that no steamship could possibly be constructed to cross the Atlantic, only to discover that the first edition of his work was carried across the Atlantic in the first steamship that made the Atlantic passage.

In this sense there are many other things fully as "impossible" as the general strike. Capitalism itself is one of them, or is at least becoming more and more "impossible." If it is to disappear at all, as all Socialists believe, it is just because of this "impossibility."

Doubtless, too, capitalism itself, could it have been brought to the notice of a theoretical philosopher of the thirteenth century, would have been promptly declared impossible by that savant. In short, the impossible became possible, and having about played its part on the stage of evolution, becomes impossible once again. It is merely the natural cycle of birth, growth, decay and death which applies to an economic system equally with any individual organism.

And the "impossible" general strike is without doubt to become more possible as capitalism becomes more impossible. In turn it, too (the general strike, and for that matter, every other kind of strike), will become impossible, when it is no longer needed, when it is in the condition that capitalism is now approaching.

The failure of one "general" strike, or any attempt to carry out a general strike, does not bankrupt or destroy the working class, for the reason that it is that class which holds the future in its hands. Nor does such failure help capitalism—the decaying system—in any way. On the contrary, it helps disintegrate it, and the failure itself is merely the necessary prelude to a still stronger assault by the same method. The general strike seems to be like what is said of democracy, that the cure for the general strike is to make it still more "general" in character. The less "general" it is, the less chance has it of success, and the more "general" it can be made, the more certain it is of success.

And that success may not, and very likely will not, take the form hoped for by those who advocate it as a means of immediate or even ultimate social revolution. But even this, if true, is no argument against its use. It will, however, bring the social revolution nearer in other ways.

We hardly, for instance, expect to see the capitalists, paralyzed by the most "general" of general strikes, surrender their property offhand to the victorious proletariat in despair of being able to operate it themselves. Much as we would like to see the working class march in and take possession of the abandoned factories and workshops in this manner, and commence operations under their collective ownership, the vision can only remain while other factors are disregarded. There is possiby much more flexibiity and elasticity in the capitalist system than is usually imagined by Socialists. As William Morris tells old John Ball, the "rascal hedge-priest," "Mastership hath many shifts" before it finally goes down and out.

If we were to venture an opinion, the course and procedure of the general strike with special reference to the British railroads and allied industries will follow something on this order.

General strikes will succeed one another intermittently, each as a settled policy of the workers in enforcing their demands. Some may fail, but from time to time they will grow more "general" and until the point is reached where the railroad business will return more powerful, and will wreat more concessions from the owners, practically no private profits to its owners. And when this point is reached, or the certainty of its being reached is plainly seen, then mastership will make its next shift. There will be two alternatives.

The first is literal, physical suppression, by the armed forces of the nation still under control of the capitalists, and greatly augmented for the purpose. This, however, for a multitude of reasons, is a most dangerous policy and much more "impossible" than the general strike. Instead of postponing social revolution, it rather accelerates its approach.

The other alternative, and the one by all means most likely to be adopted, is government ownership of the railroads, with the capitalists, of course, as owners of the government. This will undoubtedly be ushered in as "State Socialism." Laws will be passed constituting the railroad workers as direct servants of the State, and forbidding the general strike or any other kind of strike.

The prohibition will not have the desired effect. If attempted to be enforced, it merely throws capitalist society back on the first dangerous alternative policy we have mentioned. But it will give capitalism a breathing spell, and a chance to "spar for wind" for a while, which is the best it can expect. The general strike will still be utilized to assail the capitalist State and its property.

The final struggle will be a political one, for the capture of the State from the hands of the capitalists, and such capture will mean the transfer of capitalist State owned property to collective property and the establishment of industrial democracy, or Socialism.

But up to that point the general strike is undoubtedly here to stay. It has necessary work to perform, in hastening the death agonies of the capitalist system, and will only become "impossible" when its destined work is performed and an industrial society established that has no further us for it.

An "impossible" system can be logically assailed by an "impossible" method, and we are destined to watch a great many other seemingly "impossible" factors, as the general strike is declared to be, take a part in bringing about the abolition of an "impossible" system. In the passing of the panorama of social and industrial evolution before our eyes, we will behold many so-called impossible things becoming possible and things that were thought entirely "possible"—like capitalism, for instance—becoming impossible.

Both these terms are relative at most, and are used almost entirely to express a personal, individual opinion.

And it would be well for Socialists to bear in mind, in connection with this, when they hear the general strike declared an impossibility, that the same term is as yet applied by millions to Socialism itself.

Let Us Begin At Home.

Patriotic American hearts will probably swell with pride on reading the news that Turkey has asked us to put a stop to the atrocities in Tripoli. Turkey appealingly turns to us ,and asks us, in the interest of fair fighting, to prevent Italy from gouging, biting, scratching, disemboweling, mutilating, torturing, killing children, outraging women, rendering desert the few fertile spots in the neighborhood of Tripoli, and doing other things forbidden by the modern code of murder.

In other words, the Turk wishes us, and we are humane people, as everybody knows, to force Italy to do its murdering according to the latest scientific methods, and not in the manner of our universal daddies.

According to reports, Italy has acted in a particularly obnoxious way. Its soldiers have been merciless.

Those soldiers were and are in a state of semi-starvation. They are drawn from a people ever threatened with hunger. The strongest, best human being, a man or woman who in a religious sense would be termed a saint, will in the emergency of hopeless hunger turn and devour the more helpless other human beings.

We pride ourselves on the advance we have made. We look with scorn on the savage. We are horrified at the thought of cannibalism.

At basis, there is no difference between killing a man and eating him and killing and devouring those things on which he lived.

In pursuing the latter course we simply use a somewhat more refined method.

Italy is a hungry country, not because the land is not generous and productive, but because an utterly imbecile mode of production and ownership prevents the inhabitants from utilizing the land.

So Italy has been forced into a war with Turkey over the question of which country shall be permitted to gorge itself on Tripoli. It is like two savages, two animals, fighting over the body of a slain animal. Each is hungry. Each is desperately resolved to eat. And there is no incentive to courage equal to hunger.

So desperate is the fight that evidently both sides have descended to atrocities, and atrocities are a common heritage. The gangster of the far east or far west side of New York manifests it it another way. And the financial gangster or respected citizen or capitalist of monopolist or plutocrat works to the same result through accepted methods. The other gangster risks his own person in the violence he provokes—to make a living.

Now, Turkey is anxious that we, we free, enlightened American citizens, should exercise our great, known and abounding humanity in putting an end to the atrocities.

We should do so, but not until we somewhat burnish up our own persona reputations.

This week commences the trial of Harris and Blanck, proprietors of the Triangle Waist Factory. They are accused of having been guilty of the burning to death, under most horrible conditions, of 145 human beings, most of them young women.

They did not slaughter them in an open, declared war. They did it in a class war, in which the eminent firm of shirtwaist manufacturers were in search of profit and the workers were trying to earn a living.

We kill in this country every year more workers than there will be soldiers die in the Italian expedition to Tripoli. We kill them ruthlessly, because our capitalist class is in search of profits. Both Italians and Turks are accused of ruthlessly torturing, slaughtering and maiming. They are at war.

But in our times of peace, through insanitary tenements, we kill more people than will be killed in this war. In doing that we seek nothing more noble than the Italian is seeking in Tripoli.

On our railroads we annually slaughter thousands of persons.

Did ever Italian or Turk mangle a human being the way a train mangles a human being? No. And we mangle them for the same reason. It is usually a swift, merciful death. But most of it is needless.

Then there is the matter of torture. There will not be a human being die in the present war who will go through the hell of agony that is endured by an entombed miner in this country. Most miners are caught because the companies for which they work and for which they produce profits wish to extract the greatest possible amount of profit in the shortest time possible.

Evidently women and children have been slain by both Turks and Italians. The thought of it is horribly revolting.

But they haven't killed, nor have they tortured, as many women and children as we constantly do in industry. Look at the number of little children in the mills of this country, the women in industries that meet quick death. But we do it for profit. Profit means merely a superabundant supply of the things necessary to sustain life. Turkey and Italy are fighting for nothing more.

So it is manifestly just that this country should be called upon as a great, humane, just and civilized nation in intervene.

There are so few things left at home to which we might devote our attention.

And in asking us to intervene, the Turk shows that he is still unspeakable, especially in his sarcasm.

News of the Labor World

BY JAMES HENDERSON.

LYRIC THEATRE SIGNS.

We are in receipt of good news from our friend Frank Crayne to the effect that the Musicians Union has been successful in placing Union Musicians at the Lyric Theatre. This is a good starter and we hope the workers will show their appreciation by patronizing the Lyric Theatre.

PLUMBERS AND STEAMFITTERS' UNION.

The members are at work measuring up the situation in Columbus and the vicinity. The working agreement existing between the Masters and the Men has proven the fact that no breach of confidence has existed. This is the result of having a united body of earnest workers and above all a business representative that has the confidence of all concerned.

COLUMBUS FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Through the efforts of Arthur Leavitt and his fellow trustees and the custodian Jake Stozel, the whole top floor will be leased for a year or more. We appreciate the efforts of those responsible for this venture.

FAMILY QUARRELS.

Something is wrong with the Trade Unionists and the Socialists. Its a regretable fact because at this day and age we should be practicing the spirit of class solidarity.

In the City of Columbus we have passed through an era of separations, aberations and commiseration and yet we exist today on the industrial and political field as separate organizations.

Our source of consolation lies in the fact that when the master class array themselves against us, then and there the workers unite. We have our disagreements on policies of preceedure, but we are united on the principle of the class struggle.

Scowls can never win any man or woman to the common cause.

A smile in the midst of sadness sometimes brings gladness.

If the argumentation of any ism cannot be supported by logic; if the principles we strive to expound call for personalities, prejudices and appeals to passion we might just as well try to march to the sun as to continue our journey to the seat of honest manhood. Such practices are disgusting and degrading when they arise in our own camps.

FROM COLUMBUS TO LOS ANGELES.

Who was it that secured the $10,000 tip offered by Detective Burns if somebody could be indicted for the "Times" explosion?

Why did the keys of John J. McNamara fail to fit the basement of the American Central Life Building?

Why did the piano box full of dynamite, recorded by the "Indianapolis News," dwindle to nine sticks at Jones' barn?

Judge Remster declared by implication in another decision that officers by night took John J. McNamara illegally, at their own peril, and they had no right thus to do by law.

Why did Burns, knowing McManigal's confession, pass by a great quantity of dynamite and chase out to Jones' barn for nine sticks, and then race back for a grandstand play and feign discovery in the basement?

Why did Burns find the greater amount of dynamite at McManigal's, in Ohio, two days after John J. McNamara's arrest and then telegraph to Hyland?

Why did Ortie McManigal make a ninety-page confession—so-called—several weeks ago, and now makes a so-called new confession? And why was Ortie arrested in Chicago last January for stealing four wagon loads of brass?

Burns declared at Indianapolis and Tiffin, Ohio, that the books of John J. McNamara would reveal receipts for money paid to the dynamiters, and Prosecutor Baker and two experts made Burns a liar.

Governor Gooding, of Idaho, declared "these men (Heywood, Moyer and Pettibone) will never leave the State alive," and the courts proved that Harry Orchard and the Governor were a pair of liars.

PRESIDENT JOHNSTON COMING TO COLUMBUS.

President Elect Johnston is coming to Ohio soon after the first of the year. The Machinists expect to make this a banner event. So get ready to meet one of the most progressive men in the American labor movement.

NEWS FOR RAILROADERS.

The Hocking Valley Railroad has begun to retrench on the bread cupboard. It is their intention to abolish the dispatchers office in Columbus and concentrate the directing power at Logan, Ohio. This will mean the reducing of the Nelsonville train dispatchers to operators. This reduction of the workers always follows the present system of the large railroad systems swallowing up the small. The Chesapeake and Ohio railroad is the power behind the throne. From their infancy they began to build up their system with the aid of the Court, at the expense of the now penniless stockholders. In the State of Virginia many a citizen of that state was ruined by the Courts ruling in favor of the corporate interests instead of the people. And so in the State of Ohio where we have an attorney general who claims to be an individualist and yet with the Valentine law behind him in his own State, and the Sherman anti-trust law for interstate proceedings he fails to enforce the law and protect the individual who has sunk their hard earned savings in Hocking Valley Railroad stocks. If the attorney general of Ohio believes in the law of indiviual rights, why does he allow the corporate interests from a foreign State to ruin the citizens of his own State?

One of the employes of the Hocking Valley Railroad shops was called onto the carpet by the Master Mechanic. When confronted with this august authority the worker was informed that there had been two charges placed against him. The first was to the effect that he was an agitator. Second that he was guilty of the heinous offense of eating his lunch in a neighboring saloon. He was informed that he was a good mechanic, and a hard worker, but the officials would not stand for his eating his meals at a saloon. This is the same gang that talked about the coming Men and Religion Movement. Needless to say the worker will vote here, then; for a locality where there are not so many wolves in sheep clothing.

At the present time there appears to be a great deal of agitation in regard to the protection of the lives of the traveling public. We would suggest that the interstate officials investigate the industrial conditions of the Union station switch tenders. These workers have the lives of the passengers in their hands daily. They work long hours in all weathers and are the poorest paid men in the railroad service. It is time that something was done for these men because it means the protection of life. Consider what it means to the man's system for a man to handle 125 passenger trains a day. They ought to have an eight-hour day like the rest of the railroad workers.

Considering that the majority of the road men are paid by the mile, it might be well for some of the distance posts to be remeasured. Every few inches short, counts for something to the workers' pay envelope at the end of the year. If it is lawful for citizens to enact fraudulent weights and measures laws, it ought to be feasible to have the Federal Officials have the right to see that the railroad miles are not really one mile and a quarter.

The railroad Federations are gaining ground every day. It is predicted that in a few years all the agreements will be signed up on the same day. This spirit of cheap dignity is the only thing in the way at the present time. Yet there is hope for even the great and holy disciples of the B. L. of E. are moving up into the progressive ranks.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Order of Railroad Conductors on the Harriman lines in Texas have voted to go on strike with the shop men. Notice has been served on the railroad officials. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and the Order of Railroad Telegraphers are now voting on the same proposition, and it is reported that all of these organizations will join with the shop men unless the demands are met by the company. It is rumored that the Brotherhoods contemplate a federation similar to the shop crafts and are prepared to ask the company to recognize the Trainmen's Federation in making new agreements, to replace those which expire shortly. Should this combination be put in effect it would mean the complete unanimity of both shop and operating forces.

It is stated that the shop employes of the Rock Island Railroad are voting overwhelmingly in favor of the strike. The point at issue is an increase in wages. The management of the Rock Island has recognized the System Federation and has granted working rules that are satisfactory to all the unions, but has refused to grant any advance in wages, the demand being for a 10 per cent incrase.

The general committee of the Locomotive Engineers on the Norfolk and Western have presented a higher wage scale and a new code of rules. Other organizations have gained higher wages, but the engineers waited until all the other adjustments had been made, but now ask that their wages be increased.

Boiler Makers and Helpers to the number of 1,000 employed in the boiler and tank shops of the American Locomotive plant in this city have walked out. The difficulty is caused on account of the American Locomotive company attempting to do repair work for the New York Central, on which road a strike has been in force since last February.

BRIEF NEWS.

Prepare for an advance in the price of oil and coal because Morgan and Rockefeller are to finance the Men and Religion fiasco.

Why is it that the Reverend Charles Stelzel as a member of the Machinists Union continues to draw a retainer fee from the Rat BALDWIN LOCOMOTIVE WORKS? This company has just CRUSHED ITS WORKERS IN A NINE MONTHS' STRIKE. Where were YOU, Brother Stelzle, during the strike? Why out organizing the MEN and RELIGION HOODWINKERY CONSPIRACY?

Of interest to the Democratic-Republicans; A petrified prehistoric snail embedded in the heart of a large piece of blue lias stone, was discovered a few days ago by quarrymen working at Cheddar Cliffs, Wales, upon some large boulders of stone which were displaced in the landslide which occurred some years ago. The discovery is distinctly interesting to the geologists on account of the great age of the find as, situated upon a very low strata, it must be millions of years since the snail lived.

This will give some people an excuse for being owned by the OLD PARTIES.

George Will, a journeyman painter of Buffalo, was arraigned in the city court on a charge of non-support by his wife.

He pleaded guilty to the charges, but at the same time he presented two good causes:

First, that he was the father of sixteen children.

Second, that his wife weighed two hundred and fifty pounds.

He was discharged.

Secretary-Treasurer of the Brewery Workers' Union forwarded $1,307.90 to the headquarters of the A. F. of L. for the McNamara Defense Fund. The Brewers are continuing to organize everything around the breweries all over the country. And the organization is growing stronger each year.

What about that UNION LABEL and the Retail Clerks' Card?

HATS OFF TO JIMMY HARBARGER.

In the midst of this political turmoil there is cause for rejoicing. Organized labor has elected a true champion in the person of James Harbarger as a delegate to the Ohio Constitutional Convention.

No man has suffered for the cause of common humanity more than our honored brother. Yet he was never known to complain of his lot. For honesty of person we esteem the brother and his triumph speaks well for those who have confidence in his ability and integrity.

Let it be the duty of every noble-hearted citizen to have confidence in the work of our old friend and brother, James Harbarger.

No man is more worthy of this esteemed honor. Congratulations, Jim.

JIM HENDERSON.

THE VOICE OF LABOR AT FEDERATION HALL.

145 Molders' Union met for the regular meeting. Brother Jimmy Harbarger received the congratulations of his fellow members. The trade reports much activity in the way of organization over the state.

The Allied Printing Trades Council met in regular session. Many matters of importance came before the body. The affiliated printing trades appeal for the support of the Allied Printing Trades label.

The Plasterers' Union held an interesting meeting. By the reports of their journal the trade is increasing, wages over the state.

Bookbinders are preparing for the coming new year.

Cigar makers are pushing their label and working in the interest of other craft labels.

The tailors have their busy season and there are some of the bosses who realize that the open shop proposition is not what they expected. It will not be long before the master tailors will have a new agreement with their workmen.

The barbers are still increasing their membership and the bosses appear to be satisfied with the results.

The Interurban Street Car Men's Union held their regular meeting. The convention proceedings were part of the discussion and the results apparently in accord with the membership. These men are ever alert to the railroad situation and nothing can daunt their courage.

Leather workers are still active against the prison labor crime. At the present time there is a move on foot to place a line of union label harness goods in every city in the state.

The Federation of Labor meets November 13th. At this meeting matters of importance will come before the body concerning the increase of the per capital tax and the taking up of the proposition to appoint a business agent. You are earnestly invited to be present at this meeting. The big hall has been rented and the outlook is good for the coming year.

THE WHEEZLE HAS WHEEZED.

John Joyce, the dictator of the destinies of mankind, has spoken and this time it concerns the labor problem, a subject that the gentleman is as well acquainted with as a pig is with laughter. This is the man who was responsible for the defeat of one of the most honest men that ever sat in the city council, and it was not through any of his efforts that the councilman-at-large, Albert Rhinehard, was elected, but this time the worker put one over the shirker.

Again the ponderous voice lifts itself above those on whose shoulder it rides in ease and luxury to denounce the press because it spoke the truth. Because it refused to be bridled and spurred by dozing snails. Accept consolation in this statement. Had the newspapers turned their guns on their critics, some one would have left town. The men who fear the publicity of the press, the men who would dare dim the public searchlight, should never put clean underclothes on sinful consciehce. Hats off to the Columbus newspapers. If this Republic stands for liberty, it must have a freen press.

2,000,000 VOTES FOR SOCIALIST IN 1912.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 8.—Congressman Victor L. Berger predicted today that the Socialists will poll 2,000,000 votes in 1912, based on gains of the party in yesterday's elections. His opinion on the election results is summed up in the following statement, which he wrote for the United Press:

By Congressman Victor L. Berger.

"I expected it. The working class all over the country is beginning to wake up. They are beginning to see the difference between mere reform parties and the Socialists. The so-called reform parties promise remedial measures in order to maintain the capitalist system, with all its corruption, misery and other evils. The Socialists have formed a party in order to abolish the capitalist system with all its crookedness, tyranny and oppression.

"Lately I have spent weeks in the East and two weeks in the far West, and I could judge by personal experience how the people look to this message. Almost everywhere the size of the audience was limited only by the capacity of the hall.

"In 1892 the Socialists went into the national election for the first time and polled 20,000 votes. I predict 2,000,000 votes in 1912, 100 times as many as we had 20 years ago. The workers with brain and brawn are beginning to wake up and the gates of hell shall not prevail against them."

"THY KINGDOM COME."

By Annie Minturn.

Millions of prayers are offered up daily to the throne of God asking Him that His kingdom may come to earth, and yet, few of these many millions who pray this prayer so fervently and repeatedly, direct their efforts afterwards to the intelligent work of bringing about the answer. They fold their hands and look expectantly for the coming of this kingdom among them to descend in some mystic form of spiritual manna, without any effort on their part, and without their first having understood and accepted the only means whereby it is possible for this kingdom to come; the means of the complete acceptance and strict guidance of the divine law of justice. Yet, here again, is told the old story of the age old instinct of man to avoid effort, if possible. It the same spirit that has brought our industrial conditions to the deplorable state under which we groan in hopeless toils today. It may be called progress; it is the crystallization of laziness. It is the marrow of the doctrine of privilege, and the essence of the sin of monopoly. It is the finger of the lust for gain that has written in searing flame upon our fair land the words: protective tariff, franchise, mining grants, railway corporations, land monopolies, subsidies, reciprocity, unjust taxations, and where these words have burned, men no longer reflect the image in whose likeness they were made, but the distorted visage that greed malforms. It is the spirit of the clamoring few that has battled and triumphed and now stand supreme in the purple, and they stand upon the shoulders of the burdened. And day by day this purple takes unto itself an added luster of beauty, while the burdened ones bend lower beneath their weight, becomes more silent in the dumb torpor of their wretchedness, and farther and farther away from the comforts of this kingdom, despite the fruitless efforts of the praying millions.

The kingdom of God is the reign of justice among men, nothing more, nothing less. Why should God send this kingdom to earth because of vain idle repetitions, when the answer to the prayer is within ourselves? Are we not told that the kingdom of God is within us? And again, are we not told that faith without works is dead? If we believe in the coming of the kingdom, let us add the labor of our hands to that of our faith, and tomorrow we will realize the blessing. We all want the coming of the kingdom, but it can never be established among a divided people, a people part bond, part free. It is not love, it is not sympathy, it is not charity that will bring about the coming of the kingdom. It is justice, simple justice; the justice that permits no special privileges, that does not allow one to prosper in wrong at the expense of another, that gives and takes evenly, that lives and lets live, that envies not, that hinders not, that wrongs not, that only is just and true and right. And until men realize and live this justice every day toward every human being, their prayer for the coming of the kingdom will go unanswered.

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you," "these things" are food and shelter and clothing. We cannot all have them until we are all just to each other, when we have them, the kingdom of God is already here.

CIVILIZATION AND THE POSITION OF WOMEN.

By Ella June Purcell.

It has been said that the progress of civilization may be measured by the position of women. In those countries where the mothers and the wives are held in most respect, society or government is the purest and most uplifted. In the early days of history when barbarism was at its height women were not only political but social slaves. As intelligence and culture increased the place of women was gradually raised. In this day of progress we note that it is the unvarying rule that in the countries where the fires of civilization still burn low the women are degraded and debased.

We who live in the 20th century in looking back over the barbaric conditions from which the Anglo-Saxon people have emerged, may delude ourselves into believing that we have now achieved a perfect state of civilization. How vain the thought! Society is not yet built on a foundation that is logical, lasting or just.

Much of the crime, the sin, the sorrow and the trouble of the world at the present time is due

It is far from our belief to to our semi-civilization. The perfect civilization will be free of them. What we term our modern civilization will seem to our not far distant descendants as wild a barbarism as seemed the Teutonic tribes to Caesar. A society composed of men and women is unstable, illogical and imperfect when its foundation rests upon one half of its component parts—men. The balance is not perfect—a structure of men and women cannot rest securely upon a recognized basis of men only. The ideal state must be built upon a foundation of educated and equal beings—both male and female.

Lincoln said: "No nation can exist half free and half slave." This principle is as true today as in the days of him who said it. No nation composed of citizens one half represented and one half not represented, one half rulers and one half ruled, one half free men and one half slave women can permanently exist.

It is far from our belief to maintain that the political recognition of women as the equal of men would immediately work a perfection in civilization. But the raising of the position of women would raise the quality of the world's civilization. Whatever else is necessary in the perfect state, the political enfranchisement of women is also necessary. Economic and social security are impossible without complete political freedom.

Within the last decade especially, this country has been passing through a social revolution, the climax of which has probably not yet been reached. We refer to the increase of divorce. Men of religion, students of social conditions, political reformers have studied the problem. They have hunted for causes, they have discussed the probable effects. But the rate of divorce has continued to increase to a surprising and alarming degree.

To a large extent divorce is due to economic causes which only Socialism can remove.

Yet after all why expect perfection in the home when we have corruption in the government?

Why expect a man and a woman to live harmoniously together when their interests are dissimilar? When the woman knows little of political affairs and cares less, because she is not recognized as intelligent enough to vote? How can knowledge and ignorance, activity and dependence live peaceably together?

Men and women should be equally interested in the government and the laws under which they live. Each should accept a share of the responsibilities of the home and of the nation. Separation of interests means separation of sympathies; means difference in ideals, means divorce.

Yes, disturbing economic conditions are frequently responsible for broken homes. But underneath the economic problem lies the larger problem of universal political freedom the recognition of woman as the equal of man, his helper, friend and comrade in all lines of work and achievements.

THE STEEL DEMON.

By Hugh McGee.

The twentieth century has introduced a new factor into human society, a new force, a new power, a new producer, a new maker and builder which has changed conditions throughout the entire world.

This new thing is the only perfect creation in the world. It is not human, it is not a living thing, it does not eat or drink or sleep, it only works, it is made of steel and iron and it will live forever.

This new thing has for nearly one hundred years been taking the "jobs" of men and women and doing the work that they were doing, and tomorrow newer machines will throw more men and women out of "jobs" and into a state of starvation.

The use of machines and machinery has very nearly done away with the need of human labor. So true is this, that for a man to be unable to find any work to do, does not seem strange to anyone.

The working men and women, today, are in reality worse off than the peasants and slaves of Europe ever were, for the reason that before the coming of machines and machinery, the kings, queens and Morgans of those days needed them to do all the work, and so they did not permit the workers to die of sickness and starvation, if it were possible to save them.

But since machines and machinery do so much of the work today, it does not matter what happens to the twentieth century wage slaves.

Today the men and women who have been displaced by the perfect machines and complex machinery are becoming tramps or criminals, and the women are turning to prostitution for food and shelter.

When a twentieth century wage slave is "fired" he begins at once to starve, and while he looks for a new master, the bloodhounds of the master class are continually at his heels ready to pounce upon him for being a vagrant or tramp, so as to pluck some blood-money from him in the jails and courts which have always provided an easy living for the watch-dog of the masters.

The Socialists demand that the public—the collectivity—claim the machines and machinery of production and distribution, as the common property of all the people, to be used, now and forever, for the needs of all the people, and not for the profit of a few men who have neither conceived nor created them, but only own them.

The continued private ownership of machines and machinery by a few men, means that unemployment will increase, that poverty will increase, that disease will increase, that the few rich will become richer and the many poor will become poorer.

Crime, poverty, disease, unemployment, prostitution, white-slavery and child-labor is increasing day by day.

Do you want it to continue?

COLD SNAP FINDS THOUSANDS OUT OF WORK.

Charitable Ifstitutions All Over the Country Are Busy Answering Calls of Poor.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—There is little indication of abatement of the cold wave and blizzardy conditions which has covered a large part of the Central West states from the Canadian line to the Gulf of Mexica.

Fruit and other crops have been seriously damaged in many sections, and untold suffering has been caused by the early arrival of winter.

Thousands of poor in Chicago were aided with food, warm clothing and coal by the county and charitable organizations again today.

Thousands Out of Work.

The cold spell has revealed thousands of men out of work here, and the county agent today estimated that calls upon the county for aid by the poor would be 50 per cent. greater this year than previous years.

Severe damage to the late apple and pear crop, which is not yet completely harvested, was caused by the cold in Michigan and northern Indiana.

Eighteen inches of snow blanketed part of this territory, crippling interurban railway service.

Huron, S. D., had zero weather and the temperature was below freezing at many other points.

COLD NIPS NEW YORK.

Municipal Lodging Houses Have First Rush of the Season.

New York, Nov. 3.—New York awoke today to find a real cold wave gripping the city, the thermometer at 8 o'clock registering 35 degrees.

A nipping northwest wind added to the discomfort but the snowstorm which swept eastward had let the metropolis off with a light flurry yesterday afternoon and keen, clear weather prevailed.

The same conditions were predicted for tonight and tomorrow by the official forecaster.

The municipal lodging houses and other institutions caring for the homeless had their first rush of the cold weather season and furnished quarters for hundreds of unfortunate men and women.

Northern Texas Is Covered.

Northern Texas is covered with snow, a remarkable condition for this time of the year.

CATHOLICS DON'T TAKE POSITION ON SOCIALISM

Joshua Wanhope Draws Statement from Bishop; Replies to "Charges."

(Special to Daily Socialist.)

New York, Oct. 30.—Joshua Wanhope, associate editor of the New York Call, addressed 1,000 persons late Wednesday night in the City Hall at Syracuse, N. Y., in reply to the charges of the Syracuse labor politicians that he had turned the recent McNamara protest meeting in that city into a propaganda meeting, and had been guilty of blasphemy and sacrilege and atheism in making a disrespectful allusion to Noah's ark and in referring to a proposed revival movement as being financed by J. Pierpont Morgan.

Catholic Bishop Replies.

The major portion of the audience was made up of union men, and when Wanhope finished his address he was cheered to the echo.

The Roman Catholic bishop of the diocese, Bishop Ludden, was asked to be present and to partake in the discussion. The bishop declined the invitation, stating that illness prevented.

Bishop Ludden gave out a statement, however, which read:

"Officially the Catholic church has taken no stand for or against Socialism, nor will it. I am, however, in no position to talk on the subject, as I know nothing about Socialism.

"I do not know what the end is that Socialism desires. The Socialists must work out their own salvation. The church takes no cognizance of it nor does it take a stand in the matter any more than it does on politics or any social movement."

Wanhope Scores Fakers.

Wanhope declares he had no intention of offending the religiously inclined, and scored labor politicians.

LOS ANGELES EXPRESS "MENTIONS" OTIS.

The following is from the Los Angeles Express:

"Otis doesn't represent the sentiment or convictions of Los Angeles on any question. The decent men and women of this city repudiated him long ago. His sordid newspaper lost all its influence when it flung away such character as it had.

"Politically, it betrayed the people to the Southern Pacific railroad, and when absoute knowledge of the betrayal came home to public conscience, Otis became a negligible factor, utterly without influence.

"Ethically, his journal is conducted on the moral plane of the Police Gazette, delighting in salacious stories and with morbid depravity featuring all that is vile and lustful and indecent. It has given its support to scoundrels who sold protection to vice and is today the champion of the brothel.

"Without principles, without sense of honor or consciousness of shame, without character, without good reputation, wanton, crooked, morally corrupt—that is the Times. What wonder that honorable men despise it and decent women scorn it!

"Ever lying about and misrepresenting labor, the Times has sought to create a sentiment behind which it could bulwark itself and from which it could milk a money profit.

"Did organized labor hold a picnic! Behold Times cartoons representing their wives and daughters and sisters as wantons, themselves as drunkards. Behold printed accompanying descriptions so obscene as to approach the verge of public indecency.

"Dynamite! Otis has been flinging dynamite around this town for years. No man's reputation has been safe when exposed to the assaults of his freakish malignity.

"No institution, not even the public school system, has been immune from his attacks, inspired by his jaundiced pique, preposterous self-love or distempered vanity. He has rested on the town like a curse."

CANADIAN MAIL CARRIERS STRIKE.

Regina, Sask.—The clerks and mail carriers of this city are on strike, although these men are attached to no organization of labor, or otherwise. The strike came as a result of oppressive conditions. The men are overworked, each man doing the work of at least two, and wages are extremely low, opportunities for advancement having been carefully eliminated by the officials. It is reported that there is an unrest almost reaching rebellion among all the Canadian postoffice employes.

Germany's Trade Empire.

Germany is engaged in a career of world exploitation. In South America, Africa, the Far East, in Asia Minor, and all the distant islands and continents of the seven seas, German merchants and German money are sleeplessly at work creating "interests" for German warships to guard. The activity of these Teutonic pioneer knights is as varied as finance and commerce themselves. They have invaded every avenue of human venture. They dominate the transportation and electric power situation in great capitals like Buenos Ayres. They monopolize the coffee plantations of Central America, control mines and railways of a great Chinese province, work tobacco plantations in Sumatra, rubber plantations in the Kongo, cotton plantations in Egypt, and harness waterfalls in the heart of Africa.

A COMICAL SITUATION.

Juliana had to go to the village store two miles away; so she put the bridle and saddle on old Beck and started. When she was three quarters of a mile from home she stopped to get her friend Elsie to go along for company. These two girls were each thirteen years old and both could ride old Beck very nicely, one behind the other.

It was mid-winter and very muddy, but the girls never thought old Beck might find them a burden in the deep sticky mud. The village was reached in safety, Juliana did her buying, and both girls again got on old Beck to return, Juliana in the saddle and Elsie behind on a small rug.

The girls chatted gaily, never giving the poor, tired horse a thought, and when within sight of Elsie's home is one of the very muddiest, stickiest parts of the road, old Beck got stuck and couldn't get her right hind leg out of the mud. She gave one big pull which so upset the girls' equilibrium that before Elsie knew it she had turned a somersault and was sitting flat in the mud. Juliana being in the saddle found her head down and her feet up, and she was yelling at the top of her voice, "Push me up, push me up!" Elsie jumped up quickly and righted Juliana, and then both girls had a hearty laugh.

As Elsie was so near home, she wouldn't risk getting on poor, faithful old Beck again; so she climbed the fence and walked inside the field. Both girls giggled and laughed all the way home, and many times afterwards they found amusement in thinking about the way old Beck upset them.

The Socialist Party and the Government of Cities.

By Frank Bohn.
In The International Review for November

A nation governed by its profit seekers is a nation accursed. Such a one cannot produce a civilization. It has what "art" it buys. It develops whatever science it needs in its business. Its temples are filled with money changers. Its common schools are devoted to turning out wealth producers. Its higher institutions of learning are supposed to furnish such information as each of the profit grabbers thinks his son or daughter requires in order to hold and increase his or her "fortune."

A shop-keeper's society, from the very nature of its life and form, must develop large cities. In Europe two influences have worked to make these great modern urban communities civilized at least in their outward aspects. By far the most important of these has been the fact that the medieval towns, the progenators of the modern cities, were ruled by their guilds. The government of the medieval town was an entity. It had an existence apart from the overshadowing power of the monarchial state. This freedom from interference, with its resultant social responsibility, formed the basis for the political governments of the cities of modern Europe.

The second factor in the life of the European cities which has been absent in America has been, on the one hand, the socialising power of the European working class, and on the other, that of the aristocracy. A nation ruled by its profit takers is a nation accursed, because, while the brutal and vulgar capitalist leeches exploit the producing class more intensely that do the aristocrats, they have absolutely nothing to give to society in return. Each particular sponge squats beside the others and soaks up what it can until the currents of social progress are choked and slimy.

The corruption of municipal government in America needs no describing here. The exposures of the past ten years have filled the magazines with facts and figures a little worse, to be sure, than was previously surmised. But the American working people have always rightly despised the city governments. The water hose would not put out the fire. Epidemics of preventable diseases have raged. Public buildings have fallen to pieces before they were completed. The tribe of politicians, from those who rule the smallest towns up to the organized gangs in control of Chicago and New York, have probably been, during the past generation, the most contemptible class of social parasites on the face of the earth.

As Socialists, we have not expected much from the American capitalists; but in the government of the cities and states we see them at their worst. Nationally, they have been forced to maintain a Federal government whose power the world would respect. In the government of cities, however, the wolfish pack has shown that in any case it will do as little as is possible. Their life business is to gobble up whatever they can lay their claws upon. Hence, why bother the government of cities when a little graft induces some one else to bother? Graft is that portion of the workers' product stolen in the industries which the capitalist gives to his political lackeys. A political grafter is no worse than his master, the capitalist.

In Europe as the working class becomes conscious of its historical mission it finds the cities well organized politically. It realizes that much of a social and civilizing character has been accomplished. Give one enough to live upon without work for a period of time and Paris, Vienna, Munich and Florence are abiding places fit for civilized human beings. The very worst that can be said about our ignorant and greasy plutocrats is that after they have cut the workers of Chicago and Pittsburg to the bone in the shops and debauched their municipal government, they run off to some European capital, there to make the very name "American" a by-word for all that is aplish and indecent.

So, as regards the government of cities, the working class in America comes upon the stage of affairs to find that it has to begin at the very beginning. Socially almost nothing has been accomplished really worth while. Great industry there is, and this, the foundation of working class growth, must be the motive force of all our social progress. During the period of the social revolution in America the workers must perform a double task. They must first revolutionize the government of industry and then proceed to develop the means of social life and culture.

A CRUCIAL PERIOD IN THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

During the past eighteen months the Socialist party has captured the governments of Milwaukee, Butte, Berkeley, Flint and a number of smaller towns. Needless to say, the officials elected by the party have almost universally given entire satisfaction to their comrades by the earnestness and integrity with which they have laid hold of their Herculean tasks. The coming November election will witness numerous other victories. Half a dozen cities and towns in Ohio alone, probably including Columbus, will be swept along with the tide of Socialist progress. Yet amid all the joys of victories past and to come thoughtful comrades find cause for very serious alarm.

Danger does not spring from a lack of ideals in the Socialist party. Its great mission in every way is quite clearly understood. The danger arises from a blunder common, indeed, to capitalist politicians, but which should threaten neither the integrity nor the progressive development of our party. Almost everywhere, our comrades are in the habit of making large pre-election promises, which, their officials having been elected, they are absolutely incapable of fulfilling. If the working class is not to lose the faith of our movement which they are so rapidly developing we must call a halt and take stock of our political possibilities.

A very common error is to promise that "as soon as the Socialist candidates are in office we shall have public ownership of public utilities." For instance, in the campaign which won, Milwaukee, our comrades emphasized their intention of building a municipal electric light plant. A year and a half has now passed and but six months remain to the first Socialist administration in Milwaukee. However, the workers of that city are still reading the Social Democratic Herald by the light of Standard oil at twelve cents per.

We shall not here go into effect of public ownership of public utilities upon the working class. This has been often enough threshed over for the understanding of even the most heedless social reformer in the ranks of the Socialist party. In Johannesburg, South Africa, the city government owns every social utility in sight, except the gold mines, yet the workers' standard of living has not been raised an iota. They are simply exploited so much the more fiercely in the mines. If the government of the city of Milwaukee, for instance, should furnish to the workers all the necessities of life except clothing, they would get enough wages to purchase clothes and no more. But to return to the pre-election promises. It is only natural for the party nominee to hopefully describe what he intends to do. Now what can he do and what can he not do in an American city?

The Nature of American City Government.

A Socialist city government will do exactly as much as the capitalist government of the State will permit it to do. In Milwaukee the Socialists cannot fulfil their promise of an electric light plant, because the government of the State of Wisconsin will not permit it. The tax rate is limited. The debt limit is fixed. Above all, the city charter indicates just what the city can and what it cannot do. This charter is a law of the State. So long as a state is ruled by the Democratic and Republican parties we can easily foresee the limitations of a Socialist city administration. A reform administration might secure the support of a reform state government. As long as the states are capitalist ruled, home rule for cities is a reform to be won, not by the Socialist movement, to which capitalism is opposed, but by a reform movement to which it is friendly. All this is so obvious as to require neither proof nor emphasis.

In most states the farming population is still proportionately so large as to make the capture of the state governments by the Socialist party quite impossible during the ten years to come. There are a few Western States, such as Montana, Nevada, California and a few Eastern States, among them Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Pennsylvania, which may soon be carried by the Socialist party; but we shall probably be unable even during the next fifteen years to capture half of the forty-five state governments. So the cities which fall into our hands will find their governments hemmed in, nailed down and prevented from being of large use to the working class. [illegible] of wisdom as well as of honesty [illegible] to the working class NOW

If the Socialist party in [illegible] has devoted more time to teaching sound Socialist economics and the public law of the United States and less to constructing municipal platforms and programs out of cobwebs, the thoughtful portion of the party membership could face the immediate future of our movement with stronger hearts.

We make sky-scraping Socialist speeches on the subject of "City planning" and then, when the street cleaning department in a Socialist governed city wants a new wheel for the water wagon it is forced to borrow one from the hose cart. Let us repeat the facts over and over to ourselves and to the working class until all have learned them by heart and then we may fear no evil consequences of our "victories." Home rule for the cities should have been won by the capitalist reform party a generation ago. As it was not then accomplished it is now too late to expect much from the immediate future. We will do what the capitalists permit us to do and no more. If a Socialist city government becomes stubborn what will happen? Suppose it makes use of the police force to the injury of the property interest in time of a general strike, as of course it would do, the capitalist government of the state would bind and gag that city administration within twenty-four hours.

Immediately following the Milwaukee victory I wrote a series of articles for the New York Call, from one of which the following quotation is taken:

"In 1900 'Golden Rule Jones' became mayor of Toledo. Jones was an excellent fellow—a sort of utopian Socialist. He knew little of Marx, Engels and Kautsky, but he swore by the Bible, Walt Whitman and Bellamy's 'Looking Backward.' He did his utmost during his six years in office, to fight the fight of the working class. But after his first term his wings were clipped. Every power of the executive was taken from him by the state legislature and lodged elsewhere in the municipal government of Toledo. Finally the poor fellow was permitted to do nothing but act as a sort of justice of the peace and dismiss drunks and street women without fines. To perform this service the working people elected him term after term. When the good man died the government of the city of Toledo was again made to assume its normal form by the Republican state legislature.

"Some years ago war broke out between Senator Quay's Republican legislature and the Democratic machine which ruled the city of Pittsburg. The legislature ended the matter by passing a statute abolishing the office of mayor of Pittsburg and practically placing the city government in the hands of appointees of the Republican mayor. (A few months ago this same trick was again worked upin the poor defenseless politicians of Hell's capital city.)

"Just one more example, and this not the case of the destruction of a weak and statute-created municipal government by a state legislature. In 1894 was fought the Great American Railway Union Strike. The 'sovereign' state of Illinois had as its governor a genuine Democrat of the radical school, Altgeld. He refused to call out the state militia to shoot the strikers. The Constitution of the United States distinctly provides that the President can send federal troops to quell a state only when requested to do so by the governor of the state. But contrary to the expressed wish of the governor of the state of Illinois, President Cleveland sent regular troops into the city of Chicago 'to preserve order.' A distinguished Republican newspaper at the time, one which had bitterly fought Cleveland throughout his whole career, congratulated him for 'driving a crowbar through the rotting coffin of state's rights.'

"If a Socialist working class government succeeds in being a "good," "peaceable," "orderly" affair, doing exactly what reform governments do whenever they periodically assume the reins of power, it will be let alone by the state; and likewise a Socialist government of a state, for similar reasons, will not be assailed by the federal government.

"But woe be unto a Socialist administration if it use the police and local militia against the capitalists in case of a strike. In the Colorado labor war of 1894 a sympathizer of the Western Federation of Miners was serving in the capacity of county sheriff. He took the side of the miners. The Citizen's Union appeared at his door one night, seized him and dragged him off to a dark room. There they tied a rope around his neck. A pen was handed him. A dark lantern flecked a spot of light at the bottom of a sheet of paper. "Sign here," sounded the guttural voice of the leader of the citizens' posse. It was a sheriff's resignation. He signed."

Municipal political campaigns furnish the greatest possible opportunity for Socialist agitation and education. The organizations built up during these campaigns can later elect members to the state legislature. A proportion of perhaps one-third of Socialist members in a legislature can do much to prevent the use of the state government against the working class. The election of the Socialist administration in Milwaukee was probably the greatest single piece of Socialist propaganda work ever accomplished in this country. Furthermore, a Socialist city administration can undoubtedly advance the cause of public health. It can develop the public school system. That is, it can do some of the things which reform administrations should have done a generation ago. Beyond this, the great mission of our Socialist city office holders is to go in, do the best they can, and then come out on the city hall steps and tell the working class what they can NOT do and why.

Fortunate indeed for those comrades, who, having been elected to municipal offices, are sufficiently discreet to go into the city hall with heads bowed and mouths closed. To bring capitalism to its knees—that will take sterner measures than we have here under discussion.

SOCIALISTS CAUSE SURPRISE.

Their Increased Vote Sets the Politicians to Thinking.

Although Socialists are disappointed in their showing, many outside their political faith are surprised at the fact that the new party not only held its previous record vote in the city, 10,204, cast for congressional candidate Bachman in 1910, but succeeded in increasing it 440. The total increase approaches within six the vote cast for mayoralty candidate Green two years ago.

That the Socialist cause in Columbus lost hundreds of votes Saturday night when William D. Heywood, in an inflammatory address at Memorial Hall, declared that if Eby were elected the 33 police who mutinied during the street car strike would be reinstated, is the opinion of those who make it a business to feel out political situations. Hundreds of red flags displayed in their parade Saturday night and at the meeting at Memorial Hall also lost them votes, according to those who yesterday discussed the Socialistic defeat.

Red Flag Distrusted.

Conservatives and many outside the Socialist party look upon the red standard of the party as an emblem of anarchy. This the Socialists stoutly deny. They contend that it signifies that all men are of one blood, also that it stands for revolution, in the sense of changing economic and political conditions.

Local Socialists, undismayed by partial defeat and not vaunted by partial success, will continue the fight. They will not wait for another election to roll around, but will resume the spreading of their propaganda at once.

"What is going to be done to combat the Socialist movement in Columbus?"

This question was asked of each other by politicians as they scanned the returns of the election in Columbus and other cities, which showed heavy Socialist gains.

Karb May Help Solve It.

Friends of Mayor-elect Karb said he had a partial answer. Part of the vote was ascribed to discontent with business conditions. Mr. Karb's friends declared that his campaign pledges to work to bring about better relations between employer and employes would help. They declared that too much bitterness had been stirred up.

Neither Democrats or Republicans denied that there is grave danger of a Socialist victory in Columbus within a few years, if the next two or three administrations are not honest, clean and satisfactory to the people.

Political dopesters pointed out yesterday that a gain of 30 to 50 per cent, based on Tuesday's vote, would elect a Socialist mayor in a three-cornered fight.

Joyce Blames Papers.

Better business conditions, others said, and more amicable relations between capital and labor will diminish the vote of the Socialists.

It was declared by John J. Joyce, Democratic leader, that the publicity given by the newspapers to the Socialist meetings was largely responsible for the increase in the vote of the party. —Ohio State Journal.

SIXTH WARD MEETING.

The Sixth Ward Branch meets every Monday evening, at 7:30. Monday evening, Nov. 13, Comrade E. B. Lewis will speak. Subject, "The Red Flag and Its Significance." All are welcome.

LINDEN HEIGHTS ALL RIGHT.

We didn't elect a Mayor in Columbus, but the Socialists did up in Linden Heights, and that's mighty close. Comrade T. M. Fluhart will be the chief executive, with Thomas Coverdale as councilman, Comrade Green as assessor and Frank Case as constable.

Comrade Robert F. Krumm was elected to the school board in Mifflin township.

TWO MAYORS ELECTED.

New Philadelphia.—The Socialist vote for mayor here was 411, Democratic 703, Republican 763. The village of Barnhill elected every Socialist candidate. Mineral City Socialists won against combined Republicans and Democrats. Canal Dover elected a Socialist councilman.

SOCIALISTS MAKE GAIN.

Conneaut, Nov. 8.—Dr. W. H. Leet, Republican, defeated B. O. Holden, Socialist, for mayor by a plurality of but five votes yesterday. E. J. Parrish, the present mayor, lost by the great Socialistic gains. Socialists elected three members of council.

EAST LIVERPOOL.

The Socialists at East Liverpool elected one councilman, a justice of the peace and a member of the board of education.

OLD BETHEL SHOWS UP BIG.

Bethel, O., Nov. 8.—The old parties received a scare here Tuesday from which they will hardly recover before we hit them another jolt next election. The Socialist vote of Tate township in 1910 was 10.

Nov. 7, 1911, as follows: Township trustes, D. F. Warwick, 61; township clerk, John E. Emmons, 177; township treasurer, J. P. Reed, 144; constable, D. Kindall, 67.

For village ticket: Mayor, C. Reif, 62; clerk, J. E. Emmons, 59; treasurer, J. Reed, 93; members of council, J. H. Sims, 32; F. A. Coerdel, 40.

There were four tickets in the field. The Socialists elected two members of board of public affairs and came within 15 and 17 votes of electing their clerk and treasurer. Constitutional delegates received 37 votes. We had Comrade M. J. Beery one week. He did splendid work, and we are continuing the work of distributing literature and organizing for the campaign of 1912.

J. H. SIMS.

HAVE WE GROWN?

Yes, there are over 100,000 members of the Socialist party in and the vote is over $650,000.

But the important question is whether the 100,000 members are really Socialists. Do they want Socialism? Do they understand what it is and how it is to come? Do the 650,000 vote for Socialism or merely to have the Socialists be the "reformer" party? Do many of them really know for what they are voting?

Only sweet souls lulled to dreamy slumber can answer "yes" to these questions. Nobody who knows even a few locals of the party can be so optimistic as to say that the party is not taking in many who would not even vote for us if they really understood Socialism. Nobody can claim that we are making thoroughgoing Socialists of even a large part of the new recruits.

And this is the way we expect to bring about a fundamental, revolutionary change! Slow as growth was under the "intolerance" of the old S. L. P.; much as the policy of suspicion toward newcomers retarded us, it had the merit of making real Socialists. I have yet to know of an old-timer who did not become a thoroughgoing Socialist almost as soon as he joined the party. But now we have Comrades of two and three years' standing who are still faddists or weaklings or utopians of some one of the fifty-seven varieties.

Let us face the situation. Let us not deceive ourselves by phrases of any sort, or by hopes that all will be well. And the cure is simple—make the newcomers read.

Make the newcomers read.
Make the newcomers read.
Make 'em READ.

Even if you have to stand over them with a shillalah. Even if you have to give up half the agitation activity. As soon as election is past let us whip the 100,000 into shape.

Old Taft the Fat and the interests he represents are not afraid of a party of 'steen hundred thousand reformers, mild or rabid cranks, greenbackers, municipal ownership faddists and such. But a good, strong party of men and women who want Socialism right NOW, as soon as possible, and ALL of it—such a party is liable to do things.

Yes, sir; get the 100,000 to read.

Feed 'em on the good, solid stuff. Stuff it into 'em (with a shillalah if you must). Even if they'll read just a page a day; it helps. But get it into them.

If they're afraid of heavy stuff, feed 'em Haywood and Bohn's new book, "Industrial Socialism," first. And Work's "What's So and What Isn't." And Marcy's "Shop Talks on Economics." And Debs' books.

But as soon as possible get them onto the Big Little Four. In paper, covers the set costs only 55 cents—three 10-cent books and one for two bits. They are "The Communist Manifesto," Engels' "Socialism, Eutopian and Scientific," Marx's "Value, Price and Profit," and Kautsky's "Class Struggle." No, they're not A B C books for 5-year-old babies, but they are needed for the making of a genuine Socialist. The first two will bear reading three or four dozen times times; there is always something new in them.

Get the 100,000 to read.

NEW WRINKLE IN LOCAL POLITICS.

What do you think of this for a new wrinkle in the political line? It is gravely announced that neither Mayor-elect Karb nor any other city officer-elect will receive a certificate of election from the board of elections if the position taken by Chief Supervisor John C. Felton of the board is correct, and it has the approval of Attorney General Hogan.

After a study of the election laws, Mr. Felton said last Tuesday:

"A certificate issued by us would be only a courtesy and of no value to the candidate. Neither Karb nor any of the other city candidates needs such a certificate. The canvassing board, consisting of the board of elections and the city auditor, has declared the result of the election. That is sufficient."

He added that Attorney General Hogan had assured him that he was right in this interpretation of the election laws.

Apparently there is no provision for either a certificate or an official commission, so all that it is necessary for Mr. Karb and the other officers to do is to take the oath of office January 1.

Is it possible that there have been so many "irregularities" in the conduct of the election and the counting of the votes that the board feels it unwise to grant any certificates? Is it possible that some of the contributions to Mr. Karb's campaign fund were of such a character as not to pass muster? There seems to be a gentleman of African descent reposing in the wood-pile somewhere. It is more than probable that there might have been Socialist councilmen from the Third, Twelfth, Sixth and Seventh Wards if everything had been according to Hoyle.

WOULD STIR UP CATHOLICS AGAINST SOCIALISTS; FAILS.

Hamilton, O.—Despite the fact that the News and Journal of this city have published articles attempting to prejudice the Catholics of the city against the Socialists the party continues to hold big meetings and to take numbers of Catholics into the party.

When the first article was published the Socialists held the largest meeting ever held in this city at which Debs was speaking. Many of the Catholics of the city who have voted the Socialist ticket have resented the imputations in these articles and cancelled their subscriptions. The day the last articles of this kind were published the Socialists took thirty-five members into the local.

The Gas Co. Is Victorious.

Just dig down in your pocket and be ready to keep right on paying 30 cents per 1000 cubic feet for gas. Attorney General Hogan Wednesday advised the public utilities commission that it had no right to review the local gas situation with a view to changing the 30-cent gas rate charged by the Columbus Gas & Fuel Company under an ordinance passed by the city council and accepted by the company. The commission will abide by Hogan's advice and take no steps in the matter. This means that the natural gas rate in Columbus will be 30 cents per 1000 cubic feet for the next five years. The people who voted for the Standard Oil Mayor, George J. Karb, ought not to complain about paying tribute.

MAKE GREAT GAIN; START WORK FOR 1912.

Portsmouth, O.—The Socialists in this city polled a total of 1,237 votes as against 143 votes two years ago. The Socialist ran second in many precincts and gave the old party politicians a big scare.

The vote is not a mere vote of protest, but one that the Socialists will hold and increase. The

Socialists Will Fight For the Recall

The Socialists of Cleveland who will be represented in the Constitutional Convention by Comrade Harry D. Thomas, have initiated a movement to place the recall in the new organic law of the State. In speaking of the question The Cleveland Socialist has this to say:

Judges are impartial, we are told.

However, read the following vaporings, dictated by a superheated imagination or a perhaps inactive liver.

They proceed from Judge Spear, of New Jersey, a son-in-law of Kirby, of Dayton:

"Ruin and anarchy will ensue if the governmental machine is made more responsive to every passing whim of public sentiment aroused by the blatant sentiment aroused by the blatant agitator."

Strange that only agitators get blatant. Judges never do.

"You ask me if I trust the people?" "No, I do not," he shouted. "Because if the people trusted themselves they would not need a written constitution."

"Hizonner" overlooked the fact completely that the constitution of Ohio was drawn up and incidence when landlords, bankers, manufacturers or merchants have a banquet there is always a representative of the Bench present.

Is it possible that at those affairs legal wisdom can be extracted from empty champaigne bottles?

Why it is the judges always sit at table with Rent, Interest and Profit—with the House of Have?

At the meetings of the House of Have NOT the judges are conspicuous by their absence.

The House of Have Not is about to change the constitution of this state.

Let it make that change effective by providing for the discharge of unsatisfactory judges. Strip the judiciary of their power to review legislation. Annul it by making the recall of all state servants, and the judiciary, also a part of Ohio's amended constitution.

This is an authority they have arrogated to themselves with no basis in law or fact.

Take it from them!

Make the Initiative and Referendum a really valuable lever of social betterment by adding the Recall thereto.

This is the duty of every workingman and woman in the state of Ohio.

It must be continually agitated until next January when the Constitutional Convention meets.

With the I. and R. in our hands and the Recall as an instrument to compel the judges and the capitalist class to obey the popular will, we can proceed with the task of Socializing society and leave the Mad Mullahs of capitalism and their judicial friends and retainers to wax wrothy over their champaign glasses.

This is an immediate need. Spread the light. Agitate for the Recall. Secure petitions for it. Do all you possibly can, for as long as judges retain their present autocratic powers we are bound and delivered to the microscopic mercies of the capitalist class.

MISSING ISSUE (S)

CLAIM VICTORY SOCIALISTS

Canton, O., Nov. 22.—The Socialists today are claiming the election of Harry Schilling over Mayor Arthur Turnbull by a plurality of thirty-two.

At the time Turnbull was declared elected by election commissioners on a favorable count of 110 grains of corn, the Socialists believed fraud had been used to obtain the defeat of Schilling, but saw no way of appealing from the decision of the election board.

However, an important discovery has been made which is certain to give the mayoralty to Schilling unless the courts perpetrate a flagrant violation of common decency. In one precinct ninety votes were cast on election day, although only eighty-nine voters registered during the day. Under the election laws of Ohio the vote of the entire precinct will have to be thrown out, which will give Schilling the plurality of thirty-two.

Local Canton decided on Sunday morning that the matter should be carried to the courts for a decision.

The political spirit has reached the snapping point in Canton, and if another election were to be held before the end of this month, the Socialists would receive more than one-half of the entire vote cast.

About 200 Socialists either failed to register or failed to get their transfers after they had moved from the precinct where they had registered. This ought to teach all Socialists and Socialist organizations to see that the Socialist vote is registered and out on election day.

The Socialists expect to organize classes in scientific and municipal government.

Scores of thousands of Socialist leaflets were distributed and more than 30,000 copies of the Canton Social Revolutionist were distributed during the last ten days of the campaign.

A flying squadron composed of about forty-five men and women was organized for the distribution of literature and of reporting matters of interest to Socialist headquarters.

The last two weeks everything seemed to turn in favor of Socialism. About 70 per cent of the real working class in the shops and mills of the city openly declared for the entire Socialist ticket. In one precinct 157 straight ballots were cast.

Special Notice.

The Socialist Band is reorganizing for the campaign of 1912 and invites all Socialists who desire to join the band to make application at once as we are down to business for a grand campaign next year. We invite all, who have instruments of any kind to join our forces. Whether you have experience or not, if you are willing to purchase an instrument, which I can get you on easy terms, I will give you instructions free. The experienced band rehearses at 335 1-2 South High street every Monday evening, and the beginners' class rehearses every Tuesday evening at the same place. Don't wait, but do it now, as the time is limited to get down to business. Ladies, boys and girls are invited to get into the band and learn to be a Socialist musician. Call at the hall at above address on the nights mentioned, or call me by phone, 174 East Fifth avenue. Citizen 17781.

The Socialist Band will give a series of dances at 335 1-2 South High Street, Munich Hall (old Red Lion) beginning Friday, Nov. 24, and continuing every Friday evening until Jan. 1st, when other dates will be announced. Everybody invited to come and dance to the music of a Brass Band. Admission for dancing, 25c each. Admission to those who do not dance, 10c each. Now, Comrades, get busy and see that your band is financed by making these dances a grand success. Perfect order will be maintained and no intoxicating drinks will be allowed in the hall. We will make these dances as clean as any parlor dance in the city.

D ANNUALLY ILLS' FIERY HELL.

The steel industry is an industrial hell for the workers. It is an "Alladin's Lamp" for the few owners, the Carnegies and Morgans.

In one year forty-six men lost their lives at the South Chicago mill blast furnaces. One was blown up by dynamite. Three were electrocuted. Three were killed by falls from high places. Four were killed by falling steel. Four were burned to death Three were crushed to death. One was suffocated by gas. One was blown off the ore bridge. One was burned to death by slag. One was killed by a red-hot rail and ten were killed by engines or cars. Venereal diseases, a result of poverty, is prevalent among the workers in the steel industry, as well as rheumatism, bronchial and pulmonary diseases.

In October, 1910, twenty-eight men were overcome by carbonoxide gas in one big blast furnace. In all the various steel plants throughout the United States the majority of the men work twelve hours a day or night and seven days a week. It is common for men to work continuously day or night for months without having a single Sunday off.

Hell Covers Square Mile.

Steel rails were first made in the United States in Chicago, in 1882. The present "steel trust," the $1,500,000,000 corporation, represents the perfect development of the steel industry.

The largest steel plant in the West is the South Chicago plant, which extends two miles along the lake and one-quarter of a mile wide. It employs between 10,000 and 11,000 men when the plant is working full time.

The Gary, Ind., plant extends three miles along the shore of Lake Michigan and is a mile wide. There are only 6,000 men employed on account of the enormous improved machinery, some machines being used which, with the services of two men, do the work which formerly required fifty men. The improved automatic blast furnaces are operated with 25 per cent less men than any other plant.

The total amount of money paid in 1910 to the "steel trust" by the people of the United States was $709,814,693. However, the "trust" paid out of this enormous sum $384,643,262 for materials and supplies. They also paid to the several cities taxes amounting to $9,161,436.

SOCIALISTS CAUSE SURPRISE.

Their Increased Vote Sets the Politicians to Thinking.

Although Socialists are disappointed in their showing, many outside their political faith are surprised at the fact that the new party not only held its previous record vote in the city, 10,204, cast for congressional candidate Bachman in 1910, but succeeded in increasing it 440. The total increase approaches within six the vote cast for mayoralty candidate Green two years ago.

That the Socialist cause in Columbus lost hundreds of votes Saturday night when William D. SIXTH WARD MEETING.

The Sixth Ward Branch meets every Monday evening at 7:30. Monday evening, Nov. 13, Comrade E. B. Lewis will speak. Subject, "The Red Flag and Its Significance." All are welcome.

LINDEN HEIGHTS ALL RIGHT.

We didn't elect a Mayor in Columbus, but the Socialists did up in Linden Heights, and that's mighty close. Comrade T. M. Fluhart will be the chief executive, with Thomas Coverdale as councilman, Comrade Green as assessor and Frank Case as constable.

Comrade Robert F. Krumm was elected to the school board in Mifflin township.

HAVE WE GROWN?

Yes, there are over 100,000 members of the Socialist party in and the vote is over $650,000.

But the important question is whether the 100,000 members are really Socialists. Do they want Socialism? Do they understand what it is and how it is to come? Do the 650,000 vote for Socialism or merely to have the Socialists be the "reformer" party? Do many of them really know for what they are voting?

Only sweet souls lulled to dreamy slumber can answer "yes" to these questions. Nobody who knows even a few locals of the party can be so optimistic as to say that the party is not taking in many who would not even vote for us if they really understood Socialism. Nobody can claim that we are making thoroughgoing Socialists of even a large part of the new recruits.

And this is the way we expect to bring about a fundamental, revolutionary change! Slow as growth was under the "intolerance" of the old S. L. P.; much as the policy of suspicion toward newcomers retarded us, it had the merit of making real Socialists. I have yet to know of an old-timer who did not become a thoroughgoing Socialist almost as soon as he joined the party. But now we have Comrades of two and three years' standing who are still faddists or weaklings or utopians of some one of the fifty-seven varieties.

Let us face the situation. Let us not deceive ourselves by [illegible]

NEW WRINKLE IN LOCAL POLITICS.

What do you think of this for a new wrinkle in the political line? It is gravely announced that neither Mayor-elect Karb nor any other city officer-elect will receive a certificate of election from the board of elections if the position taken by Chief Supervisor John C. Felton of the board is correct, and it has the approval of Attorney General Hogan.

After a study of the election laws, Mr. Felton said last Tuesday:

"A certificate issued by us would be only a courtesy and of no value to the candidate. Neither Karb nor any of the other city candidates needs such a certificate. The canvassing board, consisting of the board of elections and the city auditor, has declared the result of the election. That is sufficient."

He added that Attorney General Hogan had assured him that he was right in this interpretation of the election laws.

Apparently there is no provision for either a certificate or an official commission, so all that it is necessary for Mr. Karb and the others to do is to take the office January 1.

Ohio State Librarian Columbus, O.

Is it possible that there have been so many "irregularities" in the conduct of the election and the counting of the votes that the board feels it unwise to grant any certificates? Is it possible that some of the contributions to Mr. Karb's campaign fund were of such a character as not to pass muster? There seems to be a gentleman of African descent reposing in the wood-pile somewhere. It is more than probable that there might have been Socialist councilmen from the Third, Twelfth, Sixth and Seventh Wards if everything had been according to Hoyle.

TAKE NOTICE.

The Seventh Ward Branch will give a benefit entertainment and show at the Orpheum Theater, at Eighteenth street and Mt. Vernon avenue, Wednesday, Nov. 29th, Thursday, Nov. 30th, and Friday, Dec. 1st. All should patronize this show to help raise money for the Seventh Ward Branch, Socialist Party. Admission 5c.

The Eighth Ward Branch now meets on Tuesday evening at 121 1-2 East Town street. At the last session every member took part. Next Tuesday evening a propaganda meeting will be held.

WOULD STIR UP CATHOLICS AGAINST SOCIALISTS; FAILS.

Hamilton, O.—Despite the fact that the News and Journal of this city have published articles attempting to prejudice the Catholics of the city against the Socialists the party continues to hold big meetings and to take numbers of Catholics into the party.

When the first article was published the Socialists held the largest meeting ever held in this city at which Debs was speaking. Many of the Catholics of the city who have voted the Socialist ticket have resented the imputations in these articles and cancelled their subscriptions. The day the last articles of this kind were published the Socialists took thirty-five members into the local.

Just Read This.

The City Central Committee of the Socialist party of Columbus last Wednesday evening approved the application of 66 new members. This makes a total of 190 received since the recent election. The "Red Flag" does not seem to frighten the working class and the workers are rallying to the only party which belongs to them. Next year a mighty host will shake the walls of the Capitalistic Jericho down.

AKRON HAS A BAND.

Following the example of Columbus, the comrades of Akron have organized a band. Some can talk and some can blow, and there is a chance for all. The Columbus Socialist Band has set the pace with Comrade Eby as leader.

PUKY IS NOW AT LARGE.

When Bela Pukey, the Hungarian, arrested on charge of embezzling $20,000 belonging to poor "Hunkies," was released this week, he only had to give $2,500 bond. When it is possible for a man to steal $20,000 and get out of jail for $2,500, it looks like Justice was winking both her eyes.

Special Notice.

The Socialist Band is reorganizing for the campaign of 1912 and invites all Socialists who desire to join the band to make application at once as we are down to business for a grand campaign next year. We invite all, who have instruments of any kind to join our forces. Whether you have experience or not, if you are willing to purchase an instrument, which I can get you on easy terms, I will give you instructions free. The experienced band rehearses at 335 1-2 South High street every Monday evening and the beginners' class rehearses every Tuesday evening at the same place. Don't wait, but do it now, as the time is limited to get down to business. Ladies, boys and girls are invited to get into the band and learn to be a Socialist musician. The Gas Co. Is Victorious.

Just dig down in your pocket and be ready to keep right on paying 30 cents per 1000 cubic feet for gas. Attorney General Hogan Wednesday advised the public utilities commission that it had no right to review the local gas situation with a view to changing the 30-cent gas rate charged by the Columbus Gas & Fuel Company under an ordinance passed by the city council and accepted by the company. The commission will abide by Hogan's advice and take no steps in the matter. This means that the natural gas rate in Columbus will be 30 cents per 1000 cubic feet for the next five years. The people who voted for the Standard Oil Mayor, George J. Karb, ought not to complain about paying tribute.

MAKE GREAT GAIN; START WORK FOR 1912.

Portsmouth, O.—The Socialists in this city polled a total of 1,237 votes as against 143 votes two years ago. The Socialist ran second in many precincts and gave the old party politicians a big scare.

The vote is not a mere vote of protest, but one that the Socialists will hold and increase. The Socialists are jubilant and have already entered the 1912 campaign.

A Card of Thanks.

Ella June Purcell wishes to thank all the comrades who worked so nobly during the recent campaign and succeeded in electing her to the Board of Education. She desires especially to thank the Woman's Local Committee.

At present Miss Purcell is very much fatigued with the recent campaigning and is in great need of a rest. She has been invited to speak several times since the election, but so far has been unable to do so. Just as soon as she has regained her normal health she will be glad to speak for any Branch that desires her to do so.

The Socialist Band will give a series of dances at 335 1-2 South High Street, Munich Hall (old Red Lion) beginning Friday, Nov. 24, and continuing every Friday evening until Jan. 1st, when other dates will be announced. Everybody invited to come and dance to the music of a Brass Band. Admission for dancing, 25c each. Admission to those who do not dance, 10c each. Now, Comrades, get busy and see that your band is financed by making these dances a grand success. Perfect order will be maintained and no intoxicating drinks will be allowed in the hall. We will make these dances as clean as any parlor dance in the city.

Socialists Will Fight For the Recall

The Socialists of Cleveland who will be represented in the Constitutional Convention by Comrade Harry D. Thomas, have initiated a movement to place the recall in the new organic law of the State. In speaking of the question The Cleveland Socialist has this to say:

Judges are impartial, we are told.

However, read the following vaporings, dictated by a superheated imagination or a perhaps inactive liver.

They proceed from Judge Spear, of New Jersey, a son-in-law of Kirby, of Dayton:

"Ruin and anarchy will ensue if the governmental machine is made more responsive to every passing whim of public sentiment aroused by the blatant sentiment ardused by the blatant agitator."

Strange that only agitators get blatant. Judges never do.

"You ask me if I trust the people?" "No, I do not," he shouted. "Because if the people trusted themselves they would not need a written constitution."

"Hizonner" overlooked the fact completely that the constitution of Ohio was drawn up and ratified by the people of Ohio in 1856. If our fathers had intelligence enough to make it in '56, surely the present generation has brains enough to amend it suitably for use in 1911.

Or is it possible that we haven't? That perhaps the Judge Spears are the only persons in present-day society who have brains of the vintage of 1856?

To read his remarks is to believe the last assertion.

Anyway, is a constitution a sort of perpetual union suit for society?

Must society wear the thing till it rips at the knees and elbows?

Is it not more reasonable to suppose that as the organization of society changes, its needs also change, and that these changes must and will reflect themselves in society's laws?

We wonder if it is merely a coincidence when landlords, bankers, manufacturers or merchants have a banquet there is always representative of the Bench present.

Is it possible that at those affairs legal wisdom can be extracted from empty champaigne bottles?

Why it is the judges always sit at table with Rent, Interest and Profit—with the House of Have?

At the meetings of the House of Have NOT the judges are conspicuous by their absence.

The House of Have Not is about to change the constitution of this state.

Let it make that change effective by providing for the discharge of unsatisfactory judges. Strip the judiciary of their power to review legislation. Annul it by making the recall of all state servants, and the judiciary, also a part of Ohio's amended constitution.

This is an authority they have arrogated to themselves with no basis in law or fact.

Take it from them!

Make the Initiative and Referendum a really valuable lever of social betterment by adding the Recall thereto.

This is the duty of every workingman and woman in the state of Ohio.

It must be continually agitated until next January when the Constitutional Convention meets.

With the I. and R. in our hands and the Recall as an instrument to compel the judges and the capitalist class to obey the popular will, we can proceed with the task of Socializing society and leave the Mad Mullahs of capitalism and their judicial friends and retainers to wax wrothy over their champaign glasses.

This is an immediate need. Spread the light. Agitate for the Recall. Secure petitions for it. Do all you possibly can, for as long as judges retain their present autocratic powers we are bound and delivered to the microscopic mercies of the capitalist class.

CLAIM VICTORY FOR SOCIALISTS IN CANTON.

Canton, O., Nov. 22.—The Socialists today are claiming the election of Harry Schilling over Mayor Arthur Turnbull by a plurality of thirty-two.

At the time Turnbull was declared elected by election commissioners on a favorable count of 110 grains of corn, the Socialists believed fraud had been used to obtain the defeat of Schilling, but saw no way of appealing from the decision of the election board.

However, an important discovery has been made which is certain to give the mayoralty to Schilling unless the courts perpetrate a flagrant violation of common decency. In one precinct ninety votes were cast on election day, although only eighty-nine voters registered during the day. Under the election laws of Ohio the vote of the entire precinct will have to be thrown out, which will give Schilling the plurality of thirty-two.

Local Canton decided on Sunday morning that the matter should be carried to the courts for a decision.

The political spirit has reached the snapping point in Canton, and if another election were to be held before the end of this month, the Socialists would receive more than one-half of the entire vote cast.

About 200 Socialists either failed to register or failed to get their transfers after they had moved from the precinct where they had registered. This ought to teach all Socialists and Socialist organizations to see that the Socialist vote is registered and out on election day.

The Socialists expect to organize classes in scientific and municipal government.

Scores of thousands of Socialist leaflets were distributed and more than 30,000 copies of the Canton Social Revolutionist were distributed during the last ten days of the campaign.

A flying squadron composed of about forty-five men and women was organized for the distribution of literature and of reporting matters of interest to Socialist headquarters.

The last two weeks everything seemed to turn in favor of Socialism. About 70 per cent of the real working class in the shops and mills of the city openly declared for the entire Socialist ticket. In one precinct 157 straight ballots were cast.

46 MEN KILLED ANNUALLY IN STEEL MILLS' FIERY HELL.

The steel industry is an industrial hell for the workers. It is an "Alladin's Lamp" for the few owners, the Carnegies and Morgans.

In one year forty-six men lost their lives at the South Chicago mill blast furnaces. One was blown up by dynamite. Three were electrocuted. Three were killed by falls from high places. Four were killed by falling steel. Four were burned to death Three were crushed to death. One was suffocated by gas. One was blown off the ore bridge. One was burned to death by slag. One was killed by a red-hot rail and ten were killed by engines or cars. Venereal diseases, a result of poverty, is prevalent among the workers in the steel industry, as well as rheumatism, Bronchial and pulmonary diseases.

In October, 1910, twenty-eight men were overcome by carbonoxide gas in one big blast furnace. In all the various steel plants throughout the United States the majority of the men work twelve hours a day or night and seven days a week. It is common for men to work continuously day or night for months without having a single Sunday off.

Hell Covers Square Mile.

Steel rails were first made in the United States in Chicago, in 1882. The present "steel trust," the $1,500,000,000 corporation, represents the perfect development of the steel industry.

The largest steel plant in the West is the South Chicago plant, which extends two miles along the lake and one-quarter of a mile wide. It employs between 10,000 and 11,000 men when the plant is working full time.

The Gary, Ind., plant extends three miles along the shore of Lake Michigan and is a mile wide. There are only 6,000 men employed on account of the enormous improved machinery, some machines being used which, with the services of two men, do the work which formerly required fifty men. The improved automatic blast furnaces are operated with 25 per cent less men than any other plant.

The total amount of money paid in 1910 to the "steel trust" by the people of the United States was $709,814,693. However, the "trust" paid out of this enormous sum $384,643,262 for materials and supplies. They also paid to the several cities taxes amounting to $9,161,436.

Capitalist Agents in Socialist Party.

It is generally admitted that, while the progress of Socialism cannot be actually halted by its enemies, it is possible to retard the movement somewhat and slow it down, if not in general, at least in certain localities.

And if this is so, an interesting question might be formulated as to how this could best be accomplished. Let us put it this way: If you are a capitalist, with a fair knowledge of Socialism and a comprehension of the menace it carries to the existing order, what would you devise or suggest as the best method of delaying its realization? The question pre-supposes that the person to whom it is addressed knows the ultimate impossibility of defeating Socialism permanently, and is based upon the policy of putting off the evil day as far as may be possible.

An interesting article in the current Social Democratic Herald, written by Silas Hood, discusses this question. The writer depicts the scare that a greatly increased Socialist vote in Minneapolis gave to the capitalists of that city and the means they decided upon to avert what they considered the danger to their interests.

In a general meeting for the discussion of the question, after they had invited and heard a Socialist speaker explain the objects and aims of Socialism, it was suggested that they raise a fund for the purpose of hiring writers and speakers to combat Socialism in the press and on the platform. Before this was adopted, however, one of their number wisely opposed the suggestion on the ground that where it might make one enemy of Socialism it would attract the attention of ninety-nine others, and there was something in Socialism so attractive to workingmen and farmers, that such a plan would not only fail, but would actually increase the dangers it sought to avert.

Then this Machiavelli suggested an alternative scheme. He would devote the fund to the payment of people who would enter the Socialist movement, and though showing an excess of zeal, their object would be to foment and create dissension among the membership, to keep it constantly quarreling and wasting its energy in internal dissension and strife.

The writer of the article declares that this plan has already been adopted, and that these agents are already at work in different localities. He particularly suggests that there are now in the movement several persons who are using the pretext of industrial unionism, and advocating the general strike, decrying political action, etc., with this object in view. The writer concludes by saying that even this is defeating its object, that many who entered for this purpose have become converted, and are "double crossing" the capitalists who pay them for fomenting strife.

This selection of industrial unionism as the bone of contention by no means marks the limitations of a would-be dissensionist. It is just as easy to foment such strife by posing as an extreme champion of the old and decadent craft unionism, and two such characters, one pro and the other anti, could readily work up a sham opposition that might create the needed trouble. As a matter of fact, any pretext, any question on which friction existed, could be utilized in this manner. The disturber would undoubtedly select that which he considered most useful to his purpose

It is very probable, indeed, that something of this kind is being tried in the Socialist movement, and, indeed, it might be expected. It is by no means an original idea, but the fact that the principle has been applied in other cases, presumes at least that it is a partial success. It may be described perhaps as the lowest and vilest publication of the "Divide and Rule" maxim.

It is the scheme that the Russian bureaucracy has been, and is now working, for the purpose of reducing the revolutionary elements to impotence, and few will say that it has been altogether a failure. We have now in America some of these people who have been so employed, people who for a score of years have played the "double cross" game with both parties. Some of them are now protesting their fealty to the cause of revolution, but they are rather doubtful quantities, and are rightly objects of suspicion to those to whom they make their confession, for even this may be part of the game. It takes no great strength of the imagination to picture one of these fellows protesting that he has been "double crossing" the government all the time, or confiding the fact to a few Comrades under seal of secrecy, and at the same time carrying on the work for which he wa soriginally hired.

If there are such people in the Socialist party, as this writer declares, the sooner they make public confession and drop the money of the capitalists publicly, the better for all concerned. And even then they will bear watching. Somehow we don't feel an absolute confidence in the fellow who imparts the information that he is still taking capitalist money in this fashion and applying it to the Socialist cause. Socialism has no need of these "ways that are dark, and tricks that are vain." It may perhaps be a sort of satisfaction to see the capitalist duped in this manner, but its gen-general effect is rather doubtful. The way the money is used does not altogether take away its original taint, and it is a question whether Socialists can afford to indulge in propaganda of this sort, to say nothing of feeling a general satisfaction in knowing of it.

As for the fomenters and disturbers who are still true to their capitalist salt—and we have no doubt there are some—they should be closely watched, and their antecedents overhauled as far as may be possible. When such antecedents are unknown or cannot be obtained, the observation should be by so much the closer. Care should be taken, however, not to formulate suspicions into charges prematurely, or push the matter so far that open and complete expression of opinion should be impaired or limited. The mischief engendered in such case might be much greater than that sought to be avoided.

Care should be taken also to avoid the premature assumption that a noisy and violent advocate of industrial unionism is necessarily an agent of this kind, though it is undoubtedly true that this particular movement offers such opportunity. It should not be forgotten, however, that the noisiest advocates of this policy, the people who deprecate political action and show a direct tendency to anarchy, who advance doubtful arguments for industrial unionism that it would be as strong or stronger without, are generally always novices who have had little training in the Socialistic movement or any comprehensive grasp of its philosophy. A movement in embryo always brings forth advocates of this type, and the industrial policy is no exception to the general rule. It has not yet "found itself," so to speak. There is always a tendency among ill-balanced novices to depreciate all other policies than the one they are advocating, in the belief that by diminishing the one they are magnifying the other. But while this is not a test of sincerity, on the other hand it is not necessarily ground for suspicion. That the immense majority of those who advocate industrial unionism even by the most extreme methods, are honest and sincere, there is no reason whatever to doubt.

With careful observation, however, now that we know the danger, it is always possible to neutralize the efforts of those whose actions most plainly show their object to be merely the creation of dissension in the movement. Most of these fellows can be readily detected by a lack of knowledge of the fundamental philosophy of Socialism, and the possession of an unusual stock of impudence and "front" in lieu thereof, a quality common to most imposters of this sort. It may be also that this would have the effect of sterillizing the efforts of some honest but intolerable nuisances, but even so, the movement will not suffer thereby. The habitual "obstructionist" may be either an honest ass or a treacherous fox, but it is difficult and perhaps hardly worth while to discriminate.

We have no particular fear that the movement will suffer to any considerable extent from this policy, though it is perhaps the best policy to retardation that capitalism can devise. It only means, however, that we will have to exercise our powers of observation somewhat more to detect and rid ourselves of these vermin scattered among us here and there by the exploiting class. —New York Call.

What Can We Expect From Universities?

By George Biddle.

The question is repeatedly asked: Where do the students stand on the subject of Socialism? The answer is, that Socialist sentiment is on the increase among students and professors alike. But there are several reasons, of course, why no more students take part in Socialism than is the case at present. The failings are general and the student suffers from them as well as the rank and file; prejudice against change, false ideas, hopes of gaining place despite conditions.

Henry Ward Beecher once said: "A conservative young man has wound up his life before it is unraveled. We expect old men to be conservative, but when a nation's young men are so, its funeral bell is already tolled. There is more truth than fiction in this. We cannot help admiring the type of young men who have so actively carried on the work of social revolution heretofore. Byron, Shelley and Keats were not only educated, pedagogically speaking, but did not hesitate to carry a message to the oppressed. Today the schools, with their purely athletic standards, turn out good football enthusiasts, but fail to inspire a "social conscience" in the student. Wage slavery and oppression bleak as any the fhasses have suffered in times past are raging without. This is unknown to the average student. He is not supposed to know this. It is enough if he gets his Greek and goes to the game. The economic evils of the times are looked upon by the student as outside his realm. He is unconcerned with them, has no remedy, and sees no farther than the four sides of the campus. The present standards of education have a demoralizing tendency. The student gets an education for himself alone.

He does not think for a minute that when he becomes proficient in his line, his services must be for society, but seeks to make himself a desirable asset to "some great capitalist." The law men want to be corporation lawyers; the agricultural students look to being made managers of great farms worked by somebody else, while the theologians all expect to lead rich congregations. How long will it be before the students and great masses cease to cater and cringe to the masters? We can hardly say. But they will wake up some time, to be sure. Spending four years making one's self a commodity for some one else with one chance in ten of a profitable sale is not the most pleasant thing on earth. It certainly does not appeal to any of the elevated sensibilities in a man's nature. But here and there a student is raising his eyes above his text book and looking at conditions as they really are. He sees the objection of the working class from whence he may have come, and the impossibility of his becoming a capitalist himself.

And here we have a Socialist student; a man who will despise the shams and foibles attending the present system of knowledge for money-making purposes; a system which makes the capacity for creating cold dollars the only measure of brains. Occasionally a college professor will wink a favorable altitude toward Socialism; hardly daring to protest, he may communicate the fact to a cherished friend that the is displeased with the present system and world like to see a change brought about.

Every large college in the country has its Socialist club, affiliated with the National Inter-Collegiate Society. Superstitions regarding Socialism are disappearing as a consciousness of what the working class is doing to emancipate itself, soaks in. Perhaps the time is not far off when the spark of revolution in the college bodies may be fanned into flame that will arouse the nation. But the working class must remember this one thing: It must work out its own redemption. To wait for me nin the professions to do it for them is unwise; to expect the capitalists or any of their parasites to emancipate the working class, is folly. The workers must unite, themselves, into a unit, and as a unit declare what they want, and persevere rigidly, persistently, till they get it. If the student, the professor, the preacher, want to help, let them, and be as much pleased as surprised by the added measure of assistance.

The Daily Observer at Washington, Pa., is greatly alarmed over the great strength of the Socialists. The Steel Trust and the oppression which the capitalists are using against the workers is given by the Observer as the principal reason of Socialist growth in Pennsylvania. The paper denounces the Steel Trust for driving the workingmen to socialism by refusing to allow any of its employes to run on the Socialist ticket. The Observer maintains that acts of this kind are responsible for the increasing Socialist vote. That line of talk is becoming common nowadays and the more the merrier, gents.

The Socialist Party--What For?

By Clyde J. Wright.

"How are you going to bring Socialism about?" This is a question more often asked and dodged than any other one inquiry.

I am thinking right now about a petition being circuated in the Socialist movement, addressed to the Senate and House of Representatives, requesting that a constitutional amendment be submitted to the states enfranchising women upon an equality with men.

"How are you going to bring it about?" The comrade who is out making these petitions do duty can understand how; he is working at it. He is doing one of the many things that move toward Socialism.

These petitions will not bring about Socialism by themselves. The fellow who waits, expecting by some miraculous stroke to get Socialism all in a "chunk," will, after a while, realize that "Jimmy Higgins" really got the "chunk," but he got it in pieces. This petition is one of the pieces. It will be the Socialists who "rustle" these petitions who will shake the House of Representatives and compel attention; it won't be the dreamers and theorizers who will do it.

What For?

What are we organized for? Why, we are organized to do the multitude of things required to bring about Socialism. Of course our organization originated largely in dreamland, but political evolution has changed the environment; voices seem to cry out of the very atmosphere of our environment: "How are you going to do it?" The dreamer doesn't answer; he is theorizing.

We have perhaps a hundred thousand card-members of the Socialist organization. What for?

If one out of every ten, or ten per cent, are real Socialists, and if each one of the ten would secure signers to just one petition of twenty-three names, it would mean nearly a quarter of a million of names and only one-tenth of the organization in action.

If every card member would secure signers to one petition, it would mean nearly two and a half million petitioners. This would be like the rattling of the thunder of a nation in the halls of congress. If the ten per cent will now do the work of the other nine, as they have done it in the past, we will get that two and a half million petitioners anyway. And this would bring the matter of woman's rights of citizenship into a court that compels the case to be heard. It would mean an awakening that neither dreaming Socialists nor dreaming congressmen ever imagined possible.

We are an organization. What for?

SOCIALISTS IN ACTION.

News From The World Wide Movement Of The Workers.

Indiana Socialist News.

James Oneal, State Secretary, 309 1-2 Ohio street, Terre Haute.

Local Indianapolis reports another new branch with 14 members.

The Socialists at Salem finally senf their application for a charter in. They start with seven members, and although they have a hard community to work in, they will be heard from

The Polish Socialists of Indiana Harbor send in an application which contains eight signautres, and the charter is now in their hands. Lake county is getting a fine county organization.

The workers at Augusta, Pike county, decided to join with the other mining towns in organizing the Socialists, and their application contains ten signatures. As the coal dukes own this county, there is no reason why a dozen locals should not be organiz d there.

One branch of Local Marion orders due stamps for 80 members, and Comrade Condo promises several branches nearly as large in the county in a few weeks. The local at Swayzee, in the same county, reports taking in eleven new members at one meeting and of having secured a fine hall.

The Socialists of Sullivan county met at Sullivan on the 12th, with delegates present from several locals. A county organization was formed with the following officer: Worthy Hayes, Hymera, chairman; Clyde Hirschfield, Shelburn, secretary-treasurer; Ely Orr, Sullivan, organizer. Cold weather prevented the Socialists from packing the hall.

Local Oolitic reports a big interest in Socialism, and the local is on the boom. Literature distribution is an important part of their work, which always produces results.

Additional election returns show more victories and gains in the town elections. Following are some of the reports:

Shirley—Only recently organized, and elected entire town ticket, consisting of trustee, treasurer, clerk and marshal.

Diamond—Socialists have had a good local for years. Elected trustee for third ward.

Eaton—Socialists recently revived the local, and came within 35 votes of carrying the town.

Oakland City—Socialists recently organized. Ticket received 48 votes, as against seven two years ago.

Arcadia—Socialists recently organized. First ticket in the field and polled 42 votes. Highest opponent polled 91.

Shelburn—Report last week of electing two candidates, and a third tied for trustee. In casting lots for the office the Socialist won.

Chrisney—Recently organized. Five votes last year and 14 this year.

Hymera—Good local. Socialists beat Democrats for every office, and would have elected marshal, but Democrat withdrew at last moment.

PLUTOCRAT PARTIES

Badly Worried by Enormous Socialist Vote in Ohio.

(From Cincinnati Enquirer.)

"Both the older parties," however, are disturbed by the unexpected and formidable growth of the Socialist strength. That party elects mayors in 12 cities and towns, the largest being Canton, the home of President William McKinley, and the smallest Dillonville, a mining camp in Jefferson county. Canton's population is 50,217.

"Next in size is Lima, which has 30,598. After that comes Lorain, with 28,883. Barberton, Mt. Vernon and Martin's Ferry are all close to the 10,000 mark.

"Altogether 162,438 people will be under Socialist rule after January, 1912. Conneaut, with 8,319 population, came within five votes of choosing a mayor of that faith.

"This does not tell the whole story, for in many cities the Socialists gained part control. In Hamilton, they dominate the city council completely, and in Columbus they hold the balance of power in the council and have elected representatives in the board of education.

"In Toledo, the first Socialist councilman has been elected, and Dayton has four such. A member of the party, Harry D. Thomas, was chosen as a Constitutional delegate from Cleveland.

"At several points the older parties were third in the race. The old party politicians have some consolation in the thought that only plurality victories were won by the new aggregation.

"The leaders of the new force assert that their strength is not that of the mushroom, but the result of organized, systematic educational campaigning.

"As proof they point to the fact that they retained the vote cast in Columbus last fall for J. L. Bachman for Congress.

"In a number of cities at the next election the Socialists will be enabled to take part in the general primary and nominate their candidates directly, having cast the necessary 10 per cent of the total vote. Their new-found success may bring them new recruits."

GENERAL SOCIALIST NEWS

Socialists of the Balkan States held a conference in Salonika, Turkey, and agreed that permanent peace among the ruling classes could only be guaranteed by amalgamating the various states under one general governing body.

Avanti, the leading Socialist daily in Italy, published at Milan, has a capital of nearly $250,000. Its equipment is first class, its circulation is increasing in leaps and bounds, and the ruling class acknowledge that Avanti's influence among the masses of the people is becoming all-powerful.

Another great anti-war demonstration has just been held by the Socialists in Brussels, Belgium. Members of Parliament and other Socialist leaders protested vehemently against the idea of war, and expressed their solidarity with the workers of other countries and their determination to do everything in their power to prevent war. A resolution to this effect was carried unanimously. After the meeting about 120,000 demonstrators marched through the city.

A poor duck of a preacher named Rev. A. W. Young, at Hallettsville, Texas, challenged Rev. G. G. Hamilton, formerly a fiery Socialist-baiter who swung into the Socialist party a few weeks ago, to debate on the question of the divine right of kings. The invitation was accepted and Young claimed that the people were fools, that they were unable to govern themselves and needed a king to govern them politically and capitalists to govern them industrially. It's a shame to tell what Hamilton did to that fellow. He won't issue any more challenges for some time to come.

On the motion by Comrade Spargo that the National Executive Committee issue in leaflet form the speech by Charles Russell to Catholics on Socialism, no action was taken owing to the lack of a quorum vote.

The National Executive Committee is now voting on the following motions by Comrade Hillquit:

"(1) That the next meeting of the National Executive Committee be held at Washington, D. C., on Saturday, December 16th, at 10 a. m."

"(2) That Comrade Ernest Untermann, Fred Warren and P. Vlag be invited to attend the meeting, or to send such statements and evidence in connection with the Shoaf matter as will enable the Committee to investigate Comrade Untermann's charges and to publish its findings for the information of the party membership."

U. Solomon, State Secretary of New York, reports the following: "That W. I. OFFICIAL VOTE AT PIQUA.

The official count of the recent election gives Kiser, Democrat, 1462; Baker, Republican, 934; Rost, Socialist, 733. Piqua's political sky is certainly very red at present, and the ink slingers on the old party papers are working overtime trying to explain away and minimize the Socialist party vote. Capitalists see the handwriting on the wall and call upon the sooth-sayers and astrologers of their class for an interpretation. Poor fools, while they're prophesying smooth things unto them the ever increasing host of Socialists are pouring through the breaches in the walls of capitalism. Let them dream. Next fall Piqua will roll up 1,500 votes for Socialism. Get busy, boys, there are but 365 days to work. Every comrade win one and the work is done. Surely you can convert one in that time.

Pay no attention to the vaporings of old party editors and hangers-on. Their ideas of Socialism and its tactics were evidently drawn from last year's almanac. Next week we hope to show up some more of capitalistic misrule in Piqua.—Piqua Searchlight.

WAS A SOCIALIST RESPONSIBLE FOR BUILDING GARY?

"Many South Chicago people think that the South Works of the Illinois Steel Company, which extend for two miles along the shore of Lake Michigan, might have been very much larger, and that the town and plant at Gary would never have been built if South Chicago had been rightfully treated," writes John A. Fitch in The Survey.

"'The big plant would have been built here instead of at Gary,' a bluff old South Chicago citizen explained to me, 'if it hadn't been for a damn little cuss of a Public Works Commissioner, under a Democratic mayor we had, named Dunne. . . . This fellow was a Socialist and he thought he was bigger than the people of Chicago.'

"The Commissioner in question was Joseph Medill Patterson, formerly one of the editors of the Chicago Tribune, a successful playwright, and author of several well known books. He became the villain of the plot by trying to enforce the law.

It seems that the South Chicago plant, being surrounded on three sides by property not owned by the company, could expand only in one direction—into the lake. So for many years slag was dumped into the lake for filling, and new land slowly made. There was no legal sanction for such appropriation of the lake bottom and when, during Mayor Dunne's administration, the company wished to start new construction, Commissioner Patterson refused a permit. This stopped expansion for a time and the Gary plant was started soon afterward. But one has only to look at the Gary plant, extending two or three miles along the lake, and in from the shore for a mile, to realize how impossible it would have been to build so great an industrial establishment on made land."

Westerman, the noted cartoonist, depicts the Socialist party as a man with a lion's head. That's an improvement on the elephant and the donkey.

Following the announcement of the election comes the statement that the wages of the steel workers are to be reduced. The capitalists know what the workers voted for.

Coffee is a nerve-wrecking drink, but if it keeps on soaring in price those who buy it for consumption will be afflicted with paralysis when they know the price that is demanded.

Why is it that so many men are discontented after election? They voted for prosperity and are suffering starvation. Good joke on those whose stomachs are weak for the want of something to eat.

"If labor raises an hundred thousand to defend the McNamaras, who will get it?"—Abilene Morning News. Here's a bigger one: If capitalists raise an hundred million to hang the McNamaras, who will get it? But first, where did THEY get it?

The Cleveland Socialist, "owned, controlled and published weekly by Local Cleveland Socialist Party," is the latest "Red Rag" to be flung to the breeze in Ohio. It is a splendid paper, full of vim and vigor, and will be eminently useful in its neck of the woods.

By far the biggest and costliest business in which the government is engaged is a business that tends to the DESTRUCTION of human life—the war business. Just suppose all this tremendous energy, now worse than wasted, were applied in the direction of SUSTAINING human life! And why shouldn't it be? In the name of humanity the Socialists of all nations demand that it SHALL be.

The Boy Scout Movement is not a military organization—at least so we are told by its promoters and supporters. But we would like to know why they must have rifles with which to drill and practice if it is not. The Iron Age, a hardware magazine, carries an advertisement of the Stevens Arms and Tool Company, advertising its rifles as just the thing for the Boy Scout Movement, saying the movement should mean Stevens' sales. Can you see the connection?

Men who join the Socialist party with dishonest motives soon understand that they are in the wrong circle. A man who becomes a Socialist for gain only is not even worthy the respect of the yellowest cur that haunts the garbage barrels at night. We've had a few, but they have gone back to the masters who control their convictions. And we are thankful that they have parted from men who have moral courage, honest convictions and manhood that cannot be bartered for a job. Scabs we don't want, and when we find a traitor in our ranks we shun him as we do the scab.

A few days ago I had an interview with a Wall Street banker. He was deploring present business conditions, and had a gloomy outlook for the future. He said that in his judgment there was only one solution to the problem, that the country had gone mad with extravagance; that the wage earners were demanding too short hours and too large pay, which increased the cost of production, and that the only way in his judgment to set things right and bring people to their senses—he put the blame wholly on the farmers and wage earners of the country—would be the bread line and starvation. In other words, to starve the producers of the country into submission until the wage earners would be glad to work for 90 cents per day and be willing to vote for whom they were told.—Hon. John G. McHenry in House of Representatives, June 9, 1910. Congressional Record, Vol. 45, p 8597.

The Milwaukee Journal's Opinion.

Carl Thompson, City Clerk of Milwaukee, has predicted 50,000 votes for the Socialist ticket in the municipal election to be held next April. The Journal sneers a little concerning this estimate and then seriously points out how the capitalist parties must save themselves. It says:

"But, while Mr. Thompson overestimates the Socialistic vote, there is good ground for his prediction that the Socialists will carry the city next April. They are counting, and wit hreason, upon victory in case the opposition is divided. They would have a considerable advantage in a three-cornered, three-party fight.

"The situation, of course, will present a different aspect with only one other ticket in the field, composed of non-partisans—of capable men of high character and civic intelligence, who would have the confidence of the community. In this way, and probably in no other way, can the great body of citizens, the majority, gain control of their city government."

The Socialist city government has more than made good. All the obstacles that were placed in its way have only served to bring out the capacity of the Socialist officials and to increase their fighting qualities. All the papers in the city opposed them, misrepresented them and hampered them at every turn. But the administration has steadily grown in skill and strength.

Now the Journal hints at the combine that is to be made against the Socialists. The "non-partisan good man" game and the "civic virtue" flimflam are to be revived and worked to save the city from the men who are giving it a decent administration. Of course, the non-partisan test will be utter and relentless opposition to the Socialists. The good man will be the one who can return the city to the old days of grafting and fat contracts.

At one time such a move would work. But the Socialists are educating the people up to something new, and they are organizing on the proper lines. There will soon be but one party to oppose them, and there will be no opportunity for the formation of a "non-partisan" aggregation, the intent of which is merely to continue or restore corrupt rule.

To Comrades and Working People:

Look over the advertising in your paper. Patronize those who patronize you. Remember those who refuse to advertise in a labor paper are unfair to labor and are not worthy of your patronage.

Has Socialism "Lost Its Punch?"

There is one phase of the aftermath of the recent elections which will prove either amusing or annoying to the Socialist according to his knowledge and personal temperament. It is the representation in the capitalist press that Socialism is never so harmless as in its hour of victory. The fact that we have won here and there in municipal conflicts is positive assurance that we intend nothing more than reform; that all our declarations of being a revolutionary body are mere bluff and not to be taken seriously.

Possibly the quarreling in our own ranks between "revolutionists" and "opportunists" has not passed unnoticed by these critics, and they conclude that to minimize our revolutionary character is to jab us in the most sensitive portion of our intellectual anatomy. And there are no doubt many Socialists who would respond to this goading with furious denials and denunciations of their traducers.

However, the veteran Socialist fighting man is easily able to keep his head and temper under such taunting. Like the powerful and skilled ring expert who knows he has his man measured, he pays little attention to his weakening opponent's attempts to "get his goat" by taunting him with having "lost his punch." He knows the game too well, and especially this particular trick, to lose his temper and expose himself to the attacks of his adversary. He knows he has the knock-out, that the taunts of his opponent are really a sign of fear and weakness, and he knows that he can put over the decisive smash when the finish draws nigh. At present he is persistently jabbing his enemy and preparing him for the coup de grace, and he knows also that the taunting is the direct result of his successful jabbing.

And so it is with our fight. While we are sparring for an opening and they think we can't land on them, we are "Revolutionaries," but after we have stung them here and there with an assortment of preliminary taps and jabs, we are "reformers."

Had we lost in Schenectady and Ohio and other places, these taunts would have remained unspoken, and our opponents would have congratulated themselves on suppressing dangerous revolutionaries. Not for one moment would they have represented us as conservative reformers.

After election, the position of our opponents is exactly reversed. Revolutionary assertions become mere bluffs, and reform is our real object.

Before election, we are discredited on the grounds that we want to "go too far." After election they discover that we won't go any farther than mere local reform, while they conceal the fact that it isn't possible that we should, not because we wouldn't, but because, with limited power, we can't. Therefore it is the easiest thing in the world to insist that we don't want to anyhow. We are hampered, therefore, because we can't do the things we want to—we wouldn't do them if we could.

This is the real explanation of the hackneyed statement that when "responsibility is thrust upon a Socialist it makes him conservative."

IN THE FIRST PLACE, THEY DON'T "THRUST" IT UPON US. WE TOOK IT INSTEAD. WE RELIEVED THEM OF "RESPONSIBILITY" DESPITE THEIR MOST DESPERATE EFFORTS TO RETAIN IT.

And in the second, we are only "conservative" because our power is limited to the locality in which we have won, because that locality itself is limited in its powers by the county, the county by the State, and the State by the National Government.

The trick is an old one. It has been used to describe Socialist success in Germany for these many years past. German Socialism was and is nothing more than mere reform, according to these pretenders. However, they haven't convinced the Kaiser or his ministers or the conservative ruling class of that country. And when the German Socialists obtain the requisite power—and they are fast obtaining it—these "Fatherlandless rascals" will fully demonstrate to the Kaiser that his opinion of their real characteristics was justified.

The same old trick is now being tried with us, as it is always bound to when Socialism is steadily wearing down its capitalist opponent. And like every other dodge that is sprung upon us, it is matter not for denunciation, but for examination and explanation instead. While we don't exactly welcome it, we understand its appearance, and the necessity that brings it forth.

Preparing for "State Socialism."

Following the lead of Gary, Perkins and other financial magnates, the presiding judge of the United States Court of Commerce, Martin A. Knapp, publicly declares that competition in the transportation industry must be abolished, a uniform freight rate adopted, and the wages of the workers increased. If this cannot he done by "regulation," then government ownership is unavoidable.

This declaration was made at the Houston Club of the University of Pennsylvania before what the press report calls "a distinguished audience of railroad officials." It adds that the judge's remarks were enthusiastically applauded by them.

The incident is but one of an ever-increasing number demonstrating the growth of the belief in the capitalist mind that the age of competition is about over, and that it is necessary to prepare for the next stage of exploitation in the form of government ownership, State capitalism, or "State Socialism," all practically synonymous terms in this case. The drift in this direction is now too marked to be n the least questionable.

No doubt it will meet with considerable opposition, just as the formation of the trust a decade ago was delayed by the "individuality" of the capitalists who afterwards, despite their reluctance, were forced to form these organizations. The next logical step, government ownership, will further reduce this "individuality" and will no doubt be fiercely opposed on this ground, with the additional objection to the "Socialistic" character of the proposition, which will then be seen with much more clearness than in the case of the formation of the trusts.

During the great formation period of trustification ten years ago, the Socialists consistently and continually drew attention to the fact that these combinations carried industrial society nearer to Socialism, but we were never able to convince the capitalists, great or small, that this was the fact. The great capitalist saw in it nothing but the diminution of his "individual initiative" and the petty exploiter was so blinded by rage and alarm that he remained deaf to all reason and limited himself to general denunciation of the new combinations as destroyers of competition.

The next stage, however, that of government ownership, will enlighten all capitalists, both great and small, to the "Socialistic" import of the new move. And in all probability, the opposition to it will take the form of an alarm against the coming of Socialism, which will at once give that question all the publicity needed to make it the "issue of the day" even with the capitalist, who have heretofore been able with tolerable success to keep it out of sight.

And it is well worth noting how preparations are being made beforehand to formulate an ethic for the workers under the new prospective regime. The position taken unanimously by the New York press, for instance, on the street cleaners' strike, to the effect that workers in the public service are on an utterly different footing to those working for private employers, that they have no right to strike, their only duty is to obey, etc., and the reiterated insistence upon this status shows that the capitalists are looking out for a future in which the number of "public" employes under government ownership will be enormously increased. And in insisting upon this status, they are taking time by the forelock, so to speak, formulating a new ethic for the exploited, which they perceive will be needed under the new conditions of exploitation.

Under their "government ownership" of the railroads and other great industries, they will insist on applying to the workers in such industries the same rules they insist upon now for the street cleaners. The employes will be given clearly to understand that they have forfeited the right to strike, as the "government ownership" in question has transformed them into "public" servants. The suggestion of Judge Knapp, that their pay be increased somewhat, is evidently intended as a measure to reconcile them to the new conditions.

However, no matter under what form capitalism may be disguised, it will still spell slavery for the workers, and there is little cause to fear that the latter will accept the dictum of the combined capitalists, disguised as the "government," that they shall have nothing whatever to say regarding the conditions under which they labor. The class struggle inherent in capitalist society, no matter what form it may take, is too stern a fact to be set aside by sophistry of the kind that declares the workers have forfeited their right to strike.

THE IMPOSSIBLIST BECOMES AN IMPERIALIST.

From certain sections of the State, for many months, has come the noise that resembled the creaking of a cricket behind some casement. This wheezy noise has not annoyed the editor of this page, because he was well aware of the fact that when these little creatures saw a light they would rush into its flames to be consumed. Amen.

The Socialist has been running now for a year. During this time the writer has tried to be the editor of the "Labor Page."

This position was offered to the writer untrammeled by any particular policy other than the publication of news that concerned organized labor. Let it be further understood that in line with the policy of the entire paper at no time have we considered men or women by their creed, politics or their nationality or their color.

At times we may have committed grievous errors, in speaking kindly of some soul that had passed to its reward after living a life of sacrifice, blazing the paths so that future posterity could travel to more verdant pastures. Many of those who dare to defame their names even after their demise, never contributed a red cent to the cause of organized labor, and they fail apparently to understand its principles. The human beings who cannot forget the frailties of their fellow beings at the time of death know nothing of the milk of human kindness.

Recently a union man who has suffered through the blacklist something which many of the "Impossibilists" know nothing about was elected as a member of the Constitutional Convention. This page of the paper had an article congratulating the Union brother on his victory, That he was not a Socialist, we admit the charge. But we ask the question, "Is the new policy of imperialism to be one of vicious scowls for those who disagree with our particular line of politics." If this be the wish of the majority of the party membership, let the next State Convention instruct all Socialist editors to confine themselves to subjects concerning the sun, moon, and stars. Considering that some of the imperialists desire to not only rule the destinies of the party, but wish now to give instructions as to how we are to proceed in our labor unions, our eating, sleeping and all other personal matters, it would be well for these imperial dictators to meet in convention and then let their edict go forth over the State, so we shall be able to breath without giving offense to our "impossiblist" critics. Until such time as this action takes place, The Socialist will continue to speak kindly of honest men, dead or alive, and espouse the cause of organized labor.

JAMES O'CONNELL

Re-Elected President and Will Devote His Entire Time to Organization Under Salary.

Atlanta, Nov. 18.—Many matters of importance to the Metal Trades were discussed at the recent convention of the Metal Trades Department, and arrangements have been made to materially strengthen the organization during the coming year. Owing to the fact that the Secretary's work has become extremely heavy, the President of the Department has been directed to give his entire time to the Department, a salary being provided therefor It was decided that a meeting of the representatives of the various affiliated internationals should hereafter be held at least four times a year, the object being to get closer co-operation between the different organizations in the Department. A resolution was also passed asking the assistance of the American Federation of Labor to help the Metal Trades Department to discourage the introduction of the Taylor system now being inaugurated in some of the arsenals and other workshops where guns and equipment are turned out. The new officers elected are: President, James O'Connell; First Vice President, J. F. Valentine, President of the Molders' Union; Second Vice President, J. W. Kline, President of the Brotherhood of Blacksmiths; Third Vice President, J. F. Franklin, President of the Brotherhood of Boilermakers; Fourth Vice President, F. D. Daly, President of the Metal Polishers; Secretary, A. J. Berres, Pattern Makers League.

Washington.—A new ruling by Postmaster General Hitchcock, recently issued, is of interest to all trade unions having official publications. This latest ruling grants a full year as the period in which the publications are entitled to the second class privilege after subscriptions have expired. This action rescinds such existing rules providing for varying periods of acceptance, ranging from three months to a year, according to the frequency with which the publication is issued. The new regulation gives publishers greater opportunity to secure renewal of subscriptions.

The firm of E. C. Atkins & Co., of Indianapolis, Ind., manufacturers of building trades tools, are unfair to organized labor.

Jackson, Tenn.—The strikers on the Illinois Central railroad were proffered and accepted the First Baptist church in which to hold a mass meeting recently. Addresses were made by prominent labor men and the auditorium was packed and the auditors enthusiastic.

THE FEDERATION CONVENTION AT ATLANTA, GEORGIA.

The prophets outside of the labor movement began to forecast many changes, both in personal and executive programs, months before the convention. Much of this talk came through the affiliation of the Western Federation of Miners with the Eastern body. The Western movement like the Eastern, is permeated with Socialistic adherents. Many of these workers have reached this line of thought through oppression brought on by strikes and lockouts, bullpen outrages, and the curse of military despotism, coupled with a crown of thorns that represents corrupt privileges in our State Legislatures and the shaming of Justice in the sectarian courts.

Nevertheless, both sides appear willing to move by evolutionary processes. One of the things noticable at the present convention is the realization of the fact both inside of the "moderate" and "progressive" groups that necessity, the mother of invention, demands that we march in close order. This new order of "industrialism" is to supersede the old policies of trade autonomy. One of the most progressive moves made by the 1911 convention is the adoption of the Initiative and Referendum system for the election of the A. F. of L. officials. It means that the organization itself will be represented by a democracy instead of an absolute order of aristocracy. It will compel leaders to confine themselves to the advocacy of earnest principles instead of the propagation of methods that have but one object namely "continuence in office."

The spirit of the West united with the spirit of the East is bound to bring for beneficial results for those who toil.

PLUMBERS AND STEAMFITTERS.

The trade journal for November proves that the membership are taking active interest in the various state conventions and the central bodies throughout the States. They also advertise the fact that some of their members do not believe in race suicide.

Poor eyesight is our excuse for not being able to print the letter written by that world famous general, Thomas Birch—B. A.

BROTHER FRANK SYKES DIED AT HIS POST OF DUTY.

We tender our heartfelt condolence to the bereaved family of our friend and brother, Frank S. Sykes.

He was called to rest while fullfilling his mission on earth. When the command came he was where his soul found delight and that place was his home and the Bricklayer's union meeting. He went from the place of terrestial honor to a place where all such worthy souls receive their honored reward, and that reward is —rest.

Frank Sykes had been honored by his brethern, with the office of delegate to the coming national convention. His mind was set on great things for his fellow men on this earth. Let us fear not brethern, for his departure. He is attending a convention where peace and harmony prevails. Then why mourn the dead. Where is peace, there is always joy—What a Reward.

PRINTING PRESSMEN No. 6o

The present tide of activity in the printing trades has taken hold of the Pressmen with renewed vigor. The Tuesday evening session was one full of interest and enthusiasm. The "Get-Together-Fever" appears to be catching.

The various Southern state officials are holding up the Pressmen's southern home as an example of the mission of organized labor and its desire to prevent old age making paupers out of its membership.

Don't forget the UNION LABEL after the election Mr. Office Seeker.

Don't forget that we are soon to have an election of judges. Don't GROWL at conditions. Change them by your VOTES.

Don't worry Mr. Jobless Worker. The Civic Federation will continue to give its banquets. But refrain exposing your rags outside the banquet hall. You might interfere with the inspirational orations which the feasters deliver.

COMRADES AND FRIENDS.

Men's and Young Men's All Wool Suits and Overcoats, $15.00 value, only $10.00, at The Liberty, 198-200 East Main St., between Fourth and Fifth Sts.

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

By Comrade Jas. E. Thompson.

Q. What is the object of Socialism?

A. Improvement in the condition of labor, reduction of the hours of labor in proportion to the progress of production.

Q. How do you intend to do this?

A. By organizing the working class into a political party to conquer the public powers now controlled by capitalists.

Q. What do you mean by public powers?

A. Mines, railroads, telegraphs, telephones, and all industries.

Q. Would that benefit me personally?

A. Certainly.

Q. How?

A. By giving you a national insurance against lack of employment.

Q. Wouldn't I have to work just as hard and as long?

A. Certainly not.

Q. How's that?

A. You would be producing for consumption and not for profit.

Q. How about the pay; would I get as much as I do now?

A. You would get more; you would save what you now give to enrich the capitalist who produces nothing, but fattens on your labor.

Q. Suppose I invent something, what good would I derive from it?

A. The public would have free use of it, and you would be remunerated by the public.

Q. Why do you have women in your party?

A. We believe in equal civil and political rights for men and women, and the abolition of all laws discriminating against women.

Q. What about the working women and children?

A. We would have compulsory school education for all children under 18 years of age, free meals, clothing, books, etc., where necessary.

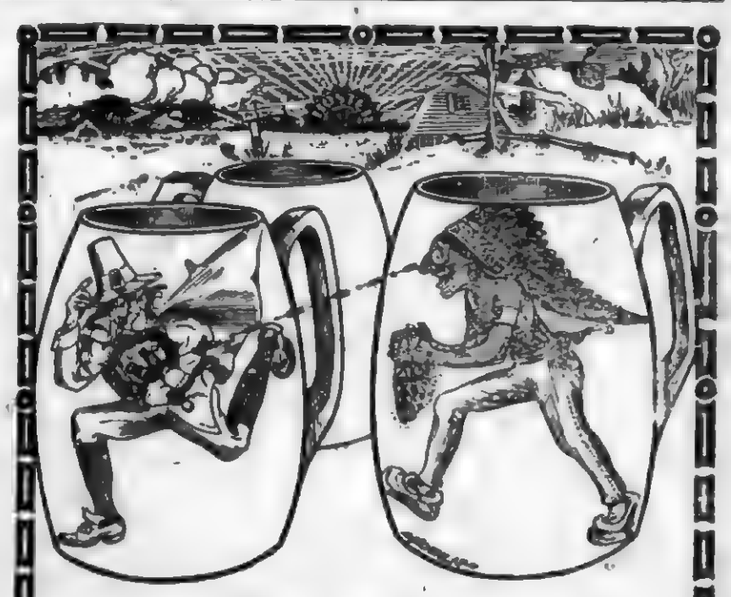
Prohibition of the employment of children under school age, or the employment of female labor in occupations detrimental to health or morality.

Q. Why do you carry a red flag and a torch?

A. As a symbod of the creed of our party; the red representing the red blood of brotherhood, the torch enlightenment. Nothing in religion or other creeds that is truer, higher, or better.

Q. How do I know but what your party leaders would be grafters and thieves when they were in power?

A. We have anticipated that, my friend, and have provided against it. In the first place his resignation is signed before the nomination and election, giving us, the voters, the right of recall of our representatives. All purchases made, and moneys expended are itemized and posted in a conspicuous place. Now, brother, listen: If you never rose, how can you fall? If you never risk, how can you gain? We are now at the wheel with the throttle wide open. You have not turned the switch or cranked up yet. Get in the running. Ours is a real purpose and we mean to pursue it unto realization. You say the creed of Socialism is a great thing, but we will not see it in operation for a long time (your another). We could have it now if you had any backbone. If a fellow worker would hit you in the nose, you would fight like the devil. But capital has punched it all over your face and you go back for more. The highwayman says stand and produce. Capital does the same thing, besides making you lay down, roll over, and eat out of its hand. The brain telegraphs the hands and body what to do. Who's your telegraph operator? Socialism claims a man should get what he produces. This is what he does with it at the present time. He makes it, puts it together, wraps it up, plays Santa Claus, and puts it on the tree of capitalism as a present. You think you are thinking your own thinks, but capital has been doing your thinking so long you think they are your thinks. This is something to think about. We may be at the foot of the ladder, but the steps are larger and the handholds easier grasped every year. You have no more excuse to quit than a child attempting to walk. Necessity is a Spartan mother, but her sons are seldom weaklings. We came, we saw, we conquered; that's Socialism.



Overcoats

This is a mighty satisfactory place for Overcoat buying. You can't comprehend how big and good a place it is until you come in and take a leisurely ramble through the stock. You never saw such a variety of overcoat style and fabric as the men will spread out before you. America and Europe have been search for fabrics for Union overcoats. You'll see all kinds of new wool rough effects to give warmth without overburdening weight, and styles to fit your person as well as your personality.

The Supreme Court of the United States decided that moving pictures based on the scenes of a copyrighted book may constitute infringement of the copyright on the book on the reserved right to dramatize.

State Labor Commissioner Van Duyn, of Iowa, has instituted a crusade against Greek bootblacks who are importing youngsters from Greece, in the shining parlors, in violation of the contract labor lows.

Holyoke, Mass.—The employes of the Chicopee electric light department are to be put on the eight-hour day. Alderman O'Connor, a member of the street car men's union, has been active in having the law enforced in the city departments. While there have been many delays the union councilman has finally been successful in having the law generally observed.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Former Sheriff John E. Shields, of Westmoreland county, who was sentenced to two years and four months in the Western penitentiary for perjury, is a prisoner in his own jail, his conviction growing out of the coal strike in the Westmoreland fields last year. Shields was one of the active spirits in fighting the sheet and tin workers during the strike against the Steel Trust at New Kensington, Apollo and Vandergrift in 1909. He made himself conspicuously obnoxious in various ways to Organizers Arthur E. Holder and Jeff Pierce of the American Federation of Labor, during the progress of the strike, these organizers having been detailed to assist the strikers. At last Shields "got his."

Washington.—Fourteen boilermakers, not members of the Boilermakers' union, were offered jobs at Albany, N. Y., but upon arriving found they were to be used as strike breakers. Although the men were without money they refused to go to work, having been deluded into coming to accept regular employment. A similar instance occured in Sedalia, Mo., where sixteen men, some of whom had families with promise of steady employment, not being informed of the strike in progress. These latter also refused to be used as strike breakers.

San Francisco.—Under the auspices of the Federation of Shop Men of the Harriman lines, there has been produced the labor drama, "Labor and Capital," at the Valencia theater, for the purpose of raising funds for the shop men now on strike.

Washington.—Several hundred clerks employed by the Southern Railway Company of this city, have been granted an advance in salary, ranging from five to fifteen per cent, according to length of service, the increase taking effect November 1.

Washington.—The United Textile Workers of America at their last convention took action to affiliate with the International Federation of Textile Workers' Association. The membership of the International Federation is approximately 430,000, with headquarters in England

Pottsville, Pa.—The miners of the anthracite region in convention decided to make a demand for an increase in wages, the 8-hour day, and recognition of the union, after the contract expires in March next. Other demands were also formulated, one regarding the weighing of coal and the check-off system.

Pittsburg.—Eight miners were killed in the Adrian shaft of the Rochester, Pittsburgh Coal and Iron Company's mine, located four miles from Punxsutawney, Pa. Fifty miners who entered the shaft hours after the accident, in an attempt to effect a rescue, were driven out by gas. The work of rescue was abandoned pending the arrival of the mine rescue car from the government station here. After the arrival of the car, six bodies were recovered.

Pittsburg.—The bi-monthly examination of the steel shops of the Republican Iron and Steel Company, was held on November 13, at the general office of the corporation at Youngstown, Ohio, for the purpose of fixing the wage scale of the Puddlers for November and December. This is the usual manner of determining the wage scale, it being based upon the current price of the product produced. It is not expected, owing to the backward condition of the iron market, that wages will be advanced.

Los Angeles Bankers Raise Slush Fund.

Will Fight Entire Socialist Ticket, Particularly Job Harriman. Working Class Is Aroused.

(By National Socialist Press.)

Los ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 20. Every banker in Los Angeles has been assessed $1000 by the campaign committee of the so-called good government organization. This will add $50,000 to the already large slush fund that is being gathered and spent to defeat Job Harriman and his associates on the Socialist ticket.

The fact that twenty eastern cities have recently elected the Socialist candiadtes for mayor and that the rising tide of Socialism has swept several hundred Socialists into office has greatly alarmed the fusionists who have been forced to combine in the hope of defeating the working class party.

Until the primary election there was little alarm but when the immense vote of the workers was rolled up a cry of pain and alarm went up from the camp of the old time corrupt politicians.

The efforts that are being made to turn the tide away from the Socialists would be comedy if it were not for the fact that bribery and corruption is running rampant in a city that has been fairly clean.

In order to turn public opinion from the big issues—the steal of lands and water in the San Fernando Valley, the diversion of Owens River Aqueduct waters to the lands owned by H. G. Otis and E. T. Earl, the "publishers plunderbund", the grab of $31,000,000 worth of water front at San Pedro Harbor, and similar deals, the "good government" gang is dealing in a series of falsehoods and miserpresentation of the policy of the Socialists.

While this is going on the workers are distributing fully 220,000 pieces of literature each week and making 65 precincts resound with enthusiastic hall meetings and hundreds of outdoor meetings each week.

The Wednesday night meetings are held in Temple Auditorium whilh ascomodates 3500 persons. Large overflow meetings are invariably held there. On one occasion, the night before the primary election the auditorium and all other down town halls were filled and fully 25,000 persons listened to speakers on the streets while the police vainly tried to stop the speakers from addressing the throng.

A large store building was rented in the heart of the business district. One thousand seats were provided and "noon meetings" were started. These meetings soon became "Continuous performances" and speakers were in such demand that an all day schedule has been arranged. Business men by the hundreds flock to this meeting which usually begins at noon and runs until ten o'clock at night. Sixty-five experienced speakers are in the field. Among these half a dozen among the candidates on the Socialist ticket have developed into eloquent speakers and their oratorical power has brought them much local fame. The campaign has developed a number of writers and the literature distributed is bright and clever, dealing with the needs of the hour.

Two printing establishments, The CTIZEN PRESS and the WHITE PRESS, entirely manned by Socialist workers and employing about 40 men are being run on a three shift schedule turning out copies of the COMING VICTORY. This Publication was started early in the campaign and the last of them off the press will be full sized newspapers with eight pages, run on presses of a daily paper and reaching 150,000 circulation. The distributive team consists of 245 precinct captains and scores of lieutenants. It is claimed that 125,000 pieces can be put into the homes of the people inside of five hours after a signal is given.

Among the literature that has been in great demand is the platform adopted by the convention several months ago. This is considered one of the strongest documents that has been issued. Since the women have gained their vote there has been redoubled interest in the campaign. The woman's committee is composed of 25 leaders with several hundred volunteer assistants. These women as deputy registry clerks registered an average of 4000 woman a day. They are now conducting schools with all the paraphernalia of lection booths. They are teaching women how to vote and incidentally teaching them the Socialist philosophy. At Socialist headquarters twelve departments are managing the campaign. With them are working hundreds of volunteers who work day after day at the rooms in the Canadian Building, where almost the entire lower floor is in the possession of the Socialists.

There are about 175,000 names on the great register and it is believed an immense vote will be cast on Dec. 5. Job Harriman is making about five speeches a day besides taking an active part in the management of the campaign.

Every newspaper in the city with the exception of the Scripps paper is opposing the Socialists and their columns reek with falsehoods, misrepresentations and vilification of the Socialist candidates. The demand for Socialist papers and the editions of the COMING VICTORY show that the power of the kept press is waning. Los Angeles Socialists are confident of victory at the coming election.

Los Angeles newspapers refuse to take any advertisements of Socialist meetings and do all they can to confuse dates and conceal facts of meetings. The street car companies have also shut down on advertising of Socialist meetings. An illuminated car that was available early in the campaign has been withdrawn from use and the campaign committee was told that they could not have the car even if they would buy it outright. It was then discovered that advertising was not necessary. A whisper passed around was enough to bring out 10,000 persons. This was demonstrated Wednesday night. The announcement was made that the Wednesday night meetings would be held in Temple Auditorium which seats 3500 persons.

The meeting was announced for 8 o'clock and at seven the hall was nearly filled and at 7:20 the police closed the doors. Within five minutes arrangements were made for an overflow in the Walker Theater. Twelve hundred persons crowded in that place and again overflowed. Burbank Hall, seating 800 was next utilized. The three immense overflow meetings were held in the streets near the various halls and theaters.

While this was going on Mayor George Alexander, who seeks re-election on the "good government" ticket and half a dozen of his most brilliant apologists held a meeting in Blanchard Hall, which has a capacity of 800. The place was two-thirds filled. Thousands of Socialists left the halls to make room for non-Socialists so that more converts might be made.

The women are taking a livelier interest every day. Home meetings are being held in two dozen homes each afternoon and these are being attended by thousands of women who, in turn, are going out and prosolyting. The demand for literature for women is greater than the supply.

Charlotte Perkins Gilman will arrive in Los Angeles in a few days. She will first speak before three of the most fashionable and exclusive woman's clubs in the city, then she will speak for the Socialists until the end of the campaign. Helen McGregor Todd, state factory inspector of Illinois, will make several speeches for the Socialists. Among the other women of national fame who are assisting in the campaign are Mila Tupper Maynard, May Cady Williams, Tana Alon, Mary E. Garbutt, Sallie E. Bowman, Dr. Laura Lacko, Dr. Ida Patterson, Laura George Cannon, Frances Noel and half a dozen more. In addition a large number of local women have developed great ability on the platform.

SOCIALISM THE ANTIDOTE FOR ANARCHY.

By M. F. Parker.

Modern Socialism as an organization may be said to date from the formation of the "International Workingmen's Association," by Karl Marx and his co-workers in London in the year 1864, and always referred to as "The International." This was the first crude effort to bring the working class of all nations into a militant organization formed along lines of the class struggle.

This organization being composed of some of the most profound thinkers of Europe brought together that great revolutionary triumvirate Marx, the German Socialist, Mazzinni, the Italian Anarchist, and Bakounine, the Russian Nihilist, each easily the profoundest philosopher of his country and his cult.

They held some ideas in common. They were agreed on the class struggle, and a militant propaganda, the overthrow of the present order and the establishment of the co-operative commonwealth, etc. But as to the means to be employed in accomplishing their ends they parted company. Marx contended that agitation, education and organization were the only effective means of progress, while the Anarchists on the other hand contended that history furnishes ample proof that these peaceful methods are wholly inadequate, and that force and violence in this, as in all previous political revolutions, must necessarily be the price and means of success. The peaceful policy of Marx prevailed. But the two factions grew more hostile until 1872, when Bakounine was expelled from the International in convention at the Hague. He took with him some 30 of the delegates and organized the Anarchist branch of the International under the name of the "Black International" in contradistinction from the Red International, as the followers of Marx were called.

Bakounine declared in his statement of principles: "The Blacks reject the educational methods of the Reds and declare force, destruction and devastation.

To remove the "International" as far as possible from the influence of the Anarchists of Europe its headquarters was transferred to America in 1872, with Burnette G. Haskell, secretary.

After the withdrawal of the Reds to America the Blacks were unable to maintain an organized existence. In America the International maintained but a normal existence until 1885, when it gave place to the S. L. P., which was the undisputed Socialist movement in this country until 1897, when by reason of the non-progressive and purely doctrinaire policy of the S. L. P., the present irresistible Socialist party was organized.

Following the "educate and organize" policy of the Reds, the first plan and practice was to have a graduated membership of three degrees. The membership cards issued for each degree was respectively red, white and blue. The red card, or first degree members, were students who must complete a prescribed course of reading before he was admitted to the second or white card degrees. First degree members were not permitted to take part in the management of the affairs of the organization. The white card members were the executive committee.

It is interesting to note that although both in Europe and America Socialists and Anarchists at first acted together, their ideas of violence were so radically different that it was but a short while until they parted company, and are today most hostile enemies. And in proportion as Socialism is strong in any country, there Anarchy is weak. And so few of the shallow pated opponents of Socialism know the history or philosophy of either movement. Few seem to know that the red of the Socialist is the symbol of peace and is the only sure antidate for the black for Anarchism.

Insurance against sickness is compulsory in Hungary for all persons employed in industrial undertakings and whose earnings do not exceed $500 a year.

The San Francisco Housesmiths' union defeated the proposed amendment to its constitution that would have compelled all members of the union to secure work only through the business agent.

The Socialist, $1.00 per year.

The Socialist.

By Annie Minturn.

The Socialist is a revealer, an interpreter, an awakener. His revelations lay bare the vampire crimes of men; by these revelations, he is enabled to read the signs of the time, now ominous in meaning, and interpret the handwriting on the wall, so that together, he may carry his message of revelation and interpretation, in forceful speech, to a dreaming world, and awaken in it an answering note of response.

The Socialist holds within his grasp the magic key of persistence, to which, in the end, every lock must yield. He is acquainted with grief and misfortune, because his mission leads him among the lowly, whom as brothers he loves with that broad and rare outstretching that embraces all humanity in its clasp; the sad of heart, the poor, the weak, the sick, the bad, the toiler, aye, and even those who toil not. And so, having felt these heart throbs by their very nearness, he is the fitter phophet to sound the warning thunders from the mount.

Again from Sinai does he reiterate the words that Moses spoke: "Ye shall not make gods of silver, neither shall ye make gods of gold.

"Your riches are corrupted, your gold and silver is cankered.

"Ye shall not afflict any widow, or fatherless child.

"Ye shall not be to the poor an usurer.

"And, moreover, the profit of the earth is for all."

To the Socialist, his creed is to him a veritable pilar of cloud by day, and of fire by night. Each dawn for him is arched with Hope's fair rainbow, through which, just beyond in the distance, he catches glimpses of the Promised Land, where his people are to dwell; and keeping this rainbow vision ever bright before him, glorious in light and color and form, undaunted he presses forward toward the victory he knows must triumph.

All religion, all philosophy, all science, all truth, all poetry of the ages is his; a religion so simple and so tender, clustering around the lofty and beautiful ideals of Jesus of Nazareth, who preached the oneness of brotherhood for all mankind; a philosophy of justice, "by whose pure light, he first distinguishes, then pursues the right;" a science that in its strict unalterable balance, must, at the last, weigh just and righteous compensation, a truth, to which since creation's dawn, man has not dared to aim, that truth alone that maketh free; and a poetry that carries his soul out of this world, on the wings of fancy, to the very throne of the Infinite, where it trembles to behold man's unholy inhumanity to man.

To the Socialist who has within him these ideals, who cherishes with every breath the welfare of his kind, there can be no such a thing as failure; there can be for him no such a thing as fear. His heart's desire for justice, lifts up that heart to that for which it yearns, and at that elevation he may listen in ecstacy to the music of the spheres, he may breathe the rose breath of nature's fulness, while his hope wanders through blossoms and sunshine and fragrance, the vision of his hopefulfilled.

The Socialist may be poor, the Master Socialist was poor, he had not where to lay his head, yet, by his association with misfortune, which softens his nature, enriches his sympathies and enlarges his ideals, is he doubly blest with a wealth the world can not give or take away from him, and this heart-wealth makes it possible for him to live his everyday life heroic, aye, poetic. He lives his faith, the living faith, his labor is one of love, and since God is love, he seeks to bring God to his fellow men, and without the finger of God, none of life's problems can be solved. This the Socialist knows to be the subject of his gospel message, and his prayer is now and always:

"Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget"

Sign the Suffrage Petition.

By Nellie M. Zeh.

To the intelligent interpreter of the signs of the times, there is no more doubt that the women of the Untied States will soon be granted unrestricted and equal suffrage, than that oaks grow from acorns or that present industrial system is the outgrowth of the one which preceeded it.

Another decade will sweep the very last and most reactionary state into line. Every force in society, both economic and psychologic, is at work to bring about this revolution. It is the inevitable outcome of capitalist class rule and the wage system.

With the development of machinery and the wage system has come the demand for cheap labor. Women and children supply this demand and have thus become formidable competitors of men in the labor market. According to the census of 1910, 9,000,000 women and 5,000,000 children are employed in our mills, mines, factories, shops and stores. 5,000,000 men are all or part of the time idle.

Girls of the upper working class and middle class remain longer in school than boys of the same classes of society. This fact together with the one that women are entering the industries in ever- increasing numbers makes for greater intelligence of the female sex. Because of this intelligence and that as a rule, women work for less money than men, more and more will men be supplanted by women and more and more will both men and women of the working class see the need of the ballot in the hands of women.

The working man will at last awaken to a realization of the position in which he has placed himself, and learn of his sister who works by his side, that she is not there from choice, but because conditions which he controls through his vote have forced her there. In repy to his question, "What would you do with the ballot if you had it?" her answer in nine cases out of ten would be. "I would vote to elect men and women into office who would make it possible for me to leave this work for you men, and give me a home with babies to love and a husband to love me."

Such knowledge as this is rapidly preparing the mind of the working class man to accept the nroposition of woman suffrage when it is presented to him, as it soon will be, by the capitalist class politicians.

Men, all men, both capitalist class and working class, will eventually fall in with the idea of woman's suffrage and vote to grant her the ballot, but not from any sense of chivalry, not from any sense of duty, nor yet from any sense of justice, but because they must in order to save themselves.

Barring the further progress of the capitalist class stand out in letters large and significant the words, Trade Unionism and Socialism. These mighty weapons of the working class can no longer be ignored. So, like drowning men clutching at straws, the supporters of the capitalist system are looking in every direction for some avenue of escape, something to stay the irresistible onward sweep of these two great wings of the working class movement. And now they have discovered something which they believe will do it. The women! Ah! yes, the women. Grant women the ballot and the trick will be done.

Women represent the most reactionary force in society. Conservative, superstitious, ignorant of the political and economic needs of the world, the women, who number at least one-half of the adult population of the United States, will be given the vote that their conservatism may stay the onward progress of the intelligent working class.

To pit ignorance against inteligence, to meet progress with reaction, these have ever been the tactics of the rulers when their power was assailed.

And now what are we of the labor and Socialist movement going to do about it? Shall we oppose woman suffrage because it will be the next thing to be used by our enemies against us? No, indeed. We know more than that. We have learned through our scientific training that it is useless to oppose the evolutionary processes of society. But shall we, on the other hand, stand inanely and indifferently by and do nothing because "capitalism will give woman the ballot anyway?" Again we say, more emphatically than ever, NO a thousand times NO. Such an attitude is just what the bourgeois class of society would be glad to see us assume. They want the glory of given woman the ballot. They want her friendship. They want the exclusive right to train and educate her for themselves. Her vote will count just as much in an election to hold their puppets in office as that of any man. They want her vote and are going to get it too unless we wake up and do our share in helping her to obtain her rights and incidentally train and educate her to our ways of thinking. We also want her vote. Aye, even more than that, we NEED her vote, and the only way to get it is to show ourselves to be in sympathy with her cause. When we have won the women, we have won the world.

So friends and comrades bestir yourselves. Sign the woman's suffrage petition which is now being circulated by the women and friends of the Socialist party. We cant afford to be indifferent now. If woman votes against us our beloved cause would suffer a blow from which it might not recover for twenty years, perhaps longer. Sign the petition today and send to the National Headquarters, 205 W. Washington st., Chicago. Sign it now. Urge others to sign. Copies of this petition can be had upon application. Go out among your friends and neighbors for signautres. Have it presented at all your meetings. Keep it going. Do not lose a day from now until next session of congress when it will be presented by Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee, Socialist congressman and labor's only representative in congress. It would be nothing less than a calamity to miss this opportunity. Sister Comrades, this is for you, for your children, for your homes. Present this petition everywhere, at your clubs, union meetings, afternoon teas, church festivities, W. C. T. U. meetings, anywhere and everywhere. We want thousands of signatures, millions of them. SIGN. SIGN NOW. SIGN THE WOMAN'S EQUAL SUFFRAGE PETITION.

Are We Afraid We Will Get It.

By A. M. Simons.

The Socialists have preached many sermons from the text, "He that seeketh his soul shall find it." They have proved that those who seek reforms directly and exclusively seldom get them, while those that ask for minor changes as incidental to a great revolution are sure to get the momentary relief even before they attain to political power.

Because Socialists insist upon having the whole bakery, grist mill and wheat fields their opponents gladly throw them whole baskets of half loaves.

Now that Socialism is striding ahead with seven league boots, capitalist governments all over the world are hastening to promise concessions. They are doing this because to them Socialism is a threat. They are doing it because Socialists have educated the workers to want those things as a part of the preparation for the overthrow of capitalism.

Some Socialists are frightened at this prospect. They cry out that if we are not careful we will get what we want. They warn us that if we do not take heed our predictions may be realized They bewail the fact that we are getting what we desire.

They tell us that we must no longer ask for reforms. If we do they will be granted us. We must not ask for an extension of social ownership, because if we do capitalist governments will give it to us. We must not call for child labor laws lest chilldren be really shut out from the mills and the mines and factories. We must not call for relief for the unemployed lest the workless be relieved.

We are told that because we have progressed so far along this road we must, therefore, leave it and seek another. Because we have gained so much for the workers by remaining upon the earth and demanding what we want, we must henceforth cease asking for things within reach and begin to bay for the moon, because forsooth, that cannot be given us.

Our attention is called to the horrible example of Germany, where Socialists have forced the government to grant old-age pensions and almost the whole program of state capitalism, and where the result is a Socialist army some five million strong, that no threatens to take what capitalists cannot give.

That capitalist parties will try to steal the Socialist thunder is certain. They will take plank after plank from our platform. Experience has proven, and present tendencies foretell still greater activities in this pilfering. But they would not take these planks unless we prepared them. They do not leave us the poorer by this stealing. They do not even accomplish the object at which they aim—that of attracting people from the Socialist movement. On the contrary, it is just in Wisconsin, the home of LaFollette, and Los Angeles, the very heart of reform, that Socialism is strongest.

The reverse is equally true. Socialism is not stronger nor are reforms granted where Socialists live in constant fright lest they ask for something that they will get, and where Socialists conventions are eager to build a platform that no one will want to steal, and also for which no one seems to want to fight.

The class struggle is fought upon earth. It is fought by workers. It is fought to obtain the things that workers want. The road to Socialism lies trough the class struggle. The fight for Socialism must, therefore, be waged by demanding every advantage possible for the working class, and always as a part of the struggle for the whole product of labor.

Millionaire Socialists are not interested in the class struggle today. They can afford to dream of Utopia.

Those who live by leadership may find it easier to shout generalities than to master the details of an actual fight. They may even feel an instinctive fear that they would lack employment if labor should demand something more than empty phrases.

A movement that advances upon solid ground, along a definite roadway, must be organized with democratic management, intelligent servants in office and an educated rank and file.

A movement that stands still and shrieks needs nothing but a "yell leader."

Revolutionary, working class Socialists are not afraid that capitalists will steal their platform. They are not afraid that if they tell where they are going their enemies may smooth the road or even mislead them.

Congressman Berger's correspondence will not be neglected this winter. Besides the office force that he maintains out of his own salary, the National Executive Committee of the Socialist party has decided to help out. The sum of $25 a week was appropriated for a new clerk for Berger, beginning with the December session of Congress, because of the great amount of work which will flow in upon the Socialist Congressman.

The Supreme Court of the United States decided that moving pictures based on the scenes of a copyrighted book may constitute infringement of the copyright on the book on the reserved right to dramatize.

State Labor Commissioner Van Duyn, of Iowa, has instituted a crusade against Greek bootblacks who are importing youngsters from Greece, in the shining parlors, in violation of the contract labor lows.

Holyoke, Mass.—The employes of the Chicopee electric light department are to be put on the eight-hour day. Alderman O'Connor, a member of the street car men's union, has been active in having the law enforced in the city departments. While there have been many delays the union councilman has finally been successful in having the law generally observed.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Former Sheriff John E. Shields, of Westmoreland county, who was sentenced to two years and four months in the Western penitentiary for perjury, is a prisoner in his own jail, his conviction growing out of the coal strike in the Westmoreland fields last year. Shields was one of the active spirits in fighting the sheet and tin workers during the strike against the Steel Trust at New Kensington, Apollo and Vandergrift in 1909. He made himself conspicuously obnoxious in various ways to Organizers Arthur E. Holder and Jeff Pierce of the American Federation of Labor, during the progress of the strike, these organizers having been detailed to assist the strikers. At last Shields "got his."

Washington.—Fourteen boilermakers, not members of the Boilermakers' union, were offered jobs at Albany, N. Y., but upon arriving found they were to be used as strike breakers. Although the men were without money they refused to go to work, having been deluded into coming to accept regular employment. A similar instance occured in Sedalia, Mo., where sixteen men, some of whom had families with promise of steady employment, not being informed of the strike in progress. These latter also refused to be used as strike breakers.

San Francisco.—Under the auspices of the Federation of Shop Men of the Harriman lines, there has been produced the labor drama, "Labor and Capital," at the Valencia theater, for the purpose of raising funds for the shop men now on strike.

Washington.—Several hundred clerks employed by the Southern Railway Company of this city, have been granted an advance in salary, ranging from five to fifteen per cent, according to length of service, the increase taking effect November 1.

Washington.—The United Textile Workers of America at their last convention took action to affiliate with the International Federation of Textile Workers' Association. The membership of the International Federation is approximately 430,000, with headquarters in England

Pottsville, Pa.—The miners of the anthracite region in convention decided to make a demand for an increase in wages, the 8-hour day, and recognition of the union, after the contract expires in March next. Other demands were also formulated, one regarding the weighing of coal and the check-off system.

Pittsburg.—Eight miners were killed in the Adrian shaft of the Rochester, Pittsburgh Coal and Iron Company's mine, located four miles from Punxsutawney, Pa. Fifty miners who entered the shaft hours after the accident, in an attempt to effect a rescue, were driven out by gas. The work of rescue was abandoned pending the arrival of the mine rescue car from the government station here. After the arrival of the car, six bodies were recovered.

Pittsburg.—The bi-monthly examination of the steel shops of the Republican Iron and Steel Company, was held on November 13, at the general office of the corporation at Youngstown, Ohio, for the purpose of fixing the wage scale of the Puddlers for November and December. This is the usual manner of determining the wage scale, it being based upon the current price of the product produced. It is not expected, owing to the backward condition of the iron market, that wages will be advanced.

Los Angeles Bankers Raise Slush Fund.

Will Fight Entire Socialist Ticket, Particularly Job Harriman.

Working Class Is Aroused.

(By National Socialist Press.)

Los ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 20. Every banker in Los Angeles has been assessed $1000 by the campaign committee of the so-called good government organization. This will add $50,000 to the already large slush fund that is being gathered and spent to defeat Job Harriman and his associates on the Socialist ticket.

The fact that twenty eastern cities have recently elected the Socialist candiadtes for mayor and that the rising tide of Socialism has swept several hundred Socialists into office has greatly alarmed the fusionists who have been forced to combine in the hope of defeating the working class party.

Until the primary election there was little alarm but when the immense vote of the workers was rolled up a cry of pain and alarm went up from the camp of the old time corrupt politicians.

The efforts that are being made to turn the tide away from the Socialists would be comedy if it were not for the fact that bribery and corruption is running rampant in a city that has been fairly clean.

In order to turn public opinion from the big issues—the steal of lands and water in the San Fernando Valley, the diversion of Owens River Aqueduct waters to the lands owned by H. G. Otis and E. T. Earl, the "publishers plunderbund", the grab of $31,000,000 worth of water front at San Pedro Harbor, and similar deals, the "good government" gang is dealing in a series of falsehoods and misrepresentation of the policy of the Socialists.

While this is going on the workers are distributing fully 220,000 pieces of literature each week and making 65 precincts resound with enthusiastic hall meetings and hundreds of outdoor meetings each week.

The Wednesday night meetings are held in Temple Auditorium whilh ascomodates 3500 persons. Large overflow meetings are invariably held there. On one occasion, the night before the primary election the auditorium and all other down town halls were filled and fully 25,000 persons listened to speakers on the streets while the police vainly tried to stop the speakers from addressing the throng.

A large store building was rented in the heart of the business district. One thousand seats were provided and "noon meetings" were started. These meetings soon became "Continuous performances" and speakers were in such demand that an all day schedule has been arranged. Business men by the hundreds flock to this meeting which usually begins at noon and runs until ten o'clock at night. Sixty-five experienced speakers are in the field. Among these half a dozen among the candidates on the Socialist ticket have developed into eloquent speakers and their oratorical power has brought them much local fame. The campaign has developed a number of writers and the literature distributed is bright and clever, dealing with the needs of the hour.

Two printing establishments, The CITIZEN PRESS and the WHITE PRESS, entirely manned by Socialist workers and employing about 40 men are being run on a three shift schedule turning out copies of the COMING VICTORY. This Publication was started early in the campaign and the last of them off the press will be full sized newspapers with eight pages, run on presses of a daily paper and reaching 150,000 circulation. The distributive team consists of 245 precinct captains and scores of lieutenants. It is claimed that 125,000 pieces can be put into the homes of the people inside of five hours after a signal is given.

Among the literature that has been in great demand is the platform adopted by the convention several months ago. This is considered one of the strongest documents that has been issued. Since the women have gained their vote there has been redoubled interest in the campaign. The woman's committee is composed of 25 leaders with several hundred volunteer assistants. These women as deputy registry clerks registered an average of 4000 woman a day. They are now conducting schools with all the paraphernalia of lection booths. They are teaching women how to vote and incidentally teaching them the Socialist philosophy. At Socialist headquarters twelve departments are managing the campaign. With them are working hundreds of volunteers who work day after day at the rooms in the Canadian Building, where almost the entire lower floor is in the possession of the Socialists.

There are about 175,000 names on the great register and it is believed an immense vote will be cast on Dec. 5. Job Harriman is making about five speeches a day besides taking an active part in the management of the campaign.

Every newspaper in the city with the exception of the Scripps paper is opposing the Socialists and their columns reek with falsehoods, misrepresentations and vilification of the Socialist candidates. The demand for Socialist papers and the editions of the COMING VICTORY show that the power of the kept press is waning. Los Angeles Socialists are confident of victory at the coming election.

Los Angeles newspapers refuse to take any advertisements of Socialist meetings and do all they can to confuse dates and conceal facts of meetings. The street car companies have also shut down on advertising of Socialist meetings. An illuminated car that was available early in the campaign has been withdrawn from use and the campaign committee was told that they could not have the car even if they would buy it outright. It was then discovered that advertising was not necessary. A whisper passed around was enough to bring out 10,000 persons. This was demonstrated Wednesday night. The announcement was made that the Wednesday night meetings would be held in Temple Auditorium which seats 3500 persons.

The meeting was announced for 8 o'clock and at seven the hall was nearly filled and at 7:20 the police closed the doors. Within five minutes arrangements were made for an overflow in the Walker Theater. Twelve hundred persons crowded in that place and again overflowed. Burbank Hall, seating 800 was next utilized. The three immense overflow meetings were held in the streets near the various halls and theaters.

While this was going on Mayor George Alexander, who seeks re-election on the "good government" ticket and half a dozen of his most brilliant apologists held a meeting in Blanchard Hall, which has a capacity of 800. The place was two-thirds filled. Thousands of Socialists left the halls to make room for non-Socialists so that more converts might be made.

The women are taking a livelier interest every day. Home meetings are being held in two dozen homes each afternoon and these are being attended by thousands of women who, in turn, are going out and prosolyting. The demand for literature for women is greater than the supply.

Charlotte Perkins Gilman will arrive in Los Angeles in a few days. She will first speak before three of the most fashionable and exclusive woman's clubs in the city, then she will speak for the Socialists until the end of the campaign. Helen McGregor Todd, state factory inspector of Illinois, will make several speeches for the Socialists. Among the other women of national fame who are assisting in the campaign are Mila Tupper Maynard, May Cady Williams, Tana Alox, Mary E. Garbutt, Sallie E. Bowman, Dr. Laura Lacko, Dr. Ida Patterson, Laura George Cannon, Frances Noel and half a dozen more. In addition a large number of local women have developed great ability on the platform.

SOCIALISM THE ANTIDOTE FOR ANARCHY.

By M. F. Parker.

Modern Socialism as an organization may be said to date from the formation of the "International Workingmen's Association," by Karl Marx and his co-workers in London in the year 1864, and always referred to as "The International." This was the first crude effort to bring the working class of all nations into a militant organization formed along lines of the class struggle.

This organization being composed of some of the most profound thinkers of Europe brought together that great revolutionary triumvirate Marx, the German Socialist, Mazzinni, the Italian Anarchist, and Bakounine, the Russian Nihilist, each easily the profoundest philosopher of his country and his cult.

They held some ideas in common. They were agreed on the class struggle, and a militant propaganda, the overthrow of the present order and the establishment of the co-operative commonwealth, etc. But as to the means to be employed in accomplishing their ends they parted company. Marx contended that agitation, education and organization were the only effective means of progress, while the Anarchists on the other hand contended that history furnishes ample proof that these peaceful methods are wholly inadequate, and that force and violence in this, as in all previous political revolutions, must necessarily be the price and means of success. The peaceful policy of Marx prevailed. But the two factions grew more hostile until 1872, when Bakounine was expelled from the International in convention at the Hague. He took with him some 30 of the delegates and organized the Anarchist branch of the International under the name of the "Black International" in contradistinction from the Red International, as the followers of Marx were called.

Bakounine declared in his statement of principles: "The Blacks reject the educational methods of the Reds, and declare force, destruction and devastation.

To remove the "International" as far as possible from the influence of the Anarchists of Europe its headquarters was transferred to America in 1872, with Burnette G. Haskell, secretary.

After the withdrawal of the Reds to America the Blacks were unable to maintain an organized existence. In America the International maintained but a normal existence until 1885, when it gave place to the S. L. P., which was the undisputed Socialist movement in this country until 1897, when by reason of the non-progressive and purely doctrinaire policy of the S. L. P., the present irresistible Socialist party was organized.

Following the "educate and organize" policy of the Reds, the first plan and practice was to have a graduated membership of three degrees. The membership cards issued for each degree was respectively red, white and blue. The red card, or first degree members, were students who must complete a prescribed course of reading before he was admitted to the second or white card degrees. First degree members were not permitted to take part in the management of the affairs of the organization. The white card members were the executive committee.

It is interesting to note that although both in Europe and America Socialists and Anarchists at first acted together, their ideas of violence were so radically different that it was but a short while until they parted company, and are today most hostile enemies. And in proportion as Socialism is strong in any country, there Anarchy is weak. And so few of the shallow pated opponents of Socialism know the history or philosophy of either movement. Few seem to know that the red of the Socialist is the symbol of peace and is the only sure antidate for the black for Anarchism.

Insurance against sickness is compulsory in Hungary for all persons employed in industrial undertakings and whose earnings do not exceed $500 a year.

The San Francisco Housesmiths' union defeated the proposed amendment to its constitution that would have compelled all members of the union to secure work only thsough the business agent.

The Socialist, $1.00 per year.

The Socialist.

By Annie Minturn.

The Socialist is a revealer, an interpreter, an awakener. His revelations lay bare the vampire crimes of men; by these revelations, he is enabled to read the signs of the time, now ominous in meaning, and interpret the handwriting on the wall, so that together, he may carry his message of revelation and interpretation, in forceful speech, to a dreaming world, and awaken in it an answering note of response.

The Socialist holds within his grasp the magic key of persistence, to which, in the end, every lock must yield. He is acquainted with grief and misfortune, because his mission leads him among the lowly, whom as brothers he loves with that broad and rare outstretching that embraces all humanity in its clasp; the sad of heart, the poor, the weak, the sick, the bad, the toiler, aye, and even those who toil not. And so, having felt these heart throbs by their very nearness, he is the fitter phophet to sound the warning thunders from the mount.

Again from Sinai does he reiterate the words that Moses spoke: "Ye shall not make gods of silver, neither shall ye make gods of gold.

"Your riches are corrupted, your gold and silver is cankered.

"Ye shall not afflict any widow, or fatherless child.

"Ye shall not be to the poor an usurer.

"And, moreover, the profit of the earth is for all."

To the Socialist, his creed is to him a veritable pilar of cloud by day, and of fire by night. Each dawn for him is arched with Hope's fair rainbow, through which, just beyond in the distance, he catches glimpses of the Promised Land, where his people are to dwell; and keeping this rainbow vision ever bright before him, glorious in light and color and form, undaunted he presses forward toward the victory he knows must triumph.

All religion, all philosophy, all science, all truth, all poetry of the ages is his; a religion so simple and so tender, clustering around the lofty and beautiful ideals of Jesus of Nazareth, who preached the oneness of brotherhood for all mankind; a philosophy of justice, "by whose pure light, he first distinguishes, then pursues the right;" a science that in its strict unalterable balance, must, at the last, weigh just and righteous compensation, a truth, to which since creation's dawn, man has not dared to aim, that truth alone that maketh free; and a poetry that carries his soul out of this world, on the wings of fancy, to the very throne of the Infinite, where it trembles to behold man's unholy inhumanity to man.

To the Socialist who has within him these ideals, who cherishes with every breath the welfare of his kind, there can be no such a thing as failure; there can be for him no such a thing as fear. His heart's desire for justice, lifts up that heart to that for which it yearns, and at that elevation he may listen in exstacy to the music of the spheres, he may breathe the rose breath of nature's fulness, while his hope wanders through blossoms and sunshine and fragrance, the vision of his hopefulfilled.

The Socialist may be poor, the Master Socialist was poor, he had not where to lay his head, yet, by his association with misfortune, which softens his nature, enriches his sympathies and enlarges his ideals, is he doubly blest with a wealth the world can not give or take away from him, and this heart-wealth makes it possible for him to live his everyday life heroic, aye, poetic. He lives his faith, the living faith. his labor is one of love, and since God is love, he seeks to bring God to his fellow men, and without the finger of God, none of life's problems can be solved. This the Socialist knows to be the subject of his gospel message, and his prayer is now and always:

"Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget."

The French Socialists in the United States are about to form a national organization and ask for a national translator-secretary to be stationed in the general offices in Chicago.

Sign the Suffrage Petition.

By Nellie M. Zeh.

To the intelligent interpreter of the signs of the times, there is no more doubt that the women of the Untied States will soon be granted unrestricted and equal suffrage, than that oaks grow from acorns or that present industrial system is the outgrowth of the one which preceeded it.

Another decade will sweep the very last and most reactionary state into line. Every force in society, both economic and psychologic, is at work to bring about this revolution. It is the inevitable outcome of capitalist class rule and the wage system.

With the development of machinery and the wage system has come the demand for cheap labor. Women and children supply this demand and have thus become formidable competitors of men in the labor market. According to the census of 1910, 9,000,000 women and 5,000,000 children are employed in our mills, mines, factories, shops and stores. 5,000,000 men are all or part of the time idle.

Girls of the upper working class and middle class remain longer in school than boys of the same classes of society. This fact together with the one that women are entering the industries in ever- increasing numbers makes for greater intelligence of the female sex. Because of this intelligence and that as a rule, women work for less money than men, more and more will men be supplanted by women and more and more will both men and women of the working class see the need of the ballot in the hands of women.

The working man will at last awaken to a realization of the position in which he has placed himself, and learn of his sister who works by his side, that she is not there from choice, but because conditions which he controls through his vote have forced her there. In repy to his question, "What would you do with the ballot if you had it?" her answer in nine cases out of ten would be. "I would vote to elect men and women into office who would make it possible for me to leave this work for you men, and give me a home with babies to love and a husband to love me."

Such knowledge as this is rapidly preparing the mind of the working class man to accept the proposition of woman suffrage when it is presented to him, as it soon will be, by the capitalist class politicians.

Men, all men, both capitalist class and working class, will eventually fall in with the idea of woman's suffrage and vote to grant her the ballot, but not from any sense of chivalry, not from any sense of duty, nor yet from any sense of justice, but because they must in order to save themselves.

Barring the further progress of the capitalist class stand out in letters large and significant the words, Trade Unionism and Socialism. These mighty weapons of the working class can no longer be ignored. So, like drowning men clutching at straws, the supporters of the capitalist system are looking in every direction for some avenue of escape, something to stay the irresistible onward sweep of these two great wings of the working class movement. And now they have discovered something which they believe will do it. The women! Ah! yes, the women. Grant women the ballot and the trick will be done.

Women represent the most reactionary force in society. Conservative, superstitious, ignorant of the political and economic needs of the world, the women, who number at least one-half of the adult population of the United States, will be given the vote that their conservatism may stay the onward progress of the intelligent working class.

To pit ignorance against inteligence, to meet progress with reaction, these have ever been the tactics of the rulers when their power was assailed.

And now what are we of the labor and Socialist movement going to do about it? Shall we oppose woman suffrage because it will be the next thing to be used by our enemies against us? No, indeed. We know more than that. We have learned through our scientific training that it is useless to oppose the evolutionary processes of society. But shall we, on the other hand, stand inanely and indifferently by and do nothing because "capitalism will give woman the ballot anyway?" Again we say, more emphatically than ever, NO a thousand times NO. Such an attitude is just what the bourgeois class of society would be glad to see us assume. They want the glory of given woman the ballot. They want her friendship. They want the exclusive right to train and educate her for themselves. Her vote will count just as much in an election to hold their puppets in office as that of any man. They want her vote and are going to get it too unless we wake up and do our share in helping her to obtain her rights and incidentally train and educate her to our ways of thinking. We also want her vote. Aye, even more than that, we NEED her vote, and the only way to get it is to show ourselves to be in sympathy with her cause. When we have won the women, we have won the world.

So friends and comrades bestir yourselves. Sign the woman's suffrage petition which is now being circulated by the women and friends of the Socialist party. We cant afford to be indifferent now. If woman votes against us our beloved cause would suffer a blow from which it might not recover for twenty years, perhaps longer. Sign the petition today and send to the National Headquarters, 205 W. Washington st., Chicago, Sign it now. Urge others to sign. Copies of this petition can be had upon application. Go out among your friends and neighbors for signautres. Have it presented at all your meetings. Keep it going. Do not lose a day from now until next session of congress when it will be presented by Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee, Socialist congressman and labor's only representative in congress. It would be nothing less than a calamity to miss this opportunity. Sister Comrades, this is for you, for your children, for your homes. Present this petition everywhere, at your clubs, union meetings, afternoon teas, church festivities, W. C. T. U. meetings, anywhere and everywhere. We want thousands of signatures, millions of them. SIGN. SIGN NOW. SIGN THE WOMAN'S EQUAL SUFFRAGE PETITION.

Are We Afraid We Will Get It.

By A. M. Simons.

The Socialists have preached many sermons from the text, "He that seeketh his soul shall find it." They have proved that those who seek reforms directly and exclusively seldom get them, while those that ask for minor changes as incidental to a great revolution are sure to get the momentary relief even before they attain to political power.

Because Socialists insist upon having the whole bakery, grist mill and wheat fields their opponents gladly throw them whole baskets of half loaves.

Now that Socialism is striding ahead with seven league boots, capitalist governments all over the world are hastening to promise concessions. They are doing this because to them Socialism is a threat. They are doing it because Socialists have educated the workers to want those things as a part of the preparation for the overthrow of capitalism.

Some Socialists are frightened at this prospect. They cry out that if we are not careful we will get what we want. They warn us that if we do not take heed our predictions may be realized They bewail the fact that we are getting what we desire.

They tell us that we must no longer ask for reforms. If we do they will be granted us. We must not ask for an extension of social ownership, because if we do capitalist governments will give it to us. We must not call for child labor laws lest childlren be really shut out from the mills and the mines and factories. We must not call for relief for the unemployed lest the workless be relieved.

We are told that because we have progressed so far along this road we must, therefore, leave it and seek another. Because we have gained so much for the workers by remaining upon the earth and demanding what we want, we must henceforth cease asking for things within reach and begin to bay for the moon, because forsooth, that cannot be given us.

Our attention is called to the horrible example of Germany, where Socialists have forced the government to grant old-age pensions and almost the whole program of state capitalism, and where the result is a Socialist army, some five million strong, that no threatens to take what capitalists cannot give.

That capitalist parties will try to steal the Socialist thunder is certain. They will take plank after plank from our platform. Experience has proven, and present tendencies foretell still greater activities in this pilfering. But they would not take these planks unless we prepared them. They do not leave us the poorer by this stealing. They do not even accomplish the object at which they aim—that of attracting people from the Socialist movement. On the contrary, it is just in Wisconsin, the home of LaFollette, and Los Angeles, the very heart of reform, that Socialism is strongest.

The reverse is equally true. Socialism is not stronger nor are reforms granted where Socialists live in constant fright lest they ask for something that they will get, and where Socialists conventions are eager to build a platform that no one will want to steal, and also for which no one seems to want to fight.

The class struggle is fought upon earth. It is fought by workers. It is fought to obtain the things that workers want. The road to Socialism lies trough the class struggle. The fight for Socialism must, therefore, be waged by demanding every advantage possible for the working class, and always as a part of the struggle for the whole product of labor.

Millionaire Socialists are not interested in the class struggle today. They can afford to dream of Utopia.

Those who live by leadership may find it easier to shout generalities than to master the details of an actual fight. They may even feel an instinctive fear that they would lack employment if labor should demand something more than empty phrases.

A movement that advances upon solid ground, along a definite roadway, must be organized with democratic management, intelligent servants in office and an educated rank and file.

A movement that stands still and shrieks needs nothing but a "yell leader."

Revolutionary, working class Socialists are not afraid that capitalists will steal their platform. They are not afraid that if they tell where they are going their enemies may smooth the road or even mislead them.

Congressman Berger's correspondence will not be neglected this winter. Besides the office force that he maintains out of his own salary, the National Executive Committee of the Socialist party has decided to help out. The sum of $25 a week was appropriated for a new clerk for Berger, beginning with the December session of Congress, because of the great amount of work which will flow in upon the Socialist Congressman.

WE MUST MAKE GOOD.

By John C. Kennedy.

The recent Socialist victories in scores of cities and towns scattered througout the United States have brought new hope, new inspiration, and new opportunities to the whole labor movement. But these victories have also brought new responsibilities, responsibilities which cannot be shirked if we are to hold our ground and to advance forward to greater victories in the future.

It is true, of course, that even though we have complete control of a city we cannot establish a little co-operative commonwealth, or run the industries of that city according to Socialist principles. But even though we are limited in our activities by the organization of industry on a national and international basis; even though we are bound by constitutional restrictions and a reactionary judiciary; even though we are restricted by narrow and antiquated charters, — yet there is much that we can accomplish.

The people who have elected Socialists to office have a right to expect that they will make good in at least three important particulars: First, that they will be absolutely honest and straightforward in the performance of their public duties; secondly, that they will do their work efficiently; and thirdly, that they will do everything in their power to promote the welfare of the people, particularly of the working people.

Any representative who fails in any of these particulars fails not only as a public official, but as a representative of the working class. To some of the corporations and capitalists the corrupt official is a positive asset, — almost a necessity. He gives them the power to exploit the people and he protects them in their robbery. But for the working class the corrupt official is a more dangerous menace. The Socialist program requires that the functions of the city, state and national governments should be greatly enlarged. This can be done with safety and benefit to the community only on the condition that our public officials do their work honestly and efficiently. Therefore among Socialists there can be no compromise with corruption or graft in any form. We must wage war relentlessly on graft and grafters wherever we find them.

It is not enough, however, that Socialist officials should be merely honest. An honest commissioner of health, and honest superintendent of education, or an honest city engineer might have the best of intentions, and yet be a complete failure as a public official. Our representatives must not only be "good;" they must be GOOD FOR SOMETHING. We Socialists have always claimed that the city government could run the street car system just as well, if not better, than a private company; that a municipal bakery could be run just as efficiently as a private bakery, and that such industries would then be run for the public welfare instead of for private profit. This is absolutely true, but it is true only on the condition that our city government is operated by EFFICIENT, WELL-TRAINED workers. Therefore we Socialists must insist on efficiency. Wherever possible we must utilize experts, and in all cases we must insist that our representatives should be well informed and abreast of the times. Hence, one of the most important acts of the Socialist administration of Milwaukee was the establishment of the municipal public efficiency commission under the direction of Prof. John Commons of the University of Wisconsin.

But honesty and efficiency alone are not enough. We might have an honest, and, as far as it went, efficient government which practically ignored the most important problems of the workers. The first and most important duty of every representative of the Socialist Party is to use all the powers of his office to secure better working and living conditions for the working class. Whether it be by securing new legislation, or by better enforcement of old legislation (which sometimes is quite as important) we must constantly hammer away at the problems which most vitally concern the workers. And not only must we hammer away at these problems, but, if we are to get results, we must do so intelligently. We must not only expose the evils of capitalism, but we must put forward a positive scientific program for the municipalization of local industries, for the solution of the housing problem, for the protection of the people's health, for the provision of parks, social centers, etc., for a better educational system for the workers, and other measures in the interest of the working class. In other words, we must make good today along positive, constructive lines for the working people.

Since this is true, the time is now at hand when the national Socialist office should establish a bureau of information on municipal problems. This bureau should be in charge of a competent secretary who would spend all his time gathering and classifying information regarding the government of cities in Europe and America. He should be able to furnish statistics, charts, diagrams and pictures to Socialist officials in any city showing them how similar problems to their own are being solved in the interest of the workers in other cities. From time to time bulletins should be issued by this secretary containing useful information for the Socialist officials in all parts of the country. In a word, the office of this secretary should be a clearing house for all sorts of information needed by the comrades whom we are electing to office.

It would also be well to have a field secretary connected with this office who would be an expert on municipal problems and who would travel from city to city to give advice when needed. Such an advisory expert would be just as valuable to the Socialist Party today as any agitator we have in the field.

The question may be asked, where are we to get the money for this municipal reference bureau. The answer is that the INCREASE in the income of our national organization for a single year would more than take care of it. Moreover, if our national organization does not enlarge its activity to provide for such pressing needs of our party, its income is sure to be cut down sooner or later. If the national organization is to enjoy a constantly growing income, it must meet the growing needs of the party in every direction.

Our problem now is to make good. We have undertaken to build a new civilization. Our united energies are necessary to succeed. If we make good use of the power already in our hands, we need have no fear of reaction. We will pass from our recent victories to greater victories until we have established a universal social democracy.

A SOCIALIST SOLUTION.

New Light On An Old Problem.

Railroad crossing elimination has been before the people of Columbus for a number of years. The problem has been solved in a fashion on the West Side, and in voting the $700,000 bonds we have provided the means of taking care of other sections. This has been done without a very deep study of the city's economical interest.

We recognize the fact that the roads should enter our city. Our freight must be placed conveniently for local transferring, and our passenger facilities as accommodatingly situated as possible. But the welfare of the city in other ways requires a certain amount of consideration.

Being one of the four recently elected Socialist councilmen I desire to offer a few suggestions, and as they have been endorsed by the party organization, they will, in a degree, indicate the Socialist policy in regard to such affairs.

Our city is naturally divided by the Scioto and Olentangy rivers and almost as effectually divided by the various railroads which are such a great expense to us at the present time, the noise, smoke, danger and all those objectionable features which accompany the railroad right of way render its vicinity undesirable. Weedy vacant lots, shacks, and accumulations of refuse now occupy the place where should be located cosy homes and garden plots. To have a city beautiful and a city healthful we should have as few railroad neighborhoods as possible.

It is proposed to build crossings for the N. & W. at Main, Rich, Bryden Road, Oak and Broad. For the Big Four at Second, Fifth; Eleventh and Seventeenth avenues, costing the city two-thirds of a million dollars and the railroads more than twice that amount, for they must raise their tracks the entire distance, building a veritable Chinese wall. Not a very decorative thing for a first class residence district. Mr. Skygack of Mars, visiting Columbus, would make a note that the Mound Builders were again getting busy.

Eliminate these roads and again I say there is no better residence place.

It seems to be a reasonable proposition for the city to condemn the N. & W. right of way and give it a new one along side or in conjunction with the T. & O. C. and Hocking Valley, and equally so should it move the Big Four east to the C. A. & C. With streets paved, the open commons built up and perhaps a park provided, Milo and Grogan would in reality be annexed to the city.

The territory occupied by the Big Four would probably sell for enough to purchase the new right of way, the crossings would be fewer because more suburban, and could be combined with the C. A. & C. The N. & W. would perhaps fare as well, and the city save its share in the construction of the proposed viaducts, besides the vast improvement to these sections.

These few brief suggestions are put forth in the hope that the railroad officials and you who have the interest of the city in your heart will give them a thorough consideration.

Perhaps you would also sanction a grand boulevard, free from street cars, running from north to south across the city along the Seventh street route, thus joining our driveways without being compelled to go through the busy down town streets.

COMRADE GREEN WRITES ABOUT RED FLAG.

Nelsonville, O., Nov. 20, 1911.
Editor Columbus Socialist:

People in your part of the country seem to be setting up an awful howl about the red banner of the Socialist party. Why should there be any more fuss about a red flag than about a red hat on the head of a cardinal?

There are only a few things that get real mad at a red flag. A capitalist, a bull and a turkey gobbler. The bull bellows and the turkey gobbler gobbles. The capitalist roars and the clergy gobbles, but there will be red banners when all of these things that abhor them now, have either passed away or gotten used to them, as country horses are getting used to red automobiles.

There are, on this planet, quite a large number of different nationalities, each of which has its own individual banner. Each banner represents a different patriotism.

This great variety of banners representing as many different patriotismss has a tendency to keep the different nations divided up. The motto of the Socialist party is "Workers of the World, Unite." Consequently, as we have Socialists in every country, we must have an emblem that stands for the brotherhood of man in all countries.

The Socialists of America can go to Germany and carry the red flag and, while Emperor William might look upon them with disgust, yet they would be safe in doing so. But let them go marching through Germany carrying "Old Glory;" there would sure be things happening; the Kaiser would call out every soldier in the army and navy in his whole kingdom to chastise the insult. No, comrades, if the United States were all there is of this world, as some people seem to think, then the Stars and Stripes might do to march under. But under Socialism we will have money and time to travel, and when that time comes, we want to have a flag—the red flag under which the whole world can march.

The red flag means the brotherhood of the human race—is a symbol of love just as it the red rose that you send to your sweetheart is a symbol of love. So do not get frightened before you are heart, but join us in bringing about the day that all nations shall stand as one man for freedom and for "New Glory"—the red flag.

W. W. GREEN.

WORKINGMAN, DO YOU KNOW THAT YOU HAVE BROTHERS?

Oh, workingman! Is it nothing to you that there are other workingmen?

Is it nothing to you that they are born like you, live like you and die like you?

Is it nothing to you that they have the same sorrows you have, that their jobs suffer the same limitations as yours?

Is it nothing to you that your master is also their master?

Is it nothing to you that they, like you, live in a world where plenty is possible but poverty the fact?

Is it nothing to you that their children, as well as yours, are denied education and attainment?

Are all these things meaningless to you, or does there arise within you a feeling that you are of their blood any they of yours?

You look upon a brother of flesh and blood and because he acts like you, responds to the same influences and sentiments, because to the same mold you are proud to have him for your kin. You divide with him your crust of bread and fight his battles with him. With him you make common cause.

But here are men who have become your brothers through forces that are even greater than human parentage.

They are bound to you by oppression, proportionate in its effectiveness to the subtleness and complexity of the machinery by which it elects its victims and enforces itself.

By its results only can it be easily recognized, and you and other workingmen are the results. Your daily lives, your stinted happiness and pleasure, your routine of work, eat and sleep, the poverty of your lives in those things the world offers—all these are the results that testify that there is an oppressor.

Oh, workingman! Your are brother to workingmen. Greater than the call of tribe, or clan, or family is the call that bids you gather for defense.

You, with them, are a class, exploited, held in subjection to a system, deprived of the fulness of the earth. It is as a class that you must act.

Your loalty, one to the other and each to all, must be unyielding, unforgetting. You must wipe away those traditions which serve your enemy and plant in their place new conceptions that bring good to your class.

You must unite with with them and they with you. You must not fear the old. You must recognize and welcome the new. You must not hesitate to destroy the barricades of your enemies.

You must learn the weapons of your class, study their mechanism and practice in aiming them. Gunpowder is not your weapon. The ballot is. You must use it and other workingmen must use it for your common interests.

What patriotism means to a country that must your loyalty and the loyalty of others mean to the workers. Political action.

Demonstration AND Special Sale OF Wear-Ever Aluminum Cooking Utensils

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Nov. 26, 27, 28

Demonstration and special sale of Wear-ever aluminum cooking utensils Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 26, 27, 28. This demonstration is in charge of a special representative from the factory who will give instructions in the use and care of aluminum cooking utensils.

Try This Test in a "Wear-Ever" Aluminum Utensil

Cook to destroy one pint of tomatoes. Then over a hot fire BURN THE TOMATOES TEN MINUTES. Then pour in boiling water, increase the heat, boil a few minutes and clean out with a wooden spoon. The utensil will not be injured.

WHICH are you anxious about when you smell food burning—loss of the food or loss of the utensil?

Food may be burned in aluminum utensils, if too much heat is applied; but the burning has no effect whatever upon them.

Less fuel is needed when cooking in "Wear-Ever" utensils. They heat quicker and retain heat longer than other cooking utensils and food cooked in them is less liable to scorch.

Each "Wear-Ever" utensil is made without joints, seams or solder from thick, hard sheet aluminum, 99% pure. Cannot form poisonous compounds with acid fruits or foods, cannot rust, cannot chip or scale, practically indestructible.

McNamara Brothers Plead Guilty.

Will Not Be Hanged For Their Monstrous Crimes.

If They Are Guilty They Deserve The Full Penalty of the Law.

Los Angeles, Dec. 1.—James B. McNamara pleaded guilty of murder in the first degree in Judge Walter Bordwell's court today. His brother, John J. McNamara, secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, entered a plea of guilty to having dynamited the Llewellyn Iron Works in Los Angeles on Christmas day, 1910. James B. McNamara's confession clears up absolutely the tragedy of the explosion and fire which, at 1:07 o'clock on the morning of October 1, 1910, destroyed the plant of the Los Angeles Times at First and Broadway, and caused the death of 21 persons. For 19 of these deaths the McNamara brothers were indicted and J. B. McNamara was on trial specifically for the murder of Charles J. Haggerty, a machinist, whose body was found nearer than that of any other to the spot where the dynamite was supposed to have been placed.

To Be Sentenced Dec. 5.

Both sentences were set for December 5, when it is expected District Attorney John D. Fredericks will ask for life imprisonment for James B. McNamara, the confessed murderer, and probably 14 years for his brother. The men's lives are considered saved.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Nov. 27.—The Burns operatives have caused the arrest of three men in the McNamara trial, alleging they were implicated in an attempt to bribe the prospective jurors in the case.

The men arrested are Bert Franklin, George and "Cap" White.

Franklin, who is a former United States Deputy Marshal, is employed by the defense in looking up the antecedents of prospective jurors.

Lockwood is a prospective veniremen.

White is a man of whom nothing seems to be known.

The arrest was effected on a street corner here by Detectives Samuel Browne, Jerko, Ong and Campbell, at Third and Main streets, this morning.

"Saw" Money Pass.

Brown's story is that he and his three assistants saw Franklin hand Lockwood $500, and that this sum is earnest money for $4,000, which Lockwood is to receive hsshould he receive a subpoena to appear as a venireman and should he be placed in the box and then be passed by both defense and prosecution.

The men were first taken to Attorney Frederick's office, where they were examined, the examination resulting in the liberation of both Lockwood and White.

Nothing in particular seems to have been found out about White other than that he is a quite ordinary citizens who goes about his business in an ordinary way.

As to Lockwood, George Monroe, Clerk of Judge Bordwell's Court, put a spoke in the wheel of the trick when he declared that Lockwood had not even received a subpoena to appear as a venireman.

THE CAPITALIST PRESS EXPLAINS

Now come the "explanations" of the Socialist victories by the capitalist press. They are quite reassuring to the capitalists.

Those most generally given by the political editors of daily newspapers are that the people who voted the Socialist ticket did so merely because they did not like the Democrats and Republicans, that they had no intention of indorsing Socialism, that they wanted to take a slam at the old parties, and that they wanted to give the Socialists a chance to try their hand, just to see what they would do.

How little they know of what is going on. How little they appreciate the extensive propaganda that has been made in every city where Socialist victories have been won.

Lacking acquaintance with the campaign methods of the Socialist party it is quite natural that these editors should seek superficial explanations of the results. In Los Angeles, for instance, the entire campaign has been conducted with literature that went right to the root of the issue — Socialism versus Capitalism.

One paper says that in Los Angeles the vote was not Socialist but Union Labor. Union Labor did vote the Socialist ticket in Los Angeles, but is there no significance in the fact that the official organ of the trade unions of that city filled its sixteen pages with strictly Socialist articles that dealt directly with the "economic and governmental theories of the party," of which the Chicago Tribune says the Los Angeles voters had no thought or understanding?

To be sure, not every voter for the Socialist ticket has taken an academic course in Socialist literature, but they all knew the basic character of the contest. They all were made to understand that the conflict is between the working class and the capitalists.

They will not forget that lesson. They are dissatisfied with the Democratic and Republican parties, their graft and corruption and their abuse of the workers. They are discontented with the conditions of modern society. But it is not aimless discontent and dissatisfaction. The workingmen who voted the Socialist ticket will not return to the political parties which they deserted in these elections.

They are learning the full Socialist doctrine. Having tasted of it they want more and they are lost forever to the political bosses.

James Boyle's Statement's Called in Question.

That far-famed student of political and social science, James Boyle, spoke at Trinity Parish house last Sunday night against the initiative and referendum. James, you know, is against everything that has ever happened since the creation. He had to pitch into the Socialists, of course, and he also took a whack at the single-taxers. Boyle can say more things that he can't prove than any living man. He don't have to prove them. His statements must go because he makes them. He provoked our fellow-townsman, Mr. J. S. Maclean, and the latter got back at Jimmy in language like this:

"I never heard a paper which gave evidence of being carefully prepared that contained so many ridiculous charges and was so full of monstrosities of statement as this," said Mr. Maclean.

"The speaker has said that the initiative and referendum means minority rule. I know a little man, whose office is just across from the state house, who has more power over legislation in Ohio than any 100,000 voters in Ohio. While listening to this paper tonight I have been wondering whether the speaker is not employed by the same interests that hire the other man to whom I alluded."

"I am not," cried Mr. Boyle, who jumped to his feet, his face a picture of wrath. "I stand here alone, uttering my beliefs as my own. I only wish some one would pay me for going out and making speeches against the initiative and referendum."

If Boyle isn't getting paid he ought to be, for he is straining himself awfully in the service of the Master Class, and likewise endangering his immortal soul—if he has one.

There are also a lot of folks anxious to know who that "little man" is whose office is across from the state house. Brother Maclean ought to speak right out in meeting and tell us.

The "Interests" Attack the Tenement Code.

The reactionary members of the present city countil seem determined to pull the teeth out of the tenement code if possible. Mr. Dierker, last Monday, introduced an amendment to the law which seeks to lessen the restriction regarding back yards as fresh air supply places for residences. It provides that in estimating the size of the back yard, porches and other adjuncts need not be counted in as "buildings," but are estimated as "yards." This the friends of the code say practically destroys the effectiveness of the code as a protection against lack of fresh air supply from back yard sources.

Four amendments to the code prepared by the law department at the suggestion of the city health department were also introduced Monday night. None of these affect the good results of the code, but only relate to changes in its technical application to buildings already standing.

Councilman Chris Ross declared that the code should not be allowed to "interfere with any interest in this city." He probably means the "interests" which have erected cheap structures, crowded them so close that health is endangered and then are able to charge big rents; likewise the "interests", owning the filthy shacks that disgrace many sections.

Attack on Mayor Seidel Mere Campaign Trick

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 29.—Alderman Carney, the Democratic leader of the opposition in the common council, Saturday pulled off a campaign stunt by charging Mayor Seidel, City Clerk Thompson and City Attorney D. W. Hoan, Socialists, with malfeasance, misfeasance and nonfeasance in office and demanding their impeachment.

The charge submitted to the council by the Democratic alderman are in connection with the 1911 tax assessments, and are the answer of the Democrats to the charges brought against Frank R. Schulz, by Mayor Seidel. The attack upon the administration is made to discredit the Socialists prior to the municipal campaign which is to take place next spring.

The Socialists will have the appointment of the next tax commission, who will take office in January and have charge of the assessments for the year 1912. It is to discredit the Socialists that the present attack is being made.

The officials first are charged with paying tax "ferrets" out of a contingent fund intended for the use of the city attorney for city purposes.

The second charge says that the persons so employed made an investigation of the assessment before and during the time fixed by law for the session of the board of review; that they made a report of their discoveries and findings to Hoan, Seidel and Thompson.

The third charge alleges that these officials failed in their duty in that they did not lay the information and the results of their investigation before the board of review.

The fourth count alleges that several persons, known or unknown, employed by the city attorney to make an investigation conspired with each other, to the detriment of the people of the city of Milwaukee, to "withhold information."

Mayor Seidel, in defending himself and his associates, said:

"I look upon the charges as a huge joke, and it is a question in my mind whether I will take any notice of them at all.

"We got after a few of the tax dodgers and the so-called-reformers are jealous of the work being done by the administration. Nothing has been done in violation of the law."

Alderman Minkley, in the common council meeting of Nov. 20, in answer to the charge that taxes in Milwaukee are higher than before, said:

"If taxes are higher this year I would like to know why the Illinois Steel Company is paying less taxes than last year.

"If taxes are higher this year, I would like to know why the N. E. Benjamin residence in the First ward is paying lower taxes this year than last year.

"If taxes are higher this year that last year I would like to know why hundreds of properties in the aristocratic wards are paying less taxes this year than last year.

"I make the claim that if there had been a fair and right assessment of the city, taxes would be lower for the small home owner. But this is not the case. Personally, I have to pay one-third more taxes this year on my shanty, even though it is not in as good shape as it was last year.

"On two points I want Alderman Carney to get clear. We have never promised that we would make taxes lower, nor is there any way by which you can expect to hold the mayor and the city clerk responsible for the assessments of this year.

"It is impossible for the mayor and city clerk to do over again what twenty-eight men have been working on for a whole year. The tax commissioner and the assessors work throughout the entire year. They assess u-6iH-n .. shrdlu cmfwypshrr thousands of properties over the city. These properties are worth over three hundred million dollars. Can you expect that the mayor and the city clerk during the time that the board of review sits shall find out everything that may be wrong with the tax assessments?

"The mayor and city clerk attend the board of review not for the purpose of making assessments. They are there to review assessments. That is the point. And when they do attend they ought to have some consideration. Yet when they asked for certain records they could not get them. In every possible way they were hindered from action.

"We are glad to meet you on this issue. You are the ones who have always called, 'More improvements and lower taxes.' We know very well that if there are more improvements there will be more taxes. We have said, "Equalize.'

"And as soon as our party gets into the tax office we will show you what we mean by equalizing taxes. You have only made a pretense of equalization. We will show you that we mean business.

"The workingman is not afraid of high taxes if he gets his money's worth. And that is just the trouble: He has not been getting his money's worth."

MOTHER, IN MAN'S ATTIRE, STRICKEN

Chicago, Nov. 27.—A family history of sickness, hunger and desperation, came to light here today with the arrest of a woman disguised as a man.

The woman was Mrs. Anna Godfried, 38, the mother of four babies, and the wife of a man who for four years has been bedridden from heart disease.

The mother has been slaving at factories all that time, but the steadily increasing cost of food ate up more than she could earn—$4 per week.

Saturday, she said, the babies cried with hunger, and the sick husband needed medicine. Desperate in her poverty, the mother cut off her hair, donned her husband's clothes, and started to walk to the truck farms north of town.

She had heard that men there could earn $1 a day as laborers. Weak herself from lack of food, and without carfare, Mrs. Godfried walked nearly seven hours, when she fell exhausted.

Mrs. Lillian Lang was awakened by moans of a person who lay on her doorstep. Finally she mustered up courage enough to open the door. Mrs. Godfried's cap fell off, disclosing her queerly cut hair, and Mrs. Lang penetrated the disguise.

1911 DEC 8

THE FIVE CENT PICTURE SHOW.

By Annie Minturn.

Recently at a popular restaurant in the city, two men were overheard discussing the high cost of living. They were not Socialists, neither were they capitalists, from their appearance, and yet, plainly, their sympathies were with the man occupying the seat high in the industrial chariot, rather than with the man down underneath the wheel. One, with great gusto, announced that the problem of living was not to be found so much in the fact that the cost of food products was high, as in the fact of poor people's frivolous tendencies to frequent too often the five cent picture show, thereby having less money with which to purchase their food. Then he referred back to the days of our pilgrim forefathers. They had indulged in no such frivolity, consequently they had not found it necessary to complain of the high cost of living.

No; our pilgrim forefathers did not frequent picture shows. Perhaps it would have been better for them, had such an amusement been possible in their day and generation. On the other hand, they attended church meetings and worshipped a God of vengeance, the while holding fast to their pews lest they should slip into the abysmal gulf of perdition that yawned for them at their feet. They went home from their worship and burned men and women at the stake for witchcraft,—and all because they were trying to live by bread alone, and failing to see that God is a God of love, not vengeance; and that he intended them to enjoy the good things of this life, the entertainment along with the labor, which is as essential to the normal human being as the very air he breathes.

And, no, again, our pilgrim forefathers were not bothered in their day with the problem of the high cost of living, because the trust of the capitalist was then unknown, and at that time a few men had not been permitted to garner the necessities of life from which to harvest unto themselves and their heirs forever, the golden eagles of the people.

But that it should even be suggested that poor people stay away from the five cent picture show is an outrage to working humanity, and but another echo from the tyranny of the capitalist class; and yet this particular echo has a meaning all its own, and a very potent meaning, when it is laid bare. The Reverend Billy Sunday in a performance here last winter tabooed the picture shows, calling them five cent holes in the wall and admonishing his hearers against the poison of their influence. He, too, had listened to the sentiment of the money power and, true to his class, was and still is laboring to get people into the Kingdom of God and the kingdom of greed into people at the same time.

Life without art is both brutal and degrading. There is that innate in every soul that craves this art in some expression. It satisfies the need of esthetic feeling, and while affording deepest pleasure at the time, often spurs the individual on to action ennobling and helpful in character. The highest conception of art is given forth to the world through the drama. The play, for over three thousand years has educated, delighted and elevated mankind. It has portrayed the noblest impulses known to man, the most heroic deeds, and the very life throb of human emotion. But these plays and the players who reproduce them, are, as every other good and necessary thing, in the clutches of a gigantic trust, known as the theatrical trust, consequently prices to the admission of plays are accordingly high, and only a luxury for my Lord and Lady of the dollar mark. Then Thomas Edison, through the power of his mighty genius, came to the rescue of the poor people, and made it possible for them to have the five cent moving picture show, for their education, their enjoyment and their inspiration. For a time all went well. The Capitalist spoke in glowing terms in his magazines of the poor man's theater, and by him it was lauded, encouraged and upheld. Then all at once a change came abut, and public opinion, colored by capitalistic doctrine, began to censure the workers because of their frivolous tendencies. And why? For no other reason than this: the drama, if it be genuine, if it fulfill the true need of its mission, must ever be a weapon arousing public sentiment to existing crime and injustice. When this is done by the combined imagination and ability of actor and playwright, the evil is so vividly told that men's hearts are made to burn, and true to an instinct of justice they cannot escape, they turn from the portrayal, and begin to right the wrong.

Today in the five cent picture shows that picture that is most often reflected, is the one where the labor problem is revealed. Day after day the working man and the working woman look upon pictures of unjust conditions of labor. They see the grinding of the poor, the strike, the suffering, the failure, and of it all, the cause. And they go out from their five cent entertainment with resolve strong in their hearts, with action in their minds, and determination to unite with their kind against their common foe.

Call the moving picture show five cent holes in the wall if you will, Billy Sunday, but it is doing more today to bring about the teachings of the Man of Calvary, than all of your sensational pirouetting in the name of the Lord, and its influence for breaking the shackles of the labor slave today will be as great as was the influence of the novel of Uncle Tom's Cabin which helped to strike the shackles from the black slave of the South.

SOME PHASES OF OUR CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

By Ella June Purcell.

The Constitution of the United States is one hundred and twenty-two years old. It was adopted in 1789 by less than 4,000,000 people in 13 sparsely settled states, and now is the supreme law for over 90,000,000 people in 48 states. One city in one of these states, New York, has more people than all of the original 13 colonies combined. The constitution was a compromise measure in 1789. It pleased no one even then, but was adopted to save the colonies from what seemed utter disunion and civil war.

Since the adoption of the Constitution there have been 15 amendments. The first ten were passed in 1791, and the last, the negro enfranchisement amendment in 1870. The Constitution provides that amendments may be made at any time if ratified by three-fourths of the states. What can we say of an instrument so drawn that though it never was satisfactory to the few who were forced to accept it, yet holds within its terms the power to perpetuate itself on millions almost indefinitely. Shall this nation be ruled by one-fourth of its people?

The Socialist Party answers this question clearly in proposition number fourteen of the National platform, under the subheading, "Political Demands," where it is said that the Constitution should be amendable by majority vote.

England has no written constitution whatever, yet the rights of the English people are as clearly known and as sacredly observed as are the rights of the American people. Whatever law the majority of the English electors desire to enact, they may. The king is a mere figure head; his duty is to set the seal of approval upon the will of the people; his right of veto is less frequently exercised than the same right of our president. The people of England, though the outward form of their government is monarchial, are less restricted in making progress than the American people. The people of England rule themselves, for whatever mistakes they make, they may blame themselves. Their destinies are not subject to the terms of a rigid instrument adopted by their ancestors.

Without expressing any further opinion as to the merits of an unwritten Constitution, we shall now take up briefly some phases of American Constitutional law.

Our Constitution divides the American government into three separate and distinct branches, Legislative, Executive and Judicial. What changes are needed in the Legislative department which the three-fourths amending rule has hindered and delayed?

In the first place, Socialists demand the abolition of the Senate as an institution not only unnecessary and expensive, but positively detrimental to progress. Socialists are unable to see why the Senate should have powers superior to the House. Both derive their power supposedly from the people, why shold they not have equal authority? Why two bodies to do the work of one, to do the will of the people? The Constitution says that no state shall without its consent be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate. So not even a 3-4 vote can abolish the Senate,—probably the most corrupt and useless Legislative body ever forced upon a suffering people.

Perhaps the mass of the people of the United States may not yet be educated to the point where they can adopt the Socialist plan of abolishing the Senate, but at least a majority of them are agreed that we should have the election of Senators by direct vote. But here again the proposed progressive measure is confronted by the outworn and outgrown document of our forefathers which provides specifically that Senators shall be chosen by the Legislatures of the several states and not by popular vote. One state, Oregon, has been brave enough in its convictions, to get around this provision by an awkward arrangement whereby all candidates for the Legislature are pledged before their election to vote for the peoples choice for senators. But the day is coming when the American people will shake the sentimental glamor fram the Constitution and give themselves what they want and refuse to be ruled by an instrument not even acceptable to those who formulated it.

There seems to be an almost universal desire for the popular election of United States Senators yet before the people can have what they want the constitution must be amended. And the amendment must be accepted by 3-4 of the States, the People are not the important and deciding element but the States. It could happen therefor that 14 of the small and lightly populated states might refuse to accept an amendment, when a majority of the people as a whole desired it.

What change should we make in the Executive department if the Constitution were amendable by majority vote?

Here most emphatically we favor the election of the president of the United States by direct vote.

One of the most difficult questions presented to the Constitutional convention of 1787 was: How shall the president be selected? In those days Democratic institutions were in their farmative state and the problem was not so much, how shall we give the people the most power but how shall we protect the government from the whims of the populace? After considering various plans for electing the president, the electoral plan was approved.

In the original Constitution plan the candidate for president receiving the highest number of electoral votes was president, and the candidate receiving the next highest number of votes was vice president. It may thus be seen that the president and vice president could be,—and generally were,— of opposite political belief. Friction, of course, resulted under this plan and by amendment in 1804 the present system was adopted. Note that amendments were possible in those days when there was a small number of states.

At present each state has the right to appoint or elect in such manner as it sees fit, a number of electors to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the state may be entitled. The electors many be named by the Legislature or elected by a popular vote of a bare majority or by a three-fourths vote. These electors at a designated time and place meet in their respective states, and under the present plan cast two separate ballots, one for president and the other for vice-president. If no one has a majority of the whole number of electoral votes, the House of Representatives elects from the three candidates securing the highest number of votes. Several presidents have been elected by the House—notably Thomas Jefferson. Under the electoral plan it has happened at least twice that candidates who had the popular vote have been defeated in the electoral vote. For instance Samuel J. Tilden's popular plurality was almost 160,000 votes over Rutherford B. Hayes, but the latter was elected president by an electoral vote of one.

In the Cleveland-Harrison election, the former lead the latter by almost 100,000 votes at the general election but was defeated by Harrison in the electoral vote. Do the American people rule?

McConnel in his "Presidential Campaigns" says that in 21 presidential campaigns from 1824 — 1904, eight of the candidatess successful in securing a majority of the electoral votes were in a very considerable and sometimes a very large minority of the whole vote.

And yet we must have an amendment passed by 3-4 of the States,—not a majority of the people, to change this condition.

Coming to the third department, the Judicial, we find the sovereign rights of the people again ignored.

The constitution provides that there shall be one Supreme Court, that the judges thereof shall be appointed by the president by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and that the said judges shall hold office during good behavior. This means that the judges hold office for life, as of course the behavior of supreme judges is always excellent. At present there are nine of these well behaved gentlemen who sit as the final court of appeals of over 90,000,000 people. These nine men have the power to ignore or overrule any law enacted by the American people. The people voting as a unit may enact a law, these nine well behaved gentleman, named by one man, the president can say, "Oh no, dear people it is unconstitutional for you to want this law. Your ancestors before you never hadt it, so you must not have it, no, nor your children after you. It is unconstitutional." Just where these nine well behaved gentlemen acquired this colloal power the American people are not certain. But of this they are certain: the aforesaid nine gentlemen do have the power to declare every law the people pass null and void, and they shall continue to exercise that power until 3-4 of the people will do it otherwise. If the Constitution were amendable by majority vote we believe the good behavior of these gentlemen would cease, — suddenly.

Such are a few of the most glaring evils tolerated under the American Constitution of 1789. It is very difficult to work up sufficient sentiment to change a document in a nation of 90,000,000 people when the vote is to be taken not by individuals but by states and when one must convert ignorant and educated, rich and poor, foreign emmigrants and freed slaves and when one half of the nations most moral and well educated citizens, women, may not vote their opinions.

Let us first concentrate our full strength towards securing the amendment of the Constitution by a majority vote, as advocated by the Socialist Party, and the other reforms, Legislative, Executive, and Judicial will soon follow.

Getting Wise.

The ffeort in Canada to destroy the labor movemfent by instilling national prejudice into the minds of the workers has failed. The Vancouver World is authority for the statement that "the few struggling locals masquerading under the title of the Canadian Federation of Labor and better known to international unionists as the 'nationalists' are gradually dropping their affiliation with the per capita tax dodgers and lining up with the worldwide trade organizations of tthe working class."

He Didn't Scare.

A plan was formed to scare a certain Tim Casey, living in a village near Belfast, on his returning from market by night past the churchyard As he went by the usual turnip, white sheet, and lanthorn of the conventional ghost were submitted to his gaze, with the customary weird howls. Tim, however, simply looked fixedly at the apparition for a moment and remarked: "Arrah, now and is it a gineral resurrection, or are ye just taking a walk by yerself?

INDIANA SOCIALIST NEWS.

James Oneal, State Secretary, 309 1-2 Ohio street, Terre Haute.

The miners on a rural route out of Coalmont are anxious to organize a local.

Communications from Middletown and East Germantown state that Socialist sentiment had developed in these towns to such an extent that organization is desirable.

Locals at Wanatah, LaPorte and South Bend have decided to make a determined effort to organize Michigan City. This city has persistently refused to be impressed with Socialist agitation and the city officials have opposed the propaganda.

Local Rushville, which recently received its charter, reports a good increase in membership and prospects for a fine local. Local Madison, another new one down on the Ohio river, also sends a good report.

At recent meeting Local Evansville admitted 28 members and the prospects are so bright there for a big local there that they have ordered 200 application cards.

The locals in Clay county have decided to form a county organization, and will hold a county convention on the last day of the year. The delegates will meet in Brazil, and two are accorded each local. A large representation of visitors is also desired.

The locals of Crawford county are also anxious to organize the county and form a county organization. A call will be issued later.

Local Kokomo recently had Socialism advertised without cost by a Catholic priest attacking it in a series of sermons that were filled with the usual amount of lying and abuse. Comrade McCurdy was brought from Chicago and the city hall was packed while the clerical gentleman's argument was torn to shreds. The local would like to have another gentleman of the cloth volunteer his services.

Kate Richards O'Hare has been speaking to packed houses during the past week and nearly all points are anxious for her to give a return date.

The reports from all locals since the election returns came in are enthusiastic. All of them realize that we are on the eve of great electorial triumphs and are preparing to wage the biggest campaign in the history of the state next year. The activity is also seen in the fact that the state office has paid dues of $140 to the national office for November, which is the largest amount in the history of the party.

REVISED COUNT GIVES SOCIALISTS TWO MORE.

Toledo, Ohio. — Discovery of errors in the Eighth ward election returns indicate that Walter Starner, Socialist candidate for council from that ward, has defeated George W. Graham, Republican and that Sevren, Socialist, has been elected assessor.

If Starner is seated, the Socialists will have two members of the city-law-making body, the other being Robert T. Haworth, of the Fourteenth ward.

Although the booth officials and witnesses involved in the matter agree that Starner received a plurality vote and the four members of the election board are unanimous in his favor, the Socialists may be compelled to apply to the court to overcome technicalities of the law and mandamus the board to issue a certificate of election to him.

SPENDS ONLY $30 TO BE MAYOR OF SCHENECTADY

Schenectady, N. Y.—The Socialist victory in the municipal election here was accomplished with an expenditure of money so small that it probably constituted a record for American cities of 50,000 to 100,000 population. Dr. George R. Lunn, the mayor, spent $30; Herbert M. Merrill goes to the state Legislature at an expense of $6, while Charles S. Lambert, Richard Verhagen and Stephen W. Schwartz elected to the lesser municipal offices, spent altogether only $3.50.

The defeated Democratic and Republican candidates for the same offices have filed expense accounts showing disbursements of from $350 to $600 each.

PEACE MANIFESTO

Of the Internationalist Socialist Bureau.

To the Workers of the World:

On the night between the 26th and 27th of September, of this year, immediately after the meeting of the International Socialist Bureau in Zurich the Italian government, which must not be confused with the Italian people, sent a brutal ultimatum to the Ottoman government, and forty-eight hours later declared war.

This act cannot be too severely denounced by all those who have the peace of the world at heart and any regard whatever for the rights of the people. Never perhaps has the predatory politics of capitalism stripped itself so completely of every hypocritical veil. Never before has it made so little effort to keep up even the appearances of an excuse for a violent act against another civilized nation that was just beginning great reform measures.

Against such an act the international workers cannot but unanimously protest. Our Italian comrades are in complete agreement with our Turkish comrades in protesting in the name of the general interest of the proletariat against an act that is as foolish as it is criminal, which is fully as injurious, perhaps even more injurious to the victor than to the vanquished, which releases the scourge of a world war and threatens to open up an abyss between Europe and the new Mohammedan world, and which, in its last analysis, must necessarily afford further excuse to the great powers for the increase of military burdens.

In order to emphasize this protest based upon the Stuttgart and Copenhagen resolutions as well as upon the special action taken at Zurich on the 25th of September, the International Socialist Bureau urges that in all the great states of Europe meetings shall be held to protest against the coup d' etat in Tripoli and against war in general.

The expedition against Tripoli is, in fact, nothing more than one of the manifold expressions of the politics pursued by all the great powers.

Just as Italy proceeded against Tripoli, so England had seized Egypt; France and Germany are quarreling over Morocco; Germany has led the expedition to Agadir, and Austria Hungary seized Bosina and Herzegovina.

The Italian government would not have dared to act as it has had it not had an understanding with its allies and with the great powers.

Therefore, it is not simply Italian policy but the policies of all the great powers that International Socialists must denounce to the people as a policy of savagery. This policy is as destructive to those who are sacrificed to it as to those who think to draw advantages from it.

In Turkey and in Mohammedan countries in general this policy arouses a stubborn rage, a dangerous fury and does this just at the moment when noble spirits are seeking to introduce into these countries the ideas, institutions and the liberties which Occidental nations long ago secured, and it furnishes the reactionary elements with effective arguments against any peaceful entrance of European culture.

In Europe it gives rise to murderous and expensive colonial wars; the Spaniards showed this in Rif; the Italians are beginning to suffer its effects in Tripoli. It opposes democratic tendencies and retards their development. It strengthens the reactionary forces and turns them from all social efforts. It envelops the people in the endless chain of military expenses.

At this very moment it threatens to bring about catastrophes whose horrors will exceed any horrors that the world has ever known. Against this policy of ferocity and force the international proletariat must, more than ever, oppose its every power.

Our Italian comrades have already done all that is possible, considering the unfavorable circumstances, against the expedition to Tripoli. They have fought, and will continue to fight foot by foot against the nation's bestiality. But their efforts must be supported by the whole International Socialist Movement. Every section must extend to them its moral solidarity.

We protest therefore with them against the war and at the same time we express our desire that the Turkish government (in that it may draw lessons from the events through which it is passing, in that it may exert itself to abolish the ethnical antagonism, and to relieve the burdens of the working class) may contribute to the closer association of the Balkan states, pending the time when their closer union as a federated organization may develop.

The nations of southeastern Europe possess the cultural essentials for an autonomous development. They are economically politically connected.

The Socialist movement will, with all its influence, support the idea of the solidarity of the Balkan states and strengthen the resistance power of these people to the attack of European capitalists.

Workers of the world, unite against war! Demonstrate for peace, for disarmament and for the solidarity of the people!

The Executive Committee of the International Socialist Bureau—EDWARD ANSEELE, LEON FURNEMONT, EMILE VANDERVELDE, CAMILLE HUYSMANS, Secretary.

MAIL MEN AND COUNCILMEN ADVOCATE CO-OPERATION.

Socialists are no longer alone in protesting against the burden resulting from the waste and inefficiency of distribution resulting from competition and the capitalistic system. During the past week the letter carriers of Cleveland called a meeting to devise ways and means of establishing co-operative buying, and thus reduce the cost of necessities. In addition, Councilman Townes has proposed that the city establish a co-operative purchasing department.

That part of the high cost of food and other necessities is due to the enormous cost of distribution is a fact which is undeniable. Advertising, the duplication of stores and duplication of delivery service place on the consumer a burden much greater than the requirements of this service.

When four or five grocery stores are established in a neighborhood and four or five delivery wagons cover the streets of that neighborhood the people who purchase goods in these stores must pay for the duplication and waste.

The fact that non-Socialist organizations and even representatives of capitalist parties are beginning to realize that the present system, through its anarchistic methods, is making the price which consumers must pay for commodities much greater than these prices would be if distribution were properly organized, is especially gratifying to Socialists, because it is only a step from this to a demand for the collective ownership and through systematization through such ownership. —Cleveland Socialist.

A German scientist has, it is reported, perfected a process of making diamonds out of gas. That is nothing. The Columbus Gas Companies are coining gas into real United States money every day.

The writer of this paragraph counted four milk wagons while he walked one square from his home last Sunday. The writer had gone without milk in his tea that morning because the particular wagon had not reached his domicile. Great system this.

Many members of the working class know there is something wrong with present industrial conditions, but they fear to delve into the causes for fear they will meet a ghost. When such antiquated ideas are dispelled the workers will share equally in the joys of the world.

If some men who have such a hatred of Socialism will tell us what they have to offer as a cure for the present discontent we will gladly give them a year's subscription to this paper. We hold no strings on this offer. Surely there are enough suggestions. Let them come in.

To hold a red card in the Socialist party means that the holder is fighting for the uplift of the human family. Socialists perform their service to society without any thought of individual recompense other that what they expect to attain by the change from capitalism to co-operation.

A bright professor rises to remark that great happiness is found in poverty. Incidentally it might be remarked that the said professor is perfectly contented on his salary of $10,000 a year. And there are others who get a smaller salary who hold the same view, since their jobs are secure.

If a man is out of work, cannot get credit and is up against the cruel necessities of the world, he is spurned and shunned, and informed that if he was not so reckless in the days that he got $1.35 for ten hours hard labor he would be riding in automobiles. It is good encouragement to give to a starving victim of society.

The latest news from the citadel of capitalism is that they are going to "respectableize" Socialism, whatever that means. Let these gentlemen get this understanding under their hat—the Socialist movement will remain revolutionary until capitalism capitulates and the day of freedom ushers in the co-operative commonwealth.

Certain Democratic politicians in Ohio are very anxious to have Governor Harmon call a special session of the legislature in order to pass a congressional redistricting or "gerrymander" bill. One well known Democrat wailed that if something was not done the Socialists would elect six or seven congressmen in this state next year.

"The first shall be last and the last shall be first." What a great truth these words contain is evidenced by the fact that the Chicago Tribune is willing to publish a signed article by Eugene V. Debs in its series of "articles by prominent men on the trust evils and their cure."

How times have changed since 1894; but, then, something like 1,000,000 voters have been won over to Debs' way of thinking, and that makes a difference.

Public sentiment will change even a newspaper's attitude.

Rev. Bard, pastor of All Souls' Church, Grand Rapids, Mich., says the Boy Scout movement is practically dead in that city. Great difficulty was experienced there in keeping the boys from carrying revolvers. The scout movement resulted in numerous neighborhood riots, and in every instance a Boy Scout was the leader in the trouble. There troubles will start in an air-gun battle and end up by many of the boys securing revolvers and endangering their own lives as well as the lives of others. Only a few days ago, eight Boy Scouts in school were rounded up and relieved of loaded guns. Rev. Bard adds that the religious brethren who encouraged the fad are sickening of their adventure and washing their hands of the movement.

Dr. Herbert Glynn, 50 years ago a graduate of the Royal College of Physicians, London, last week sent this letter to a San Francisco paper:

"'Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die.' I cannot eat nor drink, much less be merry, for I have neither money nor friends, and to beg I am ashamed. I can, however, die, but to commit suicide seems such a waste of good material. Besides, I have a wife and child who are practically starving, and my body must be worth something. I am quite willing to be slowly vivisected if any one will provide for my wife and child. Who offers?"

Could anything, by word or deed, more strongly or forcefully condemn capitalism than this cry of an aged man who, judging from his profession, having had the opportunity to become at least comfortably fixed for life, remained poor in the service of humanity? Offering himself as a sacrifice for the benefit of his loved ones, by the most horrible death imaginable, it seems, is evidence of a tenderness far beyond that possessed by the average person. And yet there are people claiming to be Christians who would perpetuate this hell on earth.

To Comrades and Working People:

Look over the advertising in your paper. Patronize those who patronize you. Remember those who refuse to advertise in a labor paper are unfair to labor and are not worthy of your patronage.

Some Thoughts on Immortality.

There is a widespread belief among the poverty stricken peoples of India—and they compose the major part of the population—that, after death, human beings are reincarnated as animals, such as dogs, cats, horses and other members of the so-called brute creation. The belief has been widely advertised by missionaries as a certain proof of the mental and spiritual degradation of these people whose conception of a future life could not rise above the status of the animals.

If this belief has been generated or strengthened by the poverty and wretchedness of those holding it, the Christian men among us to whom the Almighty has intrusted the property of the country and the welfare of the workingman had better look to it that this debasing creed does not obtain a hearing in our own blessed civilization. Certainly, signs are not wanting that point that way.

For instance, we find the two following press dispatches close together in the same issue of a great New York daily paper:

"Boston, Nov. 24.—A $1,000,000 hospital for animals is to be erected among the beautiful public buildings of the Back Bay District as a permanent memorial to George T. Angell, founder of the Massachusetts S. P. C. A."

"Louisville, Nov. 24.—'I want a permit to kill my family and then commit suicide,' was the request made to City Attorney Robinson this morning by John M. McCord, of this city. Before Robinson recovered from his surprise McCord continued: 'My wife is ill, without medical attention, my children are starving, and our landlord has ordered us out of the home. I can't get work, and I guess we'd all be better off dead.' An investigation by the police found McCord's statement correct."

It is not likely that McCord ever heard of the above-mentioned belief. If he had, he most probably would not have waited for a permit, but would have taken chances of reincarnation for himself and his family. His wife, sickening without medical attention, might, in the form of a dog or cat, have secured admission into the million-dollar Boston hospital, and there have obtained the assistance denied her in her present human form. The children, too, might also have had a show in the same manner, as starving animals in a non-human shape, and altogether, perhaps, McCord was not wholly wrong in his conjecture that they would all "be better off dead."

On second thought, it might not be a bad idea to promulgate this notion among the working people. We think it would, on the whole, be readily accepted if actual demonstration were given in the form of several hundred new animal hospitals on the Boston model, erected throughout the country. They could then actually perceive the mansions prepared for them in their new forms and would hasten to qualify for admission. Certainly such structures would do far more to inspire hope in the working class and render them patient and quiescent under their tribulations in their present human shape than the thousands of Carnegie libraries on which so much money has been mistakenly expended.

COMRADES WANTED.

Fifty young people who will take an interest in our newly organized Socialist Dramatic Club, especially those who have talent in dancing, singing or sketch work, are urged to come as this will be a place to advance your talent and perfect yourself in the work that you like. We want to give entertainments for all the branches in their respective district, as an inducement to those who don't like to go to a lecture to hear the message of Socialism.

Comrades don't forget the most important thing before us now is to educate. We also want all the older comrades to take a hand in this and help us in the social work.

Now comrades let us get the young folks interested and at the same time educate them in Socialism.

Everybody welcome at our meeting every Sunday night at our headquarters, 335 1-2 S. High street, at 7:30 P. M. Come and bring the young folks and spend a pleasant evening.

Yours for the movement,

GUS. TEGENKAMP,

Organizer Socialist Dramatic Club.

CALABASH PIPES.

A History of Smokers' Costly Luxury.

The curious calabash pipes which, within the last three years, have come into increasing favor here are made of a gourd imported from South Africa. This gourd has a round body eight or 10 inches in diameter midway of its length, tapering down toward either end. At its stem end, by which it is attached in growing, it has a slender little crook.

The calabash pipe is made from the stem end of the gourd. The crook forms part of the pipestem and the sawed off end of the tapering body of the gourd the flaring pipe bowl. Sizeable as this pipe bowl is it is yet extremely light.

The calabash pipe is lined with clay, with asbestos, with imitation meerschaum and with meerschaum; it is mounted with hard rubber and with amber mouthpieces, these joined to the stem part of the pipe bowl with rings of bone or ivory or bands of silver. Sometimes the top of the bowl is mounted with a silver rim. Commonly calabash pipes are mounted, with a fixed mouthpiece, but there is a calabash equipped with a mouthpiece of ordinary length for ordinary smoking, while there is also provided a goosequill section of six or eight inches long which can be inset between the mouth-piece and the bowl for comfortable smoking at home.

A calabash pipe will color through its lining and through the body of the gourd to its outer surface like a meerschaum.

The calabash pipe is rather costly. The supply of suitable gourds is not overplentiful, and they are likely to have small flaws in their surface which have to be filled with clay and refinished. Two dollars would be about as cheap as you could buy a good calabash pipe, and from that they run up according to the size and quality of the bowl and the character of the fittings. For $5 or $6 you would get a very nice pipe, with a hard rubber stem, an ivory ring between it and the bowl and with the bowl meerschaum lined; but it would not be until you get up close to $10 that you would come to amber stems, and for a calabash flawless in the gourd and perfect in size and shape, lined with fine meerschaum and silver mounted and with a stempiece of clouded rock amber you might pay $20.

PICTURE PRICES

Follow Upward Lead of All Other Things.

Few people realize the amount of money spent annually upon pictures. Not only are scores of agents and auctioneers in every art center of the world waxing rich as a result of the continual demand upon the part of the wealthy for the best works of the modern and old masters, but there is a constantly ascending scale of prices which augurs well for the painters of the future. Similarly it tends to cast a halo of speculative romance over the fascinating practice of picture collecting. With portraits and landscapes doubling in market value within a couple of decades they offer an investment calculated to appeal to both mercenary and artistic natures. This steady increase in prices the lovers of good pictures have shown a willingness to pay is brought about by the keen competition to secure the best paintings from each school which happens to capture the public's fancy. And the prices being paid would have been deemed fantastic when the works were on the easels of their painters at any time during the last half century. Similarly, the first purchasers of these paintings little dream what rare bargains they were making.

Last year the artists of the Barbizon and Dutch schools found their pictures in the greatest demand, but the British masters have had the call more lately. Though no single collection in the season just closed brought as much as the celebrated Alexander Young collection did last year when it was sold for $765,000, all records were broken in the number of high-priced pictures which have changed hands in single sales. No fewer than 163 works sold in London alone realized $2,500 and over apiece, and eighty-six pictures disposed of in this one art center brought something more than $5,000 each. The apex was reached when a prominent firm of art dealers purchased Raeburn's full-length portrait of Mrs. Robert Williamson for a price placed at about $112,000.

But even had the picture of Mrs. Williamson not been offered for sale, the records would have been broken. Heretofore, the highest price had been the $66,000 paid for Corot's "Bird's-nesters." For instance, there was another of Raeburn's, "Lady Janet Thraill," quite a small portrait, which brought about $70,000. All this demand for Raeburn pictures is the more remarkable when one remembers that back in 1877, when no less than forty-nine portraits done by this artist were offered for sale by his executors, they brought less than $25,000. Now Raeburn has come to be something akin to a cult with art lovers.

The continental school led in the landscapes most in public favor, and W. Maris's "Feeding Calves" was the top notcher, selling for nearly $16,000, which was twice as much as its owner had paid for it. The wheel of fortune does not revolve so happily every day, but these favorable turnings are of sufficient occurrence to arouse more than passing interest.

If the McNamara Brothers are guilty, as their alleged confession indicates, let them receive the full penalty that the law metes out to them.

This shows a total of fifty-six delegates voting against this proposition, whereas, so far as known, there are only forty-seven Socialists seated, in the convention and many of these have gone home for some reason or other.

Further analysis of the vote shows that out of the twenty-five state federations seated, the delegates of nine voted against the Civic Federation, the federation being favored by the delegates of only ten, six delegates not voting. Out of the sixty-seven local bodies seated, the delegates of eleven voted against the Civic Federation, which was favored on the other hand by thirty-eight, with eighteen not voting.

GOMPERS' FRIENDS ARE ALL RE-ELECTED

One Craft, One Organization Is Adopted as A. F. of L. Watchward.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 25.—With the re-election of President Samuel Gompers and all the other officers and the selection of Rochester, N. Y., as the meeting place in 1912 the American Federation of Labor concluded tonight the two weeks' session of the thirty-first convention.

The predicted fight on Gompers and other officers did not materialize and they were chosen without opposition.

One of the most important actions taken by the convention on the closing day was to order the Building Trades Department to reinstate the 200,000 carpenters belonging to the Carpenters' Union, who were suspended last year because of some differences between their organization and the department.

The convention also instructed the department to merge the steamfitters and the plumbers.

One Organization Only.

The federation declared this country is not large enough for two organizations of the same craft and the president was instructed to carry into effect this principle:

"One craft, one organization."

The declaration for amalgamation caused President Richardson, of the International Association of Car Workers, to surrender the charter of the organization. There are two organizations of this sort, the other being the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen. "You have no right to surrender that charter without instructions from your organization," declared President Gompers to Richardson.

"And the secretary is instructed to hold and notify the secretary of your union that it is held pending instructions."

The Committee on Boycotts submitted a report, deploring the holocaust when the Triangle Company's building in New York was destroyed by fire last year and 150 girls perished. The committee reported that this same concern is doing business in New York under a different name and under conditions likely to produce a similar disaster, and the officials of New York were called upon to investigate. The report was adopted.

HEART-TO-HEART LABEL TALK

The label is the greatest weapon that unions have to gain what they are striving for, to better the conditions of their brothers and sisters, and also to show them that, when they are purchasing anything, to know that the article was made under fair conditions. Don't you realize that all of the associations on the other side of this question are leaving no stone unturned, that they are grinding away all the time? We must do the same. Don't get discouraged, but keep hammering away urging all to ask for the label. I am a union-labed fighter; what I mean by this is I am trying to instill into my family the importance of asking for the label. It should be a pleasure for the wife and also the children of any man to ask for the label, and by so doing help the husband and father in his fight to make things brighter and conditions better for those who, later on, will take our places. I cannot understand why men who are reaping the benefits of being a member of a union continually refrain from asking for the label. This emblem that I am calling your attention to is one of the greatest keynotes to the prosperity of the unions throughout the entire world.

The fact that a man or woman carries a union card does not give them a permit to go along, day after day, in a selfish way, and say: "Well, my union is flourishing; I cannot worry about you." That is not the idea of unionism. We must all help one another. I get discouraged at times, but I go at it again, for I know the time will come when every man or woman holding a union card will ask for the label. It fairly makes my blood boil to see a man ro woman holding a union card, and by neglect, purchase articles without the label. This shows a lack of interest. Now, for example: Suppose this brother and sister worked in a shoe shop, and they reported for work, and the proprietor said, "I don't need you any more; there is not call enough for the labeled goods for me to keep the force on." Now, if they had done their part in boosting the label, they would have advanced the cause of all.

If you are not getting the label on everything you purchase that is procurable in the market with the label on it, you are not living up to your obligation. Don't think that if you should buy a pair of shoes with the label on them that you have done all that is necessary for the present year. It is your duty to do everything in your power to advance the interests of not only your own union, but every other union.

Did it ever occur to you to ask your relations, mother, father, sister or brother, to help you in this fight? Suppose that some time you should happen to ask your sister to buy a pair of union-made shoes, and she threw her head into the air and said, "I earn my own money, and can spend it wherever I please." Of course you will have to admit that she earns her own money, but just say to her: "Some day you will, in all probability, have a family of your own, and don't you think it would be well to take as many obstacles but of their paths of life as possible, and by asking for the label now you will make their load much easier to carry in years to come?"—Retail Clerks' Advocate.

THE CLASS STRUGGLE I N THE TRADES UNIONS

Probably the most important event arising out of the convention of the American Federation of Labor at Atlanta is the decision of the United Mine Workers and the Western Federation of Miners to join forces and henceforth act as one body, possibly unconnected with the original organization.

This move will be regarded from two different standpoints. To those who hold by the old order, it will appear as disintegration and disruption; to the others as reorganization and reconstruction.

In all probability, Messrs. Gompers and Mitchell will place the responsibility for this action upon the Socialists and accuse them of malignantly and with malice aforethought endeavoring to encompass the destruction of organized labor. Neither will admit that their own endeavors to commit organized labor to the policy of regarding the Civic Federation as a body friendly to labor had anything to do with the action decided on by the two bodies aforesaid.

Yet it is easy enough to perceive that the reason therefor is that elemental social force, the class struggle, the perception of the existence of which now dominates the policy of the miners, but which is as yet not so clearly perceived by the other elements of organized industry. To attempt to force the "harmony between labor and capital" theory as a policy of action upon elements that have a clear conception of its falsity is tantamount to forcing the latter out of the organization. And that the latter will go out is absolutely certain if the policy is persisted in. Like a house divided against itself, organized labor cannot stand when divided on this question of the class struggle. And that question is today not an abstract theory but a hard, material fact confronting organized labor. There is no middle ground. It must occupy either one position or the other. It cannot occupy both.

It is not to be expected, of course, that such stanch "individualists" as Messrs. Gompers and Mitchell could possibly see the situation from this point of view. Individualists themselves, they imagine that the construction, maintenance and direction of the organization is the work of their hands, and that conversely its destruction must necessarily be the deliberate work of hands opposed to theirs. Hence, we may confidently expect that their comment on the situation will be largely composed of denunciations of the individuals indentified with it. It can never rise to the level of regarding the matter as the outcome of social and industrial evolution. To do so, would, of course, cut the ground from under its own feet.

When, by a vote of 12,000 to 5,000, it was decided that organized labor should regard the Civic Federation as a friendly body, Messrs. Gompers and Mitchell no doubt considered they had been triumphantly vindicated, and great was the jubilation over the "rout of the Socialists." The capitalist press rejoiced also, and probably the membership of the Civic Federation were exceedingly glad. They foresaw no sequel to their triumph. But the Socialists did. And it has arrived, as they expected. They knew the class struggle was a rock on which sooner or later the old form of organized labor would split. But they are not egotistic enough to imagine that they placed the rock in the path of Messrs. Gompers, Mitchell and their associates.

Possibly these gentlemen picture to themselves the Socialists chuckling with malignant joy over this, the first apparent symptom of the break-up of organized labor. But to us it is merely an incident in the eternal sequence of events—the old giving place to the new. We see in it not organized labor dying but changing its form, to become an infinitely more potent and mightyy factor in the emancipation of the race through its recognition of the most vital fact in our industrial society, the class struggle between labor and capital.

"OLD GUARD" PLUTES BECOME DESPERATE.

Los Angeles Socialists Making Fierce Onslaught Upon the Capitalistic Forces in Otis' Stronghold.

(By National Socialist Press.)

LOS ANGELES, CAL. Nov. 28.—Driven to desperation by the irresistible onslaught of the Socialists, the "Old Guard" is standing in the trench fighting desperately for life.

"Nothing short of a miracle can save us from the impending political cataclysm — the Socialists as about to overwhelm the combined strength of our party" said a "good government" official at the Union League Club last night.

"Los Angeles is in a terrible predicament with woman's suffrage and Socialism.

The Otis papers bitterly fought woman suffrage until the last hour and now they are pathetically pleading with the woman to "save the city from anll awful calamity of Socialism" by voting for the gang of grafters that are in power at the present time. What the Times really fears is that the Socialists will win and with them the workers will be able to repeal the anti-picket law and take the police department out of the hands of the M. and M.

In addition to this Otis is interested in certain land and water grabs that will be stopped if Harriman and the Socialists are lected. One of the features that complicates the campaign is the fact a prohibition referendum is to be voted on at the election on December 5. This referendum has not become an issue in the campaign but it bids fair to do so because the liquor interests have been so ill advised as to crowd the affair forward in full page advertisements in the daily newspapers. This will force the churches into action and prohibition may be taken up by the good government people as a last resort.

Since the Old Guard has taken hold of the management of the campaign the saloons have poured money into the coffers of the "good government" organization. As opposed to this the bartenders' union stands solidly for the Socialist ticket. The bartenders have more friends than their employers. The danger to the liquor interests is that the workers may resent the action of the big brewers and distillers in donating immense sums to the campaign fund of the exploiters.

A feature of the campaign that has been a power is the Socialists theater. The show house is situated on Fifth street. Motion pictures are shown at this place and the latest sensation is a series of pictures showing scenes along Owens River aqueduct depicting the immense dam in course of construction on the lands owned by Otis, Earl and others of the plunder-bund. The picture shows a private aqueduct to carry the water to Chatsworth Park where it will be impounded in another reservoir on private land.

In half a dozen places stereopticons are working several hours each night flashing on screens news that is suppressed in the daily newspapers.

On half a dozen "news wagons" on the streets, Socialists are selling literature in quantities hitherto undreamed. "I am selling one dollar books now faster than I could give them away a year ago" said a literature agent who has disposed of 2000 copies of a book against war.

Senator Winfield Gaylord of Milwaukee, Charlotte Perkins Gilman of New York and J. Stitt Wilson, mayor of Berkeley, are among the latest speakers added to the list.

Lincoln Steffens, who is in Los Angeles for the McNamara trial declares there was never a political campaign conducted with the completeness, vigor and enthusiasm as the one now carried on by the Socialists.

At meetings unadvertised, where simple announcements have been made, 15,000 persons turned out. At the first meeting scheduled for Charlottee Perkins Gilman at Temple Auditorium for 8 o'clock, a remarkable scene was enacted. Doors were opened at 6:50 P. M. and twelve minutes later 3500 persons were seated in the auditorium. Six thousand were sent to six theaters and halls nearby and many thousands stood in the streets. That same night twenty meetings were held in outlying halls and at nearly every one of them overflow meetings were held in the street.

"Good government" meetings are poorly attended despite the flaring advertisements and wild appeals for attendance.

Of course this proves nothing conclusively and it is admitted Socialists are universally given to attendance at meetings. They will vote but will they have enough to carry the election?

Never have daily papers gone to such extremes in lies and vilification. With the exception of the Scripps paper every newspaper in Los Angeles is sending up a prolonged wail to "save the city" from the Socialists.

The eight page full newspaper size of the "Coming Victory" will be off the press for distribution by the "Flying Squadron" next Saturday. The edition will be number 18 and 150,000 will be run and distributed to the homes of the people before 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

An analysis of the new registration shows some startling and encouraging figures. In the Harriman precincts there is a vast increase over the Alexander precincts. Out of the mass of duplications in the registration the totals will settle down to about 160,000 in the city.

There will be about 110,000 votes cast at the election. Harriman's followers claim at least 60,000 votes.

It is known that a conspiracy is on foot to throw out thousands of Socialist registrations. It is openly stated that ALEXANDER MUST WIN. This is being re-echoed by the operatives, thugs and pickhandler men, who are in the city acting as guards in the Southern Pacific and Salt Lake railway shops where strikes are in progress. These men are being instructed in their duties and they will be on hand.

"If we can't outvote them we can outcount them,' said a strikebreaker who has been taken out of an iron foundry and put on "precinct work."

Unknown to their opponents the Socialists have their men on the election boards in nearly every precinct in the city. These men will be in a position to insist on a fair count.

The city is flooded with annonymous circulars, some of them of a scurrilous character, all aimed at the Socialists. The bill boards are being used and one flaring placard reads: "Don't vote yourself into the breadline—Vote for Alexander."

This is a weak defense for accusations that the goo-goos are planning a $75,000,000 land and water and harbor steal.

Another placard shows the Stars and Stripes and the red flag with the question "Under which flag? Answer Dec. 5th."

Socialists have issued a most effective reply in the shape of a three flag placard, adding the black flag of capitalistic piracy.

McNAMARA JURY GETTING DRAGS

LOS ANGELES, CAL. Nov. 28. — With eleven pre-emptory challenges he will clear the jury box down to seven jurors. During the past week the character of the talesmen and the attitude of Judge Bordwell has been most discouraging. The decisions have been of such a nature that the judge and chief counsel for the defence have on several occasions come into sharp conflict.

Darrow sprung a sensation when he declared that he did not want jurors who were inclined to any half way measures.

"We want this defendant to be given his liberty or to be hanged," was the astounding declaration of the attorney when the judge hesitated concerning challenge of a juror who was not certain as to what he would do regarding circumstantial evidence. Darrow expected the prosecutor to challenge the man for cause and upon his failure to do so Darrow challenged. The judge kept his ruling in abeyance two days waiting to decide whether to permit the defense to challenge under the circumstances.

Loran W. Travers stated that he could not convict entirely on circumstantial evidence where the death penalty was involved. Here is where Bordwell hesitated. He did not like the idea of the defense challenging on this ground. According to the California code a man entertaining such scruples shall not be permitted to be compelled to serve. Judge Bordwell in denying Darrow's right to challenge on this specific ground ruled that it was the state's and not the defense rights. The prosecution's rights would, he declared, be interfered with by such a juror.

Darrow wants all such jurors eliminated because the California code permits a jury to find a man guilty in a murder case and to fix the punishment at imprisonment for life. Darrow thinks jurors who are not favorable to circumstantial evidence although they believe James B. McNamara guilty would, if qualified, be unfriendly because they would convict and fix the punishment at life imprisonment, knowing well that if a mistake was committed and it should later come to light the mistake could be rectified.

Because of this situation Darrow, argues, the state has a decided advantage in this case. This brought about his demand that the court should excuse all men holding such prejudice.

CONSTRUCTIVE CAPITALISM.

By Frank Bohn.

It is with unmixed joy that the revolutionary Socialists observe the growth of capitalist government ownership. True, within ten or fifteen years the Socialist and labor movements will be in a position to take hold of the job, but just now there is more work for capitalism to perform. The great individual capitalist, whose more striking representative were Rockefeller and Carnegie, completed their work ten years ago. Capitalism as the organizer of a trustified industrial government under Morgan has just brought its work to a close. The new period of capitalism is now here and in full swing. The Aldrich Bank scheme which will permit the government regulation of financial capital will undoubtedly be the first step in the new process. Then the road will be clear for systematic government regulation ending in government ownership of the trusts.

La Follette vs. Roosevelt.

A few weeks ago we tried to point out that La Follette and his Insurgent host were being driven to adopt a constructive policy. The first radical who comes straight through to government ownership and stays there will have his political fortune made.

The re-entrance of Roosevelt into national politics is marked by a document which fills six newspaper columns. Under the caption, "OLD POLICY OUTGROWN", he argues for the acceptance of the trust system and shows that the business practice and theory of sixty years ago will not suit present conditions. He disputes the idea that Socialism is implied by the most careful government regulation. Laissez-faire he throws into the waste basket after an argument directed against the "survival of the fittest," which, ten years ago, came from the lips of Socialists only. Finally his policy includes government regulation of the contracts between capitalists and laborers The government is to interfere in the matter of wages, of hours and of conditions of industry.

In his editorial, which the press everywhere reprinted from "The Outlook," Roosevelt has again overtaken La Follette and thus clinches his position as leader of the Progressives. Will La Follette wake up or will he permit that leadership to slip easily from his hands? Conditions are forcing the formation of a gigantic government regulation and government ownership party. If Roosevelt will lead that party a third term is a foregone conclusion.

All this arouses gratitude in the heart of the social revolutionist. Government ownership marks the post-Morgan period of constructive capitalism. The Morganization of the trust took thirteen years to accomplish. The period of constructive government ownership cannot last so long. The forces of working class industrial democracy are now too far advanced. The present temper of the working class indicates that if the capitalist government of the United States should take complete possession of the railroads the railroads; workers would demand conditions which the government could not concede under capitalmentism. And the political state in America cannot long make war on the workers without the Socialist party capturing that government. Meanwhile let insurgents of all varieties note that members of the Socialists Party are in no mood to let their movement be transformed into government ownership gas for use by the Roosevelt, La Follette and Hearst dirigibles. Fron now on the tyranny of the government owned trusts must be exposed as relentlessly as that of the private owned trusts. Government ownership is the last stage of capitalism, not the first stage of Socialism.

LABOR'S RIGHT TO THE PRODUCT OF ITS LABOR

By Robert Hunter.

In nearly all Socialist and labor papers today you see quoted again and again Lincoln's words: "To secure to each laborer the whole product of his labor, or as nearly as possible, is a worthy object of any good government."

It is really noteworthy that a president of the United States should have used that thought to express his views of economic justice.

It is so unlike what one hears from presidents and politicians and it is really revolutionary in its essence that one wonders how Lincoln ever came to hold such a view.

Perhaps he saw it first in Horace Greeley's New York Tribune, which in Lincoln's day professed socialistic views.

Perhaps he got it from one of the many radical labor papers that were crying out against industrial wrongs.

Perhaps he got it from one of the Abolitionist journals. In any case Lincoln used that sentence again and again in his speeches.

And the fact is that nearly all the labor papers of the middle of last century use that phrase as a slogan.

It was the thought running through all the propaganda of the early Republicans, the Abolitionists and Socialists.

"Would you like," said William Thompson, nearly one hundred years ago to the distressed weavers of Spitalfields, "to enjoy yourselves the whole product of your labor? You have nothing more to do than simply to alter the direction of your labor. Instead of working for you know not whom, Work for each other."

Thomas Hodgskin about the same time said: "The law of nature is that industry shall be rewarded by wealth and idleness be punished by destitution; the law of the land is to give wealth to idleness and to fleece industry till it be destitute."

Speaking of the comparative pauperism and destitution of the laboring class he says: "It cannot be doubted . . . . that the immediate and approximate cause of their poverty and destitution, seeing how much they labor and how many people their labor nourishes in opulence, is the law which appropriates their produce in the shape of revenue, rent, tithes and profits."

John Bray, another of the same school says, "All profit must come from labor . . . . the gain of an idle class must necessarily be the loss of an industrial class."

"Capitalists and proprietors do no more than give the working men, for his labor of one week, a part of the wealth which they obtained from him the week before."

"Thus view the matter as we will, there is to be seen no towering pile of wealth which has not been heaped together by rapacity."

And Bray, as early as 1839, shows that America proves the futility of merely political reform. "Society is upon the same principle in all countries," he says.

"They (the Americans), like ourselves, are divided into rich and poor, into capitalists and producers and the last are there, as they are here, at the mercy of the first."

John Gray, still another writer, says, in a summary of one of his books, "We have endeavored to show by whom wealth is created and by whom it is consumed. We have endeavored to show that is from human labor that every description of wealth proceeds; that the productive classes DO NOW support not only themselves but every unproductive member of society.

In another place Hodgskin says: "Masters, it is evident, are laborers as well as their journeymen. In this character their interest is precisely the same as that of their men. But they are also either capitalists or the agents of a capitalist and in this respect their interest is decidedly opposed to the interest of their workmen.

"The contest now appears to be between masters and journeymen, or between one species of labor and another, but it will soon be displayed in its proper characters and will stand confessed a war of honest industry against idle profligacy.

No Air Castle For Him.

One of Philadelphia's wealthiest men, who has made a fortune out of building operations, was spending a few weeks in the Poconos, where he made the acquaintance of a romantic young maid who paints china and writes poetry.

"Isn't this simply superb?" she inquired one night of the Philadelphian as they sat on the porch of a resort hotel, with the soft moonlight bathing the mountains. "Do you ever sit and build air castles, Mr. Penn?"

"Nuh," said he. "Nuthin' but two and three story houses."

The Explanation.

The wife of a young businessman got a wire from her husband the other evening that said:

"Shall dine with Milly Brown, an old gal of mine. Will be late. Don't wail for me."

When the businessman reached home at midnight his wife met him in the hall.

"Wail for you!" she sneered. "Why, I wouldn't wail for the best man that ever lived, let alone you!"

"Why, my dear"—he stammered.

Then, bursting into tears, she handed him the telegram, and in a jiffy he explained that what he had really wired was:

"Shall dine with Billy Brown, an old pal of mine. Will be late. Don't wait for me."

THE PRODUCT.

By Orella Ogden Eubanks.

Absorbed in thought, I strolled along,
One sunny autumn day,
That I might get the health and strength
Found in the sun's warm ray.

To me the world seemed beautiful
Out in the sunshine bright,
When rudely I was startled, and
I almost fell from fright.

I heard an oath, Oh, horrors, Oh!
But that caused not the fright,
It was the mental picture that
Came flashing on my sight.

I seemed to see an object with
A human form and face,
And yet, something was needed there,
To give it human grace.

And turning now to see from whence
Came words so coarse and vile,
I saw the picture reproduced,
And pity made me smile.

Three workingmen were standing there,
Another bending o'er,
And there in him I recognized
The object seen before.

A human, yes, but scarce a man,
Now standing sledge in hand,
A mighty form, and, Oh, what strength
And pow'r he could command!

Then once again I heard the oath,
Brought out with vim and might,
With much importance looking 'round,
He focused all in sight.

He saw the "boss" not far away,
This human tool, called man,—
And making sure the "boss" would hear,
His tongue broke loose and ran.

"The Unions think this Company
Should do what they all say,
And let them run its business,
And tell them what to pay."

"Now that I say, is one great note!"
Used stronger terms that that,
And all the while to watch the "boss,"
He peeped from neath his hat.

"Them fellers have the gall, they do,
And say, it makes me tired,
To hear them shootin' off their mouth,
No wonder they git fired."

"Now, they don't think of the expense,
This company has to bear,
And that material costs a lot,
And all the wear and tear."

"They make me tired when they all say,
What wages I should get,
I'll have a job, when they have none."
And then he mopped his sweat.

Disgusted then, the others turned
In silence walked away.
And then I thought, 'tis such as he,
That tells them what to pay.

And then he grasped the sledge again,
And wielded mighty blows,
A fine large beast, a master's tool,
In league with labor's foes.

A product of the times, this man—
Therefore, he's not to blame,
His likes, 'no doubt, he'll reproduce,
To manhood's lasting shame.

But things will change, and such as he
Will soon have had their day,
When Socialism is in power,
And labor has its way.

UNIVERSAL SCOUTS OF FREEDOM.

By Mrs. J. S. Kiefner.

"Boys will be boys," so the old adage reads. But nowadays boys are becoming very spirited, very independent, and the trouble is that "boys will be men." I have nothing but admiration for the boy who displays courage and independence. But I do not approve of the "boys' brigade" and the Boy Scout movement as an outlet for his energies.

The originators of these movements make large claims for them. They say they have discovered, or rediscovered, the boy, but I think it could be shown that they have discovered little about the boy that was not known long ago.

I want the young comrades to consider long and well the objects and uses of the army and navy before they join the ranks of such brigades, deliberately instituted to prepare youths to be hired as assassins for the benefit of men of power and wealth. Where is the difference between the man who kills his fellow being in a passionate moment to gratify some particular desire, and the man who lends himself to a government and kills his fellow man because he is paid to do it?

We are told that these brigades do not prepare boys for the army, but fit them to lead a manly life. However, demonstrations that have been brought to my notice of late do not substantiate this claim.

My young comrades, remember that you are the children of the workers, who have never yet had the support of the army and navy when they have endeavored to better their condition by strikes and such methods.

The turn will soon come for the girls, for they will be asked to form brigades of hospital scullions, to do the dirtiest and most repulsive work when their masters have again caused the blood of the workers to flow. And do not forget, they will be appealed to as their brothers have, in the name of religion and patriotism!

Some time ago, after investigating the Boy Scout movement, I readily saw that something had to be done for our young people. I brought a communication before a branch meeting of our local, and it was turned over to the "Woman's Committee." We at once got busy and organized the children, and they gave the organization the name, "The Universal Scouts of Freedom," and said they WOULD scout for freedom, too.

(Realizing the inconsistency of holding international peace conferences, at the same time teaching militarism in our schools and churches, we, the Universal Scouts of Freedom, have organized to oppose everything pertaining to warfare as the most logical means of securing world-wide peace. Our motto is; "Peace on Earth, One Country, One People, One Flag."

We take in both boys and girls and have no age limit; we want young and old, and everybody, for that matter, as we want liberty and cannot free ourselves without freeing all. We are organizing by wards, and each branch takes up the work, teaching economics, physical culture, ethics and all the principles pertaining to a higher and nobler life.

It is interesting to the older people to note the interest the juniors take in their meetings. On one occasion, when a noted speaker addressed the Universal Scouts of Freedom, one of the little girls acted as chairman of the evening. She made some preliminary remarks and then introduced the speaker. We have also given several entertainments with the juniors acting as chairmen. It teaches them parliamentary procedure, gives them confidence before audiences, and makes our hearts rejoice to see the possibilities in them. There are choirs that furnish songs of Socialism, duets and solos. They have dialogues, recitations and games. Indeed, their entertaining features are splendid.

In one ward recently they were getting their gymnasium ready for the winter. They also have access to a swimming pool, with a good instructor in charge. In one branch the boys have a baseball team called the Teddy Bears. They played in Forest Park all summer. The dignity they assumed in showing their permits was amusing. Next summer we will have outings for them, let them get close to nature and teach them the principles of nature in a manner that will make them conservators rather than destroyers of living things.

It is our love for the boys and girls of the working class that makes us want them to know that they are a class apart from those who own the earth but to destroy its blessings, we want them to know that their class is engaged in the work of effecting its own emancipation from wage slavery, and that all these military and naval preparations of the masters are but cunning means to keep the workers divided, and therefore in subjection. Ours is a constructive movement, and by love, truth and justice we hope to win all or as many as possible from the army of destruction. So in teaching the universal brotherhood of man, and the fatherhood of God, we must lay the foundation for the building of this structure on Love, for that is the great fundamental principle.

I hope that every Socialist and lover of peace will recognize the good we are trying to do and will join in helping us carry this movement to the uttermost ends of the earth. This will require the moral, physical and financial support of every believer in our work. We have adopted a pledge which is used as a membership card, and also an emblem. So far we have no constitution or by-laws, but the demands are coming in so fast for the same that we will bring it up at the next meeting and have one adopted in the near future.

This movement of the Universal Scouts of Freedom has created quite an interest, both near and far, and many are asking for information regarding it. So let us unite for the betterment of humanity.

(For further information regarding the Universal Scouts of Freedom, address Mrs. J. S. Kiefner, secretary and organizer, 2829 Arlington avenue, St. Louis, Mo.)

COLLECTIVISM THE REMEDY.

By Geo. B. Kline.

The bread-and-butter question is the greatest question before any people, and until food, shelter and clothing are assured, but few people have any thought for anything else. But once these are assured the people can have the opportunity to develop in lines to suit their individual tastes; and as Socialism deals directly on economics, it pertains almost wholly to giving the people their physical needs.

At one time almost all work was individual effort, but with the invention of machinery and the use of systems, the production and distribution of commodities became social, that is, tens, hundreds and thousands, working co-operatively in doing the world's work. In most things the larger the unit the cheaper the commodities can be produced and exchanged. This is why the large factories, mines, etc., can produce more cheaply than the smaller ones. It is a process of natural growth, known as evolution, and explains why the trusts are so hard to dissolve. In fact, their principles have come to stay despite the effort of the 2x4 politicians to turn the hands of progress backward.

The real and only objection to the trusts is their private ownership, whereby all their good flows to the few.

Socialism means the collective ownership of the means of producing and distributing wealth, in which each worker will have the opportunity to work, because he is part owner, and to receive the full product of his social effort. Socialism also means the private ownership of those things used privately by the individual or the family.

The collective ownership of the railroads, street cars, mills, mines, factories, and land when not used by the owner.

The private ownership of the home and its furnishings, lot and land when used by the owner.

It is said, "Collective ownership of the railroadds would double the price of village and farm property because there would be no discrimination rates in favor of the cities."

Socialism is a method by which the people will rid themselves of the ills of present society, for they are an outgrowth of capitalism. We find in history that at one time slavery was the method by which useful things were produced for society.

Later it was feudalism, and still later capitalism as we have it now.

The succeeding method always had its roots deep in its predecessor, just as now co-operated methods are supplanting the competition which caused capitalism to attain its growth.

We have come to a point in history that the people are pretty well disgusted with capitalism and its exploitation, and are demanding co-operation for the benefit of all the people, and not co-operation for the few private owners.

THE OLD RED SCHOOL HOUSE.

By Murray Youtz.

Twenty-five years ago the old country school house was indeed used as a social center, for it is there that the people for miles around would gather at night and hold an old time spelling match, etc.

Some of the greatest men this nation has produced can trace their very beginning to those old time literary and debating clubs.

It is the one feature above all others that gave the school life, and it was a common saying among young and old "that they learned more on Friday night than during the whole week."

True we were never allowed to talk politics or debate religion, and naturally because the politician and the preacher wanted to do that.

Whenever you find people who do not want questions discussed from an educational standpoint in the school, then look out, for somebody has an ax to grind.

Some sixty years ago the question was proposed at a school in Lancaster, Ohio, for debate: "Resolved, that railroads are practical." The directors decided that to talk about people riding fifty miles an hour was the rankest heresy and so they did not permit that foolish discussion to take place.

If the school is for any purpose in the world, it is for the purpose of teaching science.

Politics is the science of living.

If there is a greater science than that of living I would like to know what it is.

Terrible as it may seem to be, it is nevertheless a fact that the public school today is not what it should be. The process of education, instead of being an institution of delight and entertainment, has really retrogressed to such an extent that it is looked upon by the young as a sort of punishment, for did you ever hear the mother say: "Now, Johnny, if you are not good you will have to go to school today."

The question for the people to decide today is:

Where would you rather see the family? In the demoralizing moving picture show, in the brothel, in the saloon, OR IN THE SOCIAL CENTER ACTIVITIES OF YOUR DISTRICT SCHOOL?

Martins Ferry, Ohio. — The Socialists, who carried every city office and all township offices except two justices, one trustee and one clerk at the election, have served notice of a contest and demand a new count. They intimate there was fraud to prevent Socialists winning.

It is charged that two precincts in Bridgeport and one in Brookside were not returned until Friday and that it was the vote in these that elected one Republican trustee and one clerk.

"OLD GUARD" PLUTES BECOME DESPERATE.

Los Angeles Socialists Making Fierce Onslaught Upon the Capitalistic Forces in Otis' Stronghold.

(By National Socialist Press.)

LOS ANGELES, CAL. Nov. 28.—Driven to desperation by the irresistible onslaught of the Socialists, the "Old Guard" is standing in the trench fighting desperately for life.

"Nothing short of a miracle can save us from the impending political cataclysm — the Socialists as about to overwhelm the combined strength of our party" said a "good government" official at the Union League Club last night.

"Los Angeles is in a terrible predicament with woman's suffrage and Socialism.

The Otis papers bitterly fought woman suffrage until the last hour and now they are patheticalfy pleading with the woman to "save the city from and awful calamity of Socialism" by voting for the gang of grafters that are in power at the present time. What the Times really fears is that the Socialists will win and with them the workers will be able to repeal the anti-picket law and take the police department out of the hands of the M. and M.

In addition to this Otis is interested in certain land and water grabs that will be stopped if Harriman and the Socialists are lected. One of the features that complicates the campaign is the fact a prohibition referendum is to be voted on at the election on December 5. This referendum has not become an issue in the campaign but it bids fair to do so because the liquor interests have been so ill advised as to crowd the affair forward in full page advertisements in the daily newspapers. This will force the churches into action and prohibition may be taken up by the good government people as a last resort.

Since the Old Guard has taken hold of the management of the campaign the saloons have poured money into the coffers of the "good government" organization. As opposed to this the bartenders' union stands solidly for the Socialist ticket. The bartenders have more friends than their employers. The danger to the liquor interests is that the workers may resent the action of the big brewers and distillers in donating immense sums to the campaign fund of the exploiters.

A feature of the campaign that has been a power is the Socialists theater. The show house is situated on Fifth street. Motion pictures are shown at this place and the latest sensation is a series of pictures showing scenes along Owens River aqueduct depicting the immense dam in course of construction on the lands owned by Otis, Earl and others of the plunder-bund. The picture shows a private aqueduct to carry the water to Chatsworth Park where it will be impounded in another reservoir on private land.

In half a dozen places stereopticons are working several hours each night flashing on screens news that is suppressed in the daily newspapers.

On half a dozen "news wagons" on the streets, Socialists are selling literature in quantities hitherto undreamed. "I am selling one dollar books now faster than I could give them away a year ago" said a literature agent who has disposed of 2000 copies of a book against war.

Senator Winfield Gaylord of Milwaukee, Charlotte Perkins Gilman of New York and J. Stitt Wilson, mayor of Berkeley, are among the latest speakers added to the list.

Lincoln Steffens, who is in Los Angeles for the McNamara trial declares there was never a political campaign conducted with the completeness, vigor and enthusiasm as the one now carried on by the Socialists.

At meetings unadvertised, where simple announcements have been made, 15,000 persons turned out. At the first meeting scheduled for Charlottee Perkins Gilman at Temple Auditorium for 8 o'clock, a remarkable scene was enacted. Doors were opened at 6:30 P. M. and twelve minutes later 3500 persons were seated in the auditorium. Six thousand were sent to six theaters and halls nearby and many thousands stood in the streets. That same night twenty meetings were held in outlying halls and at nearly every one of them overflow meetings were held in the street.

"Good government" meetings are poorly attended despite the flaring advertisements and wild appeals for attendance.

Of course this proves nothing conclusively and it is admitted Socialists are universally given to attendance at meetings. They will vote but will they have enough to carry the election?

Never have daily papers gone to such extremes in lies and vilification. With the exception of the Scripps paper every newspaper in Los Angeles is sending up a prolonged wail to "save the city" from the Socialists.

The eight page full newspaper size of the "Coming Victory" will be off the press for distribution by the "Flying Squadron" next Saturday. The edition will be number 18 and 150,000 will be run and distributed to the homes of the people before 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

An analysis of the new registration shows some startling and encouraging figures. In the Harriman precincts there is a vast increase over the Alexander precincts. Out of the mass of duplications in the registration the totals will settle down to about 160,000 in the city.

There will be about 110,000 votes cast at the election. Harriman's followers claim at least 60,000 votes.

It is known that a conspiracy is on foot to throw out thousands of Socialist registrations. It is openly stated that ALEXANDER MUST WIN. This is being re-echoed by the operatives, thugs and pickhandler men, who are in the city acting as guards in the Southern Pacific and Salt Lake railway shops where strikes are in progress. These men are being instructed in their duties and they will be on hand.

"If we can't outvote them we can outcount them," said a strikebreaker who has been taken out of an iron foundry and put on "precinct work."

Unknown to their opponents the Socialists have their men on the election boards in nearly every precinct in the city. These men will be in a position to insist on a fair count.

The city is flooded with annonymous circulars, some of them of a scurrilous character, all aimed at the Socialists. The bill boards are being used and one flaring placard reads: "Don't vote yourself into the breadline—Vote for Alexander."

This is a weak defense for accusations that the goo-goos are planning a $75,000,000 land and water and harbor steal.

Another placard shows the Stars and Stripes and the red flag with the question "Under which flag? Answer Dec. 5th."

Socialists have issued a most effective reply in the shape of a three flag placard, adding the black flag of capitalistic piracy.

McNAMARA JURY GETTING DRAGS

LOS ANGELES, CAL. Nov. 28. — With eleven pre-emptory challenges he will clear the jury box down to seven jurors. During the past week the character of the talesmen and the attitude of Judge Bordwell has been most discouraging. The decisions have been of such a nature that the judge and chief counsel for the defence have on several occasions come into sharp conflict.

Darrow sprung a sensation when he declared that he did not want jurors who were inclined to any half way measures.

"We want this defendant to be given his liberty or to be hanged," was the astounding declaration of the attorney when the judge hesitated concerning challenge of a juror who was not certain as to what he would do regarding circumstantial evidence. Darrow expected the presecutor to challenge the man for cause and upon his failure to do so Darrow challenged. The judge kept his ruling in abeyance two days waiting to decide whether to permit the defense to challenge under the circumstances.

Loran W. Travers stated that he could not convict entirely on circumstantial evidence where the death penalty was involved. Here is where Bordwell hesitated. He did not like the idea of the defense challenging on this ground. According to the California code a man entertaining such scruples shall not be permitted to be compelled to serve. Judge Bordwell in denying Darrow's right to challenge on this specific ground ruled that it was the state's and not the defense rights. The prosecution's rights would, he declared, be interfered with by such a juror.

Darrow wants all such jurors eliminated because the California code permits a jury to find a man guilty in a murder case and to fix the punishment at imprisonment for life. Darrow thinks jurors who are not favorable to circumstantial evidence although they believe James B. McNamara guilty would, if qualified, be unfriendly because they would convict and fix the punishment at life imprisonment, knowing well that if a mistake was committed and it should later come to light the mistake could be rectified.

Because of this situation Darrow, argues, the state has a decided advantage in this case. This brought about his demand that the court should excuse all men holding such prejudice.

CONSTRUCTIVE CAPITALISM.

By Frank Bohn.

It is with unmixed joy that the revolutionary Socialists observe the growth of capitalist government ownership. True, within ten or fifteen years the Socialist and labor movements will be in a position to take hold of the job, but just now there is more work for capitalism to perform. The great individual capitalist, whose more striking representative were Rockefeller and Carnegie, completed their work ten years ago. Capitalism as the organizer of a trustified industrial government under Morgan has just brought its work to a close. The new period of capitalism is now here and in full swing. The Aldrich Bank scheme which will permit the government regulation of financial capital will undoubtedly be the first step in the new process. Then the road will be clear for systematic government regulation ending in government ownership of the trusts.

La Follette vs. Roosevelt.

A few weeks ago we tried to point out that La Follette and his Insurgent host were being driven to adopt a constructive policy. The first radical who comes straight through to government ownership and stays there will have his political fortune made.

The re-entrance of Roosevelt into national politics is marked by a document which fills six newspaper columns. Under the caption, "OLD POLICY OUTGROWN", he argues for the acceptance of the trust system and shows that the business practice and theory of sixty years ago will not suit present conditions. He disputes the idea that Socialism is implied by the most careful government regulation. Laissez-faire he throws into the waste basket after an argument directed against the "survival of the fittest," which, ten years ago, came from the lips of Socialists only. Finally his policy includes government regulation of the contracts between capitalists and laborers The government is to interfere in the matter of wages, of hours and of conditions of industry.

In his editorial, which the press everywhere reprinted from "The Outlook," Roosevelt has again overtaken La Follette and thus clinches his position as leader of the Progressives. Will La Follette wake up or will he permit that leadership to slip easily from his hands? Conditions are forcing the formation of a gigantic government regulation and government ownership party. If Roosevelt will lead that party a third term is a foregone conclusion.

All this arouses gratitude in the heart of the social revolutionist. Government ownership marks the post-Morgan period of constructive capitalism. The Morganization of the trust took thirteen years to accomplish. The period of constructive government ownership cannot last so long. The forces of working class industrial democracy are now too far advanced. The present temper of the working class indicates that if the capitalist government of the United States should take complete possession of the railroads the railroads; workers would demand conditions which the government could not concede under capitalmentism. And the political state in America cannot long make war on the workers without the Socialist party capturing that government. Meanwhile let insurgents of all varieties note that members of the Socialists Party are in no mood to let their movement be transformed into government ownership gas for use by the Roosevelt, La Follette and Hearst dirigibles. From now on the tyranny of the government owned trusts must be exposed as relentlessly as that of the private owned trusts. Government ownership is the last stage of capitalism, not the first stage of Socialism.

LABOR'S RIGHT TO THE PRODUCT OF ITS LABOR

By Robert Hunter.

In nearly all Socialist and labor papers today you see quoted again and again Lincoln's words: "To secure to each laborer the whole product of his labor, or as nearly as possible, is a worthy object of any good government."

It is really noteworthy that a president of the United States should have used that thought to express his views of economic justice.

It is so unlike what one hears from presidents and politicians and it is really revolutionary in its essence that one wonders how Lincoln ever came to hold such a view.

Perhaps he saw it first in Horace Greeley's New York Tribune, which in Lincoln's day professed socialistic views.

Perhaps he got it from one of the many radical labor papers that were crying out against industrial wrongs.

Perhaps he got it from one of the Abolitionist journals. In any case Lincoln used that sentence again and again in his speeches.

And the fact is that nearly all the labor papers of the middle of last century use that phrase as a slogan.

It was the thought running through all the propaganda of the early Republicans, the Abolitionists and Socialists.

"Would you like," said William Thompson, nearly one hundred years ago to the distressed weavers of Spitalfields, "to enjoy yourselves the whole product of your labor? You have nothing more to do than simply to alter the direction of your labor. Instead of working for you know not whom, Work for each other."

Thomas Hodgskin about the same time said: "The law of nature is that industry shall be rewarded by wealth and idleness be punished by destitution; the law of the land is to give wealth to idleness and to fleece industry till it be destitute."

Speaking of the comparative pauperism and destitution of the laboring class he says: "It cannot be doubted . . . . that the immediate and approximate cause of their poverty and destitution, seeing how much they labor and how many people their labor nourishes in opulence, is the law which appropriates their produce in the shape of revenue, rent, tithes and profits."

John Bray, another of the same school says, "All profit must come from labor . . . . the gain of an idle class must necessarily be the loss of an industrial class."

"Capitalists and proprietors do no more than give the working men, for his labor of one week, a part of the wealth which they obtained from him the week before."

"Thus view the matter as we will, there is to be seen no towering pile of wealth which has not been heaped together by rapacity."

And Bray, as early as 1839, shows that America proves the futility of merely political reform. "Society is upon the same principle in all countries," he says.

"They (the Americans), like ourselves, are divided into rich and poor, into capitalists and producers and the last are there, as they are here, at the mercy of the first."

John Gray, still another writer, says, in a summary of one of his books, "We have endeavored to show by whom wealth is created and by whom it is consumed. We have endeavored to show that is from human labor that every description of wealth proceeds; that the productive classes DO NOW support not only themselves but every unproductive member of society.

In another place Hodgskin says: "Masters, it is evident, are laborers as well as their journeymen. In this character their interest is precisely the same as that of their men. But they are also either capitalists or the agents of a capitalist and in this respect their interest is decidedly opposed to the interest of their workmen.

"The contest now appears to be between masters and journeymen, or between one species of labor and another, but it will soon be displayed in its proper characters and will stand confessed a war of honest industry against idle profligacy.

No Air Castle For Him.

One of Philadelphia's wealthiest men, who has made a fortune out of building operations, was spending a few weeks in the Poconos, where he made the acquaintance of a romantic young maid who paints china and writes poetry.

"Isn't this simply superb?" she inquired one night of the Philadelphian as they sat on the porch of a resort hotel, with the soft moonlight bathing the mountains. "Do you ever sit and build air castles, Mr. Penn?"

"Nuh," said he. "Nuthin' but two and three story houses."

The Explanation.

The wife of a young businessman got a wire from her husband the other evening that said:

"Shall dine with Milly Brown, an old gal of mine. Will be late. Don't wail for me."

When the businessman reached home at midnight his wife met him in the hall.

"Wail for you!" she sneered. "Why, I wouldn't wail for the best man that ever lived, let alone you!"

"Why, my dear"—he stammered.

Then, bursting into tears, she handed him the telegram, and in a jiffy he explained that what he had really wired was:

"Shall dine with Billy Brown, an old pal of mine. Will be late. Don't wait for me."

THE PRODUCT.

By Orella Ogden Eubanks.

Absorbed in thought, I strolled along,
One sunny autumn day,
That I might get the health and strength
Found in the sun's warm ray.

To me the world seemed beautiful
Out in the sunshine bright,
When rudely I was startled, and
I almost fell from fright.

I heard an oath, Oh, horrors, Oh!
But that caused not the fright,
It was the mental picture that
Came flashing on my sight.

I seemed to see an object with
A human form and face,
And yet, something was needed there,
To give it human grace.

And turning now to see from whence
Came words so coarse and vile,
I saw the picture reproduced,
And pity made me smile.

Three workingmen were standing there,
Another bending o'er,
And there in him I recognized
The object seen before.

A human, yes, but scarce a man,
Now standing sledge in hand,
A mighty form, and, Oh, what strength
And pow'r he could command!

Then once again I heard the oath,
Brought out with vim and might,
With much importance looking 'round,
He focused all in sight.

He saw the "boss" not far away,
This human tool, called man,—
And making sure the "boss" would hear,
His tongue broke loose and ran.

"The Unions think this Company
Should do what they all say,
And let them run its business,
And tell them what to pay."

"Now that I say, is one great note!"
Used stronger terms that that,
And all the while to watch the "boss,"
He peeped from neath his hat.

"Them fellers have the gall, they do,
And say, it makes me tired,
To hear them shootin' off their mouth,
No wonder they git fired."

"Now, they don't think of the expense,
This company has to bear,
And that material costs a lot,
And all the wear and tear."

"They make me tired when they all say,
What wages I should get,
I'll have a job, when they have none."
And then he mopped his sweat.

Disgusted then, the others turned
In silence walked away.
And then I thought, 'tis such as he,
That tells them what to pay.

And then he grasped the sledge again,
And wielded mighty blows,
A fine large beast, a master's tool,
In league with labor's foes.

A product of the times, this man—
Therefore, he's not to blame,
His likes, no doubt, he'll reproduce,
To manhood's lasting shame.

But things will change, and such as he
Will soon have had their day,
When Socialism is in power,
And labor has its way.

UNIVERSAL SCOUTS OF FREEDOM.

By Mrs. J. S. Kiefner.

"Boys will be boys," so the old adage reads. But nowadays boys are becoming very spirited, very independent, and the trouble is that "boys will be men." I have nothing but admiration for the boy who displays courage and independence. But I do not approve of the "boys' brigade" and the Boy Scout movement as an outlet for his energies.

The originators of these movements make large claims for them. They say they have discovered, or rediscovered, the boy, but I think it could be shown that they have discovered little about the boy that was not known long ago.

I want the young comrades to consider long and well the objects and uses of the army and navy before they join the ranks of such brigades, deliberately instituted to prepare youths to be hired as assassins for the benefit of men of power and wealth. Where is the difference between the man who kills his fellow being in a passionate moment to gratify some particular desire, and the man who lends himself to a government and kills his fellow man because he is paid to do it?

We are told that these brigades do not prepare boys for the army, but fit them to lead a manly life. However, demonstrations that have been brought to my notice of late do not substantiate this claim.

My young comrades, remember that you are the children of the workers, who have never yet had the support of the army and navy when they have endeavored to better their condition by strikes and such methods.

The turn will soon come for the girls, for they will be asked to form brigades of hospital scullions, to do the dirtiest and most repulsive work when their masters have again caused the blood of the workers to flow. And do not forget, they will be appealed to as their brothers have, in the name of religion and patriotism!

Some time ago, after investigating the Boy Scout movement, I readily saw that something had to be done for our young people. I brought a communication before a branch meeting of our local, and it was turned over to the "Woman's Committee." We at once got busy and organized the children, and they gave the organization the name, "The Universal Scouts of Freedom," and said they WOULD scout for freedom, too.

(Realizing the inconsistency of holding international peace conferences, at the same time teaching militarism in our schools and churches, we, the Universal Scouts of Freedom, have organized to oppose everything pertaining to warfare as the most logical means of securing world-wide peace. Our motto is; "Peace on Earth, One Country, One People, One Flag."

We take in both boys and girls and have no age limit; we want young and old, and everybody, for that matter, as we want liberty and cannot free ourselves without freeing all. We are organizing by wards, and each branch takes up the work, teaching economics, physical culture, ethics and all the principles pertaining to a higher and nobler life.

It is interesting to the older people to note the interest the juniors take in their meetings. On one occasion, when a noted speaker addressed the Universal Scouts of Freedom, one of the little girls acted as chairman of the evening. She made some preliminary remarks and then introduced the speaker. We have also given several entertainments with the juniors acting as chairmen. It teaches them parliamentary procedure, gives them confidence before audiences, and makes our hearts rejoice to see the possibilities in them. There are choirs that furnish songs of Socialism, duets and solos. They have dialogues, recitations and games. Indeed, their entertaining features are splendid.

In one ward recently they were getting their gymnasium ready for the winter. They also have access to a swimming pool, with a good instructor in charge. In one branch the boys have a baseball team called the Teddy Bears. They played in Forest Park all summer. The dignity they assumed in showing their permits was amusing. Next summer we will have outings for them, let them get close to nature and teach them the principles of nature in a manner that will make them conservators rather than destroyers of living things.

It is our love for the boys and girls of the working class that makes us want them to know that they are a class apart from those who own the earth but to destroy its blessings; we want them to know that their class is engaged in the work of effecting its own emancipation from wage slavery, and that all these military and naval preparations of the masters are but cunning means to keep the workers divided, and therefore in subjection. Ours is a constructive movement, and by love, truth and justice we hope to win all or as many as possible from the army of destruction. So in teaching the universal brotherhood of man, and the fatherhood of God, we must lay the foundation for the building of this structure on Love, for that is the great fundamental principle.

I hope that every Socialist and lover of peace will recognize the good we are trying to do and will join in helping us carry this movement to the uttermost ends of the earth. This will require the moral, physical and financial support of every believer in our work. We have adopted a pledge which is used as a membership card, and also an emblem. So far we have no constitution or by-laws, but the demands are coming in so fast for the same that we will bring it up at the next meeting and have one adopted in the near future.

This movement of the Universal Scouts of Freedom has created quite an interest, both near and far, and many are asking for information regarding it. So let us unite for the betterment of humanity.

(For further information regarding the Universal Scouts of Freedom, address Mrs. J. S. Kiefner, secretary and organizer, 2829 Arlington avenue, St. Louis, Mo.)

COLLECTIVISM THE REMEDY.

By Geo. B. Kline.

The bread-and-butter question is the greatest question before any people, and until food, shelter and clothing are assured, but few people have any thought for anything else. But once these are assured the people can have the opportunity to develop in lines to suit their individual tastes; and as Socialism deals directly on economics, it pertains almost wholly to giving the people their physical needs.

At one time almost all work was individual effort, but with the invention of machinery and the use of systems, the production and distribution of commodities became social, that is, tens, hundreds and thousands, working co-operatively in doing the world's work. In most things the larger the unit the cheaper the commodities can be produced and exchanged. This is why the large factories, mines, etc., can produce more cheaply than the smaller ones. It is a process of natural growth, known as evolution, and explains why the trusts are so hard to dissolve. In fact, their principles have come to stay despite the effort of the 2x4 politicians to turn the hands of progress backward.

The real and only objection to the trusts is their private ownership, whereby all their good flows to the few.

Socialism means the collective ownership of the means of producing and distributing wealth, in which each worker will have the opportunity to work, because he is part owner, and to receive the full product of his social effort. Socialism also means the private ownership of those things used privately by the individual or the family.

The collective ownership of the railroads, street cars, mills, mines, factories, and land when not used by the owner.

The private ownership of the home and its furnishings, lot and land when used by the owner.

It is said, "Collective ownership of the railroadds would double the price of village and farm property because there would be no discrimination rates in favor of the cities."

Socialism is a method by which the people will rid themselves of the ills of present society, for they are an outgrowth of capitalism. We find in history that at one time slavery was the method by which useful things were produced for society.

Later it was feudalism, and still later capitalism as we have it now.

The succeeding method always had its roots deep in its predecessor, just as now co-operated methods are supplanting the competition which caused capitalism to attain its growth.

We have come to a point in history that the people are pretty well disgusted with capitalism and its exploitation, and are demanding co-operation for the benefit of all the people, and not co-operation for the few private owners.

THE OLD RED SCHOOL HOUSE.

By Murray Youtz.

Twenty-five years ago the old country school house was indeed used as a social center, for it is there that the people for miles around would gather at night and hold an old time spelling match, etc.

Some of the greatest men this nation has produced can trace their very beginning to those old time literary and debating clubs.

It is the one feature above all others that gave the school life, and it was a common saying among young and old "that they learned more on Friday night than during the whole week."

True we were never allowed to talk politics or debate religion, and naturally because the politician and the preacher wanted to do that.

Whenever you find people who do not want questions discussed from an educational standpoint in the school, then look out, for somebody has an ax to grind.

Some sixty years ago the question was proposed at a school in Lancaster, Ohio, for debate: "Resolved, that railroads are practical." The directors decided that to talk about people riding fifty miles an hour was the rankest heresy and so they did not permit that foolish discussion to take place.

If the school is for any purpose in the world, it is for the purpose of teaching science.

Politics is the science of living.

If there is a greater science than that of living I would like to know what it is.

Terrible as it may seem to be, it is nevertheless a fact that the public school today is not what it should be. The process of education, instead of being an institution of delight and entertainment, has really retrogressed to such an extent that it is looked upon by the young as a sort of punishment, for did you ever hear the mother say: "Now, Johnny, if you are not good you will have to go to school today."

The question for the people to decide today is:

Where would you rather see the family? In the demoralizing moving picture show, in the brothel, in the saloon, OR IN THE SOCIAL CENTER ACTIVITIES OF YOUR DISTRICT SCHOOL?

MARTINS FERRY SOCIALIST BARE POLITICIANS' FRAUD.

"OLD GUARD" PLUTES BECOME DESPERATE.

Los Angeles Socialists Making Fierce Onslaught Upon the Capitalistic Forces in Otis' Stronghold.

(By National Socialist Press.)

LOS ANGELES, CAL. Nov. 28.—Driven to desperation by the irresistible onslaught of the Socialists, the "Old Guard" is standing in the trench fighting desperately for life.

"Nothing short of a miracle can save us from the impending political cataclysm — the Socialists as about to overwhelm the combined strength of our party" said a "good government" official at the Union League Club last night.

"Los Angeles is in a terrible predicament with woman's suffrage and Socialism.

The Otis papers bitterly fought woman suffrage until the last hour and now they are patheticaly pleading with the woman to "save the city from anll awful calamity of Socialism" by voting for the gang of grafters that are in power at the present time. What the Times really fears is that the Socialists will win and with them the workers will be able to repeal the anti-picket law and take the police department out of the hands of the M. and M.

In addition to this Otis is interested in certain land and water grabs that will be stopped if Harriman and the Socialists are lected. One of the features that complicates the campaign is the fact a prohibition referendum is to be voted on at the election on December 5. This referendum has not become an issue in the campaign but it bids fair to do so because the liquor interests have been so ill advised as to crowd the affair forward in full page advertisements in the daily newspapers. This will force the churches into action and prohibition may be taken up by the good government people as a last resort.

Since the Old Guard has taken hold of the management of the campaign the saloons have poured money into the coffers of the "good government" organization. As opposed to this the bartenders' union stands solidly for the Socialist ticket. The bartenders have more friends than their employers. The danger to the liquor interests is that the workers may resent the action of the big brewers and distillers in donating immense sums to the campaign fund of the exploiters.

A feature of the campaign that has been a power is the Socialists theater. The show house is situated on Fifth street. Motion pictures are shown at this place and the latest sensation is a series of pictures showing scenes along Owens River aqueduct depicting the immense dam in course of construction on the lands owned by Otis, Earl and others of the plunder-bund. The picture shows a private aqueduct to carry the water to Chatsworth Park where it will be impounded in another reservoir on private land.

In half a dozen places stereopticons are working several hours each night flashing on screens news that is suppressed in the daily newspapers.

On half a dozen "news wagons" on the streets, Socialists are selling literature in quantities hitherto undreamed. "I am selling one dollar books now faster than I could give them away a year ago" said a literature agent who has disposed of 2000 copies of a book against war.

Senator Winfield Gaylord of Milwaukee, Charlotte Perkins Gilman of New York and J. Stitt Wilson, mayor of Berkeley, are among the latest speakers added to the list.

Lincoln Steffens, who is in Los Angeles for the McNamara trial declares there was never a political campaign conducted with the completeness, vigor and enthusiasm as the one now carried on by the Socialists.

At meetings unadvertised, where simple announcements have been made, 15,000 persons turned out. At the first meeting scheduled for Charlottee Perkins Gilman at Temple Auditorium for 8 o'clock, a remarkable scene was enacted. Doors were opened at 6:30 P. M. and twelve minutes later 3500 persons were seated in the auditorium. Six thousand were sent to six theaters and halls nearby and many thousands stood in the streets. That same night twenty meetings were held in outlying halls and at nearly every one of them overflow meetings were held in the street.

"Good government" meetings are poorly attended despite the flaring advertisements and wild appeals for attendance.

Of course this proves nothing conclusively and it is admitted Socialists are universally given to attendance at meetings. They will vote but will they have enough to carry the election?

Never have daily papers gone to such extremes in lies and vilification. With the exception of the Scripps paper every newspaper in Los Angeles is sending up a prolonged wail to "save the city" from the Socialists.

The eight page full newspaper size of the "Coming Victory" will be off the press for distribution by the "Flying Squadron" next Saturday. The edition will be number 18 and 150,000 will be run and distributed to the homes of the people before 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

An analysis of the new registration shows some startling and encouraging figures. In the Harriman precincts there is a vast increase over the Alexander precincts. Out of the mass of duplications in the registration the totals will settle down to about 160,000 in the city.

There will be about 110,000 votes cast at the election. Harriman's followers claim at least 60,000 votes.

It is known that a conspiracy is on foot to throw out thousands of Socialist registrations. It is openly stated that ALEXANDER MUST WIN. This is being re-echoed by the operatives, thugs and pickhandler men, who are in the city acting as guards in the Southern Pacific and Salt Lake railway shops where strikes are in progress. These men are being instructed in their duties and they will be on hand.

"If we can't outvote them we can outcount them,' said a strikebreaker who has been taken out of an iron foundry and put on "precinct work."

Unknown to their opponents the Socialists have their men on the election boards in nearly every precinct in the city. These men will be in a position to insist on a fair count.

The city is flooded with annonymous circulars, some of them of a scurrilous character, all aimed at the Socialists. The bill boards are being used and one flaring placard reads:—"Don't vote yourself into the breadline—Vote for Alexander."

This is a weak defense for accusations that the goo-goos are planning a $75,000,000 land and water and harbor steal.

Another placard shows the Stars and Stripes and the red flag with the question "Under which flag? Answer Dec. 5th."

Socialists have issued a most effective reply in the shape of a three flag placard, adding the black flag of capitalistic piracy.

McNAMARA JURY GETTING DRAGS

LOS ANGELES, CAL. Nov. 28. — With eleven pre-emptory challenges he will clear the jury box down to seven jurors. During the past week the character of the talesmen and the attitude of Judge Bordwell has been most discouraging. The decisions have been of such a nature that the judge and chief counsel for the defence have on several occasions come into sharp conflict.

Darrow sprung a sensation when he declared that he did not want jurors who were inclined to any half way measures.

"We want this defendant to be given his liberty or to be hanged," was the astounding declaration of the attorney when the judge hesitated concerning challenge of a juror who was not certain as to what he would do regarding circumstantial evidence. Darrow expected the presecutor to challenge the man for cause and upon his failure to do so Darrow challenged. The judge kept his ruling in abeyance two days waiting to decide whether to permit the defense to challenge under the circumstances.

Loran W. Travers stated that he could not convict entirely on circumstantial evidence where the death penalty was involved. Here is where Bordwell hesitated. He did not like the idea of the defense challenging on this ground. According to the California code a man entertaining such scruples shall not be permitted to be compelled to serve. Judge Bordwell in denying Darrow's right to challenge on this specific ground ruled that it was the state's and not the defense rights. The prosecution's rights would, he declared, be interfered with by such a juror.

Darrow wants all such jurors eliminated because the California code permits a jury to find a man guilty in a murder case and to fix the punishment at imprisonment for life. Darrow thinks jurors who are not favorable to circumstantial evidence although they believe James B. McNamara guilty would, if qualified, be unfriendly because they would convict and fix the punishment at life imprisonment, knowing well that if a mistake was committed and it should later come to light the mistake could be rectified.

Because of this situation Darrow, argues, the state has a decided advantage in this case. This brought about his demand that the court should excuse all men holding such prejudice.

CONSTRUCTIVE CAPITALISM.

By Frank Bohn.

It is with unmixed joy that the revolutionary Socialists observe the growth of capitalist government ownership. True, within ten or fifteen years the Socialist and labor movements will be in a position to take hold of the job, but just now there is more work for capitalism to perform. The great individual capitalist, whose more striking representative were Rockefeller and Carnegie, completed their work ten years ago. Capitalism as the organizer of a trustified industrial government under Morgan has just brought its work to a close. The new period of capitalism is now here and in full swing. The Aldrich Bank scheme which will permit the government regulation of financial capital will undoubtedly be the first step in the new process. Then the road will be clear for systematic government regulation ending in government ownership of the trusts.

La Follette vs. Roosevelt.

A few weeks ago we tried to point out that La Follette and his Insurgent host were being driven to adopt a constructive policy. The first radical who comes straight through to government ownership and stays there will have his political fortune made.

The re-entrance of Roosevelt into national politics is marked by a document which fills six newspaper columns. Under the caption, "OLD POLICY OUTGROWN", he argues for the acceptance of the trust system and shows that the business practice and theory of sixty years ago will not suit present conditions. He disputes the idea that Socialism is implied by the most careful govenrment regulation. Laissez-faire he throws into the waste basket after an argument directed against the "survival of the fittest," which, ten years ago, came from the lips of Socialists only. Finally his policy includes government regulation of the contracts between capitalists and laborers The government is to interfere in the matter of wages, of hours and of conditions of industry.

In his editorial, which the press everywhere reprinted from "The Outlook," Roosevelt has again overtaken La Follette and thus clinches his position as leader of the Progressives. Will La Follette wake up or will he permit that leadership to slip easily from his hands? Conditions are forcing the formation of a gigantic government regulation and government ownership party. If Roosevelt will lead that party a third term is a foregone conclusion.

All this arouses gratitude in the heart of the social revolutionist. Government ownership marks the post-Morgan period of constructive capitalism. The Morganization of the trust took thirteen years to accomplish. The period of constructive government ownership cannot last so long. The forces of working class industrial democracy are now too far advanced. The present temper of the working class indicates that if the capitalist government of the United States should take complete possession of the railroads the railroads; workers would demand conditions which the government could not concede under capitalmentism. And the political state in America cannot long make war on the workers without the Socialist party capturing that government. Meanwhile let insurgents of all varieties note that members of the Socialists Party are in no mood to let their movement be transformed into government ownership gas for use by the Roosevelt, La Follette and Hearst dirigibles. Fron now on the tyranny of the government owned trusts must be exposed as relentlessly as that of the private owned trusts. Government ownership is the last stage of capitalism, not the first stage of Socialism.

LABOR'S RIGHT TO THE PRODUCT OF ITS LABOR

By Robert Hunter.

In nearly all Socialist and labor papers today you see quoted again and again Lincoln's words: "To secure to each laboret the whole product of his labor, or as nearly as possible, is a worthy object of any good government."

It is really noteworthy that a president of the United States should have used that thought to express his views of economic justice.

It is so unlike what one hears from presidents and politicians and it is really revolutionary in its essence that one wonders how Lincoln ever came to hold such a view.

Perhaps he saw it first in Horace Greeley's New York Tribune, which in Lincoln's day professed socialistic views.

Perhaps he got it from one of the many radical labor papers that were crying out against industrial wrongs.

Perhaps he got it from one of the Abolitionist journals. In any case Lincoln used that sentence again and again in his speeches.

And the fact is that nearly all the labor papers of the middle of last century use that phrase as a slogan.

It was the thought running through all the propaganda of the early Republicans, the Abolitionists and Socialists.

"Would you like," said William Thompson, nearly one hundred years ago to the distressed weavers of Spitalfields, "to enjoy yourselves the whole product of your labor? You have nothing more to do than simply to alter the direction of your labor. Instead of working for you know not whom, Work for each other."

Thomas Hodgskin about the same time said: "The law of nature is that industry shall be rewarded by wealth and idleness be punished by destitution; the law of the land is to give wealth to idleness and to fleece industry till it be destitute."

Speaking of the comparative pauperism and destitution of the laboring class he says: "It cannot be doubted . . . . that the immediate and approximate cause of their poverty and destitution, seeing how much they labor and how many people their labor nourishes in opulence, is the law which appropriates their produce in the shape of revenue, rent, tithes and profits."

John Bray, another of the same school says, "All profit must come from labor . . . . the gain of an idle class must necessarily be the loss of an industrial class."

"Capitalists and proprietors do no more than give the working men, for his labor of one week, a part of the wealth which they obtained from him the week before."

"Thus view the matter as we will, there is to be seen no towering pile of wealth which has not been heaped together by rapacity."

And Bray, as early as 1839, shows that America proves the futility of merely political reform. "Society is upon the same principle in all countries," he says.

"They (the Americans), like ourselves, are divided into rich and poor, into capitalists and producers and the last are there, as they are here, at the mercy of the first."

John Gray, still another writer, says, in a summary of one of his books, "We have endeavored to show by whom wealth is created and by whom it is consumed. We have endeavored to show that is from human labor that every description of wealth proceeds; that the productive classes DO NOW support not only themselves but every unproductive member of society.

In another place Hodgskin says: "Masters, it is evident, are laborers as well as their journeymen. In this character their interest is precisely the same as that of their men. But they are also either capitalists or the agents of a capitalist and in this respect their interest is decidedly opposed to the interest of their workmen.

"The contest now appears to be between masters and journeymen, or between one species of labor and another, but it will soon be displayed in its proper characters and will stand confessed a war of honest industry against idle profligacy.

No Air Castle For Him.

One of Philadelphia's wealthiest men, who has made a fortune out of building operations, was spending a few weeks in the Poconos, where he made the acquaintance of a romantic young maid who paints china and writes poetry.

"Isn't this simply superb?" she inquired one night of the Philadelphian as they sat on the porch of a resort hotel, with the soft moonlight bathing the mountains. "Do you ever sit and build air castles, Mr. Penn?"

"Nuh," said he. "Nuthin' but two and three story houses."

The Explanation.

The wife of a young businessman got a wire from her husband the other evening that said:

"Shall dine with Milly Brown, an old gal of mine. Will be late. Don't wail for me."

When the businessman reached home at midnight his wife met him in the hall.

"Wail for you!" she sneered. "Why, I wouldn't wail for the best man that ever lived, let alone you!"

"Why, my dear"—he stammered.

Then, bursting into tears, she handed him the telegram, and in a jiffy he explained that what he had really wired was:

"Shall dine with Billy Brown, an old pal of mine. Will be late. Don't wait for me."

The annual convention of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, in recent session at Milwaukee, re-elected John J. McNamara secretary-treasurer.

THE PRODUCT.

By Orella Ogden Eubanks.

Absorbed in thought, I strolled along,
One sunny autumn day,
That I might get the health and strength
Found in the sun's warm ray.

To me the world seemed beautiful
Out in the sunshine bright,
When rudely I was startled, and
I almost fell from fright.

I heard an oath, Oh, horrors, Oh!
But that caused not the fright,
It was the mental picture that
Came flashing on my sight.

I seemed to see an object with
A human form and face,
And yet, something was needed there,
To give it human grace.

And turning now to see from whence
Came words so coarse and vile,
I saw the picture reproduced,
And pity made me smile.

Three workingmen were standing there,
Another bending o'er,
And there in him I recognized
The object seen before.

A human, yes, but scarce a man,
Now standing sledge in hand,
A mighty form, and, Oh, what strength
And pow'r he could command!

Then once again I heard the oath,
Brought out with vim and might,
With much importance looking 'round,
He focused all in sight.

He saw the "boss" not far away,
This human tool, called man,—
And making sure the "boss" would hear,
His tongue broke loose and ran.

"The Unions think this Company
Should do what they all say,
And let them run its business,
And tell them what to pay."

"Now that I say, is one great note!"
Used stronger terms that that,
And all the while to watch the "boss,"
He peeped from neath his hat.

"Them fellers have the gall, they do,
And say, it makes me tired,
To hear them shootin' off their mouth,
No wonder they git fired."

"Now, they don't think of the expense,
This company has to bear,
And that material costs a lot,
And all the wear and tear."

"They make me tired when they all say,
What wages I should get,
I'll have a job, when they have none."
And then he mopped his sweat.

Disgusted then, the others turned
In silence walked away.
And then I thought, 'tis such as he,
That tells them what to pay.

And then he grasped the sledge again,
And wielded mighty blows,
A fine large beast, a master's tool,
In league with labor's foes.

A product of the times, this man—
Therefore, he's not to blame,
His likes, no doubt, he'll reproduce,
To manhood's lasting shame.

But things will change, and such as he
Will soon have had their day,
When Socialism is in power,
And labor has its way.

UNIVERSAL SCOUTS OF FREEDOM.

By Mrs. J. S. Kiefner.

"Boys will be boys," so the old adage reads. But nowadays boys are becoming very spirited, very independent, and the trouble is that "boys will be men." I have nothing but admiration for the boy who displays courage and independence. But I do not approve of the "boys' brigade" and the Boy Scout movement as an outlet for his energies.

The originators of these movements make large claims for them. They say they have discovered, or rediscovered, the boy, but I think it could be shown that they have discovered little about the boy that was not known long ago.

I want the young comrades to consider long and well the objects and uses of the army and navy before they join the ranks of such brigades, deliberately instituted to prepare youths to be hired as assassins for the benefit of men of power and wealth. Where is the difference between the man who kills his fellow being in a passionate moment to gratify some particular desire, and the man who lends himself to a government and kills his fellow man because he is paid to do it?

We are told that these brigades do not prepare boys for the army, but fit them to lead a manly life. However, demonstrations that have been brought to my notice of late do not substantiate this claim.

My young comrades, remember that you are the children of the workers, who have never yet had the support of the army and navy when they have endeavored to better their condition by strikes and such methods.

The turn will soon come for the girls, for they will be asked to form brigades of hospital scullions, to do the dirtiest and most repulsive work when their masters have again caused the blood of the workers to flow. And do not forget, they will be appealed to as their brothers have, in the name of religion and patriotism!

Some time ago, after investigating the Boy Scout movement, I readily saw that something had to be done for our young people. I brought a communication before a branch meeting of our local, and it was turned over to the "Woman's Committee." We at once got busy and organized the children, and they gave the organization the name, "The Universal Scouts of Freedom," and said they WOULD scout for freedom, too.

(Realizing the inconsistency of holding international peace conferences, at the same time teaching militarism in our schools and churches, we, the Universal Scouts of Freedom, have organized to oppose everything pertaining to warfare as the most logical means of securing world-wide peace. Our motto is: "Peace on Earth, One Country, One People, One Flag."

We take in both boys and girls and have no age limit; we want young and old, and everybody, for that matter, as we want liberty and cannot free ourselves without freeing all. We are organizing by wards, and each branch takes up the work, teaching economics, physical culture, ethics and all the principles pertaining to a higher and nobler life.

It is interesting to the older people to note the interest the juniors take in their meetings. On one occasion, when a noted speaker addressed the Universal Scouts of Freedom, one of the little girls acted as chairman of the evening. She made some preliminary remarks and then introduced the speaker. We have also given several entertainments with the juniors acting as chairmen. It teaches them parliamentary procedure, gives them confidence before audiences, and makes our hearts rejoice to see the possibilities in them. There are choirs that furnish songs of Socialism, duets and solos. They have dialogues, recitations and games. Indeed, their entertaining features are splendid.

In one ward recently they were getting their gymnasium ready for the winter. They also have access to a swimming pool, with a good instructor in charge. In one branch the boys have a baseball team called the Teddy Bears. They played in Forest Park all summer. The dignity they assumed in showing their permits was amusing. Next summer we will have outings for them, let them get close to nature and teach them the principles of nature in a manner that will make them conservators rather than destroyers of living things.

It is our love for the boys and girls of the working class that makes us want them to know that they are a class apart from those who own the earth but to destroy its blessings; we want them to know that their class is engaged in the work of effecting its own emancipation from wage slavery, and that all these military and naval preparations of the masters are but cunning means to keep the workers divided, and therefore in subjection. Ours is a constructive movement, and by love, truth and justice we hope to win all or as many as possible from the army of destruction. So in teaching the universal brotherhood of man, and the fatherhood of God, we must lay the foundation for the building of this structure on Love, for that is the great fundamental principle.

I hope that every Socialist and lover of peace will recognize the good we are trying to do and will join in helping us carry this movement to the uttermost ends of the earth. This will require the moral, physical and financial support of every believer in our work. We have adopted a pledge which is used as a membership card, and also an emblem. So far we have no constitution or by-laws, but the demands are coming in so fast for the same that we will bring it up at the next meeting and have one adopted in the near future.

This movement of the Universal Scouts of Freedom has created quite an interest, both near and far, and many are asking for information regarding it. So let us unite for the betterment of humanity.

(For further information regarding the Universal Scouts of Freedom, address Mrs. J. S. Kiefner, secretary and organizer, 2829 Arlington avenue, St. Louis, Mo.)

COLLECTIVISM THE REMEDY.

By Geo. B. Kline.

The bread-and-butter question is the greatest question before any people, and until food, shelter and clothing are assured, but few people have any thought for anything else. But once these are assured the people can have the opportunity to develop in lines to suit their individual tastes; and as Socialism deals directly on economics, it pertains almost wholly to giving the people their physical needs.

At one time almost all work was individual effort, but with the invention of machinery and the use of systems, the production and distribution of commodities became social, that is, tens, hundreds and thousands, working co-operatively in doing the world's work. In most things the larger the unit the cheaper the commodities can be produced and exchanged. This is why the large factories, mines, etc., can produce more cheaply than the smaller ones. It is a process of natural growth, known as evolution, and explains why the trusts are so hard to dissolve. In fact, their principles have come to stay despite the effort of the 2x4 politicians to turn the hands of progress backward.

The real and only objection to the trusts is their private ownership, whereby all their good flows to the few.

Socialism means the collective ownership of the means of producing and distributing wealth, in which each worker will have the opportunity to work, because he is part owner, and to receive the full product of his social effort. Socialism also means the private ownership of those things used privately by the individual or the family.

The collective ownership of the railroads, street cars, mills, mines, factories, and land when not used by the owner.

The private ownership of the home and its furnishings, lot and land when used by the owner.

It is said, "Collective ownership of the railroadds would double the price of village and farm property because there would be no discrimination rates in favor of the cities."

Socialism is a method by which the people will rid themselves of the ills of present society, for they are an outgrowth of capitalism. We find in history that at one time slavery was the method by which useful things were produced for society.

Later it was feudalism, and still later capitalism as we have it now.

The succeeding method always had its roots deep in its predecessor, just as now co-operated methods are supplanting the competition which caused capitalism to attain its growth.

We have come to a point in history that the people are pretty well disgusted with capitalism and its exploitation, and are demanding co-operation for the benefit of all the people, and not co-operation for the few private owners.

THE OLD RED SCHOOL HOUSE.

By Murray Youtz.

Twenty-five years ago the old country school house was indeed used as a social center, for it is there that the people for miles around would gather at night and hold an old time spelling match, etc.

Some of the greatest men this nation has produced can trace their very beginning to those old time literary and debating clubs.

It is the one feature above all others that gave the school life, and it was a common saying among young and old "that they learned more on Friday night than during the whole week."

True we were never allowed to talk politics or debate religion, and naturally because the politician and the preacher wanted to do that.

Whenever you find people who do not want questions discussed from an educational standpoint in the school, then look out, for somebody has an ax to grind.

Some sixty years ago the question was proposed at a school in Lancaster, Ohio, for debate: "Resolved, that railroads are practical." The directors decided that to talk about people riding fifty miles an hour was the rankest heresy and so they did not permit that foolish discussion to take place.

If the school is for any purpose in the world, it is for the purpose of teaching science.

Politics is the science of living.

If there is a greater science than that of living I would like to know what it is.

Terrible as it may seem to be, it is nevertheless a fact that the public school today is not what it should be. The process of education, instead of being an institution of delight and entertainment, has really retrogressed to such an extent that it is looked upon by the young as a sort of punishment, for did you ever hear the mother say: "Now, Johnny, if you are not good you will have to go to school today."

The question for the people to decide today is:

Where would you rather see the family? In the demoralizing moving picture show, in the brothel, in the saloon, OR IN THE SOCIAL CENTER ACTIVITIES OF YOUR DISTRICT SCHOOL?

MARTINS FERRY SOCIALIST BARE POLITICIANS' FRAUD.

Martins Ferry, Ohio. — The Socialists, who carried every city office and all township offices except two justices, one trustee and one clerk at the election, have served notice of a contest and demand a new count. They intimate there was fraud to prevent Socialists winning.

It is charged that two precincts in Bridgeport and one in Brookside were not returned until Friday and that it was the vote in these that elected one Republican trustee and one clerk.

WOMAN'S DIRECTORY.

The Woman's Local Committee meets every Monday Evening at 15½ East Gay street. Every woman invited to come.

Read the next issue of this paper about The Liberty's Great Money Raising Sale.

JUST ONE LITTLE ITEM.

Last year the sum of TWO HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS was spent by rich Americans on trips to Europe. This enormous bill was paid by Americans who are poor. And most of them vote the political tickets that keep them poor.

But somebody may jump up and say, "How do you know that amount was spent in that way?"

Because John Ball Osborne, chief of the Bureau of Trade Relations, Department of State, Washington, D. C., said so in a statement specially prepared for Norman M. Parrott, Secretary of the "Greater Baltimore Committee," a few days ago.

Oh, we guess it was spent, all right!

SOCIALIST DANCES.

Socialist dances will be given at Layman Dancing Academy, S. E. Corner High & Gay streets, every Friday night until further notice.

All tickets out for the Munich Hall will be accepted for admission at the Gay street hall.

Come and bring your friends and help us have a good time. EVERYTHING FIRST CLASS.

Wait for The Liberty's Great Money Raising.

The Booster's Column.

F. E. Johnston.

Now, boys, altogether! We have all had a good rest since our little skirmish with Capitalism, November 7th, and now is the time to get subs.

We certainly have reasons to feel jubilant and proud over our grand victory at the ballot box. In spite of all the lies and misrepresentations of Capitalism, eleven thousand men and several thousand women, "the advance guard of Socialism," marched in a solid phalanx to the ballot box and voted straight for principle. These men and women are now done with the two old Capitalistic parties and it is now up to us to see that each and every one of them is a valuable subscriber to our paper.

The circulation of The Socialist must be boosted to twenty-five thousand before next fall, and if each and every one who reads this will go out tonight and get just one subscriber, the start will have been made.

Come on, boys, get on the job.

The German Branch leads the procession with an order for twenty dollars worth of subcards. A few more of that kind and we will move into bigger headquarters. The Sixth Ward, to show that they are still alive, buys subs to the amount of $15.00.

The following wards get into the running with orders for $10.00 worth: First, Second, Third, Eleventh, Thirteenth and Fourteenth. The Eighth, Ninth and Fifteenth plunked down a five-spot each.

Comrades J. P. Bohnert and T. C. Southard each slipped over a ten-spot and walked proudly away with that amount of subcards.

Wildly waiving a red flag in one hand and a five-spot in the other, Comrade G. H. Fries rushes in and demands that we exchange his five-spot for subcards. We did so, and he walked calmly away. Comrade S. P. Jones walks in, wakes up the office boy, hands in $1.50, gets subcards, and disappears into the night.

Just to show that the women can't be outdone, Comrade Georgie Crooks takes a dollar's worth of sub-cards with which to educate the heathen.

The following is a partial list of renewals: Fred F. Willis, D. T. M. Jones, W. E. Carlisle, H. B. Walters, B. J. Huston, E. Groff, G. Bigner, J. P. Fuller, B. Brown, P. Hyland, C. Geminden, H. H. Brook, Mrs. Walcut.

BACHMAN TALKS TO STUDENTS AT THE STATE UNIVERSITY.

Mayor Marshall a Listener.

Comrade Bachman answered the question "What is Socialism?" before the Inter-Collegiate Society at the Ohio State University, Sunday Nov. 26. One of the attentive listeners to the address was Mayor Marshall. Mr. Bachman is well versed in the economics of Socialism and impressed his audience very much. He stated in part: "I want to commend Mayor Marshall for his effort in suppressing the Social evil, but I said during the campaign and say again, that the Social evil cannot be wiped out until we have removed the cause underlying it, namely, "The Wage and Profit System."

Mr. Marshall did not accept the invitation of the chairman to speak but remarked: "I have nothing to say on this subject; I came to learn." Mr. Bachman's lecture would certainly be a valuable one delivered before the classes of this university."

The University Socialists have arranged for an outside speaker once in each month. Miss Ella June Purcell is booked for Dec. 16th.

SIXTH WARD MEETING.

Addresses by Comrades W. R. Draper and W. C. Bates.

The Socialists of the Sixth Ward had a very profitable meeting last Monday night. Comrades W. R. Draper and W. C. Bates were the speakers.

Comrade W. R. Draper answered many of the objections raised to Socialism in clear and convincing arguments, among which was the fasle alarm about the torch and Red Flag. He said: "We must not forget that the battle of Bunker Hill was fought under a Red Flag. The Godess of Liberty holds aloft in her right hand the torch enlightening the world. That all catholic cardinals wear a red cap and fourteen men to be raised by the Pope will wear the same color. That the major color in all national emblems is red. That the Red Flag of our party symbolizes the red blood which courses the veins of all mankind whether white, yellow, brown or black; whether American, Italian, Assian, or African. That the Red Flag is the only Flag which can unfurl her folds to the breezes of all nations without giving offense to those nations; that she never has floated and never will float to the exclusion of any national flag but with the strong right hand lift aloft the national emblem of whatever nation and with the other and under its protecting folds lift the humble, yet determined, Red Flag of the brotherhood of man and the Fatherhood of God.

To the man who owns property (rental property) and wants to know what you will do with him and his property, Comrade Draper said: "Every honest man will concede the right to every other man, to own his home. If all men owned homes, as under Socialism, of what benefit would the dozen rental or investment properties be to their owner. When men obtain the full product of their toil they would be able and would insist on a home. The now property owner could sell if he choose (at same price the Social State offered the same or better home) or, if not let the property stand idle or rot down or until the Social State by right of the Polite power abolish it as a nuisance or under the Right of Eminent Domain appropriate (at its social value) for public use (not for private profit)."

Comrade Draper made the startling statement that since he was elected he was authoritively informed that the great majority of children out of school and which even the truant officer would not bring in was because they had no shoes, and yet he had also been authoritively informed that certain shoe factories were running on short time or not at all, because there was no demand for shoes. The distributing points of these great shoe factories are bulging out with shoes not called for. Children are clamoring for education perishing in aqualor and famising with hunger, for why? Because the head of the family does not receive in wages enough to buy back the proper proportion of the product of his labor. Under the full Socialist State, free medical examination, free school books, free lunches and clothes, and the proper care would remedy the evil and to produce an intelligent citizen at home under parental roof at actual cost is cheaper than to produce and imprison a criminal citizen under the present system of greed an dprofit to the few and want and sacrified crime for the many.

Comrade W. C. Bates gave an address that will be published next week.

CAPITALISM SHOWN UP.

We noticed some time ago that John C. Felton, chief supervisor of elections, acting under the advice of Attorney-general Hogan, refused to sign a certificate of election for the mayor and other officers-elect. I do not know whether it is necessary for him to sign it, but have no doubt, that the fact that a big slush fund was used, had something to do with the refusal. Nor can I blame him not wanting to stultify himself by so doing. I presume the wine merchant who gave $1,000 to aid in the election of Karb, believed it would increase his business here, or he would not have been so liberal. Another man from New York also gave $1,000. He was a dealer in gold leaf. If our memory serves us right, Mark Slater, bought a lot of gold leaf from leading democrats, who were ardent supporters of Karb. And while Slater was made the scapegoat, the others escaped, as the bribers generally do. The law prohibits hotels and corporations from giving money to aid candidates, but we find nearly all the leading hotels and corporations gave from $50 to $300, to aid in the election of Karb.

Have you yet heard of the county prosecutor commencing action against these law violaters? Neither is it likely that you will. A prosecutor who was so anxious to send boys and men, who in the excitement of a street car strike, threw a corncob or stone at a car, to the penitentiary, can generally be depended upon to protect capitalism. I think it is safe to say, that the Kimball corrupt practice law is a dead letter in Franklin county, as long as it is controlled by Capitalism. In fact when we look over the various cases of vote buying and bribery we find it is always the under dog that gets the worst of it.

In Adams county where about 1500 vote sellers were found guilty and fined, not one buyer was convicted. There was not one case of vote selling but there was a similar case of vote buying. Then why were none convicted? Just remember that the buyers were respectable men and belonged to the same class as did the prosecutor and judge. In this county we found Fred Immel, Fred Lied and others convicted of receiving bribes but how many bribers were convicted? It is a safe proposition to say that every hotel, corporation, wine merchant and gold leaf dealers who contributed to the $19,000 corruption fund, together with their assistants, including some ministers, are opposed to the red flag, you certainly know why. If not, you can make a good guess. I want to say that while the red flag had been used by the Socialists in every parade they have had and was seen hundreds of times on our streets during the past year, the cry against it was not raised until Capitalism got scared and commenced to use its corruption fund, and as Capitalism cares not where it reaches out with its leprous fingers, we can only guess why the attack on the red flag, emanated from where it did. Nobody has more to feel proud of over the results of the election than the Socialist. This roor back, coming from a minister, who does not represent the true principles of a great church will do the church much more harm than he can possibly do the Socialist party. Our name always welcomed criticism and rejoice that we have reached a point where we are able to "smoke" out our enemies and make them show their color (yellow) to the public. I see that David Goldstein is to be here and as a member of the party I certainly shall urge all persons to hear him. I only hope the parties who are getting him will procure the Memorial building for him and ask us to help them fill it. If Socialism is wrong, nobody wants to know why, more than the Socialists themselves. We have no secrets and our every act is in the open. The more people hear of Socialism, the more anxious they will become to know more about it. The more they know about it the surer they are to become Socialists. We have never expected success until we found who our real enemies are.

Serious Charge Is Made By Workingman

He is Discharged on Election Day after Stating He Had Voted the Socialist Ticket.

Ohio State Library Columbus

The State of Ohio,
Franklin County, ss.

Before me, the undersigned authority, personally appeared Paul S. Neth, Sr., who, being first duly sworn, says that for about three months prior to the last election in the City of Columbus, Ohio, November 7th, 1911, he worked for The Capital City Dairy Co. as carpenter, doing and keeping up all repairs about the plant of said Company. On said 7th day of November, 1911, he told a Mr. Charles Jenks, shipping clerk for said Company that he, this affiant, voted for Eby for Mayor and also voted the straight Socialist ticket. Thereupon said Jenks went down to the office of said Company and immediately afterward the foreman, Charles Strouser, was called to the office and when he returned he told this affiant that he had orders to discharge him when his day's work was done. This affiant answered that he knew the reason why and the reason was because this affiant voted the Socialist ticket. To this said foreman made no reply.

This affiant said he would not wait till evening, but if he was to be discharged for voting the Socialist ticket, he would quit at once and demanded his money.

No complaint was made that his work was not satisfactory but he was told that they would dispense with a man for his position, but about three days afterward said Company employed another man to take the place left vacant by the discharge of this affiant.

PAUL S. NETH. SR.

Sworn to before me and signed in my presence by said Paul S. Neth, Sr., this 29th day of November, 1911.

J. L. BACHMAN,
Notary Public.

The above affidavit speaks for itself. Los Angeles is discharging men and women for declaring their intention of voting the Socialist ticket. But right among us this same method is practiced by these capitalists. Comrade Neth is a true loyal worker. In all his 59 years he has never voted the Republican or Democratic ticket. His first vote was for the Greenback party in 1878 and always after was with his own class. He is a member of the Eleventh Ward Branch of the Socialist Party and also a member of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners Local 200 for the past 30 years. Comrade Neth on the morning of election declared to the employes at the plant of this shop that he had voted the straight Socialist ticket, and the word was carried to the office immediately by one of these vipers who are constantly on the alert for such news. Almost intsantly it was discovered that this concern could dispense with the services of our brave and noble comrade, he being told "the work he was doing was going to be stopped and after today his services would no longer be needed." However, Comrade Neth knew the truth and immediately told the foreman the reason he was discharged was because he voted the straight Socialist ticket, but like a guilty man the foreman made no reply, not even having the courage to look Neth in the face, but hung his head in silence, whereupon Comrade Neth told him he would not wait until evening, but he demanded his pay immediately and with a clear, bright conscience went forth to face the whole world, knowing full well, that though he temporarily was one of the thousands of the army of the unemployed, that such acts upon the part of these tyrannical parasites would only hasten the establishment of the workers with the powers of Government, and with such powers in the possession of the rightful owners justice would prevail, and for the first time only. Because a victim of this treacherous and insane system, grinding up the very bodies of even our little children into profits, raises his voice in protest and by the peaceful means of his only weapon (the ballot) voices his principles, and protests against such slavery, he is made to suffer and if need be, to slave. Justice! What a mockery. Freedom, yes to starve. Poverty in a land of plenty. Workingmen! how long [illegible] to such hellish treatment as this, for we know not who may be the next. In the words of Debs. "Arouse, ye slaves!" You are not conscious of your power. Every workingman with a drop of Revolutionary blood in his veins should shun the product of such guilty corporations. It is such conduct as this on the part of our enemies that drive innocent men to desperation and ruin. A word of warning to you tyrants. The American workers are a peaceful people, quiet and submissive to oppression, but hunger forces action. However, denied this last vestige of our freedom, you will be responsible for the result. And if in your mad race for the almighty dollar you become so devoid of all sense of justice and reason that you are actually blinded, see not the penalty that shall be meted out to you and your class. Think well, you Capitalistic hirelings. Just as the money-changers were driven from the temple, you will also be dealt with.

This action should be the means of arousing the working class to greater activity. Coats off and all together. Only by the emancipation of those who toil can we expect any relief. On to Victory.

KARB'S ELECTION HELPS BUSINESS.

In conversation with a certain business man the other day the question of the late city election came up and he said he was a Marshall man until about one week before election, but his association held a meeting and decided to work and vote for Karb, because business in their line was very dull and they thought voting for Karb would help it, and according to his statement the election did help, for he said after election they had nine funerals in one day and if they could have borrowed another hearse, they would have had ten.

YOU WILL BE SORRY

If you miss our good times and entertainments we are offering to you, so wake up, and come out Sunday night, 7:30 P. M., 335 1-2 South High street to the Socialist Dramatic Club.

THUG BRADY GETS A VERY LIGHT VERDICT.

George W. Brady, alias O'Leary, on trial for shooting with intent to kill Mrs. Catherine Kelly, of Brehl avenue, during the street car trouble in 1910, was on Wednesday found guilty of assault and battery by [illegible] jury in Common Pleas court.

That he was not found guilty of shooting to kill as the indictment charged, Brady has to thank four jurors who held out for his acquital throughout the 28 hours' deliberation, and finally succeeded in forcing the other eight to yield. The first ballot is said to have stood 7 for conviction and five for acquital. The vote then shifted 8 to 4, and back to 6 to 6. Then the vote of 8 to 4 prevailed, and in order to arrive at a verdict the compromise was agreed upon.

The Rail-Light will carry the case up and Brady will probably never be punished. A hired thug of a corporation can do most anything nowadays. Did you vote for that sort of thing November 7th.

AT LAST.

Comrades: We had a good meeting at the Dramatic Society. We got the names of 40 members that signed the roll call and we got enough material to get busy on an entertainment. We also adopted our by-laws and rules governing the society. Now it is the time for all the comrades to get in this at the beginning. We can do a lot of things to raise money for the band, the newspaper and small locals without begging for it. Give the people a little something for their money and they will be more willing to part with it.

Comrades, don't forget our Lecture Course. Let us give some endorsement by giving entertainments in connection. So let us get busy. Come to our meetings and help us. Everybody welcome. Don't forget. We meet on Sunday night at our headquarters, 335 1-2 South High, at 7:30 p. m.

COMRADE GREEN WRITES ABOUT McNAMARAS.

Nelsonville, O., Dec. 6, 1911.

While the confession of the McNamaras came to us as a great surprise and disappointment, yet we have the consolation that Labor, as long as it thought that the McNamaras were innocent, fought for their release, and the fact that they were not innocent, reflects no more on organized labor than it does on the church to which they belonged, or on the mother that bore them or on the sister who loved them.

While the McNamaras should undoubtedly be punished yet their sin does not compare for an instant with the sins of Rockefeller, Morgan and others, who by their intrigues have caused thousands of industries to be crushed—who by their Wall street gambling and speculation in wheat and other commodities have caused the shutting down forever of mills, mines and factories—have caused thousands of men, women and children to lose their jobs, causing robbery, prostitution, starvation, suicides and murders by the thousands, and a list of crimes so great and so horrible that there is no penalty, though meted out through eternity, could obliterate.

The McNamaras confessed—told the truth. Who can say as much for the Rockefeller-Morgan layout? In spite of the fact that they have violated time and again every law and have been tried for many of their transgressors, they never have confessed.

If the people could realize how small is the crime committed by the McNamaras, compared to those committed by Big Business Boosters, they would expect to see the McNamaras in the next world wearing a halo, long before the others got half way through Purgatory.

Yours for the Revolution,
W. W. GREEN.

DESPERATE MAN SMASHES LIGHT.

Here is a striking illustration of industrial conditions right here in Columbus.

William Groth, 21, of 319 S. Front street was arrested at 10:30 Tuesday night by Policeman Anderson, who caught him throwing bricks at the cluster lights on E. Main street. Before he was arrested Groth had broken three light globes.

The policeman said Groth told him he did it because he couldn't get employment and wanted to be locked up. In police court Wednesday Groth said he didn't know why he broke the globes and hadn't any recollection of the affair because he had been drinking. Judge Osborn gave him 30 days, $25 fine and costs, suspended under the probation officer.

This state of affairs is what a majority of the electors of Columbus voted for November 7. How do you like it?

A NEW SOCIETY TO FIGHT THE SOCIALIST

The American Liberty and Property Association, at 21 Broadway, New York city, has been organized, and invites new members in to conduct "a national movement in opposition to paternalistic legislation of all kinds," and to oppose the enactment of state or national tax laws that "tend to discourage the accumulation and investment of capital."

The organization is to make a campaign against the Socialists, who made gains at the last election.

The slogan of the association is "self help against state help." It says:

1. The proper function of government is [illegible] liberty, we are opposed to all class legislation, whether directed against the rights of individuals or of corporations.

2. Every man has a right to labor at whatever useful occupation he chooses, and is entitled to all that he earns by proper mental or physical exertion.

3. It is not the duty of government to save men from the results of their own improvidence or to make them virtuous by law.

4. Our system of taxation should not discourage the accumulation of capital by taxing the results of superior ability, industry or thrift.

5. The best results to the community are attained under such open competition and personal liberty as does not interfere with the equal liberty of others.

A large number of New York capitalists are backing the society and have announced that they will center their fight against Socialism.

McNamaras Sentenced.

Los Angeles Socialists Defeated

Los Angeles, Dec. 5.—Denouncing J. B. McNamara as a murderer at heart, and declaring that there was no extenuating circumstances at all in his case, Judge Walter Bordwell today sentenced the man who confessed that he blew up the Los Angeles Times and sent 21 souls into eternity, to life imprisonment in San Quentin prison.

His brother, John J. McNamara, secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, was sent to the same prison to serve a term of 15 years. If the men live, however, and prove exemplary prisoners, they will come under the operation of the state parole law within seven years.

The district attorney kept his promise to the two prisoners given at the time they made their confessions last Friday, and begged the court to exercise clemency.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 7.—That no Socialist candidate for any municipal office was elected in Tuesday's election was made certain today when complete returns were received. They show that George Alexander, Good Government candidate, received a majority of 34,149 over Job Harriman, Socialist. Alexander's total vote was 85,739, Harriman's 51,590. No Socialist came within 25,000 votes of election.

That the McNamara case was a factor in the result is indicated by the fact that Joseph Scott, Good Government candidate for the school board, who was one of the attorneys for the McNamara defense, finished last in the list of seven Good Government candidates, although at present he is president of the board.

THE BOOSTER'S COLUMN.

F. E. Johnston.

Comrade F. A. Bork, of Detroit, a former resident of Columbus, was in town last Friday. He had received several copies of The Socialist and declared it to be one of the best party papers he had read. He put a six months sub on our list for a local comrade.

Comrade H. B. Thompson one of the tireless workers of the Eleventh Ward says The Socialist is the best propaganda paper he ever put into the hands of non-Socialists. He knows what he talks about too.

Comrades: Do you know that this paper belongs to you and that its fate is in your hands? Do you know that we are putting up a fight, The Hardest Kind of a Fight, to keep "The Socialist" going forward each week. Remember we can never carry this city or congressional district without a circulation of at least 25,000 copies per week. You must start and start now to get subs. Dont wait for some one else to do it. Do it yourself, and we will soon have things moving nicely. I am going to ask every reader of this paper to go out this week and get at least One Subscriber.

If you can't go out yourself, send us the money stating what it is for, and we will put names on from this end. Do something to Boost. Do it now.

Comrade T. B. Fisher, rounds up a list of seven. Thats the record for this wee. Everyone try and beat it next week.

Comrade Hine is a consistent Booster, and shows up this week with several renewals.

List of Renewals: H. H. Brook, A. Putz, F. E. Smith, Geo. C. Clipper, H. A. Wingert, L. G. Thornton, T. Thruss, E. Foster, J. P. Schaffer, T. E. Carskadin, Henry Spiers, C. M. Walcutt, C. H. De Long, C. C. Clark.

NEW LOCAL SECRETARY

Comrade O. G. Van Schoyck, of the Ninth Ward, was last Wednesday night elected secretary of Local Columbus, Socialist party, vice Comrade D. R. Kinsell, who resigned. Twenty new party members were received, making 247 since election.

UNION NATIONAL BANK CLOSED

The doors of the Union National Bank did not open last Tuesday and the comptroller of the United States treasury is in charge of the concern. This is the bank with which Rail-Light held considerable of his paper. Enough said.

SAY, YOUNG MAN,

Do you love your girlie? Does she really love you? If so, bring her up Sunday night to our meeting of the Dramatic Club. She can watch every step you make, and you can watch every move she makes at 335 1-2 South High Street, at 7:30 P. M.

J. A. Wayland, C. L. Phifer and Fred D. Warren, all of the Appeal to Reason staff, have been indicted by the grand jury at Ft. Scott, Kansas, for exposing the rottenness of the Federal penitentiary at Ft. Leavenworth. The government found the condition existing there exactly as the Appeal to Reason had represented them, and dismissed Deputy Warden Lemon, whose official conduct has been criticised by the Appeal. Now they turn around and indict the editorial staff of the Appeal for making the exposure of the graft and brutality of the prison officials. Great government and great courts, indeed!

The shell destined to defend the Panama canal represents the kind of bullets that the big 16-inch rifle of the American coast defense service shoots. This five-foot armor piercing shell is the biggest in the world. It weigh 2400 pounds, and has a range of over 20 miles. It costs Uncle Sam $1000 every time one of these big fellows is fired. Such amusement comes high but Capitalism must have it. One thousand dollars a shot would feed a lot of hungry people. Did you vote for this criminal waste?

DO YOU KNOW

Of anybody else of your friends, or your sister, brother, father or son, who likes to have a good time? Then tell them to come Sunday night to 335 1-2 South High street, to the meeting of the Socialist Dramatic Club.

THE RED FLAG.

"Almost as soon as men began to collect together for common purposes, some kind of conspicuous object was used as a symbol of common sentiment."—Enc. Brit.

Men ni the aggregate, demand something besides abstract ideas and principles. Hence the desire for symbols, something visible to the eye and that appeals to the senses. Every nation has a flag that represents it, every army a common banner, which, to the soldier, stands, for that army. It speaks to him in the din of battle, cheers him in the long and tedious march, and pleads with him on the diassraus retreat.

In ancient times the Hebrew tribes had each its own standard, that of Ephriam, for instance, was a steer; of Benjamin, a wolf. Among the Greeks, the Athenians had an owl, and the Thebans a sphynx.

The standard of Romulus was a bundle of hay on a pole, which as fully represented the simplicity of the people as did the golden eagles of the early Roman emperors represent the gorgeousness and rapacity of the monarchs or the crosses (Labarum) of the "Christian" emperors represent their mendacity and hypocrisy.

The early existence of banners indicated a mutual interest, which in a crude way manifested a unified social and communal action, evidently one of the first steps in the development of the social ideal of today.

The word "Flag" is worthy of notice. It is said "Flag" is derived from the Latin "Flamma;" we can without difficulty trace the progress of the word, and we have a blazing fire, blaze, flame, and, as an original proposition, the red flag was an imitation of the flames of fire or rays of the sun.

Baal, the great Sun God of the Phoenecians, had many attributes in common with Ceres, the particularly friendly deity of the agriculturists, the fire worshippers, as well as those who worshipped the sun would naturally select for symbols or banners, the red color, as the most perfect imitation or visible representation of their deities.

The history of savage man in nearly all parts of the globe shows an early use of fire to signal from hills and mountains the information (otherwise so difficult of transmission) as to attacked, defense or condition. The natural sequence would be the adoption of red signals (the best representative of fire color) for use during the day.

Therefore, it is not unfair to presume that the earliest flag was red, as the logical use and lingual connection amply testify. The mythological patronesses of agriculturists and laborers were Ceres, Pomona, Minerva, Proserpine and others, whose names have allied themselves to the products of the field and orchard of the present day. These goddesses, were always clothed in flaming red and the color became identified with the laborers in their clothing, their symbols and their decorations. It was the favorite color of the plebians of Rome; it was the emblem of the poor of Athens, so endeared to it were the so-called lower classes in Rome that after they were admitted to the army the crimson banners were by order of their patrician leaedrs thrown into the ranks of the enemy that the plebian legions might be forced to exert their utmost valor to reclaim their dearest emblem. The usurption of the red by the ruling classes in Rome was a part of the program to disintegrate the communes (the ancient labor unions) and extinguish the love of the color in the hearts of the workers by the sight of it on the person of their exploiters and masters.

Legal enactments prohibited its plebian use. These restrictions are said to have so disturbed the Phoenecian dyers of the color, that the secrets of their craft were not transmitted, and are, like many others among the lost arts. The red apparently degenerated into the royal purple and the red returned to its primal significance and use, the color of the producing class, and no longer that of its enemies.

In contradistinction to the red, the white and azure have been, in clothing and ensigns, assumed by the nobility and priesthoods for thousands of years; the white carrying the idea of, "No toil or soil from labor—detested labor," No perspiring or toiling people could preserve their purity. The azure, representing the vaulted sky was intended to convey to the observer the conception of High, celestial or heavenly origin (or divine appointment), attributes assumptiously claimed by the leisure or parasitica classes.* (*White is supposed to represent integrity; blue, steadfastness and faith.)

Red is the first color in the list of colors; signifies COURAGE and has had a remarkable place in the world's history. The common color of the life blood of the genus, its significance has been connected, with singular persistency, with those members of society who have toiled to produce the materials for the preservation and healthfulness of Life,—(The Brotherhood of Man.)

The recorded fame of ancient celebrities depended in no small degree on their patrician family connections. Alcibiades who is seen largely in the light of Socrates and Pericles, was by birth heir to distinctions. Socrates won his exalted position in spite of the persons and sneers which greet every aspirant of "mean" extraction; he displayed to the world that love of truth and disdain for death which exasperated the powers to accomplish his destruction a not uncommon finality of men who know and dare to uphold the good. Alcibiades was tried as a criminal at one time for insulting the Godessess Ceres and Proserpine. He was convicted, his goods confiscated and he was exiled, all of which shows the hatred for labors' deities by a blue-blooded reprobate, and the influence of Ceres and Proseipine in that famous time and the classic city of Athens.

The ancient Druid priests of Britain were clothed in white, the color which adorns the church of English priests of today.

Following the progress of the Roman legions through what is now Spain, France and the neighboring country, on and into Great Britain, there were established the trades organizations and with them, in nearly every instance, was the red flag. But trades organizations then as now had no honorable place in society and were tolerated, in general only because of the adoption of religious pretenses. To mask the real purposes of association every attempt at organization by laborers for economic advancement has been defeated either by restriction or by fear. Every favorable law or attempt to rise intellectually has been met with frowns and force of arms, but religion has seldom been forbidden the slave—chattel, feudal or wage, in any age of history. It was a source of satisfactory amusement to the slaveholder of our southern states to hear his human cattle chatter and sing about the "Home Over There," for these were the ignorant confessions that the slave's expectations took no hold on a "home on earth," and that the vaunted hospitality, the gluttony and the prodigality of the southern master were to be continued without remonstrance at the expense of the flesh and blood of the despoiled producer. To teach the slaves to read was a crime, but religion was encouraged, as it made them remember "Servants, obey your masters."

Jack Cade, who marched his dissatisfied followers from Kent to London, saw the red flag in his ranks, as Kent was an early home of British trades organizations. The significance of the red flag from early days was eminently peaceful, as its patrons were the gods of husbandry, orchard and vine and of the kindred occupations. The bloody contemptible attributes which are raised in fierce condemnation of the red flag are a continuation of that violent hatred for laborers which caused the death of a million Roman revolters and which has characterized the white-handed, the rich and the tyranical in every era.

The inhumanities inflicted on the poor are in no sense confined to remote dates or foreign countries. Debs was imprisoned for daring to assert that the needs of the worker were paramount to vested rights. The wholesale murders at Buffalo, Homestead, Coeur d'Alene and Leadville are instances of the extermination of the workers and that in Chicago not less than 35,000 persons assembled to hear William D. Haywood, the liberated Socialist leader, who while shackled, imprisoned and helplessly awaiting trial for his life, was twice publicly stigmatized by the coward President of the United States, Nothing in the demonstrations so much augered the Capitalist class as the presence here and there in the vast assemblages of little patches of red bunting. The parrot press shouted "mad dog," "Anarchist," while their lick-spittle lackeys and pious retainers have thrown fit after fit of the fantods.

Scores are killed in mines by foul air and cave-ins which are preventable. In the past human lives could be charged to the individual slave-owner or feudal lord, but now responsibility for the unnecessary loss of life rests upon a too easily satisfied public. In Florida for petty larceny men are sent for years to the phosphate mines which means swift physical disintegration and death. Hair falls out, teeth fall out, and two years is practically a life sentence. Crucifixion was a lingering death of a day; the phosphate mine is an underground, living, sickening death, the tortures of which the Spanish inquisition could not excel, as sure as unnecessary and ten thousand times more cruel than the death on the cross. The slave mart is no more, but human beings are the stock in trade of the employment agent, the crowning fallacy is "free contract," as if a man who is hungry can freely contract with a man who owns and controls the necessities of life. The locked-out miners of Spring Valley, Ill., a few years ago offered to become the chattel slaves of the mine owners if they wre guaranteed a living for themselves and families. This offer was refused. Why should the owners obligate themselves in this way with an innumerable multitude, at that time crowding each other for an opportunity to toil on any terms, and hours, any wages.

The flag of the United States was accepted by Congress, June 14, 1777, and first sent to battle of Brandywine September 11, 1777. The first flag was made by Mrs. Betsy Ross, at 239 Arch street, Philadelphia, from a design furnished by General George Washington. Several Historians have stated that the "Moravian nuns of Bethlehem" sent Pulaski the red flag here referred to. The Moravian sect (Unitas Fatrum) is a Protestant society and there never were any "Moravian Nuns" in Bethlehem, Pa., or anywhere else. The flag was made and presented by the liberty loving wives and daughters in the Moravian community who thus probably reflected the revolutionary spirit and sentiment of the men of the sect.

Banner of crimson floating there,
Thou alone shalt have homage from me;
Sole among flags thou gleamest fair
The sacred emblem of Liberty.
The nations have made them symbols of State
To flaunt to the world since the race begun,
Flags of rivalry, scorn and hate;
But thou art the flag of the world, of man.

Thou are not new; thou hast waved full long;
Thou hast seen the day arise from the night.
Whenever the hand of the world grew strong
It grasped thy staff in sign of its might.
Over the sea and on every shore
Thy color has called to the heart and the hand
To seek their brothers and strive no more,
Save only for liberty in the land.

Red as the blood of freedom's dead,
Thy hue might well have poured from their hearts,
Red as the one blood of man is red,
Thou speakest fraternity's holiest arts.
Thou tellest of strife in Liberty's name,
Early and late, and of great deeds done;
Thou picturest world wide friendships flame,
Shine proudly thou in the gracious sun.

As thou art loved, thou are loathed, full well;
Loathed and cursed by the lords of power,
Yea, ever they name thee the flag of Hell,
And rage at the thought of thy triumph hour.
But their chains hold not on the limbs of men;
Their shackles are broken, and eaten with rust;
They never may pull thee down again
To trample and drag thy fair folds in the dust.

Flag of the world in strife and peace,
Gleam thou above us. I wait the day
When lustful power's long ravage may cease—
Cease and forever pass away.
Who would not all liberty give?
As I look on thy folds two hopes have I—
To love thee and greet the while I live,
To wrap thee around me when when I die!

1890 South High St.,

THE BANNER OF PULASKI.

From Longfellow.

Pulaski was a Polish officer who took part with the Americans, and fell at the taking of Savannah, during the American revolution. His standard of crimson silk was presented to him by the Moravians of Bethleheim, Pennsylvania, and it became his shroud.

When the dying flame of day,
Through the chancel shot its ray,
Far the glimmering tapers shed,
Faint light on the cowled head;
And the censer burning swung,
Where, before the altar, hung
That proud banner, which, with prayer,
Had been consecrated there.
And the nuns' sweet symn was heard the while,
Sung low, in the dim, mysterious aisle.

"Take thy banner!—may it wave
Proudly o'er the good and brave,
When the battle's distant wail,
Breaks the sabbath of our vale,
When the clarion music thrills
To the heart of these lone hills,
When the spear in conflict shakes,
And the strong lance shivering breaks.

Take thy banner! and, beneath
The war-cloud's encircling wreath,
Guard it—till our homes are free;
Guard it—God will prosper thee!
In the dark and trying hour,
In the breaking forth of power,
In the rush of steeds and men,
His right hand will shield the then.

Take thy banner! But when night
Closes round the ghastly fight,
If the vanquished warrior bow,
Spare him! By our holy vow,
By our prayers and many tears,
By the mercy that endears,
Spare him! he our love hath shared!
Spare him! as thou would be spared!
Thou should press the soldier's bier,
And the muffled drum should beat
To the tread of mourtful feet,
Then this crimson flag shall be Martial cloak and shroud for the."
And the warrior took that Banner proud;
And it was his martial cloak and shround.

HISTORICAL SKETCH AND TRIBUTE TO WENDELL PHILLIPS

Comrade W. C. Bates gave an address on Wendell Phillips at the Sixth Ward Branch meeting Monday evening, Nov. 27. The following is a partial report:

One hundred years ago (Nov. 29th, 1811), in a mansion on Beacon street, in Boston, the old family cradle of John and Sally Phillips rocked to and fro, at the bedside of an anxious mother. In swaddling clothes in that cradle lay a man-child. His face was red, his hands were red, his feet were red, and he was wrapped in a red woolen blanket to warm the red blood which coursed through his body. Every indication that that man-child was born a Socialist even to his lusty voice, which could not be hushed by servant or master, and still crying from the cradle for the milk of human kindness which only the heaving heart of a mother can give. But with hunger and thirst for mother love satisfied, Wendell Whillips lay in peaceful slumber upon the pillowed breast of that Christian mother, only to awake in older, maturer years to see and feel the touch of humanity's hand outstretched to him and his God for the greater love of Jehova.

Seven times before that same family cradle swayed back and forth at the bedside of that same tender mother; and yet again the stork, with heavenly tread, made his way to that cradle to entrust to to the tender care of John and Sally another son. Nine times cupid had conspired to increase the souls around the family altar of this devout and devoted couple.

Born beneath the shadow of Faneuil Hall,—"Cradle of American Liberty"—Wendell Phillips as the child orator that he was, himself, swayed back and forth humanity's children by the thousand, who rested in that old "Cradle of Liberty" to hear the lullabys of his matchless eloquence still the humble, but persistent voice of the friends to the Black man or to be lashed by his fiery tongue into submission those "recreant Americans" who would not be content with equity's portion. The eighth of a family of nine children Wendell Phillips was born into just such environments as make for the great champion of equality and justice he was.

Neither the oldest son to lord it over the younger brothers and sisters nor yet the youngest child to be petted, humored and spoiled. Although loving, tender hands caressed him, it was still necessary that the parent love and caress others before and after him. He was early taught that other members of that little government had rights and privileges which he was bound to respect.

Nothing out of the ordinary marked the childhood of our hero and he entered Harvard College in due time, from which he graduated at the age of 23, in 1834. Entering Harvard Law School, was graduated and admitted to practice law 1837.

This young college graduate, now tall, manly and elegant, as sentinous and beautiful as Apollo, carried with him the atmosphere of classic training.

We have given you a brief pedigree of the body of Wendell Phillips, but there is a pedigree of the mind and heart as well as a pedigree of the animal structure; and, happy is he who can measure up to the standard of perfection in both.

To appreciate the grandeur of the life of Wendell Phillips one must know the stress of the times in which he lived, something of the lives of great men who stood and fought with him—something of the lives of great but ignoble men who conspired against him—and the noble principles he advocated, but time and the condition of my voice will not permit of elaboration. Suffice it to say that Wendell Phillips lived in the darkest days of slavery, civil war, secession, and reconstruction. His voice never tired, his eloquence was never quenched, his loyalty never swerved from truth and justice. He never failed to praise the deserving nor feared to rebuke the erring.

When looking from his cheerless office window on October, 1835, Wendell Phillips saw the mob dragging the bruised body of William Lloyd Garrison, editor of "The Liberator," through the streets of Boston with a rope about his waist, he hesitated not, but rushed with others to his rescue and helped protect his life from the enraged populace. Garrison was placed in prison for protection and on his cell wall he wrote: "William Lloyd Garrison was put into this cell on Wednesday afternoon, October 21st, 1835, to save him from the violence of a 'respectable' and influential mob, who sought to destroy him from preaching the abominable and dangerous doctrine that 'All men are created equal and that all oppression is odious in the sight of God.' Hail Columbia! Cheers for the autocrat of Russia and the Sultan of Turkey! Reader, let this inscription remain till the last slave in this despotic land be loosed from his fetters." He was soon after released, after a mock trial, from the custody of Mayor Lyman.

In remarking upon the outrage done Garrison, Wendell Phillips said: "It is a singular result of our institutions, that we have never had in Boston any but well-dressed mobs.

"The right to enjoy liberty is inalienable. To invade it is to usurp the prerogative of Jehova."

"Every man has a right to his own body and to the products of his own labor, and to the protection of society."

Other scenes were taking place at this time in rapid succession which were hastening on the great conflict which only ended at the close of the Civil war.

Judge Lawless (very appropriate name) had charged a jury in the trial of the members of a mob who had hurned the negro—Slime—died to a tree, in these words: "If a mob be hurried on to deeds of violence and blood by some mysterious, metaphysical and almost electric frenzy, participants in it are ABSOLVED from guilt and are not proper subjects of punishment. If such be the fact, act not at all in the matter. It is beyond the reach of human law; the case transcends your jurisdiction." Jehova—God of everlasting Justice, lift the veil from all judicial eyes, that they may see the wage-slaves of this day ruthlessly downtrodden by the high-toned mob and then dare say—as it has been done in this day—"There is no offense which human law can reach."

Slaveholders and their emmissaries were clamoring for the life of Garrison and Lovejoy and the destruction of their printing presses and the suppression of Garrison's paper "The Liberator," and Lovejoy's paper, "The Observer."

Garrison was burned in effigy, and in response to Southern demand to the mayor of Boston to hang Garrison, one Harrison Gray Otis, then mayor of Boston, replied: "I do not know Garrison. I have never seen his paper, but now find him located on the third floor of an old building in an obscure hole." And yet in that "obscure hole" the freedom of an enslaved race began.

It is always the lesser lights who doubt because they fear that might makes right.

"He either fears his fate too much,
Or his deserts are small,
That dares not put it to the touch
To gain—or, lose it all."

The greatest praise governments can win is that citizens know their rights and dare maintain them.

James Otis (orator) thundered in this land when England did but touch his pocket. Imagine, if you will, his indignant eloquence, had the king dared stoop to seal his lips.

In 1837 Elijah P. Lovejoy was driven out of St. Louis, his printing press destroyed and dumped into the "Father of Waters" and as the mob thought, "The Observer" suppressed. But Lovejoy went over the river to Alton, Illinois, and there re-established his press and paper. The mob again sought him out and again threw his press into the Mississippi river. Another press was obtained and when it arrived, had to be stored in the public warehouse and guarded by Lovejoy and a score of his friends by authority granted by the mayor of Alton. For days and nights the mob sought to evade the vigilance of the guards and destroy this printing press. At last on the 7th day of November, 1837, they forced an entrance and Lovejoy was driven out, and as he appeared he was shot. He reeled and fell upon the ground he trod. As he fell he died, and, as that temple of clay struck the earth, it broke, and his spirit of Liberty was freed to spread its silent wings over "The land of the free and home of the brave" to goad on to victory the staunch sons of toil to obtain that right which enables every man to be "Free to print—free to go,

Free to labor on or, no;
Free to claim his labor's own,
Free to supplicate Jehova's Throne."

That God, deaed from its earthly confines only to enter the heads and hearts of just men, loosen their tongues of eloquence, and embolden their feet and hands to do as and dare as he had dared when he said: "I have sworn eternal hostility to slavery and by the blessing of God I will never go back."

Would that the ministers of this day
Dared, as he dared to do and say!

The murder of Lovejoy flashed across the continent and just men stood against.

The Anti-Slavery Society of Boston sought the use of Faneuil Hall, whose walls had ever stood ready to echo the freedom of speech to all comers, in which to express their horror of the murder of Lovejoy. The request was refused and instead was opened to the insinuaries of the Slaveholders.

One Harrison Gray Otis (distinct relative of that gentleman of the same name and equally odious on the opposite side of the continent) together with Richard Fletcher and Peleg Sprague, unmatched for adroit, ingenious, and suggestive exhortation to mob rule. Referring to Harrison Gray Otis, later Wendell Phillips said: "At that Faneuil Hall meeting, one of 'the family' was present. One of that family which was never absent when a deed of infamy was to be committed." (So in the outrage against labor in the Times case we have a member of that family present. Is there no civilization high enough to temper the lives of the poverty of that family?)

Shame on those cruel eyes
That craved to look on torture
And dared not look on justice.

However Dec. 8, 1837, saw that same "Cradle of Liberty" swaying back and forth as the tongues of eloquent men poured forth oratory in defense of freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of labor, by such great men and William Ellery Channing, Benjamin F. Hallett and George S. Hilliard, only to be interrupted by the harangue of the Attorney-General of Massachusetts, who in unblushing insolence declared that Lovejoy was the creature of his own making and that he "died as the fool dieth." Who compared the slaves of the south to a menagerie of wild beasts, sought to be freed by some fanatical philanthropist. He compared the murderers of Lovejoy to the patriots composing the "Boston Tea Party."

Standing in that great hall, among the tumult was the young college graduate,—the clientless lawyer—(clientless, methinks as others, because he stood for principle and could not be swerved from the path of right to win, even his first case) as an earnest listener. The words of Channing, Hallett and Hilliard filled him with great zeal. But when he heard the word of states-attorney, James T. Austin, his breast heaved with indignation and he could restrain his emotions no longer. Rushing to the rostrum he endeavored to address the swaying audience.

Encore and applause from his friends and hisses and jeers from the mob stifled his every utterance. But the clear note of his boyish voice finally reached their ears, and he caught that mighty throng up in his clarion eloquence and hurled them first against the resounding wall of satire and yet again flung them down on th adamant floor of reason. To the ears of his friends his magic words were entrancing and held them spell bound. To those of his enemies his smoothing words only lashed them into a mighty fury, as he poured out volley after volley of indignant rebuke against the representation of his great Commonwealth, "who dares lay down principles" which placed the murderers of Lovejoy, side by side with Hancock, Quincy and Adams. I thought those pictured lips (on the wall) would have broken into voice to rebuke the recreant American — the slanderer of the dead. "Sirs for the sentiments he has uttered on soil consecrated by the prayers of the Pilgrims and the blood of patriots the earth should have opened to swallow him up."

"When infinite wisdom established the rules of right and honesty, He saw to it that JUSTICE should be always the highest expediency."

The mob yelled and tried to stampede the young speaker. Cries of "Take him off," "Make him take back recreant American," only served to fire his brain, loosen his tongue, and strengthen his heart for the conflict; and standing his ground, positively refusing to take back anything, finished his maiden speech with such force, language and reasoning as to attract the world. Rocked in the family cradle as an infant, he now in turn had seized the cradle of Infant Freedom and rocking it as never anxious mother rocked her first born, while servants and masters listened enraptured to his lullabys.

Wendell Phillips, with Mr. Giddings, said that "Slavery can, must and shall fall. And I say, let it come; if it must come in blood, yet I say let it come!"

Many conservative men said then as they say now, that such harsh words weaken the cause, but many a heart then as now beat its first pulse of freedom from slavery.

Event after event crowded the pages of history from this time on that we must refuse longer to elaborate. Sufficient is it to say that where danger lurked, where men of strong hearts were needed, Wendell Phillips was always ready to defend.

The war opened and closed with all its attending fury, blood shed and lives lost, but the slave of the South was set free.

Wendell Phillips gave his life to all reforms and played no small part in any of them.

Rev. P. A. McKenna wrote:

"When the great question called in Russia Nihilism, in Italy and Germany Socialism, in Ireland the Agrarian Question, in America the Labor Question, pressed for a solution, then it was that Wendell Phillips stepped to the front and pushed aside the Politician."

Wendell Phillips said when Wisconsin was admitted as a "free state" in 18—, "Young Wisconsin-makes the first page of her state history glorious by throwing down her gauntlet against this slave hunting union, in defense of justice and humanity. Some of us had hoped that our beloved commonwealth would have placed that crown of Oak on her own brow.

"Her youngest daughter has earned it first. God speed her on her bright pathway to success and immortal honor."

Who dare gainsay that this blessing bestowed upon the State of Wisconsin by a just man did not inspire her to write the second page of her history still more glorious by throwing down the gauntlet against wage-slaving Union in defense of justice and the full social product of the toiler to his labor?

God gives us knowledge, keeps for us the weapons—suffrage—all we need to ask for is the courage to use this ballot. You and I are never to see peace until wage-slavery is destroyed.

Standing at the very grave of freedom I lift myself to the vision of that happy resurrection by which freedom will be secured under our national emblem. Proudly I can see the Stars and Stripes of my country and with it the Red Flag of Universal Brotherhood, as they ripple in the breese, become the flags, beneath whose folds every man and woman of whatever race, creed or color shall be free. Milwaukee—Star of our hope on the Western horison—guard thou the luminous sun of Socialism o'er Rocky Mountain, plain and valley, till she shall hover over our sister city—set as a gem against the Pacific sky—Los Angeles, and control the brains and ballots of her sons and daughters now triumphantly baptising her in justice and liberty.

The freedom of the press, the freedom of labor, the freedom of wage-slavery can never be argued to success. But the moment men and women will go to the polls and exercise the God-given right of the ballot, that moment the question is settled. Divide the lightning into its component parts and its antics become child's play, out pour it forth in one quick, mighty flash, and men and beasts tremble.

Ballots, not bullets—brains, not bayonets—shall hereafter rule. If capital is driven to the point of resting the government on force, it is only the beginning of the end, and if capital has not neared this fatal emergency, it never would have stooped to the many indescribable acts of meanness it is charged with of kidnapping, jailing and even murdering helpless men, women and children whose only crime was asking food and shelter.

Webster once said: "In war there are no Sundays." So in moral questions and Freedom's cause there are no nations. Liberty and morals transcends all limits. There are no American, no German, no African. We are all men and women.

The period of preparation has gone; the time for action has come. Today stands tiptoe on yesterday and reaches up to where tomorrow begins. We make no compromise with capital, nor its advocates. None can be made.

Among the last utterances of Wendell Phillips was: "Jesus was right in pitying the poor in pocket, the burden-bearers. Compulsory labor is a curse—always has been—always will be."

Wendell Phillips died Saturday evening, February 2nd, at 6.45 o'clock. On his lips he breathed to his friends, "I have no fear of death. I am as ready to die today as at any time."

How was it with the slave-holders on their death-bed. How is it, Capitalist, with you? Let a just God answer.

He is dead, but his tongue still speaks:
Close his eyes, his work is done,
What to him is friend or foeman;
Lay him low, lay him low
Under the clover, under the snow.
How we loved him none can know,
Lay him low, lay him low.

If public officials are our servants, why shouldn't we have the right to recall them?

Social forces are making for social progress and blind as the people may be, the facts are compelling them to notice.

In 1912 those dreadful Socialists will make the pandhandlers of present day society show their colors. There will be no straddling the fence.

Smile and be contented, advises the well-fed when addressing the half-starved victim of society. How would such irony be received were conditions reversed?

Governor Foss, of Massachusetts, has filed a statement showing that it cost him $16,828 to be re-elected, while the term is only one year and the salary only $8,000. It was supposed that the primary election system would enable poor men to be elected to office, but in some cases at least the cost of "being in politics" is greater than under the old system, as there are virtually two campaigns and two elections to pay for. And you know you have to feed the "kitty."

Some good but very innocent people still suspect that the Boy Scouts are not a military organization. This is well answered by Major Earl R. Stewart, in command of the Grand Rapids battalion, who recently said, according to the Grand Rapids Herald:

"The origin of the Boy Scout movement in England was purely military, and if the original ideas were to be carried out in America the Boy Scout movement might amount to something worth while. They are equipped with everything that goes to make up a military organization; they have their uniforms, their salutes, and stand for all that a military organization stands for but discipline, and without discipline they will not go a long way on the road to successful achievement in what they have undertaken.

Suppose you show this to good church people who tell you that in forwarding the Boy Scout movement they are not advocating murder.

Like Nebuchadnezzar of old, who failed to grasp the significance of political conditions in his kingdom, the capitalist class of today, drunk with power, is beginning to read on the wall, "MENE MENE TEKEL UPHARSIN," which means: YOU HAVE BEEN WEIGHED IN THE BALANCE AND FOUND WANTING.

For years the capitalists of the Rockefeller and Morgan type have domineered our legislatures and tyrannized over our commercial and industrial institutions. They have corrupted our government, prostituted the press and ground the life out of labor in order that they might build up the giant trusts and monopolies for private profit.

The protests of the wage slaves in their mills and factories they have ignored. They have scorned the public when it complained against the high cost of living. The people have been advised that economy and frugality are the virtues most becoming to them and necessary to a happy and prosperous existence.

But they have builded their trusts and monopolies on the principles of profit. The light of publicity to which these principles are being subjected is disclosing the fallacy of the theory.

From press and platform comes the urgent warning to the old parties that have been the agencies in control of the destinies of our republic, "REFORM, or by the vote of the American people SOCIALISM shall become the order of the day." But the cry of REFORM is merely an echo of the larger cry that is growing more evident and more distinct. That cry is SOCIALISM.

An item appears in the daily papers dealing with one of those incidents about which capitalist editorial writers usually say that "comment is unnecessary."

It was to the effect that on Thanksgiving Day, at Washington, President Taft duly attended the celebration of mass, accompanied by members of the Cabinet and the Supreme Court; that Cardinal Gibbons assisted at the high mass, which was celebrated by a Baltimore priest, and that after the ceremony, a Bishop Donahue delivered an address in which he declared that the one cloud upon Thanksgiving Day was the menace of Socialism, which a few years ago they did not think worth noticing, but which has since grown to alarming proportions, and threatens to destroy the home and uproot the moral and social order.

Of course we are too tolerant a people to bother whether the President goes to mass, contents himself with his Unitarian place of worship, or stays at home. These are private matters, to be left to the judgment of the individual, and of course our genial President was not there in his "official capacity." Not at all. He just happened to drop in, inadvertently as it were, and the Cabinet and Supreme Court just happened to tag in after him. The matter has no political significance whatever, any more than had the remarks of Bishop Donahue.

Still, we Socialists may be excused for noticing the matter, on the ground that we are intensely interested when allusions are made to Socialism and especially when made in the presence of such a distinguished personage as President Taft. Of course, editorial comment may be unnecessary in the capitalist press, and indeed uncalled for, but we simply cannot refrain from noting such matters. Besides being proud and gratified by having such prominent citizens take any notice of us at all, a harmless vanity for which we hope to be pardoned, we feel instinctively that every little movement of this sort has a meaning all its own, and that it is for us a fascinating task to contemplate and discover, if possible, its meaning. It is not to be supposed for one moment that such a serious and important person as President Taft went there merely to pass away the time, because he had no other place to go, or that Bishop Donahue was only attempting to divert him by relating unimportant trifles. To entertain such a supposition would show disrespect for both the church and the office of the President, and who are we that we should offend the good and great?

It seems we have already offended, however, if not the President, at least the prelate, for the good bishop referred to us at "a cloud on Thanksgiving Day." No doubt he would be more cheerful if he could be certain that we were merely a passing cloud, and he did indeed express a h ope that we were.

The McNamara Case.

Those members of the working class who, in fighting the sacred battles of that class, attempt to use the poisoned and barbarous weapons of capitalism are foreordained to failure. Worse still, they strike down the members of their own class.

Lashed to a fury of resentment by the aggressions of the employers, embittered by the unspeakable methods used by the Erectors' Association and by the Manufacturers' Association, the McNamaras sought to combat these organizations with the same weapons the organizations used. They tried to fight terrorism with terrorism, violence with violence, destruction with destruction. And they failed.

For many years now there has been relentless war between the workers and the employers in the structural iron business. It is the most dangerous occupation in the world, and scarcely a day passes in which one or several of the workers are not crushed or do not fall to death. Yet in the beginning, despite the danger and the high degree of skill and coolness necessary to engage in it, the wages were miserably low and the hours of labor were unmercifully long. The men fought for better pay and fewer hours, and gradually made headway in obtaining both.

But the greed of the employers was such that they resisted every advance made, and as the workers had formed a union that was increasing in numbers and strength the employers, represented by the Erectors' Association, determined to smash that union so as to have the men at their mercy.

John J. McNamara occupied in the union the position of greatest trust, responsibility and authority. But he was committed to the ideals and methods of capitalism. He saw nothing beyond them. So it was natural that he should adopt and use the weapons that made capitalism the power it is and that has sustained it at its highest point of power during so many years.

When he and his brother were arrested the Socialists naturally and rightly took up his cause. They knew the violence to which workers are habitually subjected and the outrages that constantly take place. They took the lead in fighting for him, and they can have no regret, for intelligently fighting the battles of the workers is part of the mission of the Socialists.

John J. McNamara was, while free, a consistent opponent of Socialism. Its theories did not coincide with his, its ideals were not his ideals, its methods were antagonistic to the ones he employed. This well known fact made no difference in the action taken by the Socialists. When he was seized in Indianapolis and in violation of all ordinary procedure dragged to Los Angeles, they cried out and fought against it.

The fact that he is guilty makes no difference. The method whereby he was taken was utterly illegal. Now when resentment against him is at white heat, while men unreservedly condemn him and some of those who believed him an ideal leader are scurrying to cover, let it not be forgotten that the Socialists still protest. Let it not be forgotten that if a similar violence is committed the Socialists will fight and protest more vigorously than in this instance. Because McNamara admits guilt of some of the crimes charged, the necessity of safeguarding the workers against violence is in no way lessened.

Socialists will not forget it. They stand as unshaken on that point as they did on the day the news of his arrest was flashed throughout the country.

Neither are Socialists any the less opposed to government by spies and detectives.

They know that the class war has progressed to the point where open clashes cannot be avoided. Men who are goaded by hunger, who fear constantly that they are being spied upon, who are driven by the police and assaulted constantly by members of the great thug army maintained by the employing class, sometimes will lose their reason and turn on the individuals nearest at hand.

Socialists have unceasingly preached peaceful methods.

Through Socialism alone can the working class gain control of those powers which rightly belong to them.

Through Socialism only can there be an elimination of that blind, insane fury and resentment that actuated the McNamaras in the commission of those acts to which they confess.

It takes more real courage day in and day out to fight the battles of the working class through Socialist methods than it does to commit some sudden act of reprisal and then line up with the Master Class and help them through giving them political power to continue their oppression of the working class.

"CANNOT ANSWER."

In Miss Cynthia Grey's column of The Columbus Citizen I read the following question which she made no effort to answer and simply replied, "That is a question that I cannot answer."

The question asked was as follows:

"Dear Miss Grey: I am a common laborer working for the city and have a family of seven children. I pay $15.00 per month house rent, send my child to school, buy books, food and clothing, and only get $2.00 per day. Please tell me how it comes that others working for the city, who get from $100 to $250 per month, get their salaries raised from 50 to 100 per cent while I can't get mine raised 1 per cent? Laborer."

In the same column I read this question and answer:

"Dear Miss Grey: Could you tell me some reasons why women should not be allowed to vote?—A. P. P.

"Answer—There is no good reason why a woman should not be allowed to vote if she wants to, but there are plenty of good reasons why a woman should not want to vote."

Now, in my opinion, these are both fair and honest questions that deserved an answer through her column. In the first one, the poor laborer working for $2.00 per day surely has a good honest kick coming when the other fellow is getting in some cases eight times that amount. I do not think that his salary should be so large and the other fellow's so small. If it takes eight times the amount for the "Higher Up" to live on, what chance has the "Two Dollar" man? Who is responsible for this state of affairs? The man that votes for this kind of a system is. The trouble is that a great many of the working men have not yet found out that they are in the majority and voted accordingly. If you expect to get anything for yourself you must vote for it. Our present municipal governments are run along on about the same lines as the capitalistic system is. Under the capitalistic system the men who do the real producing get scarcely an existence while their representatives see to it that they are well paid, because they are looking after their (the capitalists) interests. Since we know that is the state of affairs, is it not about time to start doing something for ourselves? If you do, then get in and work for your party (the Socialist party) the only party that represents the workers. The very goal of the whole Socialist movement of the world is equality. Can you show me where we, the workers, who produce everything, are getting it. We always get the promise and the other fellow—what does he get? I guess you know. But, so many say this thing of equality is rotten. Let us see if it is. What kind of equality do you want? Social equality? Certainly not. That would be impossible. What then, physical equality? No, that is another kind we could not control. Mental equality? No. But under Socialism we could be a little nearer to it as we would have more time to develop our brain. Surely it would be better to keep our children in school instead of putting them in sweat shops and factories to grind out profits for the capitalists and rob them of their education and childhood. We do not contend we can have mental equality because law cannot make a dull man bright, but we do contend we can have equality of opportunity. If we had it today there would not be so many men rolling in luxury who never in their lives done an honest day's work. The whole aim of Socialism is that every human being shall have equal opportunity to have access to the natural resources which nature has supplied and to the machinery which man has created and then to have the full social product of his labor.

In the answer to the second question she says: "There are many good reasons why a woman should not want to vote." I have the greatest respect for Miss Grey, but it seems that she is not familiar with the "Woman's Suffrage" movement. The Republicans and Democrats both refer to Lincoln as being a great man for what he said and did while in office and say that they are putting the same into effect today. Have they forgot that he said, "No nation should exist that is one-half represented and the other half not represented." Is it not true that a majority of the women and girls of today have the same conditions to contend with that the majority of the men do, namely, that of laboring for their existence. The hypocrites say a woman's place is home. Sure it is. How many can stay there and not starve? Is this present system one that a woman can stay there and exist? In many cases I would like to hear how it can be done. True enough, home is the place for a woman and girl to be, but the average ones cannot be there because of the capitalistic system. They now must shift for themselves in sweat shops and factories for their own existence because under this system it is impossible for the ones they should depend on to give them the necessities of life. The Socialist party will systematize the production and distribution of this country so that the women can stay home if they please and the man can also be there long enough to get acquainted with his family. How can we call this an enlightened nation with one-half of the people disfranchised? Since a woman is a producer the same as a man, she should be represented in the country's affairs the same as a man, and why not let her do that herself by casting a ballot for the party that is making a fight for every human being that is being oppressed by this damnable capitalistic system. Give the woman a show to do something for herself and children and see if she would not use her ballot in an intelligent manner. The hypocrites are very much afraid she will. If they are not, then why do they fight it so hard? Who knows the economic conditions better than the women? Who fights more battles than the women? Who faces poverty more than the women? Under these conditions who would have a better right to suffrage than the women? Give them a chance to do something for themselves and children and see if they do not make better use of it than most men do. Stop letting the hypocrites tell you what is good for you. You think they are telling you the facts, but what they are telling you is like the handle on a pump, it is only on one side and that side is theirs. That is a fact you cannot deny honestly. A man has a very poor opinion of his wife, mother or sister when he says their place is home and they should not be given the suffrage as they would not have sense enough to know how to vote. They have sense enough to successfully attend to their household affairs when they have an opportunity, and raise children up to be good citizens, they ought then, it seems to me, have ability enough to vote accordingly.

Comrades, the hypocrites are on the run. Let us keep after them until we run them down and emancipate the working class.

Yours for Socialism,

COMRADE F. L. GARDNER.

LABOR PROGRAM FOR STATE CONSTITUTION

Program for Constitutional Convention adopted at last Convention Ohio Federation of Labor.

Your Legislative Committee submits the following program, embodying as it does, we believe, what should be the general legislative program for the organized workers of this State during the coming year.

With this thought in mind, we urge that workers become thoroughly awake to the opportunity before them; that they enliven their campaign with greater determination and zeal, and that they more strongly agitate and insistently demand that candidates for the Constitutional Convention sign or publicly agree to a pledge of the following character:

"Consistent adherence to the principal rules of the Initiative, Referendum and Recall, submission of Constitutional Amendments on petition of not to exceed 12 per cent. of the electors; of desired laws on not to exceed 10 per cent.; of Legislative Acts and not to exceed 8 per cent.; and the adoption of all laws, Legislative Acts and Constitutional Amendments by a majority of the votes actually cast upon them. On the recall of any public official and not to exceed 30 per cent. The above principles of Direct Legislation to be applied to all political sub-divisions of the State."

Home rules for cities and towns and express statutory power to own and operate all public service utilities.

We favor an express provision in the coming Constitution that will give Legislatures the right to fix the hours of labor without interference by any court.

Regulating the proceedings of the issuance of injunctians and punishment in matters of contempt.

(1) No injunction shall issue against any act or acts when performed by two or more persons which would not be issued under the law when committed by an individual, and in all trials for contempt for alleged violations of injunction a trial by jury be granted and remain inviolate.

(2) Reaffirmation of the bill of rights and amendment thereto, so that no two or more persons shall be considered as guilty of conspiracy within the meaning of the law when doing by mutual agreement what each one has a legal right to do as an individual.

The right of the Legislature to make laws governing the employment of women and children. No child under 16 years of age should be employed.

The State should guard, most jealously, its police power, and should never, under any pretext, assign this function to employes of quasi-public institutions, corporations or private concerns. The importations of strike-breakers into the State should be classed as a menace to sound morals and right doing, and should be prohibited.

We again reaffirm the doctrine that every citizen, irrespective of sex, and of legal age, shall be a qualified elector.

Workingmen want immunity, and not indemnity, for accidents and death. We declare that the protection of life and limb should be the first concern of society, and to end the wanton slaughter of men, women and children, we favor a workingmen's compensation act that automatically and instantly places the cost of life and limb on industry, without court cost or judicial interference. This system should be elective and present employers' liability and compensation laws should be strengthened that the killing of human beings will no longer disgrace an enlightened people.

The right of action to receover damages for injuries resulting in disablement or death shall never be abrogated be subject to any statutory limitations.

Contributory negligence, and assumption of risk in all cases whatsoever be a question of fact, and shall be at all times be left to the jury.

The common law doctrine of the fellow servant, so far as it affects the liability of the master for injuries to his servant, resultant from the acts or omissions of any servant or servants of the common master, is abrogated as to every employe engaged in hazardous employment.

MAX HAYES WRITES ABOUT REV. BIGELOW

It is currently reported that Rev. Herbert Bigelow, prospective candidate for president of the Constitutional Convention, has declared in favor of retaining the present state constitution and submitting it to a referendum vote with the amendment incorporating the initiative and referendum, holding that after direct legislation is endorsed any changes desired may be made.

Mr. Bigelow is also opposed to including the recall, home rule, municipal ownership and other popular demands of the people in a new constitution to be voted upon by the electors who have overwhelmingly demanded that some slight progress be made to get out from under the burden of capitalism.

Is the prospective president becoming conservatively "safe and sane?"

It would seem so, judging from the fact that his United Constitutional Committees of Hamilton county include such eminently respectable organizations as the Walnut Hills Business Men's Club, Master Bakers' Association, Stamina Republican League and numerous labor organizations to fill in—a queer hodgepodge, to say the least.

That fact explains quite lucidly why the recall was dumped overboard in the campaign and other progressive planks as well, to please the interests that packed the "model" Hamilton county committee.

Once the compromise game begins there is no end to it, as the history of the reform movements in this country plainly and painfully attests. Principles that are right are thrown to the dogs with little compunction in the hope of "getting a half-loaf, which is better than no bread at all," and the fiasco usually winds up with a few crumbs for the leaders of the ignominious retreat in the shape of political soft snaps.—Cleveland Citizen.

BOILERMAKERS

The Cold Weather is Helping N. Y. C. L. Strikers.

The threatened strike in the Rock Island system has been averted. The men receive an advance in wages and minor concessions.

Reports sent out from Schenectady that the boilermakers had returned to work were false in every particular. The men are standing out and will remain on strike until the American Locomotive Co. withdraws its demand that the boilermakers work on engines for the New York Central lines.

The strike on the N. Y. C. L. is now reaching a highly interesting stage. The icy weather is having a good effect on the leaky engines of the corporation, freezing them up in a manner that is beautiful to behold, although it is bad on the general public. "All trains late!" is the news that is flashed along the line from all struck points. A good, big blizzard or two will help wonderfully in bringing the magnates to a realization of the fact that they must make peace with union mechanics.

MACHINISTS.

System Federation is Being Formed on B. & O. Railway.

Machinists and other trades on the B. & O. are perfecting a system federation that will meet with full recognition on the part of the management.

The strike on the Harriman lines is still in progress and no settlement in sight.

James O'Connell, who was defeated for re-election as president by Wm. Johnston of Washington, has been chosen as president of the Metal Trades Department A. F. of L., with a salary of $2,500 per year, created at Atlanta convention.

Another crooked labor sheet has been run to earth. The so-called Wage Earners, of Boston, has been exposed as a fake publication, and its editor, one Augustus Seaver, running for governor on an alleged Independent Labor party ticket, is in disgrace. The Massachusetts Ballot Law Commission produced evidence to show that Seaver is a typical grafter. He admitted that he was active in organizing "workmens clubs," and that he endeavored to procure certain sums of money from the Democratic state committee, and has solicited and obtained advertising from Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Republican boss in Massachusetts. Of course, Seaver, like all the crooks in his line, fought the Socialists (who exposed the thief) ever since he engaged in his grafting game in order to give him a standing among those naturally opposed to Socialism, the moneyed people. The Seaver shrewd skunks in the various cities ought to form a national "union" of their own—a sort of trust—so that they can increase the cost of living to the boodle politicians.—Cleveland Citizen.

Well, what do you think about the printer man getting into the government running game? Harry Schilling carrying Canton, McKinley's old town, Newt Wyckoff elected mayor of Martins Ferry, Corbin Shook winning out for the same position in Lima, Will Barringer making a record-breaking race in Dayton and scaring the life out of the bosses, who threw one of their candidates to save the other, and a few more counties to hear from. We never could understand why printers should trot around after lawyers, doctors, business men and the like to get their political dope. That foolish old custom seems to be about played out, judging from the returns in the red column.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF PAINTERS

Hold National Election by Referendum.

An election for general officers of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America will take place in December. It is attracting a great deal of attention among labor men in general, for more reasons than one. It is claimed by members prominent in the Painters' union, that their last convention, which was held in Cincinnati, December, 1909, was largely dominated by the Madden gang of Chicago, as evidenced by the fact that his henchman, John M. Finan, was elected first vice president. And further that Geo. F. Hedrick, who is now up for re-election as general president, was elected by the same influence.

The Chicago local, of which John M. Finan is a member, local 147 is about as reactionary as they are to be found, and Finan is said to be representative of his local union. The progressive members of the Painters' union are alive to the kind of men who have been representing(?) them officially for the past two years and are active in their efforts to defeat them.

Charles Lammert, of St. Louis, who is opposing Hedrick for the office of general president is well and favorably known in labor circles, having been active in the St. Louis movement for many years, both in the Federation of Labor and the Painters' Union. He has the solid support of the progressive element of the Painters and is in line with the advance movement of labor.

The defeat of Finan for re-election as first Vice president is almost conceded, he being opposed by one of the strongest men in the Brotherhood of Painters, Otto Damm, of Locan 114, Chicago. This local union has the distinction of being the largest in the Brotherhood with a membership of 2000.

Among others whom the progressives are supporting to defeat the old machine, is listed A. J. McKeon, of Bridgeport, Conn., for second vice president, Wm. Rodriguez of Chicago for delegate to the A. F. of L. Convention 1912-15, and Herman Jessen of Davenport, Iowa, for delegate to the Building Trades Department.

O. F. OF L.

Letters Sent Out to Delegates Regarding Labor's Program.

Secretary Thomas has sent letters to all delegates elected to the Constitutional Convention urging that they support the program of the Ohio Federation of Labor adopted at the Hamilton convention and reaffirmed at the gathering in Cleveland in October.

The O. F. of L. demands the initiative and referendum, the recall, home rule, eight-hour day, employers' liability and workman's compensation, woman's suffrage, licensing of the liquor traffic, municipal ownership of public utilities, the withdrawal of all police power from so-called detective agencies and other progressive measures.

No dodging of these demands will tolerated as far as labor is concerned, despite the peculiar actions that are being displayed in certain quarters just at this time.

If labor assists in electing certain gentlemen and is then compelled to sit up nights and watch them, labor wants to know about it, and the quicker the better.

Hereafter California physicians will pe paid 50 cents for every case of an occupational ailment reported by them to the state bureau of labor statistics. They may be fined as much as $10 for every such case not reported by them, according to a bill passed by the senate. The purpose of the bill is to put the state in possession of data concerning the causes of diseases to workers, that conditions leading to such illness may be improved.

THE PROOF.

By Annie Minturn.

"Prove all things; hold fast to that which is good."

Capitalism has been thoroughly proven; the proofs confront us at every turn in marks of wickedness. We have learned to know Capitalism by its fruits, a few of them are the adulteration of our foods, the wrongs of child labor, prostitution, the trust, the grinding conditions of labor, the miserable, unsanitary housing of the poor, disease, the periodical money panic, the breaking up of homes through poverty, the horrors of the sweat shop, the legalized murder, called war, the millionaire, the pauper, the degenerate, the outcast, the Capitalist. In fact, every evil known to our present day civilization can be directly traced to the wrongs that will grow out of a system destined to benefit the few at the expense of the many. The misery entailed by this condition, must, in time, work against itself to its own destruction; therefore, we cannot long hold fast to anything that is not good. Slavery in any form is not good, and history proves this in its records which tell of the perishing of all kingdoms that imposed forms of slavery upon their people, and made necessary a lower class of laborers at a lower wage, allowing themselves to lose sight of the fact of the nobility and the necessity and the interdependence of all labor. There was a halcyon day in Greece when the man who went into the quarry and digged the marble from out the hills received the same stipend as he who afterward carved from that marble the angel in all its spiritual beauty, for one was but complement to the other. Yet, as time went on the "citizen" product developed among them. The "citizen" must attend to the affairs of the state, thereby making necessary a lower order of individuals subservient to him. This bit of history has repeated itself in our midst, until the Republic bequeathed to us by our forefathers, has drifted entirely away from the tenets of true Democracy and stands a derelict upon the shores of Capitalism. And unless Socialism, the only remedy, comes not swiftly to the rescue, we will likewise perish as a nation from off the face of the earth. With us today the historical "citizen" is the money king. He owns our churches, our houses, our lands, our workshops, our tools, our labor, and ourselves. The churches today are largely dependent upon him for support, consequently there remains within many of them only the outward and visible sign of mechanical religion: the cry of the soul for the inward and spiritual communion with the divine, being denied. And our houses—what are they? Hundreds of thousands of plain, inartistic, cheap dwelling places, in order that there may be, on every noble hill top and in every beautiful river's bend, a mansion of marble and stone and bronze. Our workshops are but dingy, unsightly holes where men and women give the strength of their bodies and minds, that the present day "citizen" may become rich and powerful. And of ourselves, what are we? In the language of Victor Hugo, we are but tadpoles when we might and should be archangels.

And so we have proven the Capitalist system. Are we going to hold fast to it?

Socialism seeks to harmonize the "citizen" and the mass in an intsitutionalized order through the principles of right and justice under the form of co-operation. The philosophy is simple enough; through co-operation there will be plenty of everything for all. This we do not have today, and why? It is not because the Capitalist, as an individual, is a monster. The desire of the individual for wealth has always been a potent factor in man's life, and always will be; but is it because his opportunity to gratify this evil propensity is so [illegible]? Socialism will allow him to acquire, but in turning his ego into love, will stimulate his endeavor for society instead of self. Today the road to exploitation lies open before him. It is a broad road with a finger-board pointing into the distance. He shades his eyes and looking beyond into that distance sees luxury, music, poetry, art, and he imagines happiness ahead. The wayside of that road is strewn with the bones of working men and women and little children; and yet he enters boldly, for others have climbed upon these bones, and so will he; and thus it is that year by year we produce more millionaires, and a correspondingly larger amount of tadpole human beings. Socialism will close the entrance to this road. The finger-board of Socialism will point to a land of happiness where every individual will have enough to eat and enough to wear, where every child will be given an education, where workers will be among environments pleasant and helpful, and where inhuman greed will give place to human justice. This is the system that every toiler as well as every Capitalist needs today, and after it is proven and found to be good, we will of necessity, hold fast to its blessings, for Socialism is of God, and "the goodness of God endureth continually."

SOCIALIST DANCES.

Socialist dances will be given at Layman Dancing Academy, S. E. Corner High & Gay streets, every Friday night until further notice.

NATIONAL SOCIALIST HEADQUARTERS

In reply to numerous inquiries, Carl D. Thompson, of Milwaukee, says, "Nothing has ever been done in the campaigns of our party in Milwaukee that has had such a tremendous and telling effect as the stereopticon lectures we are now giving. Although we have no campaign on at the present time, we are crowding the biggest halls in the city to their utmost capacity. Everybody is astonished and inspired by the presentation."

"I believe these slides could be used anywhere by anyone with ability at public speaking, and would constitute the most effective propaganda that could possibly be attempted. They have exceeded all our expectations in their effectiveness."

Comrades interested in the subject and desiring to obtain slides suitable for propaganda can secure terms and prices by addressing S. Liberty, 230 E. 10th Street, New York City, or Carl D. Thompson, Brisbane Hall, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Business at the National Headquarters is now done on such a large scale that it is very necessary that each letter sent to the headquarters should deal with one subject only. Otherwise, it has to be switched from one department to another, which greatly increases the possibility of errors, and also delay. Comrades who write on different subjects should put them in different letters—not necessarily in different envelopes, but in different letters.

To the Locals and Branches of the Socialist Party:

Dear Comrades—In compliance with the direction of the National Executive Committee, I am sending you blank forms of a petition in support of the Old Age Pension bill introduced by Comrade Berger.

I urge that you secure the greatest number of signatures possible to this petition. The following suggestions will aid you in its circulation and disposal:

1. Write the name of your State at the top of your petition.

2. Every signer should give his or her occupation and address.

3. Canvass factories, workshops and schools at the noon hour.

4. Canvass all gatherings, such as labor union meetings, teachers' institutes, women's clubs, churches, lectures and fairs.

5. Make a systematic canvass of the business section.

6. Make a house to house canvass to secure the signatures of women. Go in the morning when they are at home. Or, on Sunday, for both men and women.

7. When one petition is filled, paste on another, without cutting off the head.

8. After getting every possible signature send the petition to the Congressman from your district addressing him at the House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

9. Write to Victor L. Berger, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., and tell him that you have sent the petition to your Congressman. Also tell him how many signatures it contained.

10. Write to the two United States Senators from your State, tell them that you have sent the petition to your Congressman, and tell them how many signatures it contained.

This writing to Berger and the Senators is extremely important; do not neglect it

If you can use more petition blanks, send for them to the address below.

In further compliance with the direction of the National Executive Committee, I also urge you to make a special campaign for old age pensions, by holding meetings, circulating literature, and passing resolutions in support of the bill—such resolutions to be sent to the press, to your congressman, to your senators, and to Berger. You should send in an order for enough copies of W. J. Ghent's leaflet on Old Age Pensions to put one in each house in your community. Price $1.50 per thousand; or $1.00 per thousand in lots of ten thousand or over. Also send us an order for Berger's Old Age Pension speech; 25c per hundred.

JOHN M. WORK,
Acting National Secretary.

Not Much Mystery.

A youth from the country who was new to the delights of London lodgings recently entered an oil shop and, producing a bottle labeled "Best Unsweetened Gin," asked for a pint of lamp oil.

"Better take the label off in case of accidents, hadn't I?" asked the oil man.

"Don't matter a bit," was the reply; "there's only me and the cat ever go to the cupboard in my room, and I don't mind if I do kill the cat."

"Killed the cat yet?" asked the oil man as the youth was passing the next day.

"No, I ain't," said the youth, with a puzzled look, but there's a bit of mystery somewhere. My landlady has been right queer since last night. She won't open her mouth within yards of a box o' matches, and she smells something awful o' parafin."

A New Baseball Ruling.

The umpire scouts overlooked his indicator man. The following is a sample of his work:

The Atlanta Deppens and the Birmingham Gold Dusts, negro baseball teams, were playing a strenuous game in Atlanta. In one inning the Gold Dusts had the bases full with no outs. An ebony hued batter stepped to the plate. The pitcher sent the sphere to the catcher.

"One ball," called the negro umpire. Again the pitcher got busy.

"Two balls," called the umpire.

After the third ball pitched the man with the indicator shouted:

"Three balls!"

Once more the sphere went across the plate.

"Fo' balls! Yo' out!" shouted the umpire. The batter was highly indignant.

"What?" he yelled. "Me out? Whar yo' git dat, niggah?"

"Now, look a-heah, man," said the umpire, "yo' gotta be out. Dey ain't no room fo' you' on de bases."

ORGANIZE AND USE YOUR BEST WEAPON

By W. E. Bues.

The campaign of 1911 is over. The fight was great, the comrades fighting hard and aggressively.

A cruel and cowardly blow was struck by the foe during the last hours of the conflict that resulted in the loss of many men (votes).

While these men were only new recruits and loss of them is to be regretted, the old regulars remained intact—the result of drilling (education).

Education has always been the big weapon on which the Socialists depended. Education—the gun that pours shot after shot of intelligence into the ranks of the enemy mowing down ignorance right an dleft.

During the last campaign the gun of enthusiasm was more depended upon than the gun of education. While both are essential in this movement, education has always proven the superior, never having failed.

Enthusiasm produces quantity. Education produces quality and it's soldiers of quality that we need.

Let's profit by our experience and begin right now by educating all of our soldiers in our methods (Socialist principles) of fighting.

The best means of education at our command is our newspaper, "The Socialist."

We have permitted it to hover between life and death until now it is cramped for means.

The failure of one issue of your paper means the revocation of its mailing privileges—that's death.

Capitalism wishes for nothing better.

It has not been exactly what you wished it to be, but that's your fault. It is your paper and it's just what you make it.

But it's going to be improved and every one of you must get behind and push.

There are 11,000 Socialists in Columbus and there is no excuse for "The Socialist" not having that many subscribers within the next two or three months.

Every nook and corner of the 280 precincts in this city should be searched for subs and it is up to the ward organizers and their precinct captains to do a large part of the work.

The ward branches should at their very next meeting insist on their organizers busying themselves on this job. Each precinct captain should be made responsible for a complete house to house canvass of his precinct, enlisting other members of his precinct in the work if possible and let no man lay down on the job.

The membership should insist on a report of this work every week.

The workers should be provided with sub cards and a list of expiring subs in their precincts which can be furnished by The Socialist, and started to work at once.

Subs are easy to get. If men who are in no other way interested in our party than to investigate its principles will subscribe, our membership and those who vote the Socialist ticket certainly should, and they will, if they are solicited.

A move of this kind will build an organization that knows how to fight. They will be trained to use the best fighting instrument they have—The Socialist—and how to get the best results from it.

This army of hustlers can also be used for other work of organization and can be depended upon to do it well.

Let's organize our forces and work with some system.

We're boasting already about sending a congressman to Washington next fall.

Well, with an organization, not in two or three wards, but in all the wards, working and fighting with their biggest guns and best ammunition, you can do it.

Oh, no! This don't mean that the securing of subs will be confined to only the precinct captains.

We want everybody who can to get subs!

Anywhere! Any time! Any way!

But hold the regiment of hustlers in your ward responsible for your territory.

You have learned that to win you must organize and use your best weapon. That's education and your paper. "The Socialist" is the best means of an education.

Are you going to relinquish your hold on your best weapon? We'll see.

"The cause combatted for is yours; the sacrifices and efforts made to win it ought therefore to be yours."—Mazzini.

SOME MEDITATIONS ON RELIGION

By Ella June Purcell.

Many people doubt the existence of a God. They see in life no plan and no organization. They see no hope, no ultimate end but chaos and oblivion. Such people should not be cut from the bonds of social intercourse, nor even censured. Rather should they receive the most profound sympathy which human hearts may bestow. The simple practice of Christ's principles would have greater power to lead those without faith to Him than denunciation and criticism could ever command.

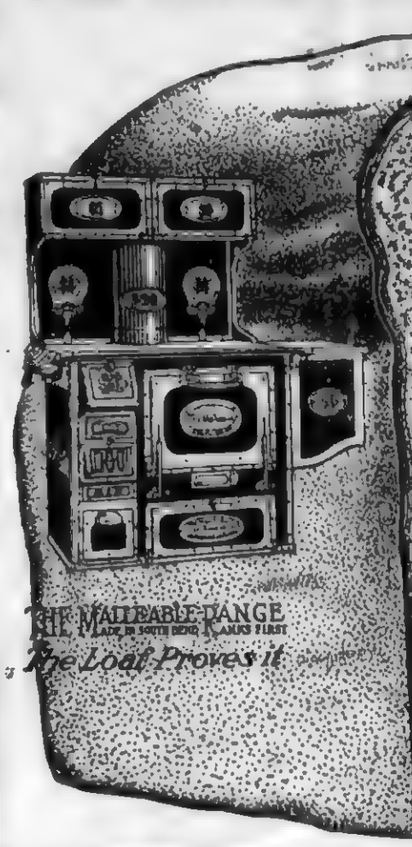
To doubt is human. Mathew Arnold has said most wisely that the difficulties of religion are simply the difficulties of nature and that doubt can be escaped only by escaping that. But a little thot even is a little learning is a dangerous thing. It is not wrong therefore to doubt. The wrong comes when the thinker refuses to think himself out of his difficulties. A little thot may sweep away one's early mystic conception of a personal God who is surrounded by floating angels tooting on horns. The personal God idea gone the thinker believes himself an infidel. And if he ceases thot at this point and closes his brain and heart to new impressions, adopts in other words a stoical indifference to everything but his own infallibility, he is hopelessly lost. But if, on the other hand, the thinker continues to think, his brain becomes stronger and his judgments more mature. In most cases the disbelief gives way to a fuller and more perfect belief than the one of earlier years. But some people are so afraid of being called inconsistent that because they were unable to believe yesterday, they refuse to believe today.

The faith of a child may be a beautiful thing, but to me far more beautiful is the faith of one who acknowledges divine rule in the knowledge and experience of age. A trust which can not be explained may be political but is not logical. Let us have men who have come triumphantly down the path of life, seeing and realizing both good and evil, but who have taken the good not the evil. He who is good, as he who is faithful need not be praised, unless he has chosen the good affirmatively and has known disbelief. It is the man who sees God after the torturing despondency of doubt, who can do things, and in whose faith we believe.

Matters of doctrine, creed, dogma are immaterial. For to each human being an individual brain is given, and to each a separate and peculiar power of reason. But "God, In thy will is my power to believe." Men can no more agree on the details of faith than by public declaration they may all have eyes of same colors.

What is Right for one man, may be utterly wrong for another. What is religious for you may be none for me. The longing for every soul to commune with its originator, its cause, its God must be expressed in individual terms, a collective longing under set terms and forms is unsatisfying, illogical, absurd.

And where do these meditations lead us, Socialists? To this. Socialists as a class are as progressive, religiously as politically. Thru that we advance in any line. When a man thinks at all he is very likely to think, religiously. But let us who think we have perhaps achieved an End, and settled all questions definitely and finally, not be satisfied with our conclusion. A little thot is an evil thing. Let us think on and on. Let us not accept any proposition, however beautiful, inspiring or profitable it may seem as the last word. There are heigts to which no soul has yet thot. Let us think on and on. Let us not censure or criticise any sect, creed or church, but allow not only ourselves and everyone else absolute freedom of that, of development.



Let us remember always "No man is so thoroly right as to be entitled to say that others are totally wrong."

The conclusion then must be,—the writer is positively and unalterably opposed to the establishment of any so-called "Socialist Church." The Socialist movement is as the national platform expresses it "an economic and political movement. It is not concerned with matter of religions belief." Our ethics may be those of Christianity, our aim the establishment of the co-operative Commonwealth, but neither now nor ultimately should we, directly or indirectly criticise or injure any established church. If there be Socialists who find themselves thinking the same, religiously, they have the right to establish a church to embody their peculiar views. But let them do it as INDIVIDUALS, never as SOCIALISTS. Religion should be a matter of private belief, personal inspiration and individual development, let us not make it a matter of formal politics.

THE SOCIALIST

A Weekly Newspaper Of, By and For the Workers.

VOL. I. No. 32. COLUMBUS, OHIO, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1911. Price $1.00 per year; single copies 3 cents.

Thug Brady Is "Assessed" $1472 Costs.

Judge Dillon has "assessed" Geo. W. Brady $1472 costs as punishment for shooting and wounding Catherine Kelly, during the 1910 street car strike, after the prisoner was convicted of assault and battery.

Why it was that the jur[illegible] so tenderly with Brady we [illegible] not inquire. The result of the Brady case and of the Foty case furnished the two points that will give us a line on the quality of justice meted out to paid assassins in this country. Concretely expressed, justice in Franklin county means the penitentiary or Mansfield for throwing a potato or corncob at street cars, and the workhouse or less for murder or shooting down in cold blood defenseless women and children. These are the hard facts, whatever way be your theory as to their underlying causes. A few of the salient features of this case, regardless of its result, are worthy of notice. Those of us who have read history doubtless recall the rise of sycophants in Greece and of informers in Rome when these civilizations had already started on their decline. These sycophants and informers manufactured evidence either for or against those under suspicion of crime. The rise of the detective to a position of importance in American criminal annals is not dissimilar. Like causes operating under like circumstances will inevitably produce like effects. And so to a corrupt and decadent civilization like that of the Unit[illegible] in the year of grace 1911, it is not strange that we are suffering from some of the evils of Greece and Rome in their degenerate days. The detective, as is natural, has fastened himself as one of its necessary adjuncts to big business in its fight on labor. The defense in the Brady case was largely made up of this detective evidence and no doubt had the necessities of the case required. These detectives would have testified that the moon was made out of green cheese and would have told with great emotion their heartrending experiences in reaching the moon, and the able and scrupulous counsel who descanted so feelingly and tremulously on character, but who know of it only by hearsay, would have offered some of this green cheese in evidence, staking their professional reputation upon its genuineness. It suited their purpose, however, to speak of mock riots and imaginary brickbats and the able and incorruptible counsel worked themselves into a mock frenzy over these mock riots and imaginary brickbats.

It is worth while to pause a moment and note who were these able and incorruptible counsel. We violate no secret when we say that the Railway & Light Compaiywas back of Brady. Our highly esteemed and philanthropic friend, now suffering a financial eclipse, E. K. Stewart, graced the court room with his distinguished presence and breathed the air exhaled from the lungs of the bums and loafers, who surged into the court room to enjoy its welcome warmth and to listen to Brady's counsel eulogize those who happened to be unscrupulous enough to see Brady do the shooting. And then the upright and scrupulous McQueen agonized, so it is reported, with Brady during the long hours of the jury's deliberation. It is a well known fact that the regular attorneys for the street car company did not appear for Brady. But perhaps their olfactories are a little delicate and the occasion required those whose nostrils are accustomed to the smell of the garbage can. However that may be, one thing is certain and that is that there is a great abundance of those reptiles of capital, monopoly and privilege in the country who will do anything for a price and for a surprisingly small price at that. Their weapons are mendacity and villification. Abuse and villify those who are against you and thereby you can cover your own villainy. If you can't find anything real [illegible] them, then fix up some[illegible] you can't fix it up, invent [illegible] of whole cloth. The mock riots, feigned assaults and imaginary brickbats [illegible] class. Such have [illegible] greed, pirvilege [illegible] membership" [illegible] the from the be[illegible] has gone forth [illegible] it has alwa[illegible]-Democrat, the offi[illegible] nefarious [illegible] the Socialist party lawyers [illegible] has summed up the Capitali[illegible]n criminal. and pro[illegible] "Socialism villainy [illegible]as read as follows: charac[illegible] the last election, [illegible] Socialist ticket [illegible]tes were defeated at [illegible] the result was a most [illegible] victory for Socialism. [illegible] has the working class [illegible] such a political battle anywhere in this or any other country.

"It was throughout a campaign of agitation, education and organization carried on under great difficulties.

"From its inception the Socialists forced the fighting and brought forward every affirmative issue.

"The one great principle underlying every local question raised and discussed was the right of exploitation.

"Whenever a plank in the campaign this was challenged by the Socialists and the opposition was not permitted to escape or evade this great Socialist principle.

"It was after the primary election is which the Socialists ticket won by nearly four thhusand plurality that there began the real struggle of the campaign.

"Los Angeles since the close of the primary election has been the storm center of the class-struggle not only in America but in the civilized world.

"On the stage of action here during the past four weeks and passing in rapid view there has been enacted all the farce, the comedy and the gaunt, grim tragedy always present wherever real and not mimic battles are being fought.

"Socialists able to comprehend in their fullness the issue involved therein—and none but the Socialits are able to so comprehend—emerge therefrom with an enlarged horizon, a broader outlook an da more confident assurance of the final triumph of Socialism.

"The Socialist ticket and candidates were defeated in the election in Los Angeles December 5, but Socialism won a triumphal victory.

LOS ANGELES SOCIALISTS MAKE GREAT GAINS.

(By National Socialist Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal. Dec. 12. Socialists of Los Angeles are overjoyed at the magnificent showing made at the polls in the face of the terrific odds against them. The McNamara confession came at a time calculated to utterly destroy the force of the whole Los Angeles movement.

Plans are on foot to hold a big rally and jubilee meeting. Fifty one thousand loyal workers stood firm throughout the stormy hours and voted solidly for Job Harriman. These men and women will never waver in their loyalty to the Socialist movement.

[illegible] solidly by rolling up a [illegible] membership" to the [illegible] has gone forth [illegible]-Democrat, the offi[illegible] the Socialist party [illegible] has summed up the [illegible] criminal. "It was after the primary election is which the Socialists ticket won by nearly four thhusand plurality that there began the real struggle of the campaign.

"Los Angeles since the close of the primary election has been the storm center of the class-struggle not only in America but in the civilized world.

"The Socialist ticket and candidates were defeated in the election in Los Angeles December 5, but Socialism won a triumphal victory.

THE SOCIALIST DRAMATIC SOCIETY.

We have broken the spell and last Sunday evening had seventy-five enthusiastic comrades at the meeting of the Socialist Dramatic Society. It is no longer a dream but a fact and we are going to do something. We have four teams to do sketch work, singing and dancing. Now we want some for music. We want every branch to get busy for some sort of an entertainment, and thus give us something to do. That's all we ask you to do and we will give you some returns. Our meetings will be for pleasure and education, with readings and short talks on Socialism. We will have something doing every minute. Dont forget to come up Sunday night to 335 1-2 South High street.

COMRADE BROOKS IS IMPROVING.

Comrade W. H. Brooks, of the Twelfth Ward, who has recently undergone serious surgical treatment, is able to walk out some and by telephone sends greeting to his fellow workers in the cause of Socialism. May he recover rapidly.

The announcement in The Socialist, Dec. 2, 1911, that Ella Iube Purcell would speak at the Ohio State University was a mistake. Comrade Purcell is in poor health, as announced in these columns recently and has been ordered by her doctor to take a rest. She has accepted no invitations to speak.

NOTICE.

All those wishing to join the beginners class of the Socialist Band must get in before Christmas as no more will be admitted after that time, and furthermore, we only want those who MEAN BUSINESS and intend to give their services to assist the Socialist movement, as we have no time to put in with any others.

LOWERING TAXES IN MILWAUKEE.

By Carl D. Thompson.

The splendid work of the Socialists Administration in Milwaukee is bearing fruit. In spite of the increased efficiency on the part of every department of the city government, and in spite of the raising of the wages of the common laborers throughout the city, from $1.75 to $2.00 per day, the establishing of the union scale and trades union conditions, the administration has actually kept the expenditures of the city within the usual limits.

The total expenditures for the city this year have been only slightly higher in the aggregate than last year, and the County expenditures which are also under Socialist control have been somewhat reduced, and the state taxes are a little less than last year.

So that the actual tax rate in Milwaukee this year is 3 cents in the $1,000 less than last year.

And all this after a desperate and widespread effort on the part of the capitalistic press in the United States to make it appear that the Socialists have plunged the city into wild and impractical schemes that have involved such enormous expenditures that the taxes have tremendously increased.

The tax rate is actually reduced.

The Booster's Column

F. E. Johnston.

We are going to kick every Plute representative in Franklin County out of office next fall, and put in their places, ROCK RIBBED CLASS CONSCIOUS, REVOLUTIONARY SOCIALISTS. How are we going to do it? By Boosting the circulation of The Socialist to 25,000. In order to do this, we must have by March 1st, 1912, FIVE THOUSAND NEW SUBSCRIBERS. Are you Boosters equal to the occasion? The answer from every one must be YES, YES. This city and county must be turned inside out and scoured from one end to the other in order that no prospective Subscriber should be overlooked. "Go to it" Boosters, make the welkin ring with the glad cry of the Social Revolution, place in the hands of every man and woman, the intellectual weapon, that will enable them to march to the ballot box and free humanity once and forever from the rule of the few damnable Exploiters of mankind.

Comrade C. E. Warren holds up 5 new ones looking for light and hands them in, with instructions, "hand it to them heavy."

From Local Cincinnati

Whereas, The McNamara trial at Los Angeles has ended in a confession of guilt by both the accused, and

Whereas, The Socialist party has been active in raising funds for their defence, and in declaring that they should be given a fair trial, and also in denouncing the violent manner in which they were arrested and taken to the city of Los Angeles, and

Whereas, This action is being made the subject of much adverse criticism and there is danger of its being misunderstood, it is therefore proper that we should make the following explanation and declaration regarding this case and our attitude toward it.

When the McNamaras were arrested and forcibly taken into another state in violation of their constitutional rights and of the laws governing the extradition of persons charged with crime; that was an act of violence not only against the McNamaras, but against the entire working class. The Socialist party is opposed to violence whether exercised by the working class or by capitalist class and its hirelings.

The manner in which the arrests and deportation were consumated, naturally led us to believe that the prosecution was not in possession of evidence with which to accomplish its purpose legally. This belief led to the further presumption that there was a conspiracy on the part of the steel trust and the Merchants and Manufacturers' Associations to destroy the unions of the workers by fastening the crime of murder upon its leaders.

That such a conspiracy existed is evident, and that there was a further conspiracy is also apparent. That conspiracy was to deceive the working class and the Socialist party by leading us to believe that the McNamara brothers were innocent, to draw us to their defense, thus endeavoring to implicate us in defending crime and to discredit us in the eyes of the public. A further object of this conspiracy was to cripple the unions financially by inducing them to spend hundreds of thousands of their hard earned dollars.

Concerning the McNamaras and those associated with them in crime we reiterate that the Socialist party is steadfastly and consistently opposed to the use of violence under any circumstances whatsoever, while the capitalist class is constantly using every conceivable form of violence against the workers.

But the McNamaras were not Socialists? They believe in the policies and practices of the system of which they were victims. As members of the working class and the labor unions they were themselves the victims of every form of violence the ingenuity of the ruling class and its hirelings could devise. They had seen the Lake Seamens' and the Tin Plate Workers' unions destroyed and they could not fail to see that the Structural Iron Workers and other unions would meet a like fate unless they fought for their existence. To save their unions and to uphold and advance the interests of their class they took the ONLY action their beclouded intelligence was capable of conceiving. That action was to fight fire with fire—to meet violence with violence! And while we condemn the action and deplore the ignorance that prompted it, we believe the McNamaras were honestly endeavoring to better the condition of their union and their class.

The futility of this action is now plain to all and we call upon all workers, union and non-union to unite and with their ballots secure control of the government and using this power, put an end to the system that fosters and practices violence against the workers and seeks by driving us to the commission of crime, to keep us forever in slavery.

The Socialist party of Hamilton, county, Ohio, does hereby declare that we are proud of the position taken by us in the defense of workingmen on trial and presumed to be innocent; that we have nothing to retract; no regret whatever for having put forth our efforts in behalf of working men and the working class and that we recognize that capitalism is now in a desperate struggle to maintain its supremacy and will use every unfair means in its power to fight the workers of the country and that we stand ready at all times to support and defend ourselves as workers whenever attacked by the interests.

The above resolutions were adopted by regular annual convention of the Socialist party of Hamilton county, Ohio, on Sunday, December 10th, 1911.

ORGANIZE AND USE YOUR BEST WEAPON

By W. E. Bues.

The campaign of 1911 is over. The fight was great, the comrades fighting hard and aggressively.

A cruel and cowardly blow was struck by the foe during the last hours of the conflict that resulted in the loss of many men (votes).

While these men were only new recruits and loss of them is to be regretted, the old regulars remained intact—the result of drilling (education).

Education has always been the big weapon on which the Socialists depended. Education—the gun that pours shot after shot of intelligence into the ranks of the enemy mowing down ignorance right an dleft.

During the last campaign the gun of enthusiasm was more depended upon than the gun of education. While both are essential in this movement, education has always proven the superior, never having failed.

Enthusiasm produces quantity. Education produces quality and it's soldiers of quality that we need.

Let's profit by our experience and begin right now by educating all of our soldiers in our methods (Socialfat principles) of fighting.

The best means of education at our command is our newspaper, "The Socialist."

We have permitted it to hover between life and death until now it is cramped for means.

The failure of one issue of your paper means the revocation of its mailing privileges—that's death.

Capitalism wishes for nothing better.

It has not been exactly what you wished it to be, but that's your fault. It is your paper and it's just what you make it.

But it's going to be improved and every one of you must get behind and push.

There are 11,000 Socialists in Columbus and there is no excuse for "The Socialist" not having that many subscribers within the next two or three months.

Every nook and corner of the 280 precincts in this city should be searched for subs and it is up to the ward organizers and their precinct captains to do a large part of the work.

The ward branches should at their very next meeting insist on their organizers busying themselves on this job. Each precinct captain should be made responsible for a complete house to house canvass of his precinct, enlisting other members of his precinct in the work if possible and let no man lay down on the job.

The membership should insist on a report of this work every week.

The workers should be provided with sub cards and a list of expiring subs in their precincts which can be furnished by The Socialist, and started to work at once.

Subs are easy to get. If men who are in no other way interested in our party than to investigate its principles will subscribe, our membership and those who vote the Socialist ticket certainly should, and they will, if they are solicited.

A move of this kind will build an organization that knows how to fight. They will be trained to use the best fighting instrument they have—The Socialist—and how to get the best results from it.

This army of hustlers can also be used for other work of organization and can be depended upon to do it well.

Let's organize our forces and work with some system.

We're boasting already about sending a congressman to Washington next fall.

Well, with an organization, not in two or three wards, but in all the wards, working and fighting with their biggest guns and best ammunition, you can do it.

Oh, no! This don't mean that the securing of subs will be confined to only the precinct captains.

We want everybody who can to get subs!

Anywhere! Any time! Any way!

But hold the regiment of hustlers in your ward responsible for your territory.

You have learned that to win you must organize and use your best weapon. That's education and your paper. "The Socialist" is the best means of an education.

Are you going to relinquish your hold on your best weapon? We'll see.

"The cause combatted for is yours; the sacrifices and efforts made to win it ought therefore to be yours."—Mazzini.

SOME MEDITATIONS ON RELIGION

By Ella June Purcell.

Many people doubt the existence of a God. They see in life no plan and no organization. They see no hope, no ultimate end but chaos and oblivion. Such people should not be cut from the bonds of social intercourse, nor even censured. Rather should they receive the most profound sympathy which human hearts may bestow. The simple practice of Christ's principles would have greater power to lead those without faith to Him than denunciation and criticism could ever command.

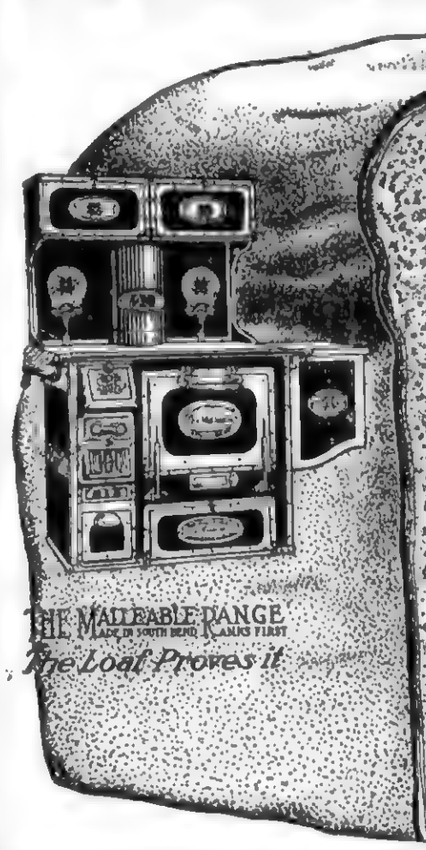
To doubt is human. Mathew Arnold has said most wisely that the difficulties of religion are simply the difficulties of nature and that doubt can be escaped only by escaping that. But a little thot even is a little learning is a dangerous thing. It is not wrong therefore to doubt. The wrong comes when the thinker refuses to think himself out of his difficulties. A little thot may sweep away one's early mystic conception of a personal God who is surrounded by floating angels tooting on horns. The personal God idea gone the thinker believes himself an infidel. And if he ceases thot at this point and closes his brain and heart to new impressions, adopts in other words a stoical indifference to everything but his own infallibility, he is hopelessly lost. But if, on the other hand, the thinker continues to think, his brain becomes stronger and his judgments more mature. In most cases the disbelief gives way to a fuller and more perfect belief than the one of earlier years. But some people are so afraid of being called inconsistent that because they were unable to believe yesterday, they refuse to believe today.

The faith of a child may be a beautiful thing, but to me far more beautiful is the faith of one who acknowledges divine rule in the knowledge and experience of age. A trust which can not be explained may be political but is not logical. Let us have men who have come triumphantly down the path of life, seeing and realizing both good and evil, but who have taken the good not the evil. He who is good, as he who is faithful need not be praised, unless he has chosen the good affirmatively and has known disbelief. It is the man who sees God after the torturing despondency of doubt, who can do things, and in whose faith we believe.

Matters of doctrine, creed, dogma are immaterial. For to each human being an individual brain is given, and to each a separate and peculiar power of reason. But "God, In thy will is my power to believe." Men can no more agree on the details of faith than by public declaration they may all have eyes of same colors.

What is Right for one man, may be utterly wrong for another. What is religious for you may be none for me. The longing for every soul to commune with its originator, its cause, its God must be expressed in individual terms, a collective longing under set terms and forms is unsatisfying, illogical, absurd.

And where do these meditations lead us, Socialists? To this. Socialists as a class are as progressive, religiously as politically. Thru that we advance in any line. When a man thinks at all he is very likely to think, religiously. But let us who think we have perhaps achieved an End, and settled all questions definitely and finally, not be satisfied with our conclusion. A little thot is an evil thing. Let us think on and on. Let us not accept any proposition, however beautiful, inspiring or profitable it may seem as the last word. There are heigts to which no soul has yet thot. Let us think on and on. Let us not censure or criticise any sect, creed or church, but allow not only ourselves and everyone else absolute freedom of that, of development.



Let us remember always "No man is so thoroly right as to be entitled to say that others are totally wrong."

The conclusion then must be,—the writer is positively and unalterably opposed to the establishment of any so-called "Socialist Church." The Socialist movement is as the national platform expresses it "an economic and political movement. It is not concerned with matter of religions belief." Our ethics may be those of Christianity, our aim the establishment of the co-operative Commonwealth, but neither now nor ultimately should we, directly or indirectly criticise or injure any established church. If there be Socialists who find themselves thinking the same, religiously, they have the right to establish a church to embody their peculiar views. But let them do it as INDIVIDUALS, never as SOCIALISTS. Religion should be a matter of private belief, personal inspiration and individual development, let us not make it a matter of formal politics.

VOL. I. No. 52. COLUMBUS, OHIO, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1911. Price $1.00 per year; single copies 5 cents.

Thug Brady Is "Assessed" $1472 Costs.

Judge Dillon has "assessed" Geo. W. Brady $1472 costs as punishment for shooting and wounding Catherine Kelly, during the 1910 street car strike, after the prisoner was convicted of assault and battery.

Why it was that the jury dealt so tenderly with Brady we do not inquire. The result of the Brady case and of the Foty case furnished the two points that will give us a line on the quality of justice meted out to paid assassins in this country. Concretely expressed, justice in Franklin county means the penitentiary or Mansfield for throwing a potato or corncob at street cars, and the workhouse or less for murder or shooting down in cold blood defenseless women and children. These are the hard facts, whatever way be your theory as to their underlying causes. A few of the salient features of this case, regardless of its result, are worthy of notice. Those of us who have read history doubtless recall the rise of sycophants in Greece and of informers in Rome when these civilizations had already started on their decline. These sycophants and informers manufactured evidence either for or against those under suspicion of crime. The rise of the detective to a position of importance in American criminal annals is not dissimilar. Like causes operating under like circumstances will inevitably produce like effects. And so in a corrupt and decadent civilization like that of the United States in the year of grace, 1911, it is not strange that we are suffering from some of the evils of Greece and Rome in their degenerate days. The detective, as is natural, has fastened himself as one of its necessary adjuncts to big business in its fight on labor. The defense in the Brady case was largely made up of this detective evidence and no doubt had the necessities of the case required. These detectives would have testified that the moon was made out of green cheese and would have told with great emotion their heartrending experiences in reaching the moon, and the able and scrupulous counsel who descanted so feelingly and tremulously on character, but who know of it only by hearsay, would have offered some of this green cheese in evidence, staking their professional reputation upon its genuineness. It suited their purpose, however, to speak of mock riots and imaginary brickbats and the able and incorruptible counsel worked themselves into a mock frenzy over these mock riots and imaginary brickbats.

It is worth while to pause a moment and note who were these able and incorruptible counsel. We violate no secret when we say that the Railway & Light Compaiywas back of Brady. Our highly esteemed and philanthropic friend, now suffering a financial eclipse, E. K. Stewart, graced the court room with his distinguished presence and breathed the air exhaled from the lungs of the bums and loafers, who surged into the court room to enjoy its welcome warmth and to listen to Brady's counsel eulogize those who happened to be unscrupulous enough to see Brady do the shooting. And then the upright and scrupulous McQueen agonized, so it is reported, with Brady during the long hours of the jury's deliberation. It is a well known fact that the regular attorneys for the street car company did not appear for Brady. But perhaps their olfactories are a little delicate and the occasion required those whose nostrils are accustomed to the smell of the garbage can. However that may be, one thing is certain and that is that there is a great abundance of those reptiles of capital, monopoly and privilege in the country who will do anything for a price and for a surprisingly small price at that. Their weapons are mendacity and villification. Abuse and villify those who are against you and thereby you can cover your own villainy. If you can't find anything real against them, then fix up something—if you can't fix it up, invent it—out of whole cloth. The mock riots, feigned assaults and imaginary brickbats were of this class. Such have been the arts of greed, pirvilege and monopoly from the beginning of time. And it has always been able to find its nefarious detestives and reptile lawyers to execute its purposes. Capitalism commits assassination and protects its assassins by the villainous arts of perjury and character assassination.

LOS ANGELES SOCIALISTS MAKE GREAT GAINS.

(By National Socialist Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal. Dec. 12. Socialists of Los Angeles are overjoyed at the magnificent showing made at the polls in the face of the terrific odds against them. The McNamara confession came at a time calculated to utterly destroy the force of the whole Los Angeles movement.

Plans are on foot to hold a big rally and jubilee meeting. Fifty one thousand loyal workers stood firm throughout the stormy hours and voted solidly for Job Harriman. These men and women will never waver in their loyalty to the Socialist movement.

"Build solidly by rolling up a big party membership," is the word that has gone forth. California Social-Democrat, the official organ of the Socialist party in the state, has summed up the situation in an editorial, under the heading "Socialism Wins Victory" which read as follows:

"Although at the last election, the Los Angeles Socialist ticket and candidates were defeated at the polls, the result was a most substantial victory for Socialism. "Never has the working class fought such a political battle anywhere in this or any other country.

"It was throughout a campaign of agitation, education and organization carried on under great difficulties.

"From its inception the Socialists forced the fighting and brought forward every affirmative issue.

"The one great principle underlying every local question raised and discussed was the right of exploitation.

"At every step in the campaign this was challenged by the Socialists and the opposition was not permitted to escape or evade this great Socialist principle.

"It was after the primary election in which the Socialists ticket won by nearly four thhusand plurality that there began the real struggle of the campaign.

"Los Angeles since the close of the primary election has been the storm center of the class-struggle not only in America but in the civilized world.

"On the stage of action here during the past four weeks and passing in rapid view there has been enacted all the farce, the comedy and the gaunt, grim tragedy always preesnt wherever real and not mimic battles are being fought.

"Socialists able to comprehend in their fullness the issue involved therein—and none but the Socialits are able to so comprehend—emerge therefrom with an enlarged horizon, a broader outlook an da more confident assurance of the final triumph of Socialism.

"The Socialist ticket and candidates were defeated in the election in Los Angeles December 5, but Socialism won a triumphal victory.

THE SOCIALIST DRAMATIC SOCIETY.

We have broken the spell and last Sunday evening had seventy-five enthusiastic comrades at the meeting of the Socialist Dramatic Society. It is no longer a dream but a fact and we are going to do something. We have four teams to do sketch work, singing and dancing. Now we want some for music. We want every branch to get busy for some sort of an entertainment, and thus give us something to do. That's all we ask you to do and we will give you some returns. Our meetings will be for pleasure and education, with readings and short talks on Socialism. We will have something doing every minute. Dont forget to come up Sunday night to 335 1-2 South High street.

COMRADE BROOKS IS IMPROVING.

Comrade W. H. Brooks, of the Twelfth Ward, who has recently undergone serious surgical treatment, is able to walk out some and by telephone sends greeting to his fellow workers in the cause of Socialism. May he recover rapidly.

The announcement in The Socialist, Dec. 2, 1911, that Ella June Purcell would speak at the Ohio State University was a mistake. Comrade Purcell is in poor health, as announced in these columns recently and has been ordered by her doctor to take a rest. She has accepted no invitations to speak."

All those wishing to join the beginners class of the Socialist Band must get in before Christmas as no more will be admitted after that time, and furthermore, we only want those who MEAN BUSINESS and intend to give their services to assist the Socialist movement, as we have no time to put in with any others.

LOWERING TAXES IN MILWAUKEE.

By Carl D. Thompson.

The splendid work of the Socialists Administration in Milwaukee is bearing fruit. In spite of the increased efficiency on the part of every department of the city government, and in spite of the raising of the wages of the common laborers throughout the city, from $1.75 to $2.00 per day, the establishing of the union scale and trades union conditions, the administration has actually kept the expenditures of the city within the usual limits.

The total expenditures for the city this year have been only slightly higher in the aggregate than last year, and the County expenditures which are also under Socialist control have been somewhat reduced, and the state taxes are a little less than last year.

So that the actual tax rate in Milwaukee this year is 3 cents in the $1,000 less than last year.

And all this after a desperate and widespread effort on the part of the capitalistic press in the United States to make it appear that the Socialists have plunged the city into wild and impractical schemes that have involved such enormous expenditures that the taxes have tremendously increased.

The tax rate is actually reduced.

From Local Cincinnati

Whereas, The McNamara trial at Los Angeles has ended in a confession of guilt by both the accused, and

Whereas, The Socialist party has been active in raising funds for their defense, and in declaring that they should be given a fair trial, and also in denouncing the violent manner in which they were arrested and taken to the city of Los Angeles, and

Whereas, This action is being made the subject of much adverse criticism and there is danger of its being misunderstood, it is therefore proper that we should make the following explanation and declaration regarding this case and our attitude toward it.

When the McNamaras were arrested and forcibly taken into another state in violation of their constitutional rights and of the laws governing the extradition of persons charged with crime, that was an act of violence not only against the McNamaras, but against the entire working class. The Socialist party is opposed to violence whether exercised by the working class or by capitalist class and its hirelings.

The manner in which the arrests and deportation were consumated, naturally led us to believe that the prosecution was not in possession of evidence with which to accomplish its purpose legally. This belief led to the further presumption that there was a conspiracy on the part of the steel trust and the Merchants and Manufacturers' Associations to destroy the unions of the workers by fastening the crime of murder upon its leaders.

That such a conspiracy existed is evident, and that there was a further conspiracy is also apparent. That conspiracy was to deceive the working class and the Socialist party by leading us to believe that the McNamara brothers were innocent, to draw us to their defense, thus endeavoring to implicate us in defending crime and to discredit us in the eyes of the public. A further object of this conspiracy was to cripple the unions financially by inducing them to spend hundreds of thousands of their hard earned dollars.

Concerning the McNamaras and those associated with them in crime we reiterate that the Socialist party is steadfastly and consistently opposed to the use of violence under any circumstances whatsoever, while the capitalist class is constantly using every conceivable form of violence against the workers.

But the McNamaras were not Socialists! They believe in the policies and practices of the system of which they were victims. As members of the working class and the labor unions they were themselves the victims of every form of violence the ingenuity of the ruling class and its hirelings could devise. They had seen the Lake Seamens' and the Tin Plate Workers' unions destroyed and they could not fail to see that the Structural Iron Workers and other unions would meet a like fate unless they fought for their existence. To save their unions and to uphold and advance the interests of their class they took the ONLY action their beclouded intelligence was capable of conceiving. That action was to fight fire with fire—to meet violence with violence! And while we condemn the action and deplore the ignorance that prompted it, we believe the McNamaras were honestly endeavoring to better the condition of their union and their class.

The futility of this action is now plain to all and we call upon all workers, union and non-union to unite and with their ballots secure control of the government and using this power, put an end to the system that fosters and practices violence against the workers and seeks by driving us to the commission of crime, to keep us forever in slavery.

The Socialist party of Hamilton county, Ohio, does hereby declare that we are proud of the position taken by us in the defense of workingmen on trial and presumed to be innocent; that we have nothing to retract; no regret whatever for having put forth our efforts in behalf of working men and the working class and that we recognize that capitalism is now in a desperate struggle to maintain its supremacy and will use every unfair means in its power to fight the workers of the country and that we stand ready at all times to support and defend ourselves as workers whenever attacked by the interests.

The above resolutions were adopted by regular annual convention of the Socialist party of Hamilton county, Ohio, on Sunday, December 10th, 1911.

Socialism vs. Capitalism.

Editor The Columbus Socialist:

The editor of the Ohio State Journal in a recent issue asks the following questions on Socialism and then refuses to publish in the Journal the following reply:

The editor of the Journal asks: "How is Socialism to be brought about and made a governmental force?" He cites a concrete example of the rolling mill employing 200 men making merchant bar, and asks: "How is it to be absorbed in the Socialistic scheme?" "How are the owners to be remunerated, if they are to be remunerated?" "Who is to operate the plant after it has changed from Capital to Socialism?" "How the large enterprises of the Jeffrey Company, the Kilbourne-Jacobs concern, the Steel mill and other institutions of unmeasured value to this community are to he incorporated into the Socialistic scheme, and how the hundreds of shareholders who have put their earnings into the enterprises are to come out? Since Collectivism is the end, how is it to be reached?"

The vital question, he suggests, is, how is Socialism to be brought about and made a governmental force?

I will preface my answer by briefly noting how Capitalism was brought about and made a governmental force.

The underlying principle of Capitalism, namely, the taking from an individual without giving in return equitable compensation, has been a dominant force in all the governments of the world for centuries. Jesus, the Christ, condemned it during His ministry here, and was crucified by a church hierarchy for meddling with its mammonism!

Capitalism in the United States became a governmental force, not by any precepts embodied in our forefathers' Declaration of Independence, wherein they sought an equitable government of, by and for the people, but later, in the framing of the Constitution, the hand of Capitalism was very soon discernible, until today every citizen feels and knows its usurped power in government.

Capitalism became a governmental force when it read into the Constitution a representative form of government (so-called), and immediately placed it, thus verily prostituting the peoples' government in the interest of Capitalism, or, otherwise, by making the peoples' government abortive through the absence of the initative, referendum and recall, which the adjudicators of Capitalism purposely kept from becoming incorporated into the Constitution, and thereby building a moneyed plutocracy instead of a peoples' democracy.

Hence, Capitalism, by means of its legislative and judicial authority has run a swift race, and now in the zenith of its power is to be transcended by the next evolutionary step of human progress into the brotherhood movement of Socialism.

Socialism will be brought about and made a governmental force by simply subverting the regime of Capitalism. That is to say, under Socialism a pure democracy will attain. Socialism, the next evolutionary step in society, will bring about an industrial democracy, instead of a political plutocracy, as we have today.

Take the concrete example of 200 men, working under the wage system, making merchant bar, or the hundreds of men working in the plants of the Jeffrey Company, the Kilbourne-Jacobs Company, or the Steel mills, making ponderous machinery, steel rails, etc. It is very probable that the same force of men will operate the mills under Socialism that do now. Why? For the simple reason that they are better fitted by experience and vocation to do the work. As to the remuneration of loss to the owner of the mill, I will let you anticipate my answer by asking you the question: Who will remunerate the working men for their loss in wages during all these years of excessive toil wherein the mill-owner acquired his great wealth? Since the present system has not done so, the Socialistic scheme will very likely do.

The axiom—the whole is equal to the sum of all its parts is a potent factor in the discussion of this subject. To be specific; natural resources, brain and muscle, were the forces that produced for Mr. Carnegie his(?) millions of wealth. No sane person will claim that Mr. Carnegie has a more equitable right to the natural resources that enter into the production of steel rails than has the workingmen who produced them.

Again, humane or social equity will accredit the workingmen their pro rata share of the other two factors that enter into the manufacture of mill products, namely, brain and muscle. What percentage of these did Mr. Carnegie employ in the accumulation of his great wealth? I answer, an infinitesimal part. Mr. Carnegie simply employed his brain in perfecting the system of exploitation of which he is an adept. Under Capitalism the success of employers of labor depend upon their adeptness to exploit their employes and the public. (By exploitation, I mean the act of appropriating unjustly the value of another's production.)

In Columbus the workers produce a valuation annually of $2,325 each, and receive of that amount only $452. Hence they are exploited 514 per cent of their wages. U. S. Census, Vol. 8, page 1012.

Since private Capitalism has come to the present stage of development by the means of exploitation of workingmen, and the usurpation of natural resources by Capitalists and the government, wherein society is in the convulsions of poverty and degradation on the one hand, and the aggrandizement of great wealth on the other, with the church standing sponsor for both conditions, the great soul of the working class is being infused with a new desire—the thoughts of freedom from wage slavery and the full compensation of its toil, which finds expression in the Socialist movement.

As to how the stockholders in the Jeffrey and other companies are to come out in the transaction from Capitalism to Socialism? I have not the least doubt but what their dividends will be much larger under the new regime than now. The stockholders of those concerns are creatures of the Capitalist system the same as the wage workers, and likewise pay 300 to 3,000 per cent profit on articles of consumption the same as other workingmen. Hence their recompense under Socialism will come to them by means of future equal opportunities wherein they will be enabled to receive a just compensation for their labor, and to purchase articles of consumption at cost instead of paying 300 to 3,000 per cent profit.

As to whether confiscation is to be the method of settling with the Rockefellers, Morgans and the Carnegies will not be known until the majority have the opportunity to so decide. It would only be paying them back in their own coin, however, since confiscation is the word that more nearly expresses what the Capitalists have done to the workers under Capitalism.

If the average annual production of labor is $2,324 each, and the system allows him only $452 for it, he most assuredly has been confiscated, bumfoozled or some other equally unjust thing happened to him.

Then, again, Mr. Workingman takes his measly $452 and pays a profit of over one thousand per cent for his bread, potatoes and clothing, which is worse than confiscation, it is foolishness personified.

The brotherhood of man will be made manifest in the regime of Socialism. The principles of Capitalism, supported by ecclesiasticism, has held the world in subjection nearly two thousand years and it yet remains for the wage-earners—the Common people, to save themselves from the curse of Capitalism by espousing the Christ-like principles of Socialism.

WORKING MEN AND WORKING WOMEN, LISTEN!

By John C. Chase.

You have a golden opportunity, an opportunity to do something which will be historic in the progress of civilization.

You have an opportunity to strike a tremendous blow for the freedom, not only of working men, but the freedom of working women.

There is a petition being circulated throughout the United States requesting Congress to submit to the legislatures of the several states for ratification, an amendment to the national constitution, which will enable women to vote in all elections on an equality with men.

You know that the ballot is the great weapon which the working class can use whenever that class gets ready to use it. You know also, that the working class is about to use that weapon for its emancipation. Do you not want your mother, sister or daughter to be able to use that ballot with you?

Are you going to allow yourselves to be weakened in the great conflict by having those so closely interested with you, so closely allied with you in the struggle, deprived of a chance to aid you in the struggle?

Remember that there are millions of women—daughters and sisters, wives and mothers—who are now obliged to work and slave in order to live.

These are all members of the working class and have the same interests as the fathers, husbands, brothers and sons. Will you deprive them longer, by your carelessness and inactivity, of the privilege of participating in the making of laws which govern their conditions?

The laws of today, in the great majority of states, place women upon the same basis, politically, as mules, imbeciles and criminals.

A mule cannot vote, (if he could he would raise a ruction), an imbecile cannot vote (supposedly, but a lot of them do), and criminals (who are in prison) are denied the right to vote. Do you want your wife and mother longer kept in this class? No, I do not believe it.

The California working men have just placed themselves in the vanguard of progress and have given the women of that state an equal voice with men in the affairs of government. Are you going to lag behind them and be less progressive than they?

Do you know who opposes suffrage for women? Listen, it is the women of the "400" who have their lap dogs, their money dinners, their "Adam and Eve strolls" to engage their attention and amuse themselves.

These are the ones who hold up their hands in holy horror at the thought of the women engaging in the affairs of state. It is they who tell the people that it is "unladylike" and "unfeminine" for women to vote.

They know that it would be dangerous to them and their class if the working women, who are in the majority, should be given the ballot.

Don't be fooled any longer by this cry of the dilettante opponent of equal suffrage.

Give your wife, daughter, mother and sister a chance to stand with you, and win or lose with you, in your struggles against your oppressors.

The Socialist Party has flooded the country with petitions asking Congress to submit this amendment.

Every labor organization, every Socialist local, every individual working man, every individual Socialist should take hold in this matter and secure the signatures of every person in his community to these petitions.

Every one, who believes in freedom and equality before the law, every one who believes women are human beings as well as the men, will sign.

Congressman Victor L. Berger, the first genuine representative of the working class in Congress, will submit this petition to Congress and fight for the submission of the amendment, as only Berger can fight.

Get busy and send Berger so many signatures that he will have to employ the services of every other congressman in the House to bring this petition before that body.

When you have read this, don't hesitate. If you haven't any petition blanks, drop a postal to the National Secretary of the Socialis party, 205 West Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois, asking him to supply you with them and he will immediately furnish you with all you can use.

Let the voice of the working class be heard in the halls of Congress as it has never been heard before. Let the warning be sounded, that the working class insists that ALL of the workers shall be enfranchised, that the WOMEN who toil will no longer be denied the privilege of fighting shoulder to shoulder with the MEN of toil in the greatest battle of all time.

NO APOLOGIES TO OFFER

Socialists stand by what they said in relation to the McNamara case. Not only that, but they have advanced a step, for their contentions and their principles have been amply vindicated. We are not on trial. Any attempt to turn on us is an indication of the weakness and viciousness of those who are desperately trying to find a means of defense in the Los Angeles case. It is an attempt to draw attention away from essential points, and, as has been done in the past, fritter away the energies of the working class on non-essentials, sap their mighty strength on things with which they have no concern, and through carefully and artfully designed falsehood keep them in the subjection under which they have labored these many years.

The New York World swings into the fight with a cartoon depicting the sweeping out, by Los Angeles, of Socialism and of murder—as depicted in a bomb with lighted fuse. Socialism is the antithesis of murder. That bomb is a capitalist weapon. The World begins its editorial, "Socialism's eleventh hour attempt to repudiate the McNamaras was unsuccessful, and its ticket in Los Angeles has gone down to deserved defeat."

There has been no repudiation of the McNamaras. No Socialist, who in the past has spoken on the subject, has repudiated anything. No Socialist has attempted to hide anything. No Socialist has any regret for the stand taken by the party and by individual members who understood what was really involved in this case.

From the first, The Call, in common with other Socialist papers demanded that this case be handled with as near an approximation to honesty as the present horribly unjust class system would permit. It fought with all its power against the manner in which the McNamaras were seized, hurried to Los Angeles and there held while the case was worked against them. It protested against government by detectives, and it still protests and it is going to protest.

But not only is it going to protest, it is also going to put the blame squarely where it belongs.

We haven't deserted the McNamaras. They never were of us. They belong heart and soul to the capitalist class and to the parties that represent capitalism. If they had been in New York, they would probably read and followed the World, not The Call. They would have allied themselves with those movements the World supports, not those for which The Call is published to champion. And in the Climax that has been reached, any sane man can read the deplorable fact that they are pupils of the World and similar papers, not men who have followed the teachings of the Socialist papers. As The Call said when the confession came, it is at the door of the capitalist that this crime lies, not at the door of the Socialists.

It is easy to point out the development of these men. Was not J. J. McNamara one of the organizers of the Militia of Christ, a body designed to fight Socialism? Put his crime up to that body. Demand to know whether or not his methods were instigated by it. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus. Put his crime up to that body and demand whether or not he received through his membership those teachings which resulted in the crime of which he is accused.

And while you are doing it, ask its members, ask its executives, whether or not they have repudiated the McNamaras.

We haven't.—New York Call.

CAPITALISTIC LIES ABOUT TAXATION IN MILWAUKEE

By Carl D. Thompson.

According to the capitalistic papers another dreadful catastrophe has befallen the poor city of Milwaukee—the Socialists have enormously increased the taxes.

From every direction people are sending us clippings from the capitalistic papers that play up in lurid headlines the fell calamities and the dire distress inflicted upon the poor suffering people of this beautiful city, by reason of the terrible increase in taxestaxes.

All of which is very interesting if true.

But what are the facts?

In the first place, the newspaper reports about the increase in the city expenditures in Milwaukee, are about as near to the truth as the capitalistic papers generally get. They report that the present Socialist administration has spent nearly a million dollars more than the last Rose administration. And they claim that this is according to the official tax levy filed by the city clerk.

All of which is another one of their cheerful capitalistic lies. The fact is that the expenditures this year for city purposes have been a little over four hundred thousand dollars more than last year. The capitalist papers have added six hundred thousand dollars to the amount.

But what is still more interesting, and still more to the point, is the fact that the increase of the rate of taxation in Milwaukee is seventeen cents on the thousand dollars less than the increase in the rate of taxation under the last Democratic administration of the preceding Republican administration.

Will the labor and Socialist papers please copy that single simple statement? The effort of the capitalistic press to discredit the working class administration in Milwaukee must be defeated.

The city of Milwaukee is growing. It is growing very rapidly. In fact, the last two years have been the most remarkable years in the commercial development of the city.

Naturally, as the city grows, the expenditures for municipal purposes increase. The rigid economies of the present administration have, however, reduced this rate of increase as stated above.

The tax rate in Milwaukee is lower today than in almost and city of its size in America.

Though increasing slowly, the increase is less than under any of the former administrations.

And the actual increase in the tax rate is about eleven cents in the thousand.

So much for the awful conditions in Milwaukee as pictured by the capitalistic press.

SAM PARKS WILL BE GIVEN A REST

Sam Parks, the deluded victim of "Big Business," will now be forgotten. The remains of Parks are resting in an unknown grave in a New York penitentiary. Parks was a Chicago iron worker, big, burly, and a leader of the rough men he associated with. He was taken to New York by the fuller Construction Co. which recognized his union—called the Housesmiths. Parks was business agent and started strikes against other building firms. Architects soon noticed the Fuller people had no trouble with their housesmiths and in time the Chicago company secured practically a monopoly on the erection of big buildings around New York. It was afterwards proven in court that Parks was brought to the eastern city for just that purpose. He was sentenced to the penitentiary. While in jail he lost his mind and died in an asylum for the criminal insane.

The long frocked and high hatted gents who were parties to the deal are still referred to as "our prominent citizens," and the memory of the unfortunate Parks, who was a proven tool, is still conjured with by the kept writers and "open shoppers" every time they would tell us organized labor is "crooked."

The McNamara confession will probably allow Parks to be forgotten. The confessed dynamiters will now be pointed to as a sample of "A. F. of L. trades unionism" by "open shoppers" and vote hunters.

FAMINE GRIPPING PEOPLE OF RUSSIA; MILLIONS MAY DIE

Children Eat Acorns as the Crop Shortage Reaches 50,000,000 Tons.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 8.—Russia is in the grip of a famine that threatens to claim more lives than that of 1891, when 800,000 died. The Free Economic Society estimates the crop shortage at 50,000,000 tons.

Live on Acorns.

In Ufa hundreds of children have lived for months on acorns, but these are almost exhausted. In the Samara province the people are eating dogs and shrubs, while scores are dying of starvation.

Officials have prohibited the organization of private relief societies, fearing political propaganda. In some districts the police have forbidden the papers to raise funds or to mention the famine. Even the Central Zemstvo organization has received orders not to attempt relief.

Minimize Situation.

The Bureaucracy, as usual, persists in minimizing the situation, the premier declaring that the government is taking all adequate measures.

The situation has provoked heated debates in the Duma, where the opposition, bitterly assailing the government, demands the dismissal of governors in the affected provinces.

STUDY OF SOCIALISM AMONG COLLEGIANS.

I. S. S. Chapters Now In Thirty-Seven Colleges.

That the Intercollebiate Socialist Society is meeting with an ever readier response in its work of promoting an interest in Socialism in the colleges is indicated by the formation during October and November, of study chapters in eight more colleges—Princeton, Amherst, Wesleyan, Colgate, Ohio State, Oberlin and the University of Missouri. The addition of these chapters makes a total of thirty-seven now in existence in the principal colleges of the country.

Harry W. Laidler, who has recently returned from a two weeks tour among the colleges of New England, reports a marked tendency toward Socialism both among students and members of the faculties in these centers of learning.

"The universities of America are ceasing to idealize the passionless intelligence,' declared Comrade Laidler. "The students are beginning to feel the impulse of the great world movements, and especially that of international Socialism. The majority of economic professors in the smaller New England colleges with whom I spoke were convinced that a co-operative system would be the next stage in the economic development. Some of the keenest students of the colleges, many of them in spite of the intense opposition of their parents, are working vigorously for the coming change."

The Society is now devoting much attention to the coming Third Annual Convention to be held in New York City on Thursday and Friday, December 28th and 29th. Delegates are expected at this gathering from a large majority of the chapters and fraternal delegates from many of the as yet unorganized colleges. Among the speakers already secured for the convention are: Mayor-elect Dr. George R. Lunn of Schenectady, Prof. Vida D. Scudder of Wellesley, Congressman Victor L. Berger (probably), John Spargo, J. G. Phelps Stokes Morris Hillquit, Mrs. Florence Kelley, Algernon Lee, Ellis O. Jones, Mrs. Jessica G. Finch, and others Those who were present last year were unanimous in proclaiming the Convention one of the most inspiring of their experiences. The Society extends a welcome to all collegians desiring to gain an insight into the Socialist Movement.

Organizer Laidler will also appreciate, the names of college men and women who may be able to aid in the organization of undergraduate and alumni chapters. Address Intercollegiate Socialist Society, Room 902, 105 W. 40th St., New Yor City.

WHO ARE THE OUTLAWS?

Sunday evening, December 10, 1911, in one of our city churches one of our most respected ministers delivered a sermon, the subject being "The Dynamiters." He says in part: "We must bring the labor unions under the protection and control of the government."

If we were under the protection of the government as well as the capitalists are, we could not kick, I am sure. As to the direction and control, we almost have it now, seems to me.

Further on he says: "Labor organizations have been hitherto, for the most part, outlawa." Now suppose we take all that I have quoted and apply church instead of labor and see if they all have clean organizations. They are exactly like the labor organizations. They have their hypocrites.

Now, friends and comrades, what kind of a feeling can a good honest workingman have for a man who will utter such statements as those. Now have I not the same right to condemn all the churches for such a statement from one of the real leaders of the church as he would have to condemn all labor organizations for a wrong of the McNamaras?

I know many men in labor organizations that are in my opinion a credit to the church members. Why? Because they are honest; and why I know it is because they fight for it and vote for it. I have the greatest of respect for the Christian Church and church people, but I have no respect for these hypocrites who misrepresent the truth of labor conditions. I belong to a labor organization and am not ashamed of it. Why should I be? If it were true what the most respected reverend said, I would surely drop out. He has belonged to so many of course he is in a position to know. Which is the worst, a crime like the one the McNamaras committed or one like Thug Brady. The McNamaras confessed they only had destruction of property in view and not life. What did Brady have in view? Whatever it was he got away with and the churches do not seem to worry about such conditions as that.

You had organized labor here during the street car strike and then you had unorganized. Which was the worse? You know and if you would answer it honestly the unorganized was made up of thugs, bums and ex-convicts and most of you church people gave them the glad hand and got on the car and took rides all over town with them.

There are two classes that are the enemies to society. One class is "The Dynamiters" referred to and we have a law to handle such characters as that. But the other class who in my opinion (and I think most honest people will bear me out in the statement) are a thousand times worse than the McNamaras. They have not any law to face for the crimes they commit. I refer to the ones that make McNamaras, who from their entrenched positions of power take the sweat and blood of the millions of their fellow beings, who force helpless women in a life of shame to satisfy their greed for profits, who exploit lives of little children in mines and tubercular breeding factories, who break every law of God and man by monopolizing the necessities of life which means hunger, cold and death for helpless men, women and children, and furthermore organize their power and dollars, but deny the right of the workers to organize their brain and muscles, and try to block the workers for a more equal opportunity and a fairer distribution of the wealth of the world. Comrades, we have the solution and it won't be long any more until it will begin to be applied. Then you will hear the hypocrites saying, "I told you so."

WHAT WE NEED MOST.

By W. R. S.

We need organizers more than we need agitators.

We need house-to-house canvassers more than we need soapbox spielers.

We need literature agents more than we need polished lecturers.

We need shrewd students of national, state, and municipal problems more than we need erudite philosophers and historians.

We need comrades who will spend their evenings visiting working people in their homes more than we need martyrs who defy the police to deprive them of the right of street speaking.

We need the sort of organizer who makes a circuit of towns at least once every three months, stopping in each place from three to ten days for the purpose of inaugurating campaigns and teaching the comrades how to manage them—more than we need agitators who jump from town to town, giving a lecture here, a lecture there, and doing nothing else but talk.

We need to train a host of pamphlet sellers and subscription getters more than we need to train a lot of public speakers.

Of course, we need all sorts of propagandists, but the most important fields of endeavor seems to be neglected for those kinds of work that take the most money, that occasion the most prejudice, and that reach the fewest number of people. Is it not about time that we exercised a little discrimination?

Socialism will put an end to the gold brick game.

It has required a thousand years to bring home the lesson that the rich live on the back of labor by acts of delusion. When the workers brush aside some of their fears they will make better progress.

A Wisconsin girl married the man who shot her—but he shot her because he loved her. We know of workingmen who vote for the old political parties who fill them full of bullets, but not because they love them.

Those who read the metropolitan newspapers lately cannot fail to have noted an alarming increase in the number of murders, suicides, scandals and crimes, all traceable to the existence of classes in society—the idle rich and the miserable poor. The rich live in luxury and the poor in direst poverty.

The election reports, even in the capitalistic papers always, these days, have something to say about the Socialist vote. They mention us in the headlines now, even if our party is defeated. Formerly we got our election returns by freight train. Now they are flashed upon the screens election night.

It's different, you know. We are on the map.

One good thing calls for another. If it's a good thing for a city mayor in Indianapolis to buy things and sell them to the people of the city at COST, why wouldn't it be a good thing for a county judge, as a public servant, to buy plows and such things and sell them to the farmers of the county at COST? Had you farmers ever though about that?

The Chicago beef barons, after battling for eight years to stave off action, are to be brought to trial. Suppose they are tried, convicted and fined, what good will result to the working class? The price of beef will go up and the dear people will stand all the expense of the trial. The Standard Oil trust has been "dissolved," but that giant monopoly is still gouging the producer and consumer.

Uncle Sam can operate a coal mine just as successfully as he can dig a canal. This is not an expression of confidence. It is merely calling attention to something that has been convincingly proved by actual experience. Uncle Sam owns a coal mine at Williston, N. D. Out of his mine he gets fuel for a power plant. With the power plant he generates electricity. This electricity runs pumps which draw from the Missouri river the water needed to irrigate thousands of acres of arid lands.

Query: If Uncle Sam can successfully operate a coal mine in North Dakota, why cannot he do the same thing on a larger scale in all the other states and Alaska?

"Although food prices in Cincinnati are lower than those of the average big city, the comparatively higher rents bring up the total so that the poor man is no better off here than anywhere else."

This is the conclusion arrived at by Secretary T. J. Edmonds of the Associated Charities, after a study of the food price lists compiled by Miss Jeanette Grief at the request of Professor J. P. Holdsworth, dean of the department of economics of Pittsburg University, for use in his economic survey of the cost of living.

In establishing maximum and minimum food prices it was found that there is least range in the prices of meat and most in that of tea, coffee, spices and fancy groceries.

To Comrades and Working People:

Look over the advertising in your paper. Patronize those who patronize you. Remember those who refuse to advertise in a labor paper are unfair to labor and are not worthy of your patronage.

How About This?

Here is something that I earnestly commend to the pondering of every American:

The Republic of Portugal has now been in existence more than a year.

It has been officially recognized by every other republic in the world except one, and by several of the monarchies.

The one republic that has not recognized it is the republic of the United States.

What do you think is the reason for this strange fact?

If Mr. Taft on his travels will kindly tell us about this and tell us the truth we will gladly spare him any further defense of the judiciary.

There are very strong reasons why we ought to know about it.

One of them is that the Catholic Church is trying very hard to overturn and destroy the Portuguese Republic, and the Catholic Church has exercised a singular degree of influence over the present administration as over the preceding.

How much has John Ireland had to do with all this?

This magazine meddles with no man's religion; he can believe in one God or a million for all we care. One denomination looks to us like another. But if any church whatever its name has attained such a power over the government of the United States that it is able to make us reverse our traditional and well-established policy of friendship to republics and hostility to absolutism, then the country ought to know that fact, and know what flabby officer of the people consented to such a condition and for what reason whether for power, political advantage or the promise of a renomination.—Charles Edward Russell in Coming Nation.

Molding Public Opinion.

It may be taken now as a practically settled fact, that government supervision and control of the trusts, as a policy, will soon supersede the futile and idiotic Sherman Anti-Trust Law. This opinion has been steadily gaining ground, not among what is called the public, who have no opinions that need any particular consideration, but among those who have power to decide; that is, the owners of the trusts.

For some months past Mr. Taft has been stumping the country mouthing feeble platitudes about dissolving the trusts and restoring competition, and has repeated himself in a fatuous message to the same effect, but no attention whatever is being paid to these futilities by those who really have brains enough to formulate a temporarily practical policy and power enough to have it enacted into law. These men are the Garys, Morgans, Perkinses et al, and the great financial magnates who use them as spokesmen. The Tafts, Wickershams and Stanleys are practically negligible quantities, though if there is any such thing as "public opinion" they perhaps, as yet, fairly represent it. The situation clearly shows what a nonenity the politician really is when great industrial questions are under consideration.

It is worthy of remark also how unanimous and outspoken are those whose opinions really count for something on this subject in declaring the era of competition forever past, and the idiocy of expecting its restoration by any possible hocus pocus of statute law. These men are now talking of competition exactly as Socialists talked years ago and are talking today. But ten, or even five, years ago not one of these men would have dared to insist that competition was doomed beyond all hope of restoration. Now, however, they are familiarizing the public with the idea, and utterly discrediting the legal fossils of the Taft and Bryan types who still proclaim their belief in its resurrection.

It is most interesting to watch them molding "public opinion" in this manner and reconciling it to the preparatory stages of the government ownership of the trust, with themselves as the government. When they have gone their limit it will be the turn of the Socialists to do some necessary "molding" on the question of who shall own the government.

The Silencing of Gompers.

unfortunate Gompers the capitalistic vials of wrath are now being poured with a vengeance, and that luckless labor leader in the very necessities of the situation, deprived of any effective answer, is forced to content himself with lamentations of being imposed upon, exclamations of surprise, sorrow and indignation, and feeble protestations that "organized labor does not stand for violence," which finally dwindle down to assertions that "he has nothing to say."

Rightly paying no heed to these puerilities, the capitalist press and every labor hater and union smasher in the land triumphantly repeat, "What has Gompers to say now?"

He has nothing to say and is therefore saying nothing. He has deprived himself of any possible, rational and convincing answer, and knows not, or if he knows, dare not retort, that upon the shoulders of his accusers lies full half of the responsibility for the violence perpetrated by the "organized labor" that now repudiates and disavows the McNamara brothers. As he cannot or dare not say this, he can say nothing.

But we Socialists have something to say, and we shall say it. And for what we have already said, and the part we have taken in this case, we have neither apology nor retraction to make. "Unashamed," is our motto as to this situation.

Against the manner of the arrest of these men, we, in common with Mr. Gompers and the great body of organized labor, protested. In common with them, we assumed their innocence until their guilt was evident. In common with them, we declared the case to have every earmark of a conspiracy. And we were both justified in holding such an opinion. It was a reasonable conclusion from the appearances.

Even had we known that these men were indisputably guilty, we should still have protested against the kidnapping, the perjury and forgery connected with their arrest.

And if the capitalist press dares attempt to shift their attacks from Mr. Gompers to us, we shall have something to say that Gompers cannot or dare not say, and we will make it effective, too. We are not on the defensive—it is not a position we usually occupy—but if they imagine otherwise, we are more than ready. We know the weakness of their position, if Mr. Gompers, over whose discomfiture they are now rejoicing, doesn't. And we know how to present this episode as the strongest justification of Socialist tactics and policy that has ever occcured in this land. We can point out some of these things now, for much as we have been and are opposed to Mr. Gompers, and the policy he represents, we are not inclined to stand silent while those at least equally responsible with him attempt to shift the entire burden upon his shoulders.

It is true that the policy he championed—despite his repudiation of violence—ultimately and inevitably generates the McNamara type in the ranks of organized labor. But his capitalistic accusers will never dare tell him so, nor will they attempt to analyze those policies and point out why and how they inevitably lead to violence. To do so would be but to inculpate themselves and the system they represent.

They will simply ignore his protestations and accuse him on general, undefined principles, as they are now doing. They want that policy of his continued as regards organized labor. Rather would they deal with a McNamara case every week than have Mr. Gompers abandon his policy and replace it with the only one that would eliminate the dynamiter as a possibility. In their eagerness to saddle the guilt upon Gompers, some of them are now declaring that in the future the policies of organized labor must be dominated by John Mitchell and men of his type. But well they know that the ideas of Gompers and Mitchell are similar in every essential respect, that both men are members of the same labor organization, and were also members of the same capitalist organization, until the latter was dragged out by his union.

It is true that Mr. Gompers advocated peaceful measures, but at the same time he championed a policy that in the last extremity made peaceful methods impossible. He did not know it then and probably does not know it now. Sincere, but short-sighted, the news of the confession came upon him like a thunderclap. The men whom he trusted deceived him, imposed on his credulity and "betrayed labor." They must have been "crazy." So little did he understand it that he acted lie a crazy man himself, to the wonder of the beholders. He didn't understand—does not understand now—and can therefore make no effective answer to his enemies in their hour of apparent triumph.

THE SPIES ARE COMING! BEWARE!

President Taft is reported to have ordered five hundred United States secret service men to investigate organized labor, on the assumption that the unions are engaged in a widespread dynamite plot.

This is ominous. For the sincerity of this investigation we can have only President Taft's word, and that has not yet been given.

The Russian government maintains a vast secret service. Ostensibly this army of spies is for the preservation of law and order, for the detection of criminals, but in fact they become provocateurs. They make trouble within the workingmen's organizations of that country. They provoke violence in order that there may be more demand for secret service work. In Russia these secret service men have even gone so far as to assassinate officials of the government.

Five hundred secret service men are a dangerous power in the hands of any executive who is not compelled to report the use to which he puts them.

They are especially dangerous in the hands of an executive whose mind is molded by the interests of a ruling capitalist class, such a man, for instance, as President Taft, who "loves the courts and loves judges" and, for all we know to the contrary, loves to give them members of working class organizations whom they can imprison or hang.

These five-hundred secret service men will join the labor unions. They will become spies upon organized labor. Is it conceivable that they will confine their activities to reporting any discoveries they may make about dynamite plots? Is it conceivable that they will not also report, for the benefit of the employers' associations, that information which the employers have heretofore been in the habit of securing through hired spies of their own? Will not these five hundred secret service agents become merely informers for the benefit of the employers and labor-haters while the government will obligingly pay their salaries?

Is it not possible that in true "detective" style some of these government spies will instigate plots of violence for the purpose of making a record?

Labor organizations and Socialist party organizations should be on the lookout for these spies. They are the advance guard of a Russianized bureaucracy intended as a part of the federal government for the surveillance of the working class in behalf of Big Business.

Some of these men are in Columbus and have been here for some time.

LEATHER WORKEERS, BRANCH NO. 34.

Our membership is small in number, but what we lack in that respect we make up in others. Our members can be depended upon in all emergencies. They stand by the principles of the Brotherhood to a fault. They thoroughly appreciate the necessity of supporting our brothers in trouble and have paid the special assessment without a murmur, and will continue to do so.

The union men in this city have been taught a lesson and will no longer be fooled by the promises of the old party politicians. They vote for the Socialistic candidates at the city election; the mayor was defeated by a very small margin, but we gave the old timers an awful scare. We elected four councilmen and two members of the school board.

We believe it would be a good idea to exempt new members from the payment of the special assessment, for the reason that new members are not entitled to benefits for six months. We should aim to increase our membership at this time and with this concession, if it could be obtained, we are certain that it would be the means of increasing our membership materially. This question should be viewed from its practical application.

Business has been very good here the entire season, and we have all we could do. Two men have been put to work recently, one a brotherhood man and the other an ex-member.

The best of feeling exists here in the shops towards the organization, and we are certain that by setting a good example, we have convinced the non-union men that their place is in the organization of their trade, for nothing can be accomplished by individual bargaining, for the good and sufficient reason that the most of us are not capable of maing a bargain individually, and the chief reason is that collective bargaining is more forceful, for in union there is strength. It should not require much intelligence to understand this.

The splendid fight put up by No. 17 has done more to prevent a reduction in wages than anything else, and why anyone could object to donate a small amount weely in suport of this struggle is beyond me to comprehend.

May success be with us for ever more.—Columbus Correspondent.

STILL INTIMIDATING POSTAL EMPLOYES.

The Postoffice Department has made a significant move in again posting an order that employes are prohibited from belonging to secret organizations within the service. This same order was issued last March. At that time it was supposed to be aimed at a new organization of the railway mail clerks, which was alleged to be exacting obligations inconsistent with the obligations to the government taken by those who enter the postoffice service.

Without entering into the merits of the original order, which we believe were open to question, we can see that it, at this time is a move on the part of the administration to discourage the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, which is affiliated with organized labor.

This organization has no secret ritual or obligations. It is a straightforward labor organization, having for its sole purpose the preservation and advancement of the interests of the postal clerks. It is not interested in the game of politics as it is played by the politicians. It is not interested in the perpetuation of the particular administration that has the appointing power at a given time. In other words, it is not a club of political henchmen and officeholders.

That is why it meets with a cool reception from President Taft and his cabinet. There is another organization, known as the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks, which is more to the liking of Taft and his henchmen, for the reason that the latter are permitted to direct its policy. The sin of the National Federation, in the eyes of the politicians, is that it attends strictly to the interests and welfare of the employes. They look upon it as "secret" because they are not invited into its councils, to intimidate and influence its members to back them up in the slimy game of politics.

PRINTERS' HEALTH.

The volume containing the reports of the officers of the International Typographical union for the fiscal year ending with May, 1911, is now in circulation.

The International Typographical Union has for years conducted a health campaign from its international headquarters, and working through local committees. In his report this year President Lynch has this to say as to the progress of the campaign:

Your president has continued the agitation during the past year for better sanitary conditions in the workrooms where our members are compelled to labor. We have also continued the distribution of the tuberculosis pamphlet. As to sanitation and other workroom conditions, our local unions should continue to give these subjects attention. With the movement against filthy and non-ventilated composing rooms there will be entire sympathy on the part of the general public and no employer can afford to resist the demand for a change in working conditions that will guarantee health and comfort. As a matter of fact, well-ventilated and scientifically arranged composing rooms are as good an investment as is the latest improvement in type-setting machinery, or the newest and most up-to-date faces in type. The worker who is in good health and who is working amid pleasant surroundings is the best kind of a worker, for both mentally and physically he is equipped to produce the best that his art knows. Good printing means additional patronage for the printing office, and to a very extent good printing requires artistic typesetting.

All of our local unions should have health committees, and these committees should be untiring in their efforts to improve sanitary conditions and other features in composing rooms requiring betterment. Whenever a condition exists that requires improvement on request of the health committee then the bad condition should be called to the attention of the local board of health, and if the local board of health refuses to act, agitation should be started through the central body, through pamphlets circulated liberally, and through the withdrawal of our members from employment in the composing room of the offending proprietor, if this last radical step is an absolute necessity.

As we have repeatedly asserted, a higher wage scale is of no benefit to a member if the conditions under which he works make for the propagation of disease and early death. The family might better retain the provider and protector under a low wage scale than enjoy the fruits of a high wage scale for only a limited period, and then when husband and father is removed become objects of the charity of the public, or of the union, or of fraternal societies.

President Lynch also touches on the great white plague, and says that:

Scientific research has proven that there is no known medicine that will cure consumption, and that it is a waste of time and money to use so-called "consumption cures." All advertised cures of this nature are frauds. Doctors who advertise should be avoided as much as medicines which are advertised. Reputable doctors do not advertise. When a person learns that he has consumption he should go at once to a physician or dispensary and do as he is advised. He should not waste time and money on patent medicines. Advertised cures and advertising doctors are all worthless. This is the advice given by one of the most eminent physicians. Over $15,000,000 annually is poured into the coffers of those who exploit and advertise fake consumption cures, according to the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis; and for this vast sum the victims receive nothing in return, but are often permanently injured, and, in the majority of cases, cheated out of the chance for a real cure. Sanitary workrooms and an abundance of fresh air at all times are the best preventives. These admonitions are being constantly proclaimed by the International Typographical Union through its traveling tuberculosis exhibit, its sanatorium at the Union Printers Home, and by the annual distribution of thousands of pieces of literature.

The Christmas Tree.

By Annie Minturn.

"It looks kind o' inviting." The words were half a question, and the frail little woman who spoke them, drew the thin shawl closer about her shoulders as she spoke, and looked up at the man near her. He did not turn his head, but still leaning with his elbows on the iron railing of the bridge and looking down into the water, answered the question. "Yes, it looks inviting, rather a grewsome invitation, but an invitation all right. Are you going to accept?"

"Are you?" the woman gasped, and turning she looked upon him in amazement. Were rich people ever unhappy, she wondered? Did they too ever want to drown themselves? Would she if she had a coat like this man wore? It came clear to ground and was of such beautiful fur. She looked at it greedily. How warm it must be. Her fingers quivered to stroke its comfortable softness. Then she remembered he had asked her a question. "Oh, no; I'm not going to accept," she faltered, "that is unless I fail. 'It's cowardly," she went on, "to even think of doing such a thing, but you're just driven to it sometimes. I've thought of it all day today. Now, the people over there," and she pointed beyond to the prison that rose tall and gloomy from the opposite bank of the river, "I don't suppose they ever think about such a thing, because they have enough to eat, and a warm place to stay; and then, they get used to being prisoners, they don't mind that part. Sometimes I think they do things just on purpose. But when you haven't got enough to eat, and when you're cold, and want to buy a Christmas tree, and can't; then somehow, you begin to think about the water. At first when it comes to you, you catch your breath and think how wicked you are, and maybe you sing a hymn. I did. It was 'At the Cross,' you've heard it, the Salvation Army sings it. Well, I sang every verse of that through and it helped a little. Then bye and bye the thought came back, and this time it stayed with me longer, and it didn't seem so terrible. Somehow I could think of just laying still down there on the top of that water and floating away so easy, away,—away,—Oh, I don't know where to, nor don't care, any place so just I wasn't cold and hungry, and didn't have to get a tree and couldn't. And here I am on the bridge looking over into that very water I've been thinking about. But I'm not going to do it,—not unless I fail. And don't you do it either. There'll be some way, whatever your trouble is. But I must go." She turned towards the lights beyond. The Christmas trees were in another part of the city, over near the market place. She had seen a row of them a square in length stacked higher than her head. She might be able to beg one, or maybe she would steal.

"Wait a minute;" that man stood up and faced her. "What do you want with a Christmas tree?"

"Oh, I thought I told you who I wanted the tree for," she answered. "It's for Joie, my boy. He's seven years old, and he's an invalid,—his spine. Poor little fellow, he don't often ask for anything, but this year he wants a tree. Nothing on it, you know, just the plain tree, and he's begging for it all the time. Now there's something funny about him wanting a Christmas tree. I've just reasoned the whole thing out. You see he was born here right after his father and me come from Canada. Then his father died, seven years ago yesterday. But up in Canada, my, how I used to love the pine trees. Why, some days I'd walk in the snow for miles, just breathing that fresh, sweet, piney smell. And I loved the sight of them, too! they're so tall and so straight and green, and there's no withering and falling off of leaves about them. Well, do you know, I believe Joie has just got his love of them from me. But he never had a Christmas tree in all his life. Mercy, when I think of the thousands and thousands of them back up in Canada, and here I can't get one little bit o' one. But, I'm going to somehow." She looked over the bridge down into the black water, and then shook her head. "I've never failed when I set about a thing in dead earnest," she said, "and I'm not going to in this. I told Tillie Ann used to work with me in the Joie and her would have a tree tomorrow. Tillie Ann's the girl that stays with Joie. I just can't leave him alone. Tillie Ann used to work with me in the same factory, but she got her hand cut off. She can read and she don't let Joie get lonesome. She's awful good, and I pay her what I can. But I must go."

An ochre cloud parted in the sky and the moonlight fell softly on the water; a beam of it caught and glinted on the diamond the man wore. He saw it and turned the stone underneath his finger with an impatient movement. Then he knew why. He remembered a Christmas tree in his own home when he was a boy. At its very topmost bough there had glittered a diamond tiara, his father's gift to his mother. That was so long ago, yet, strangely enough, then as now, the moonbeams, glinting through the windows on those diamonds, had awakened a consciency within him. He had that night questioned his father if it were right to have so much when others had so little. From that hour his father had taken him under his special care, and so wisely did he guided his every thought and movement, that the awakened conscience had slumbered within him for over half a century. Success in business had been his; success beyond his wildest dreams. The father had been proud of the son. He had died with a blessing for him on his lips. His power for accumulating wealth had been colossal. And now he reckoned the cost of his success. It had come to him through the heart-breaks of toiling women like this one who stood before him; through the loss of hands of others; through the wretchedness of cold; the misery of hunger. This he had always known, and day by day its bitter knowledge had eaten into his soul. It was driving him mad,—yet, he could not turn back, and so, on this Christmas eve, he had come down to the water,—and for what? He shivered and drew his great coat tight.

"Come," he commanded, and his voice was tender and so full of sorrow; "we'll not accept the invitation tonight, I am going to see where you live, for tomorrow I will want to bring Joie and Tillie Ann and you a Christmas tree."

La Monte Answers Hillquit.

Comrade Editor: In a letter in the Milwaukee Social-Democratic Herald for November 25, one of the members of our National Executive Committee, who is also our senior representative on the International Socialist Bureau, Comrade Morris Hillquit rebukes paternally our comrades, Frank Bohn and William H. Haywood for what may or may not be an indiscrete passage in their booklet, "Industrial Socialism."

The passage which Comrade Hillquit fails foul of is one in which it is pointed out that a knowledge by the worker of the economic origin and foundation of existing capitalist law and morality frees the worker of respect for law as such. When the worker once understands this, Comrades Bohn and Haywood tell us, "he retains absolutely no respect for the property 'rights' of the profit takers. He will use any weapon which will win his fight. He knows that the present laws of propriety are made by and for the capitalists. Therefore he does not hesitate to break them." This last sentence may be unfortunately ambiguous for a propaganda pamphlet. Still one would think it fairly obvious even to the mind handicapped by the sophistry of a legal training that the authors did not intend to recommend the cultivation of the habits of petit larceny and brigandage.

Commenting on the passage quoted above, Comrade Hillquit says:

"This is good anarchist doctrine, but is diametrically opposed to the accepted policies of Socialism and is not even a remote cousin to the theory of economic determinism. Socialists do not advocate or countenance law-breaking or the use of 'any' weapons in the working class struggles, political or industrial. We maintain that modern law is, in the main, class law, capitalist law made to enslave the workers, and we urge a complete change of the juridical system along the lines of the Socialist program. But we advocate the introduction of such change by the regular and lawful methods established for that purpose. Consistency, thou are a jewel! Our present laws are class laws, capitalist laws made to enslave the workers," and yet these same laws have established lawful and regular methods for the purpose of overthrowing class rule!

Comrade Hillquit continues his eloquent inculcation of the Tolstoian gospel of non-resistance as follows: "To preach to the workers law-breaking and violence is ethically unjustifiable and tactically suicidal. The laws of political democracies in the last analysis always represent the will of the majority of the people. They may be conceived in ignorance or procured by fraud or purchase, but in that case they exist only because the majority of the people and voters are so indifferent, ignorant or corrupt as to sanction them or at least acquiesce in them. The remedy of the minority aggrieved by the law, is to convert their fellow citizens to their own views—to turn their minority into a majority, and thus to get possession of the legislative machinery for the interests and policies represented by them. Whenever we will (how difficult the correct use of 'will' and 'shall' is even for the educated foreigner, obtain control of the legislative machinery of the government, we will exact obedience to our laws, working class laws, upon precisely the same grounds upon which we now yield obedience to the capitalist laws."

Quite correct, Comrade Hillquit, "upon precisely the same grounds," and those grounds in both cases are simply recognition of MIGHT, not at all respect for RIGHT. The capitalists will obey our laws, not because they will respect them as moral and righteous precepts, but because they will respect them as the POWER to enforce them. Today we obey the capitalist laws, not because we have left a shred of respect for them, but simply because we know by sad experience that back of those capitalist laws are capitalist judges, jails and troops. We yield to MIGHT, not RIGHT.

Comrade Hillquit continues his exhortation to passive, law-abiding obedience and submission to our betters, thus: "This has been the established policy of the International Socialist movement since its inception, and with it the movement has grown strong and powerful."

This will be news to our valiant German Comrades, who only kept their movement alive during the trying days of the Socialist exception law by the systematic evasion or violation of that law. That grand old Socialist hero, Wilhelm Liebknecht, spent half of his Socialist life in jail for breaking the capitalist laws of Germany. What a pity he did not have Comrade Hillquit there to tell him that a policy of breaking the law, has invariably served to demoralize and destroy the movement, by attracting to it professional criminals, infesting it with spies, leading the workers to needless and senseless slaughter, and ultimately engendering a spirit of disgust and reaction. If poor old Liebknecht had only known this, he might have kept out of jail all his days and died in the odour of sanctity. But fortunately for us neither Liebknecht nor any of the other Titian prisoners of the conquering proletarian Socialist movement knew that complacent respect for bourgeois law was one of the cardinal principles of Socialism. This comfortable and revolutionary discovery was left for the Superman who reigns supreme in that smugly respectable Olympus, the Rand school!

The Czar and the Royal Court at St. Petersburg have no honors too exalted for our Comrade Hillquit, if he will but convince his comrades in his native Russia of the duty of passive obedience to the laws of "The Little Father." For if is only determined resistance to law that the Socialist Movement exists in Russia.

We are glad to have Comrade Hillquit's assurance that his letter was "not written for the more pleasure of criticising," and we have no doubt it is a mere coincidence that the two comrades criticised are just now looming up as very formidable candidates for positions on the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party.

We have reason to know that Comrade Hillquit is entirely right when he tells us: "There are numbers of capitalist agencies in this country steadily and closely watching the utterances of our party as well as those of its writers and speakers. Any indiscreet remark or expression is sure to be quoted against us forever and ever."

Assuming that Comrade Hillquit is correct in his startling discovery that Non-Resistance is a cardinal Socialist doctrine, we cannot quarrel with his conclusion: "If comrades of the prominence of William D. Haywood and Frank Bohn publicly proclaim a doctrine so indefensible and so much at variance with the accepted Socialist position, it should be disavowed in our party press, promptly and emphatically."

But it appears there is a limit to the patience and submissiveness of this Apostle of Passive Obedience. There is one thing that will rouse him to the fighting point, and that is the threat to rob him of the spoils of political office. On this subject his remarks are quite shockingly incendiary, though we do not doubt they are entirely sincere. Where is the comrade who will not shudder and grow pale at the picture conjured up by these thrilling words: "It is not impossible that before we reach the final stage an attempt will be made by the ruling classes to frustrate our victory by force, as for instance, by attempting to steal a decisive election or preventing our elected representatives from taking office. In that case we will fight like tigers and mount the barricades, if need be." I fear the horrid picture of Comrade Morris fighting like a tiger perched upon the top of a barricade will disturb my slumbers for many a month to come. Let us hope he will not go to such dreadful extremes even to retain control of the National Executive Committee.

As a matter of hard fact barricade fighting in the streets is as much of a back-number as would be using stone hatchets against machine guns on a modern battle-field. Since the Paris Commune every Socialist writer from Marx and Engels down to Hunter and Spargo, have acknowledged that henceforth the workers had everything to lose and nothing to gain by street riots and physical violence. The capitalists have the guns and the forts and all the horrid mechanism of war on their side, and to incite the workers to resort to street riots and barricades for any cause whatsoever is but to lead them into the shambles to be massacred by the military. Hillquit may have forgotten, but the majority of his countrymen have not forgotten the fate of the poor monjiks who followed Father Gapon on Bloody Sunday in 1905. They were left weltering in their blood before the palace of the "Little Father." The same fate awaits the American workers who heed Comrade Hillquit and attempt to capture the seating of elected Socialist officials by riots and barricades. There was a time when I honestly looked upon Comrade Hillquit as a sort of Moses whose mission it was to lead the American workers up and out of the land of bondage. How sad it is that he should apparently prefer the role of a Father Gapon!

Hillquit's letter was not written for pleasure, he tells us. Like his creator Hillquit loveth whom he chasteneth. He appears to have been actuated by a stern sense of duty such as drove Comrade Hunter to introduce his resolution to punish the Kerr Company for publishing revolutionary literature. Their responsiveness to duty's call seems to have been stimulated by the growing probability that both Bohn and Haywood will be elected by overwhelming majorities to the National Executive Committee. As long as the Kerr Company maintains that predominance in the Socialist publishing business that Comrade Hunter so deplores there is no danger of the great mass of the comrades being misled by Comrade Hillquit's incendiary incitations to riots and violence. I greatly fear that, if Comrade Hillquit wants to barricade to do the tiger act on he will have to build it himself; for thanks to the literature put out by the Kerr Company the rank and file of the Socialist party are far too intelligent to be misled by an American Father Gapon.

Unlike Comrade Hillquit I will not profess to have been actuated solely by a sense of duty in writing this letter. On the contrary I have thoroughly enjoyed writing it. For it is a pleasure to defend such true comrades as BOHN and BILL HAYWOOD.

But I have also been doing a duty, for it is true, as Hillquit tells us, that "there are numbers of capitalist agencies in this country steadily and closely watching the utterance of our party as well as those of its writers and speakers. Any indiscreet remark or expression is sure to be quoted against us forever and ever." And if a comrade and party official of the prominence of Morris Hillquit publicly proclaims himself in favor of tactics so indefensible, so obsolete, and so unanimously repudiated by the Socialist Parties of the world, and so obviously suicidal for the workers as riots and street barricades, it should be disavowed in our party press promptly and emphatically. And if this does not prove sufficient to bring the offender to his senses, the right of Recall should be invoked to remove him from his official positions in the party.

As a matter of fact Bohn, Haywood and Hillquit are all good comrades. No doubt the former two were somewhat indiscreet in the passage to which Hillquit objected. We are all indiscreet at times. But the indiscretion of Bohn and Haywood was as nothing compared to the indiscretions into which Hillquit fell in attempting to castigate his erring brethern.

Yours for the Revolution,
Robert Rives La Monte.

ELECTION IS CONTESTED

Socialists Declare Trumbull Was Chosen Illegally.

Canton, Dec. 4.—Counsel for Harry Schilling, Socialist candidate for mayor, who was defeated in casting lots for the office after a tie vote with Mayor Turnbull, today filed a petition contesting the election of Turnbull. Action was begun in common pleas court. Effort will be made to get an early hearing, as the term of the mayor begins Jan. 1.

The petitioners allege that 10 or more illegal votes were cast for Turnbull. They cite instances. They also allege that the law under which the tie vote of Schilling and Turnbull was decided by lot is not constitutional.

THE SOCIALISM OF FRANCES WILLARD

The sweetest, truest voice that ever advocated any cause—a voice almost divine—which plead most persuasively of all for the enforcement of women's rights, plead equally for the establishment of Socialism—the voice of Miss Frances Willard. Here is her plea:

"Look about you, the products of labor are on every hand; you could not maintain for a moment a well ordered life without them; every object in your room has in it, for discerning eyes, the mark of ingenious tools and the pressure of labor's hands.

"But is it not the cruelest injustice for the wealthy, whose lives are surrounded and embellished by labor's work, to have a superabundance while the laborer himself is kept so steadily at work that he has no time to acquire the education and refinements of life that would make him and his family agreeable companions to the rich and cultured? The reason why I am a Socialist is just here.

"I would take, not by force, but by the slow process of lawful acquisition, through better legislation as the outcome of a wiser ballot in the hands of men and women, the entire plant that we call civilization, all that has been achieved on this continent in the four hundred years since Columbus wended his way hither and make it the common property of all the people, requiring all to work enough with their hands to give them the finest physical development, but not to become burdensome in any case, and permitting all to share alike the advantages of education and refinement. I believe this to be perfectly practical; indeed, that any other method is merely a relic of barbarism.

"I believe that competition is doomed. The trust, whose single object is to abolish competition, having proved that we are better without it than with it, the moment corporations control the supply of any product they combine. What the Socialists desire is that the corporation of humanity should control all production. Beloved comrades, this is the frictionless way; it is the higher way; it eliminates the motives for a selfish life; it enacts into our every day life the ethics of Christ's gospel. Nothing else will do it; nothing else can bring the glad day of universal brotherhood.

"Oh, that I were young again, Socialism would have my life!—it is God's way out of the wilderness and into the promised land. It is the very meat and marrow of Christ's gospel. It is Christianity applied."

"Woman has always and everywhere stood on an equality with man in the Socialist movement.

One of the greatest books of the vast vital literature of Socialism, which is read as gospel by Socialists the world over, is August Bebel's "Woman Under Socialism."

Here is a paragraph which strikes the keynote of the deepest spirit of Socialism:

"Woman has the same right as man to unfold her faculties and to the free exercise of the same; she is human as well as he; like him she should be free to dispose herself as her own master. The accident of being born a woman, makes no difference. To exclude woman from equality on the ground that she was born female and not male—an accident for which man is as little responsible as she—is as inequitable as would be to make rights and privileges dependent upon the accident of religion or political bias; and as senseless as that two human beings must look upon each other as enemies on the ground that the accident of birth makes them of different stock and nationality. Such views are unworthy of a truly free being. The progress of humanity lies in removing everything that holds one being, one class, one sex, in dependence and its subjection to another. No inequality is justified other than that which nature itself establishes in the difference between one individual and another, and for the fulfillment of the purposes of nature."

COMRADESHIP

The True Spirit as Shown by Comrades in Time of Need.

During one of those cold days a few weeks ago an elderly woman, with hair well sprinkled with gray, appeared in the T. & O. C. Railroad yards carrying a large basket and two bundles. From all appearances she had came quite a distance. The strong wind had blown the paper covering loose from the top of the basket, revealing its contents of wearing apparel. Stopping at the shanty of the switch tender she inquired if that road passed through Marysville. Being told it did and that a train was due in half an hour, she replied she was going to walk, as she had no money. The comrade who had charge of the shanty was in exactly the same predicament. The poor woman who had given to society the best years of her life, that she might live enjoying the comforts of those who had been a help to society, was compelled to start on this long, weary journey, with no assurance of reaching her destination. Just at this moment the crew on the yard engine appeared and upon being told of the incident, put their big honest hands into their pockets, made up a purse, purchased a ticket, and helped this poor woman to the train. After profusely thanking the comrades she was bid a safe journey. Think of this. Think hard, such occurrences happening in a so-called land of freedom, and the home of the brave. Civilization. Bah! What hypocrisy. A nation of hypocrites. This good woman in old age forced by this corrupt system of government to be an object of charity, when under a sane government she would be living a life of comfort and ease. How would you men, especially those who are voting to uphold this system, feel if your mother was to be placed in this condition? Conditions are rapidly approaching the time when we must awaken to our true conditions and by the use of the ballot institute a government of all the people, by all the people, instead of as now, a government owned and operated by a few money kings with headquarters in Wall street. The Wall Street Journal of November 18th, says: "The Union Pacific Railroad has a surplus on hand of $186,914,931, with an income for the year ending June 30, 1911, of $15,988,211. Who produced this wealth? The workers of the world produced every cent of it. They, the Masters, enjoy all the luxuries, without producing any part of it. But the workers suffer even the absolute necessities of life, misery and want on all sides. Don't allow prejudice to enter your minds. Don't allow these tools of the Masters to think for you. Don't allow some intellectual prostitute to assail the party that belongs to you; the only party that has a principle and advocates freedom from wage-slavery. A slavery worse than that endured by our colored brothers. Stand up like men and defend your class. Think of John Brown, Parsons, Ferrer, Lovejoy, Garrison, Lincoln and a score of others who gave their lives for the cause of freedom and justice. Think of the thousands of heroes of industrial battles whom we will never hear mentioned. We would be cringing cowards, every last one of us, were we to permit such a rotten system to continue and not raise our voice in protest, realizing those before us had suffered death rather than sacrifice their principle. Workingmen, we have the power and by the peaceful means of the ballot we can come into our own. Think of your children and those of other generations to come. Do you want them to suffer the oppression you have been forced to suffer? All unite and with the industrial organization combined with the political organization, nothing can prevent the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth.

INDIANA STATE NEWS

James Oneal, State Secretary, 309 1-2 Ohio Street, Terre Haute.

Each of the past three months have set a record for the payment of dues in the State and November exceeds them all. The dues paid are over $500 and the membership now exceeds three thousand. In all parts of the State the comrades are active and the Locals show a healthy growth.

Grant County has formed one of the largest County Organizations in the State. The officers are John W. Kelly, chairman; E. G. Haifley, secretary; Bert Sutton, financial secretary; O. S Dudgeon, literature agent; S. S. Condo, organizer.

Socialists at Yorktown and Gaston in Delaware County expect to have Locals soon. The former town expects to start with over forty members. The comrades at Muncie will help them to get in line.

The Socialists at Guilford in Dearborn County are anxious to have a Local and instructions have been sent on how to do it. Aurora and Lawrenceburg in the same county also expect to organize and one or two more Locals will give them the basis for a good county organization.

Still another town anxious to get into the Socialist column is Bourbon in Marshall County. The thriving Local at Argos in the same county must have woke up the Bourbon comrades who have been inactive for years.

The comrades at Muncie are anxious to organize the county and as an aid in that direction the Appeal list of readers in their county has been sent them. This county also has excellent prospects for a good county organization.

Local Princeton reports a large increase in interest following the large O'Hare meeting and the prospects in that section were never better.

Indiana will hold one of the first State conventions of the National campaign, the date being set for the last Saturday in January. Special mileage stamps have been mailed to all Locals and the latter should see that every member has a chance to buy one as the funds go to pay the railroad fare of delegates to the State convention.

Local LaPorte is holding some excellent propaganda meetings. Comrade Branstetter was secured for one lecture and the collections were $17 and literature sales $4.50. The Republican organ gave more than a column to the lecture. Local LaPorte is always careful to get propaganda matter in the local papars.

Socialists in unorganized parts of the State who would like to have assistance in the way of a speaker or for organizing work should write to the State secretary. Scarcely a week passes but three or four letters of inquiry are received. Every town or locality that has five or more avowed Socialists should have a Local and join with the other Socialists of the State in conducting a great campaign next year.

The next Monthly Bulletin issued by the State office will show immense gains in membership and income and general activity of the Locals. Unattached Socialists can get a copy by sending a postal to the State secretary.

NATIONAL SOCIALIST HEADQUARTERS

The National Committee is now voting on a motion that when a referendum over a controversy is pending the membership of the state or states refusing to comply with the request of the duly accredited representatives of all factions for and against the motion for a list of local secretaries and ward branches shall have no vote on said referendum.

The National Committee is also voting on a motion that the National Secretary be instructed to replace the name of the Christian Socialists on the list of Socialist papers published from month to month in the Monthly Bulletin.

The National Committee is also voting on a request by the National Executive Committee that the National Committee elect a committee of three to investigate the Chas. H. Kerr Co. and report the facts.

The National Executive Committee has adopted a motion to request the National Committee to elect a committee of three to investigate the Chas. H. Kerr Co. and report the facts.

The National Executive Committee has also adopted a motion to reappoint Louis Kopelin as National Correspondent for the Socialist press in Washington for the coming session of Congress.

OHIO STATE SOCIALIST CLUB IN MOTION

Professor Gephart, of the Department of Economics at Ohio State, read a paper Sunday, Dec. 11, before the University Socialist Club, on "The Attitude of the Economists Toward Socialism." Mr. Gephart granted that Socialism was a very high ideal but doubted if it would work out. Competition, he held, was necessary to spur economic forces to act. President Barlow at the conclusion of the lecture announced the meeting open to questions. The question of surplus value was brought up but Mr. Gephart did not attempt to refute it. He scored some of the opponents of Socialism who did not understand it and made false objections on this basis. In Mr. Gepharts opinion John Spargo is not a typical Socialist because he makes Socialism appear so feasible that any Democrat or Republican who would read his work could not help agreeing.

Laughed Too Soon.

Young Richleigh's father allowed him to take a trip to Europe. Before starting the youth made up a cable code of his own for possible use while abroad and handed a copy to his father, who locked it up in his desk without looking at it. A month later the elder Richleigh received a cable consisting of one word, "Laugh." He laughed. It seemed to be something quite pleasant. His code was at the house. He went up there in the best of humor. He got out the code and read, "Laugh—Send me $500."

A THOUSAND SOCIALISTS IN OFFICE

There Are Now Considerably More Than 300 Socialist Aldermen and 50 Socialist Mayors.

According to figures furnished by Prof. Robert F. Hoxie, of the University of Chicago, 118 cities, villages and townships have already reported Socialist victories as the result of this fall's elections, and the reports are still coming in.

A conservative estimate places the number of Socialists elected in these communities at more than 600.

This brings the total of Socialists holding offices in the United States above the 1,000 mark, with the probability that this figure will be exceeded when all the returns are in. In the recent elections the Socialists scored successes in seventeen states and added two new states to the Socialist column, making the total thirty-six.

As the result of the voting this fall twenty-five new Socialist mayors and more than 150 aldermen will take office.

It may be safely assumed that the new year will be more than fifty Socialist mayors and more than 300 aldermen pushing forward working class measures in American municipalities, while the Socialists will be represented in seven state legislatures.

As the result of the recent elections, the leadership, so far as "socialized" communities are concerned, passes from Wisconsin to Pennsylvania, forty-five communities in that state now have Socialist office holders, as against twenty-two in Wisconsin. Ohio also far outstrips the western states if all claims prove up, forty places now having Socialist office holders.

A notable feature of the results this fall is the relatively large size of the cities which elected Socialist officials.

Five have over 100,000 population, twelve have the 50,000 mark, twentyfive count more than 20,000, while forty-six are cities of over 5,000 inhabitants.

THEY THINK! THEY COME! THEY SEE!

This is what happened last Sunday night. When the meeting was called to order nearly every seat in the hall was taken. Many new members enrolled and we had some fun, too. Yes, some of us even came to see a show. Some came to see what we looked like. Somebody was surprised. Most people were proud of it. Everybody had something to say about it and we all listened to it. I tell you, it will be lots of fun for you to come up this Sunday night to the Socialist Dramatic Club at 335 1-2 South High street, 7:30 p. m. There will be big doings, so be there for sure.

COLUMBUS FEDERATION OF LABOR

The Columbus Federation of Labor Monday night received and filed the Gompers report on the McNamara case in which it explained labor's defense of the McNamara brothers.

A resolution was adopted by the federation giving moral support to members of the White Rat Vaudeville Actors' association, meaning that the central labor body favors attendance at theaters where union men perform.

Resolutions were also adopted voting $5 to the striking button workers in Muscatine, Ia.; requesting Ohio's United States senators and representatives to vote against the Smoot printing bill, which would abolish the hand-rolling process in making paper money and recommended passage by congress of the Esch bill which would prohibit the use of phosphorus in the manufacture of matches. At the next meeting of the federation, January 8, new officers will be nominated.

You Can't Guess about Your Clothes

The man who gives little care to his clothes selection—who just guesses that the style is correct and the tailoring good—is never a well dressed man.

The latter is one who takes the time to be sure of his clothes—who knows how they are made and of what materials—and whose appearance is consequently an asset instead of a liability

Men of fashion everywhere look here for style assurance—and for every other quality that goes to make clothes good.

Dave Goldstein Is Coming to Demolish Socialism

The Great and Only Will Speak in Columbus Sunday Evening, Dec. 31.—Everybody Should Hear Him.—He Always Helps our Cause.

The Traitor to His Race, His Union and His Class Will Tell All That He Don't Know.—Welcome! Thrice Welcome to Our Fair City!

He is coming!

We have waited many weary weeks for him.

He will speak Sunday evening, December 31, 1911, at the Chamber of Commerce.

If he had only blown in before the recent election, the Socialists would have swept the city.

Welcome, David, thrice welcome to our fair city! We have longed for your arrival. A committee of fifteen Socialists are preparing questions for you to answer.

We are afraid, however, that David will disappoint us. He dodges questions and poses as a martyr.

We desire to warn all Socialists, who attend Goldstein's lecture, that they should leave their daggers, dynamite and other destructive weapons at home.

We must dress in our best clothes, if we have any, and behave like real, respectable citizens.

We must not disturb the meetin'. Just let David go the limit. His harangues always react in our favor. Keep cool, dear comrades.

David Goldstein is a Jew who embraced the Catholic faith some years ago. He is occasionally employed by August Belmont and other millionaires of the Civic Federation to lecture against Socialism. These millionaires, of course, engage in this crusade because of their love for the workers. When not employed by these "patriots," Goldstein takes up the same work under the auspices of the Catholic Church. His address is a stereotyped one, that is delivered, word for word, everywhere he goes.

He challenges the Socialist party to repudiate the doctrine of "free love," and to repudiate two books, namely, Engel's "Origin of the Family," and Bebel's "Woman in the Past, Present, and Future," holding that these books give official expression to the belief in "free love," and that we Socialists are supposed to endorse them. Mr. Goldstein relies on the ignorance of his audience to carry conviction of the truth of his assertions. The facts are that Engel's book is merely a summary of an American book by an American author, Lewis H. Morgan. The work is entitled "Ancient Society," and was long ago accepted in the scientific world as one of the few great contributions to the knowledge of prehistoric man that Americans have given to the world. Morgan was not a Socialist, but his researches into the ancient institutions of mankind are generally accepted by Socialists and scientific men. In brief, Morgan shows how the family, property, and government grew out of the loose relations of savagery and barbarism into the institutions of civilization as we know them.

Bebel's book is of a similar character, but devoted mainly to the historical development of woman's servitude to man, and drawing certain conclusions continually misrepresent. Bebel, contrary to the charges of Goldstein, accepts the monogamic marriage as the highest type of family life and woman and woman, but insists that further evolution, while not destroying it, will finally remove the interference of state and church in sanctioning marriage as a legal contract. Goldstein and his ilk read into this a return to the loose relations of savagery out of which the whole human race has developed.

Goldstein has no excuse for his deliberate falsification, for Bebel plainly states in the preface to his work, that the views he advances are distinctly his own, and, furthermore, that he is well aware that unscrupulous enemies will distort his statements and charge him with holding views he does not favor. Bebel anticipated the tribe of Goldsteins in writing his preface.

Now who is Goldstein, that he should lie about men and women who have husbands, or wives, daughters or sweethearts, whom they love as well as the most orthodox? It is a strange fact that the man Goldstein, who now tries to traduce Socialists, has a shady career behind him that will not bear close scrutiny. Once a member of the Socialist Party of Boston, he formed the acquaintance of an "affinity" and their relations were such as to fill the Socialists with disgust. Both had been frequently selected as speakers for the party on numerous occasions, but the organization quietly refused to give them places on our platform as soon as this situation became generally known. Their day of prominence and publicity in the movement was past. They could no longer pose in the limelight, and in a short time they were out of the party. They later turned up as members of the Catholic Church and as virtuous defenders of the "family" and ardent antagonists of "free love."

Before leaving the party they made all the trouble they could. Goldstein turned up at the Massachusetts state convention in 1908 and introduced an amendment to the constitution to prohibit Socialists from advocating "free love' and anarchism. To adopt the amendment would have been an admission that our speakers had advocated such things in the past, and now proposed to prohibit it. It was a trick of the politician, and the convention voted it down. Immediately the Massachusetts papers reported that we had refused to condemn these doctrines!

The incident was like that on one debater who asked of another: "Have you quit beating your wife yet?" To answer "yes," would have been to admit guilt in the past; to answer "no," would have been to admit guilt in the present.

Goldstein met with such warm opposition that he was finally forced to take the floor in favor of a substitute resolution, which disclaimed any attempt to regulate the private views of members regarding religion, a subject which was also introduced in Goldstein's amendment. Speaking of his amendment he said: "That was only a clause in the constitution, and the body saw fit not to adopt it; by not adopting it, they did not say that they sanctioned free love, or that they believed in violence; but they did not say by rejecting it that they believed in attacking the church. No; all the body said by rejecting that was that they think it is inadmissable to place such a thing in the constitution."

The "Indiana Catholic" reports that Goldstein completely routed the Socialists in his Indianapolis meeting. Goldstein "routs" them in a fashion all his own. Instead of allowing questions to be asked by the audience, he has them write questions on paper. The slips are carried up to the speaker. He distorts them as he pleases, and those that are hard to answer are cast aside with the statement that "this is a reflection on the Church." What a contrast with the open platform and free discussion of Socialist meetings!

After all, the fair-minded Catholics are left puzzled by these impostors. They are told that Socialists favor free love. They find among their acquaintances men and women who are Socialists. They inquire as to the personal lives these Socialists live, and discover that they are sound and clean. In fact, it is seldom that they are dragged through the mire of the divorce court. The divorce court is generally an institution to release mismated Republican and Democrats. Finding no trace of the loose relations Socialists are charged with, the Catholic workingmen are mystified. Facts are the most stubborn things in the world, and the facts are in plain contradiction to the charges of Goldstein and other professional Socialist antagonists.

The final result is that the fair-minded Catholic investigates for himself, reads Socialist literature, comes in contact with warm-blooded fellowmen and women, and discovers that the Socialist's crime consists of a desire to see the day when work will cease to be drudgery and become a pleasant art; when the money incentice will no longer play a part in the marriage relation; when the poor girl, because of her poverty, and the heiress because of her vanity, will no longer sell their bodies, the first in installments and the second for life; when children will cease to be deprived of childhood in factories and sweatshops; when workingmen will have the wealth they produce; where cheap impostors will no longer find a market for their lies and no reward for peddling slander; when all men, regardless of their religious beliefs, will co-operate in producing the world's wealth and learn how to distribute it without doing injustice to the humblest child living.

ROSS' STAND SURPRISES WEST SIDE COUNCILMEN.

Opposes Park Appropriations, Claiming That Section Has Been Favored Too Much.

There was consternation among the West Side councilmen, when Councilman Ross opposed the appropriation of 22 lots for an addition to Glenwood park, at a meeting of the plats and engineering committee Friday night. Ross said he favored small parks in thickly populated districts, but the West Side has more than its share now. "It has received four times as much money for improvements during the last four years as any other section of the city. What do you want? All the money in the city treasury? We don't need another park on the Hilltop."

BEANS AND RICE IN FOURTEENTH WARD

A banquet of rice and beans will be served at Evans' Hall, corner Third and Michigan avenues, Thursday evening, January 4th, 1912.

The banquet is the result of a recent contest held in the Fourteenth Ward Branch, the object of which was to obtain subscriptions to The Socialist, and new members to the organization.

The terms of the contest are that the portion of the membership who obtained the largest number of applications and subscriptions are to be served at the expense of the remainder of the Fourteenth Ward comrades, who were not so fortunate.

All other comrades or friends wishing to participate will be served at ten cents per plate. Everybody invited.

Come and have a good time with us.

E. RAYMOND LAWRENCE,
Recording Secretary.

DRAMATIC CLUB.

The Socialist Dramatic Club which hold its meeting every Sunday night at the Munich hall, had a very successful and interesting meeting last Sunday evening, in which they elected officers and transacted other business, that was necessary, and after that the rest of the evening was spent in entertaining. Little Miss Florence Seaman sang a song for her part, and was compelled to respond to encore. Comrades Kinnear and Radebaugh furnished the humor for the evening with funny stories and jokes. Master Sands sang a funny little song. He also had to respond to the applause. Later refreshments were served.

Come and join and have a good time, admission is free. 7:30 P. M. every Sunday evening, 7:30 P. M.

The following are the officers: Organizer, Jake Block; Financial Secretary and Treas, F. E. Lindsay; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Georgia Crooks; Press and Advertising Agent, W. G. SOCIALIST TRIUMPH IN LOS ANGELES

We mean precisely that—a SOCIALIST triumph.

Socialists think of it as a triumph, and they are right.

With 52,000 votes for their ticket, they may well smile at all the nervous 'outeries which call the election an Anti-SOCIALIST "Landslide."

Those outeries sound very much like whistling up the wind. That the SOCIALISTS—with a record of only 11,000 votes at the previous election (less than 18 per cent of the total), in the face of the startling and confusing McNamara episode, with all the business interests and "respectable" organizations fused against them, including every political group but their own; with no money themselves, but plenty on the other side; with all the newspapers but ONE opposing them—that this party under these circumstances should poll 52,000 votes (over 38 per cent of the entire vote cast), is no laughing matter for the side that "won" by getting into office once more.—Louis F. Post, in The Public.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Judge Black Tuesday sent Marie Bartlet and Gladys Crawford, 16-year-old girls, to the convent of Oak Hill in Cincinnati. The girls were found by the officers of the juvenile court late Monday night visiting from one parlor to another. Both girls have been previous offenders. They will be taught some useful trade.—News Item.

Has the State of Ohio any authority over the Oak Hill Convent or is it a private religious prison favored by certain judicial officials? It is high time that church and state be actually separated as they are supposed to be in this country. In the middle ages the church held the power of life and death, physical and spiritual over the people and worked with the kings and princes to oppress their subjects. There seems to be some influence at work in the United States to return to the methods of the ancient times.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

LECTURE IN THE TENTH WARD.

Addresses will be delivered next Thursday evening at Tenth Ward headquarters, 755 West Broad street. Comrade J. L. Bachman will speak on "The Red Flag." Comrade D. J. Farrell's topic will be "Socialism." Admission 10 cents. Tickets good for 10c worth of literature.

The "menace" of socialism continues to stir England. The Independent Labor party and the Social-Democratic party made some notable gains in the recent municipal elections. A decade ago the English Socialists were able to poll only 70,000 votes. Now they have a million. One voter out of every six is a Socialist. "We are living on the brink of a volcano," says the chairman of the anti-Socialist union of Great Britain. Unless something is done to meet the appeals put forward by the Socialist speakers in the 3,000 meetings that are held every week he fears that another decade will see the overthrow of the majority of the monarchy and the taking over by the state of production, distribution and exchange. Thus far the anti-Socialists have not taken the trouble to meet the Socialist speakers on their own ground. It is now proposed to send street speakers out to teach the working people the "real meaning" of the proposed revolution and the consequences that could easily follow it. The Socialists welcome the anti-Socialist lecturers as they know their opponents will pile up votes for them with their anti-Socialist arguments.

ROOSEVELT ASSISTS SOCIALISTS' POLICY

Tells Workers in Outlook to Quit Movements That Lead to Violence.

Theodore Roosevelt, much against his will, has in the course of his editorial in the current issue of the Outlook on the McNamara confessions, advised the organized workers of America to line up with the Socialists party and keep out of dynamite plots and schemes.

Teddy doesn't advise the workers to do this in so many words, but that is the only thing for them to do if they follow the great man's advice. At the end of his article entitled "Murder, Is Murder," he says:

"I believe with all my heart in the American workingman. I believe with all my heart in organized labor, for labor must be organized in order to protect and secure its rights; and, therefore, with all my strength I urge my fellow citizens, the American men and women who earn their livelihood as wage-workers, to see that their leaders stand for honesty and obedience to the law, and to set their faces like flint against any effort to identify the cause of organized labor, directly or indirectly, with any movement which in any shape or way benefits by the commission of crimes of lawless and murderous violence."

That is just what the Socialist party has been saying since it was organized. If organized labor will refuse to have anything more to do with the Civic Federation, with Democratic and Republican "friends," and line up with the only working class party that will give it an opportunity to express its strength to the fullest advantage, when affairs such as those to which the McNamaras pleaded guilty will cease in the labor movement.

Stock Certificates of The Socialist Publishing Co. are now ready to be issued. All those Comrades and friends who have subscribed for stock are earnestly requested to make payments on same, in order that they may receive their certificates. We want every Comrade in the city and county to own at least one share, and it is a very easy matter, as shares are only $10.00 each, payable at the rate of $1.00 per month.

SOCIALIST WEDDING.

Comrades Ella June Purcell of the Fifteenth Ward and Arthur Alden Guild of the Sixteenth Ward, will be married Christmas Day at 3 o'clock p. m., at the Old Presbyterian church, State and Sixth streets. Any of the comrades who desire to attend, will be cordially welcomed. It was impossible to send out personal invitations but Comrades Purcell and Guild desire their friends to realize that the ceremony by which they enter the matrimonial state is public. This announcement will be a great surprise of course to all Socialists.

THE JEWISH SOCIALIST MEETING.

Comrade A. Wladick, of New York, will speak in Yiddish at Federation Hall, 121 East Town street, next Wednesday evening. Other speakers will be E. B. Lewis and D. J. Farrell. Good music. Admission 10 Cents. Comrade Wladick is one of the best Jewish orators in the movement.

FIFTH WARD BRANCH.

The Fifth Ward branch will hold its business meetings on Sunday afternoons in the future, beginning with January 7, 1912. We are doing this so that we can have Monday evenings for entertainments only.

LIFE AND LAW AND A TRAGIC FOOL.

By Wm. McDevitt.

Present:

1. Tony Balero, to hang February 13 for murder, having stabbed to death a policeman, who was arresting him.
2. James Barnabas McNamara, life sentence, confessed to killing 21 men (workers).
3. The proprietors of the Triangle Shirtwaist Factory, casual visitors, touring the world, killed 146 (mostly women and children), but could probably prove alibi, most employers of 100 or more women and children not being "on the job."
4. The FIVE Controllers of the capital of the railroads of the railroads of the United States; every year kill 10,000 and maim or cripple 80,000 (statistics of 1907).
5. Mark Twain, in The Spirit of REVOLT.

Tony—Well, I got to February 13 any way. Wonder what I could do while I'm waiting?

The Triangle Props.—Study John Stuart Mill on "Liberty." He'll tell you all you didn't know when you thought you were fighting for liberty with the minion (and the majesty) of the law.

The Five R. R. Magnates (in chorus)—It pays to obey the law—pay sometimes 200 per cent. in America. You wouldn't have had your liberty over here, Tony, if the contract law hadn't been obeyed by having you brought over from Sicily by a Southern State (instead of a corporation) for agricultural use in that State. Then the railroads gave you a job—and here you are. You got in, you see, by law—and you're going to get out by law. Those are the sacred things—law and life.

Mark Twain—Yes, human life, let us assume (perhaps seriously) is valuable in direct proportion to its scarcity. As I have "passed over," you know, I can only speak (so as to be heard) through the mediums. As most of the mediums are busy with spirits who are "picking winners," or telling Mr. Burns' men where Mr. Kaplan was on October 29th last, or where Mr. Schmitty (or is it Schmit?) will be on January 17th next, I have to speak through the spirit of REVOLT.

Perhaps you recall if you ever read my (but, then, none of this crowd ever reads—except perhaps Tony, who reads opera with his ears. They haven't made opera of any of my "Immortal, etc." as yet, although The Jumping Frog ought to go well in opera—or at least in musical comedy); as I was saying, you recall perhaps that I used to speak at times in the spirit of revolt. Naturally—since humor is the laughing side of science, and revolt is the science side of truth in action.

Truth, you know how I say it in Puddin'head Wilson, is the most valuable thing we have. Due, of course, to its scarcity, or should I say valuable and therefore scarce? So with life.

These gentlemen here who control the life-carrying business of the country, naturally realize that their million and a half employes are cheaper than the human freight they carry on tickets. Hence in sacrificing more workers of one kind and another during the past generation than did Caesar and Napoleon in all their campaigns, they are emphasizing a modern theory of the value of life; that they are correct is proved by the decisions of the supreme court of all supreme courts, the dividends. Shakespeare was discussing the theme with me and Mrs. Eddy (she's real now in the land of shadows) the other day-night (I have to call it that, because you know over yonder we have no "sun or moon to shine"). Like history and other great writers (or should it be "righters"), he repeated himself: "There's a Divinity that shapes our ENDS—Divid-ends."

Here's James Barnabas McNamara. Just now he's the most distinguished among us, because he is saying least. The world, by the way, is listening to what he doesn't say. Now this here James B. is under suspicion of working for the structural iron fellows. He killed, aimlessly (he says he didn't intend to destroy life) some 21 defenseless workers. The tragic fool! The tragic fool! Say, Jim, that's the worst of damned sentimentalism. It makes tragic fools of men that otherwise might make a decent living and die respectably—in the poorhouse or the boneyard.

J. B.—I didn't want to kill those 21 men, those workingmen.

Mark—Oh, of course not. Neither did the Triangle folks intend murder; nor do my distinguished friends, the railroad magnates. Your trouble, Jim, was this: You tried to match yourself, the individual, against society. The scheme of things, that is society. Some call it the people, some call it the government, some call it God—until it gets changed by social development.

Your craft, the structural iron workers, know the extreme value of the other fellow's life, and the extreme cheapness of their own. you know some of those skyscrapers in New York are beginning to talk. Dead men, they say, tell no tales; but living houses do, sometimes. Well, those New York steel warrens (you'll find it in Everybody's Magazine) take about one life for each floor. Your 21 would equal a 21-story building in New York. And so you thought you would tinker with the scheme of things, society, the owners of those structures in New York and Chicago. Say, Jim, when you're not too daffy, read Hamlet. He went crazy trying to match the one against the many, or the two against the too many. And while you are reading, you'll have time to read something of mine. I had a vision once. I guess that's why I'm here in this gang of life-eaters. You know a man with a vision can (and must) go everywhere. You'll find that vision of mine in the North American Review, for August 2, 1907, page 698. These railroad chaps will recognize the vision, won't you, ye billionaires of roadbed wet with red blood.

The Five in Chorus—You always were visionary, Mark. We have no visions, we stick to the roadbed and the rolling stock. But go ahead. Rattle off that vision—that's why they dragged you into this complication, any way.

Mark—"I had a dream last night. My friend Twichell had been talking about the swiftly developing possibilities of aerial navigation, and he'd quoted those striking verses of Tennyson's which forecasts a future when air-borne vessels of war shall meet and fight above the clouds and redden the earth below with a rain of blood. This picture of carnage and blood and death reminded me of something which I had read a fortnight ago—statistics of railway accidents compiled by the United States Government, wherein the appalling fact was set forth that on our 200,000 miles of railway we annually kill 10,000 persons outright and injure 80,000. The warships in the air suggested the railway horrors, and three nights afterward the railway horrors suggested my dream.

In it I saw a funeral procession; I saw it from a mountain peak; I saw it crawling along and curving here and there, serpent-like, through a level vast plain. I seemed to see a hundred miles of the procession, but neither the beginning of it nor the end of it was within the limits of my vision. The procession was in ten divisions, each division marked by a sombre flag, and the whole represented ten years of our railway activities in the accident line; each division was composed of 80,000 cripples, and was bearing its own year's 10,000 mutilated corpses to the grave: in the aggregate 800,000 cripples and 100,000 dead, drenched in blood!"

THE McNAMARAS.

By Robert Hunter.

I have been trying to imagine the headlines of the Capitalist Press—had the McNamaras been Socialists.

I can see them, great and black and terrible, carrying horror into every heart and making the very blood of the ignorant and prejudiced run cold.

Death masks, skeletons, fiery torches, prostrate victims, red flags, bombs, Anarchy, I can see it all.

I can see the terror of Labor! How the reactionaries would preach their hypocritical sermons and warn the toilers against Socialism.

I can see the horror of the Church! How the parsons and the priests would raise their hands and call upon God to save the world from the red terror.

I can see the horror of the Politicians! Murder is Murder? No, Murder is Socialism! And how they would orate about bombs, destruction, Anarchy, Universal Ruin to frighten the workers back into the service of Craft!

Can you not see the whole drama? And therefore it seems almost like an act of Providence that these men should not be Socialists but Democrats, Catholics, and pure and simple Trade Unionists.

We taught these men nothing. What they knew of the wrongs of Labor and the rights of man they learned not from us. Their method of fighting came not from us. Their method of fighting came not from the teachings of Marx, or Engels. It came from elsewhere.

They are not Socialists, they are Democrats. They are not materialists, they are Catholics. They are not revolutionary unionists, they are "pure and simple" unionists.

Where, therefore, did they get their hatred of the capitalist? Who taught them their method of trying to right the wrongs of labor?

Had they been Socialists we should have been accused of teaching them their philosophy. Shall we then accuse the Catholic church, the Democratic party and the Gompers-Mitchell unionism as responsible for their acts?

I answer yes and no.

Yes, because the Democratic party has taught them the futility of political action. They voted, and voted and voted. They were always betrayed by grafters and sold out. The very men they elected to represent them made laws to serve their masters and to ruin them.

Yes, because the church has taught them that Socialism is a monstrous thing and that those who advocated a workingclass party were atheists, free-lovers and enemies of mankind.

Yes, because the Gompers-Mitchell Unionism has taught them that they should vote for their betrayers and keep out of working class politics. They must not sit at the grimy board, they must leave that to the grafters and the tools of the corporations.

Every one of their teachers fought bitterly and everlastingly the only teaching that could have saved them and their class from misery and ultimate slavery!

I answer No, because they did not teach them to fight as they fought. That no one taught them but their despair and their defeats.

Their Church, their Party and their Union taught them that all the wrongs of society were due to individual wickedness, individual oppression, and they naturally fought the individual.

The individual boss was to destroy the union and to impoverish the worker, so they fought to destroy the individual boss.

There were good capitalists and bad capitalists, so they made their choice. The ones they considered bad they set out to exterminate.

They didn't seek class action in politics or in industry. They were dealing with individuals. Destroy the Boss. So they resorted to Direct Action, Sabotage, Terrorism. Just as the Anarchist uses any weapon to destroy the political master so they used any weapon to destroy the industrial master.

Ask them the meaning of Sabotage and they couldn't tell you. But they knew how to make the life of the individual capitalist unendurable and they delivered the goods.

It was the old method—the only method known to Labor before Marx. Bakunine made of it a philosophy, but men adopted it because they were too miserable and ignorant to think.

And now today these two men stand without a defender. Only the Anarchist will speak a kind word for them.

Not one of those who but yesterday were preaching the method of the McNamaras as a philosophy is today fearless enough to say: "These men are of our faith. They have done their duty and laid down their lives in pursuit of the tactics we have taught."

It shall have the power, by a majority of the committee, to disqualify any member becoming a candidate for an elective office. The member disqualified, however, shall have the right to appeal to the County Central Committee, which shall then have final decision in the matter. The committee shall adopt its own rules to govern its proceedings, especially with the view of securing a systematic method for the determination of the qualifications of members suggested for public office.

Members of Special Branches (nationalities, etc.) desiring to participate in the nomination of councilmanic supervisory, assembly, senatorial and congressional candidates, may do so upon presentation of their membership cards at the meetings of the Regular Branches of the districts in which they reside. Members of Special Branches shall be notified of the time and place of the meetings of the Regular Branches.

Get Your Paper Regularly?

We are getting many complaints from subscribers that they do not receive their papers.

We are also receiving notices from the postoffice that papers are refused, unclaimed, or that the party has moved away without leaving an address.

We ask each subscriber to look at the address on the label and if it is not correct send us the right address and we will correct it.

If you move, write us at once, giving your former as well as your present address.

If you are a new subscriber and have received a few papers, you will know that your name is on the list. If you don't get it regularly ask the carrier about it.

If you will do these things there will be little cause for complaint. We make mistakes, and so do the postoffice employes, but a little attention to these matters will correct most of them.

The Tragedy of Life.

It is said that corporations have no souls. Is that statement true? We can usually arrive at a conclusion by following closely the work of the corporation. Read the following, and then take a half hour of your time in meditation, then write down your conclusions:

TOO OLD FOR A JOB.

"The best woman on earth is hungry. Is there any work for me? D302."—"Tribune" want ad.

The writer of the above pathetic appeal which appeared in yesterday morning's "Tribune" is too old at 45 to secure a position—or so he has been told by the scores of employers he has sought—to appease the hunger of "the best woman on earth" and his own.

Woolsey E. Beach, 25 East Thirty-first street, is the man who is too old for Chicago.

"For weeks past—and I have hardly a gray hair in my head—I have listened to the self-same chorus of Chicago employers, until now it has begun to sound like a funeral dirge to all my hopes," he said last night. "It is my wife who has upheld my spirits and given me the impetus to try again.

"I have lived in Chicago most of my life. For years I have worked for various business corporations in the city as a collector. But I have been without steady employment for nearly a year. I am looking for some steadywork, where I can settle down and earn a living for myself and my wife. That is all I ask. But it is the same old story wherever I go. I am told that I am too old.

"I have lied about my age. I have told people to whom I applied that I was only 40, but they tell me I am too old. I have told others I was only 35, but they look at me and say: 'You are too old for us.' This is a young man's city and a young man's age, but a man of 45 ought not to be without use as long as he is steady and not afraid of work.

"The situation is simply this: The young men are flooding Chicago from everywhere. They come full of health and strength from the country, and the old fellows of the city have to give way before them. I am not blaming anybody. Perhaps I am the only one to be blamed for not having saved up a competence for my old age."

The claim of the trusts is, that they reduce the cost of living by reducing the price of the product and raising the wage also. They don't tell you that they have fought wage increases that have cost organized labor thousands of dollars to get. They have fought the man above forty-five, and some of them have drawn the line at thirty-five.

A mechanic is at his best at middle age, so far as the knowledge of his trade is concerned, but the trust is not looking so much at the skill as they are for the output. The young man is vigorous and strong, and they are anxious to get his services until he is at an age in life when his children are dependent upon him for sustenance and an education. He is then thrown out of employment for some little excuse and then kept on the street, and his family put to work to keep the wolf from the door. If the big interests are given their way, what will become of the old man?

The Religion of Good Will Toward Men.

We are nearing the years of the Brotherhood of Man the era when men shall be free from want and free from the fear of want; the religion of good will toward men; the religion that will open up the storehouses to those who have filled them, and invite them to partake.

Let us work and win and not be impatient of results. The tide is coming in and it bears upon its crest no longer the hollow refrain of the glad tidings of good will toward men but the actual blessing itself. At last the true meaning of the Son of Man is being understood. He unfolded His nature into brotherhood with all mankind, and so must the very letter of that spirit be made law unto us today that we may know the meaning of the promised good will and taste of its fullness. Religion is not falling away from us; the old form may be changing, dropping piecemeal into the dust, to give place to the religion of good will toward men; the religion of the future; the religion of the spirit of democratic revolution.

This it is, that with new healing is entering every department of life today with strange, tremendous zest, and spiritualizing that life, not with an inane form of some man-made creed, but with a living worship that demands good homes in which to live and die; sufficient leisure in which to enjoy the riches of nature and art, the fruits of meditation; the craving of the soul for communion with its God; political purity instead of corruption; happy childhood for all children; beauty and love for ugliness and crime; plenty instead of want; the harmony of good will toward men in place of ill.

This is the religion in which the masses are uniting; a religion democratic, leading up to God through the expression of the whole people for the welfare of that whole.

Good will toward men.

The horizon constantly retreats. Stand forth in Comradeship, believe, ACHIEVE.

ANNIE MINTURN.

To Comrades and Working People:

Look over the advertising in your paper. Patronize those who patronize you. Remember those who refuse to advertise in a labor paper are unfair to labor and are not worthy of your patronage.

Red Cross Seals.

On the arms of men and women the penny seals are sewed. No one would deny that these people who buy and wear the seals of the Red Cross Society think that it is a good cause to spend a nickel or more for.

But why have tuberculosis?

Why overwork in sweatshops and crowded and unsanitary shops and stores the young and susceptible?

Why?

Herbert Spencer said that man will try everything that is wrong before he will try the one right thing, and so young men and earnest young women work hard to feed the poor, cure the poor, to save the poor, believing that Christ's words of rebuke, "The poor ye always have with you," justifies charity instead of justice; salves and ointments instead of sane and healthy living as preventives.

God never made disease. Tuberculosis is not only horrible, but it is the horrible accuser of unchristian greed.

Sell all the seals you can, brothers and sisters. Wear them on your right sleeve and on your left, so that you may be known as earnest and well-intentioned, but thoughtless and ignorant.

The law of life is health.

The penalty of greed is death.

The Booster's Column

By F. E. JOHNSTON.

Wow! Take a look at that off and on column and see what a solar plexis blow the Boosters have handed the Plutes this week. A Small gain, and that right in the midst of the Xmas rush, when everybody is busy.

Do you want to hand yourself and, incidentally the paper, a nice Xmas Present? Yes! Then here's a suggestion. Let every Booster go out early Xmas morning and land a bunch of subs. Don't stop until you get at least one subscriber. If you haven't got sub cards with you, take the name and address and bring or mail same with remittance to this office. We're going now; nothing can stop us. We are bound to have those 5000 new subs by March 1st. Everybody, all together, and the trick is accomplished.

Balance to get last week		4982
Names put on	97

The office boy says if all the Boosters worked like Comrade E. L. Fries, he would ask for a raise, because he would have to work overtime. Comrades Fries handa in a list of 12, the record for this week.

Comrade Chas. Skinner gets into the limelight with two new ones.

Comrade W. J. Rout is a tireless worker and we credit him with 5.

Comrade J. P. Ross all out of breath, rushes in and plunks down $3.00 for sub cards. That's the spirit.

Comrade Kinsell, buys mental dynamite to the amount of $5.00, with which to blow out the cobwebs in the brains of Democrats and Republicans.

Comrade Mrs. Margraff, also buys sub cards to the amount of $2.00.

List of Booster with one or more to their credit:

LEWIS KEEPS UP HIS COURAGE, IS VIEW OF WHITE

"I suppose Lewis is doing that to keep up his courage," was the comment made by President John P. White of the United Mine Workers of America, in answer to the prediction of Tom L. Lewis of Bridgeport, Ohio, that Lewis had been elected president of the miners' union.

The statement made by Lewis and circulated by the United Press is not taken seriously by the members of the international executive board and the state officials who are in Chicago.

They admire the manner, however, in which Lewis is able almost at any moment to break into print to voice his views.

It is a peculiar fact that the operators in forming their national organization took especial pains to point out that they were not planning in any way to control the price of coal.

Won't Fix Coal Prices

This is pointed out in the resolution creating the organization, as follows:

"Resolved, That a national organization of bituminous coal operators be and is hereby created for the purpose of promoting the common interests of the bituminous coal operators of the United States; that such association shall be based upon representation by tonnage, one vote for each 2,000,000 tons per annum mine-run, with a minimum of two votes.

"That a committee be appointed by this meeting composed of one representative from each association, which committee shall report to a meeting of this national organization to be held in Chicago, Dec. 18, 1911, recommending a constitution and form for the organization; and

"That the committee so appointed be instructed to invite to the meeting on Dec. 18 repreesntatives of all bituminous coal operators' associations and individual operators where no organization exist.

"This organization does not contemplate controlling the selling price of coal."

SOCIALISM

Socialism is friendship, fellowship, comradeship. It is joint ownership in rights, duties, privileges, immunities, and obligations of the entire human family, children, women and men. It is practice of the doctrine, "United we stand; divided, we fall." It is the application of the law, "In union there is strength." It is the meaning of America's motto, "From many, one."

Socialism is the proclamation of emancipation to all who labor and are heavy laden.

Socialism is equity, the even-handed justice that deals impartially by all.

Socialism is the antidote of human suffering.

Socialism is freedom in its final analysis.

Socialism is fate and manifest destiny.

Socialism is certain and salvation.

Socialism is the inheritance by all the children of men of the kingdom of happiness here and now.

Socialism is the religion of humanism.

Socialism is the trinity of love, justice and truth.

Socialism is the gospel of the atonement of humanity for "man's inhumanity to man."

Socialism is the second coming of "the elder brother."—Capt. W. E. P. French, U. S. A.

OPEN THE BOOKS

Officers of the American Federation of Labor have issued a statement to the American public in which a call is made on the Burns' detective agency and the National Erectors' association to open their books for inspection.

The unionists have opened their books, which they now place at the command of government officials.

The "open shoppers" and their pet detective should do likewise, that the public may have a full and impartial probe.

Let us know how long Ortie McManigal—and possibly the McNamaras—have been in the pay of the steel trust.

Let us know why most of the dynamite explosions occurred on property not controlled by the trust.

We might possibly find the reason why Detective Burns told the Brooklyn Eagle, on December 7, that the McNamaras would make no further confessions, for the very good reason they have nothing to tell.

Open the books of all parties concerned. The widest publicity should not be objected to by any good citizens, most of whom are in the dark regarding the double dealing of detectives.

It appears that the scandal so featured in New York city during the recent visit of Maxim Gorky was framed up by Russian secret police. Gorky and wife were accused of not being married and New York screamed in holy horror at the awfulness of it, but the truth was that they were married by civil process, but not by a Russian priest, due to the great extortion asked for the church marriage.

MACHINISTS ADOPT THE RECALL

The International Machinists' union swings into line for the recall.

A bulletin from headquarters announces that the referendum proposing to amend the constitution so that the membership has the right of recall on all international officers won by a majority of 8,310. That there is an enthusiastic sentiment for the recall is shown in the vote which stood 9,626 for and 1,316 against.

"This vote means something at this time," said a member of the machinists. "At the Atlanta convention of the American Federation of Labor practically the whole Gompers group voted against referendum instead of convention elections of A. F. of L. officers. It is clear that in this matter the tide will run against them if the matter ever goes to a vote of the A. F. of L. rank and file."

C. F. Nicholson, Salt Lake City, was elected a member of the general executive board, defeating C. F. Marshall, New York, the only other candidate. Nicholson takes the place of Arthur Ireland, Pittsburg.

An increase of twenty-five cents a month of per capital tax and dues was proposed. It was rejected by a vote of 6,399 to 5,058.

The Northwestern consolidated district was abolished. Since the system federation have been established, the district plan is regarded as unnecessary.

N. Y. C. LOSING FIGHT

Van Wert, O.—All the boilermakers and helpers on the New York Central Lines at Simpthy were called out to help win the strike of the boilermakers at other points on the New York Central Lines.

The shops at Van Wert are almost tied up as a result of the boilermakers' strike. The engines are leaking badly and nearly all trains are running late. If the present cold snap continues very long the engines will die rapidly and the strike, which has already lasted almost nine months, will be won before the end of the year.

TO END JURISDICTIONAL STRIKES

The National Building Trades convention has declared opposition to strikes called because of jurisdictional differences. Henceforth in all cases of trade disputes between affiliated organizations on questions of jurisdiction, the matter shall be referred to a committee composed of building tradesmen, one to be selected by each of the contending parties and one by the president of the National Building Trades Department. The decision rendered by this board shall be binding, and no strike shall be ordered pending a decision.

This marks the end of wasteful strikes, caused by unions involved in international differences, and which has proven so harmful to the steady progress of our movement.

"All non-union laborers and strike-breakers are Socialists. Ninety per cent. of the men of the Socialist party are non-union workers who make a business of strike-breaking," says Peter W. Collins. It is unnecessary to say that, although Collins is an insignificant person intellectually, he is a monumental liar. The great majority of Socialists are not only members of trades unions, but are among the truest and most reliable of its members.

In the past the city of New York has voted every year great sums of money to the Catholic charities, but at no time has there ever been any accounting of how the money was spent. In making up the budget for the coming year the Board of Estimates passed rules requiring such accounting. Attempts in the past have been made to force some details as to how the money was being spent, but they came to naught. It is believed that the Board of Estimates will yield as usual.

NATIONAL SOCIALIST HEADQUARTERS.

The Bohemian Socialists have affiliated with the national organization under the terms of the national constitution relating to foreign speaking organizations. Joseph Novak, 1808 South Ashland Avenue, Chicago, has been elected National Translator-Secretary by referendum vote.

For the benefit of foreign born comrades who wish to become naturalized, the National Office sells a booklet entitled, "The Law of Naturalization Made Easy to Understand." It is printed in the following languages: English, German, Polish, Hungarian, Bohemian, Italian, Swedish, Norwegian, Hebrew, Lithuanian, Croatian, Slovak, Finnish, Greek, Spanish and French. The price is ten cents per copy in any language. Address, National Headquarters Socialist Party, 203 West Washington St., Chicago.

Since it is necessary for candidates for naturalization to be familiar with the constitution of the United States, the National Office also sells the constitution in handy pamphlet form for five cents per copy. It is printed in English only.

State Secretary Ringler of Pennsylvania, reports as follows: "Fullerton Branch of Lehigh County expelled David K. Thomas and Ralph Thomas for voting at the Republican primaries. Published by request of the Lehigh County Organization."

PROPOSED NATIONAL PARTY REFERENDUMS

Colorado Springs, Colo., December 10, 1911.

"Moved by Local Colorado Springs, Colorado, that Section 2 of Article 9 of the National Constitution be amended to read as follows:

"The Literature Bureau shall keep for sale to the public a stock of Socialist books, pamphlets and other literature, shall have the right, under the supervision of the National Committee, to publish works on Socialism, including books, pamphlets and periodicals, and is hereby empowered to perfect arrangements and secure the proper equipment for the printing and publishing of the same, and to issue a regular publication not less than once in each week, and mail a copy of same to each dues paying member of the Socialist Party in the United States and its territories."

Signed: J. W BUZBEE, Chairman.
M. J. ACTON, Secretary.

Bismarck Local, Tacoma, Wash., December 1, 1911.

"We, the Bismarck Local of the Socialist Party of the State of Washington, with a membership of twenty-five members in good standing, do respectfully request that the following motion be submitted to the locals of the United States for seconds:

"We move that the National Constitution be amended by adding the following:

"Any member of the Socialist Party holding public office, either national, state, county, city or school director, shall not be eligible to sit on any executive committee within the Socialist Party.

"Comment: One of the main objects of the Socialist Party is to control its members in office. If the executive committees are allowed to be filled with office holders, we believe this very important object will be defeated. It will be something like the government controlling the trusts which now control the government."

Signed:
ARNOLD BEEKEN, Chairman.
MRS. MINNIE DAVIS, Secretary.

Puyallup, Wash., Dec. 6, 1911.

"Amend the National Party Platform by adding to the next to last paragraph in the Principles the following:

"'Through the use of any weapon that will win the fight, politically or industrially.'

"The paragraph as amended will then read as follows:

"'In the struggle for freedom the interests of all modern workers are identical The struggle is not only national, but international. It embraces the world and will be carried to ultimat. victory by the united workers of the world through the use of any weapon that will win the fight, politically or industrially.'"

Signed: R. E. DANNER, Secretary pro tem.
W. R. CAPLE, Chairman.

Members in good standing, 64.

GENERAL SOCIALIST NEWS

In Illinois the Socialists are now nominating their candidates for next year's state election by referendum.

Socialists elected a councilman at Brockton, Mass., and polled 1,410 votes, or 400 more than at the last election, and are getting back to their old-time strength.

In Braunschweig, Darmstadt and a number of other important cities in Germany the Socialists report having captured additional offices in the municipal governments and increased their popular vote materially.

Old parties in Bremerton, Wash., united on a "Citizens'" ticket to save the city from Socialism. The Socialists won two Councilmen, however, while the fusionists party secured two and the balance of the city ticket.

Palo Alto, Cal., Socialists have adopted resolutions in favor of holding a World's Socialist Congress during the San Francisco Exposition in 1915. They are now calling for an expression of views on the part of Socialists in other parts of the world.

Business at the national headquarters of the Socialist party is now done on such a large scale that it is very necessary that each letter sent to the headquarters should deal with subject only. Otherwise it has to be switched from one department to another, which greatly increases the possibility of errors and also causes delay. Those who write on several subjects should put them in different letters, not necessarily in separate envelopes, but in different letters.

Complete returns from the election for members of Parliament in Switzerland last month show that the Socialists increased their seats from six in the last session of the national legislative body to 15 in the new Parliament. The gain in the popular vote was 25,000, raising the total Socialist strength in Switzerland from 80,000 to 105,000. This is regarded as a remarkable showing when it is considered that Switzerland, despite its proud boast of being a democratic country, possesses an unfair and undemocratic ballot system under which thousands of workers are disfranchised.

INDIANA MOVEMENT.

(James Oneal, State Secretary, 309 1-2 Ohio Street, Terre Haute.)

Local Clinton has been dead for a long time, but requests now come from Clinton to revive the local and to organize a German local. Five miles southwest of Clinton are a number of Socialists who want to organize, and State Secretary Oneal will attend to all their wants.

Conrad Condo reports the organization of another branch in South Marion with 42 members as a starter, while the West Side also starts with a branch of 30 members. Marion now has the largest membership in proportion to its population of any city in the state.

Local Peru also reports the organization of another branch in the fifth ward which gives two besides the local. The interest in Socialism is increasing as well as the membership. Local Alexandria also gives warning of a good report next month.

Local Martinsville reports an increasing interest and new members following the O'Hare lecture, and lays in a good stock of application and membership cards to take care of the prospective members.

Local Valparaiso has arranged for a series of Friday night lectures during the winter, lasting until March 1st. A complete program of the lectures has been printed, including the subjects and speakers.

Socialists at Kennard, in Henry county, to the number of five are anxious to organize, and instructions have been sent to them.

Local Frankfort, like many other locals, reports that it is getting in good shape, and at one meeting 15 new members were admitted.

Comrade Ford of Geneva, in Adams county, reports that the Socialists there are now ready to organize a local, and this local will probably be reported in this column next week.

The Socialists at Fortville, one of the new locals, report disappointment because they did not win, and received only 80 votes. A vote that large in a small town is sufficient to encourage any small local; but we are now winning in so many places that nothing short of victory satisfies.

Socialists at Duncan, Floyd county, have organized with five members, and will apply for a charter soon. This county is also developing Socialists rapidly

Socialist students of Perdue University at Lafayette have formed a chapter of the Intercollegiate Socialist Society. Local Lafayette is holding splendid Sunday meetings with good speakers and large audiences. The newspapers give long reports of the lectures, and Comrade Cooney expresses the hope that the local will have 200 members next summer.

The seige of Michigan City by Local La Porte is at last bearing good returns, and the latest word from there is that a local has been organized. Comrade Branstetter has spoken there repeatedly with good results, and good reports have appeared in the local press.

CIVILIZATION(?)

By Hugh McGee.

Why is it that today in the United States, when every intelligent person knows that it is possible for every man, woman and child to be supplied with all the things necessary for a decent life, together with all the so-called luxuries of this twentieth century civilization, why is it that one-tenth of the people have four-fifths of all the things which were made and purchased entirely by the working class, or nine-tenths of the people, have practically nothing but fresh air and water—sometimes not even that? Why is it?

Why is it that in the United States, in this great big rich country, where one state alone, the State of Texas, can furnish enough grain, cattle, fruits and provisions to feed every man, woman and child in the United States, together with making and manufacturing every single article that is used or can be used by the people of the United States, why is it that there are now ten million people living in shacks and tenements, facing utter poverty at all times, underfed, cheaply and poorly clothed, and nearly always diseased? Why is it?

Why is it that in the United States, the richest country in the world, with a population of only about one hundred million people, why is it that there are four million public paupers, men, women and children who exist only through charity? Why is it?

Why is it that over a million little children are taken away from school and shut up in factories, mines and mills, where they work like machines for less than fifty cents a day, when there are millions of grown men and women begging for work? Why is it?

Why is it that every day in the year there are three thousand men, women and children killed and injured while doing useful and necessary work for the United States? Why is it?

The answer is easily given and easily understood.

This earth contains everything which human beings require for food, clothing and shelter.

Everything we use, everything we eat or drink, comes in its first condition out of the land or water.

All we have to do in order to live is to work sometime and somewhere on the free matter which is scattered all over the surface of the planet, and by our work satisfy our wants.

But the earth and its contents, particularly the industries, are claimed as the private property of Morgans and other capitalists who say it belongs to them, and who require us to divide up with them in order to get an opportunity to work for a living.

These conditions can be changed by political action—by voting into the legislatures and courts Socialist lawmakers and judges, to make the industries collective property, and thus insure equal opportunity to every man, woman and child living today, as well as to those who will be born tomorrow.

THIS IS MY FAITH

I have never united myself with any church, because I have found difficulty in giving my assent. With mental reservation to the long complicated statement of Christian doctrine which characterize their articles of belief and confession of faith, whenever any church will inscribe over its altars as its sole qualification for membership the Savior's condensed statement of the substance of both law and gospel, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself," that church will I joint with all my heart and all my soul.—By Abraham Lincoln.

A BLESSING IN DISGUISE.

By John M. Work.

The beautiful black eye which we are now sporting is not the only effect of the McNamara blow. It also shocked our eyes open. We are wiser than we were.

When our capitalistic enemies have voiced their crow and we have eaten ours, it will begin to dawn upon the far-sighted that to us, the event is really a blessing in disguise.

It called a halt to our indiscriminate adoration of workingmen who get in jail.

It will cause us to go slow in accepting the advice of advocates of red hell who make lurid appeals for physical violence and try to urge the working class into premature revolt.

No greater calamity could occur than for the working class to indulge in premature revolt.

Workingmen who do not know enough to vote right cannot be trusted to shoot right.

When the workingmen in general acquire sense enough to vote right, there will be no occasion for them to shoot at all—unless the capitalists should raise an insurrection and try to prevent the elected working class candidates from taking their offices—in which case, having by that time learned how to vote right, the workers will know how to shoot right.

But to talk about physical strife under the present circumstances is childish.

It is also dangerous.

I do not mean dangerous to our lives. I fully realize that any of us are likely to end our careers at the hands of hired assassins.

Neither am I afraid of a little blood. When a tyrant gets his due, I am free to say — in the words of Colonel Ingersoll when he was speaking of the assassination of the Czar of Russia—"My sympathies cluster about the point of the dagger."

But I realize just how foolish and dangerous it is to spill blood. It would be very dangerous to the cause. It would turn millions of people against us who are favorably disposed.

It is lucky for us that the McNamaras are not Socialists, but Democrats and Catholics. As the Catholics and democrats forget it with great ease and quickness.

Of course when a workingman is arrested, we want to see that he gets a fair trial.

But it is idiotic for us to make a hero of him just because he gets in jail.

Let's strip off the mask of spectacularism and take a good look at the real heart of this thing of getting killed in the class struggle.

Suppose an innocent workingmen were to be hanged.

Would that be any worse than being killed by whirling machinery unsafeguarded for profit?

Would it be any worse than death by suffocation in a mine disaster?

Would it be any worse than living a slow death due to exploitation?

Would it be any worse than having our working class girls driven to prostitution?

Would it be any worse than having our working class men driven to drink and to trampdom?

Would it be any worse than having our working class children driven into child slavery?

Why do not advocates of red hell write lurid appeals for physical violence on account of these outrages also?

No, no!

Physical violence is the height of folly.

Education is the thing that is needed.

All these millions who are now favorably disposed toward us — what we need is to educate them in the principles of Socialism. Then they will be ours for all time.

Education is positive. It is headed frontwards.

Violence is negative. It is backwards.

Another measure that was advocated during the heat of the McNamara trouble was the general strike.

All talk on that subject reminds me of a cartoon which appeared during one of our great strikes. The idea of calling all the workers out on a general sympathetic strike was being advocated.

The cartoon represented two labor leaders, in knightly attire, standing on the sea shore. The words put into their mouths were from Shakespeare.

One of them, in heroic attitude, with arm outstretched toward the sea, proclaimed, "I can call spirits from the vasty deep!"

And the other replied, "Aye, and so can any man; but will they come when you do call them?"

Except in a case of overwhelming crisis, a general strike is an impossibility.

A CALL TO SOCIALISM

There are very many well-meaning people who, whilst owning that much wrong and misery exist, deny their own responsibility for any part of it.

Very commonly we hear men say, "Yes, it is a pity that things are so bad; but it is no fault of ours, and nothing we can do will mend them."

Now, John, that is a cowardly and dishonest excuse. It is the old plea of Cain, "Am I my brother's keeper?" No one can shirk his responsibility. We are none of us guiltless when wrong is done. We are all responsible in some degree for every crime and sin, and for every grief and shame for which or by which our fellow-creatures suffer.

When injustice is done it avails not for a man to plead that he cannot prevent it. The fact is he has not tried to prevent it, and therein lies his sin.

The average citizen sees the slums and the sweaters; he sees the wretched and the destitute; he knows that the weak and innocent are systematically robbed and slain; and his one excuse is that he "cannot help it." Now, John, I ask you, have you tried to help it; or have you only lied to yourself by saying that no help was possible?

Your duty, it seems to me, is clear enough. First of all having seen that misery and wrong exist, it is your duty to find out why they exist. Having found out why they exist, it is your duty to seek for means to abolish them. Having found out the means to abolish them, it is your duty to persuade others to help you.

Do your duty, John. Do not lie to your soul any more. Long have you known that injustice and misery are rife amongst the people. If you have not acted upon the knowledge it is because you knew it to be useless so to act, but because you were lazy and preferred your ease, or because you were selfish and feared to lose your own advantage, or because you were heartless and did not really feel any pang at sight of the suffering of others.

Let us have the truth, John, howsoever painful it may be; let us have justice, no matter what the cost.

Go out into the streets of any big town, and use your eyes, John. What do you find? You find some rich and idle wasting unearned wealth to their own shame and injury, and the shame and injury of others. You find hard-working people packed away in vile unhealthy streets. You find little children famished, dirty, and half naked outside the luxurious clubs, shops, hotels and theatres. You find men and women overworked and underpaid. You find vice and want and disease cheek by jowl and religion and culture and wealth. You find the usurer, the gambler, the fop, the finikin fine lady, and you find the straveling, the slave, the vagrant, the drunkard, and the harlot.

Is it nothing to you, John Smith? Are you a citizen? Are you a man? And will you not strike a blow for the right nor lift a hand to save the fallen, nor make the smallest sacrifice for the sake of your brothers and your sisters! John, I am not trying to work upon your feelings. This is not rhetoric, it is hard fact. I am only now talking street talk about the common sights of the common town. I say that wrong and sorrow are here crushing the life out of our brothers and sisters. I say that you in common with all men are responsible for the things that are. I say that it is your duty to seek the remedy; and I say that if you seek it you will find it.

These common sights of the common streets, John, are very terrible to me. To a man of a nervous temperament at once thoughtful and imaginative, those sights must be terrible. The prostitute under the lamps, the baby beggar in the gutter, the broken pauper in his livery of shame, the weary worker stifling in his filthy slums, the wage slave toiling at his task, the sweater's victim "sewing at once, with a double thread, a shroud as well as a shirt," these are dreadful ghastly, shameful facts which long since seared themselves upon my heart.

All this sin, all this wretchedness, all this pain, in spite of the smiling fields and the laughing waters under the beautiful and unsullied sky. And no remedy!

These things I saw, and I knew that I was responsible as a man. Then I tried to find out the causes of the wrong and the remedy therefor. It has taken me some years, John. But I think I understand it now, and I want you to understand it and to help in your turn to teach the truth to others.

Sometimes I have felt very angry.

But I have thought better of it. Looking back now I remember my own weakness, folly, cowardice. I have no heart to scorn or censure other men. Charity, John, mercy, John, humility, John. We are poor creatures, all of us. —Adapted from Robert Blatchford.

The New York Press has it figured out just how Socialists are made, declaring: "The powerful enemies of socialism are not the progressives, who urge measures that deprive socialism of the discontent on which it depends for sustenance, and who produce men fit to govern efficiently. Socialism's best friends are the bosses who drive voters out of the old parties when they get together to bleed a city or a state or to debauch Congress and bring a President into half tolerant contempt. Every time officers sworn to enforce the law equally against rich and poor boldly proclaim immunity for the wealthy criminal, and every time judges send the friendless to jail while they pass small fines on the influential lawbreaker, they make a few more Socialists."

FROM COMRADE SCHAFFER.

Dear Comrades:

Being close to the holidays and turkey being out of reach of the working class, thought I would have to give them a little turkey of a different nature, it may be a little hard for them to digest, but don't think it will do them any harm.

A week or so ago the newspapers throughout the country blowed about the Philanthrophy of Andrew Carnegie, who has given away $217,000,000 for different purposes, now the working class being so used to seeing large figures on paper and never stopping to think what they mean, are to figure with me.

If Mad Andrew Carnegie lived 1911 years—he would have lived 697,515 days—now if we divide the number of days into the amount given away by him per day it would come to 311 dollars per day, for every day of the 1911 years.

If As he is only 74 years of age, he must have lived 27010 days; now so as to give away $217,000,000 he would have togive away $8071.00 per day from the day he was born to his 74th birthday.

Now how was it made, as labor produces all wealth, it certainly came from labor, Homestead Pa, as well as Pittsburg.

Now workers can you see why turkey is high for you?

Yours for the Revolution,
A. SCHAFFER,

A VOICE FROM NELSONVILLE.

Nelsonville, O., Dec. 12, 1911.
The Socialist, Columbus:

So many of our comrades speak of the defeat of the Socialists in Los Angeles at the last election as something terribly disappointing, but for the life of me I can not see it in that way. If a vote of fifty thousand in a single city is disappointing, I say disappoint us some more. If my memory serves me right, hardly more than twelve years ago the entire Socialist vote of the United States amounted to little more than fifty thousand. At that time it took weeks and months to get the news. Now a Socialist victory or near victory gets a big headline clear across the page of the average newspaper and that is going some.

It looks to me that the McNamara affair only had the effect of weeding out those who have not yet reached the class-conscious stage.

Our defeat in Los Angeles was due to the joining of hands of the two old parties at the ballot-box. This shows that beyond a doubt the two old parties are one so far as the toiler is concerned and that they both stand for Capitalism.

The old parties in Los Angeles drew a line between themselves and labor that will become more clearly defined, broader and longer until it separates them entirely from the masses throughout the United States which in itself is a victory of more importance than would have been a mere victory at the polls. It will cause the fellow with the hollow in his forehead and the hump on his shoulders to sit up and take notice, and to not cast his vote next November for J. Pierpont Harmon & Co.

Hooray for the defeat in Los Angeles! Skeer us some more in 1912.

Yours for the downfall of the p-o-lutes and the Re-dem-hi-crat party. Fraternally,

Columbus City Prison Disgrace to Civilization

It Rivals the Horrors of Dante's Inferno or the Orthodox Hades.—Some Plain Facts for Plain People.

The City Prison of this city is a blot on our present day civilization.

It is a breeding place of disease and crime, to sum it up in a few words.

It it a hell-hole.

The imps of hell would try to escape and get back to His Satanic Majesty's place of abode if confined there twenty-four hours.

This in view of the accounts of the good(?) Osborne probation system seems impossible. But it is true.

Here are some of the things that happen daily in that Chamber of Horrors.

A prisoner arrested for vagrancy, "out of work," complained of being sick. The brute in attendance threw a bucket of water in his face. He was sent to the hospital next day. At night, the guard visited the cell block every three hours. If the prisoners complain of being too warm, he opens the windows and then it gets so cold the prisoners' teeth chatter. If it's too cold, it's just the reverse, and the prisoners must wait three hours for a change. A prisoner is not allowed to write a letter to the outside world.

The prisoner who gave this information wanted something from his room. The lady who runs the rooming house called and asked if he wanted anything. The prisoner had sore eyes and told the jailor he wanted his eye drops and glasses and in the hearing of the prisoner this human vulture told the lady he did not want anything.

Had it not been for a few friends who secured a lawyer for him, he would be over making dividends for those who own stock in the rat trap concern in the work house.

Another one of their great feats of humanity is that they have one small towl and one bar of soap for 25 to 30 prisoners. All day, and for four days while the prisoner was there, they had no towel or soap at all and then Judge(?) Osborn will buy tuberculosis lamps. Fine business this.

Beds—just the soft side of a plain board with no covering at all. Does that seem possible in the glorious land of the free and home of the brave?

This young man was confined for 14 days and was on the verge of pleading guilty, which he was not, so he could get out.

When he got out he was all in, just a wreck. This is the treatment accorded the working class in the city prison and that's not all.

Food—Dinner, potato soup one day and dry bread and bean soup; next day dry bread; breakfast, Postum or dishwater and dry bread; supper, dry bread and water.

Of all the city prisons I have visited this is the worst.

The prisoners get five minutes to eat dinner. Most of us would just take a second, unless we were famished.

This foul smelling place is bad but if, as the prisoner said, they would treat men like human beings, it would help.

They wanted to issue bonds for a new city prison. What they want to do is to issue the recall on those who have charge of the old one. Men have died in there because of the inhuman treatment and it is time the City Council or those having charge of that joint, clean up the place and put some men in there who will treat prisoners not as guilty, but as suspects, until they are tried, and let a judge who is a judge, and not a pinhead, like the one we have there, deal out justice.

The Police Court and City Prison are the primary grades of the school of crime. It is there where men are taught the first lesson in crime and those men are candidates for our penitentiaries and electric chairs.

In behalf of the working class, to which we belong. We appeal and demand justice. If we are to be treated like dogs for small infractions of the law before we have been convicted, if we are to be shoved and pushed about by an old fossil who should be in an asylum instead of bailiff, if we are not to be allowed to utter a word in our own defense when we face a pinheaded judge, who gloats over our downfall then we say the time has come for us to use more drastic measures. As Socialists the ballot will suit us; but for those who do not know or care for the ballot, we tremble. Remember Paris in '93. Remember the Boston Tea Party, and don't forget, ye masters of industry, ye purchasable judges who deal in justice(?) that an aroused working class will some day take your place of power from you and then justice will not slip the bandage from one eye and use the scales to weigh the briber she rescues.

NOTICE TO CONTRIBUTORS AND CORRESPONDENTS

Hereafter the forms of The Socialist will close Wednesday at 4 p. m. All announcements and notices should be in this office by Wednesday at 9 a. m. There is no use in comrades sending in lengthy articles as they will not be published. All general communications should reach us by Monday of each week. Important items may be used at the last moment, but we cannot guarantee it.

Listen here. Have you made a date yet for Sunday night? If you haven't, make a date to come up Sunday night to the general meeting of the Socialist Dramatic Club, 335 1-2 South High street. We know you will enjoy it, because others have. Just ask the men and women who have attended. They will tell you it's something great.

COMRADE GREEN HAS A DREAM

Nelsonville, O., Dec. 25, 1911.—I am in receipt of 45 cents worth of literature from the headquarters of the Men and Religion Forward Movement. I read it all in one evening, but it was so hard to digest that I dreamed about it after I went to bed.

I dreamed that I saw a very tired looking donkey which represented the worked working class. Upon his back was strapped a cushioned saddle called welfare and in the saddle sat Capitalism. He held in his hand a stout rod, upon the further end of which was tied a bundle of grass called Men and Religion Forward Movement. Upon the rod to which the grass was tied was written, "The Clergy," and just ahead of the donkey was a wall which represented Socialism. Capitalism held the rod over the donkey's head so as to let the bundle of grass dangle just beyond its reach. The overburdened donkey was very weary with its heavy burden but it struggled on until one end of the rod struck the solid wall while the other end punched Capitalism right in the central banks. Just then the wall opened and the donkey went on in and stood upright and was a man, while his rider lay groveling in the dust pierced through and through by the broken rod. Then I awoke.

The Men and Religion Forward Movement will be a help to Socialism. The absurd arguments that will be urged in the pulpit against Socialism are going to make many an honest preacher stop preaching in the pulpit and go to soap-boxing for Socialism.

The churches, each claiming to be the fountain-head of the river of life flowing from the throne of God are at best only sewers and only serve to pollute the stream of life instead of to keep it pure.

What is the use of praying, as preachers do, for peace on earth, etc., and then go to the ballot box and vote for a system that makes impossible everything he prays for? A system that makes rulers of the robbers and slaves of the toilers, that makes strife between brothers and neighbors, and war between nations? If war is hell, and the minister votes for war, then his prayers go to the devil.

Men and Religion Forward Movement! Get Capitalism from off men's backs and they will go forward fast enough. They will stand erect in the image of God with a full forehead and a straight back, with the full social product of their toil in their hands and the brotherhood of man in their hearts, while the robber baron must be made over—must go back to the junk heap, back to the elements, must come as a little child with love warm in its bosom, he must be born again.

There is nothing to be feared in the Men and Religion Forward Movement. The silence has at last been broken. People will talk of Socialism as they never talked before. They will read eagerly books on Socialism now, where they would not look at them before, and they will soon see how ridiculous are the arguments brought up against it.

Men and Religion Forward Movement! Let the preachers, prelates and popes work it for all it is worth and in the end it is sure to be their downfall.

Yours for the M. & R. F. M. and the coming revolution.

W. W. GREEN.

SOCIALIST WEDDING ON CHRISTMAS DAY

The church at State and Sixth streets was thronged with guests Christmas afternoon to witness the impressive service which united in marriage Miss Ella June Purcell, newly-elected member of the Board of Education, and Mr. Arthur Alden Guild. Rev. Dr. E. L. Rexford officiated. The bride was attired in white crepe and chiffon, with lace trimming, and her maid of honor, Miss Viva Pickett, wore pale blue voile, embroidered with design of roses. Mr. Edward T. Purcell, brother of the bride, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Guild left after the services for a wedding trip. They will return next week in time for the bride to assume her duties as member of the school board. After Jan. 15 they will be at home at 851 Neil avenue. Mrs. Guild will continue in the law firm of Quinby & Purcell. She is a graduate of Ohio State University. Mr. Guild was educated in Boston, Mass. He is traveling representative for a New England firm.

The best wishes of the Socialists of Columbus go out to these comrades who have entered into a matrimonial contract.

BETTER HOG THAN HUMAN

(Associated Press Telegram.)

Boston, Dec. 14.—"It is better to be a hog than a human being, so far as the treatment of tuberculosis in the hands of the state is concerned, from a health point of view," declares Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the United States pure food bureau, who is investigating pure food conditions in Boston.

Dr. Wiley told of a poor widow in Tennessee afflicted with tuberculosis. She appealed to the federal government for aid but nothing could be done for her and she died shortly afterward. In the meantime a wealthy neighbor noticed an epidemic among his hogs. He appealed to Washington and within three days an expert in animal diseases was at his farm working over the animals with the result that the epidemic was checked.

Dr. Wiley declared for a national board of health in order that human life might be as amply safeguarded by the federal government as animal life.

The chief purefood man forgets what progress we have made in the United States since the early sixties. Prior to that time a black woman was worth more than many hogs and would have received as good or better medical attention than any hog. But now women are not property. They rank lower in the commercial scale than hogs. Just Women.

DRAMATIC CLUB

Just think of it! Everybody wants to see a show, and so we were compelled to hold a special meeting of the director of Plays, the stage manager and general organizer to arrange for our first big drama to be given in the near future. So we want now about ten more young men and five more women. Come up next Sunday night to our general meeting at 7:30 p. m., 335 1-2 South High street.

There will be lots of important and funny things come up. Admission is free, men, women and children. Don't forget that in the last three weeks of our work we have received 54 members in the club. Does that sound good to you? Yes. But it doesn't sound good to us unless you are in it.

There is plenty of fun for anyone who will get interested in it. So be sure to come up in time, 7:30 Sunday night, at 335 1-2 South High street. Don't forget to bring the little ones. We have a surprise for them.

Today Belongs to Capitalism Tomorrow to Socialism.

This county and state is ripe for Revolutionary Propaganda. In every nook and corner can be seen and felt the spirit of unrest. All of the natural forces that make for human progress center at one point. That point is Socialism. The Socialist party of Ohio will enter this coming campaign with the outposts of the enemy captured. Hundreds of comrades are now in office in this state. Behind them is a national organization one hundred thousand strong. To make our position impregnable, to make our line a stone wall, we must make this paper stronger—make it a great fighting force in the struggle of the working class, for all the political power and emancipation. It would be suicide to allow "The Socialist" to go into this campaign, handicapped by obligations incurred in the past. What we want and must have is 5000 new subscribers by March 1st. In your copy of the paper this week, you will find a Subscription Blank. You know what that means. A little work on your part, and you can bring or mail to this office filled up with names of men and women who are only too glad to pay for the intellectual weapon that will enable them to see through the hollow mockery of this Capitalist system.

Don't throw this Blank away. Use it. For your own sake, and the sake of your little ones at home, and the sake of the coming generations, build up the circulation of your paper, and when the ballots shall have been counted next November, we shall find that we have passed one more milestone towards our emancipation.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF CAPITALISM

Comrade H. A. Spires Gets the "Bounce" for Exercising His Right as a Citizen in the Recent Campaign.

Comrade Henry Spires, who was the Socialist candidate for Councilman in the Twelfth Ward at the recent election, is the latest toiler to feel the iron hand of a despotic corporation. For six years he had been in the employ of the B. & O. Railway Company as a switch tender. His record is clear and his local superiors bear testimony to his efficiency and faithfulness in the discharge of duty. Several weeks before the election he received a verbal notice from the company that he must retire from the Socialist ticket or resign his place as switch tender. He declined to do either. He expected to "get the axe" right away. He had no written proof of the company's order and kept at work. Last week the official communication came. The reason is plainly to be seen. A brave, conscientious worker had dared defy a corporation which assumes to dictate to its employes how they shall think and act. No railroad company in Columbus has ever objected to its employes being on the old party tickets, but it's different when one is a Socialist. We will change this system—some day.

WATCH NIGHT MEETING

Tomorrow night after Dave Goldstein has demolished our party, the Socialists of Columbus will meet at 335 1-2 South High street (City Headquarters) to watch the old year out and the new year in.

SHOE WORKERS, ATTENTION

Shoe workers are requested to stay away from Cincinnati, as the strike there is still unsettled. Agents of the scab employers are in Columbus trying to induce workers to go to Cincinnati.

GIRLS ARRESTED WITHOUT ANY PROVOCATION

Sent to a Churchly Sweatshop by An Arbitrary Judge.

The article in last week's Socialist concerning the arrest and sentencing to a Cincinnati convent of Marie Bartlett and Gladys Crawford, has developed considerable information. It comes to us that the girls were sent to the convent against the protests of their parents. It further is shown that the girls had not been going from one wine room to another, but had left the department store where they were employed at 10:15 p. m. and ten minutes later were arrested. They were obliged to seek a toilet room and went to a cafe just off of High street. Upon emerging therefrom the police nabbed them after one of the girls had refused to go into the alley with a city detective. The two girls were getting the big salary of $3.50 per week at the store where they worked. Neither of their families are Catholics, and Judge Black seems to have exercised his usual bullheaded power to swell the force of a church sweatshop.

DAVE GOLDSTEIN WILL BE HERE

He Is Supposed to Speak at the Chamber of Commerce Tomorrow Evening.

There seems to be a variety of announcements out as to the exact time of Dave Goldstein's lecture in this city, but as near as The Socialist can ascertain the renegade Jewish Socialist and trades unionist will speak at the Chamber of Commerce tomorrow (Sunday) evening at 8 o'clock. Whenever or wherever he speaks he is sure to have an attentive audience largely composed of Socialists. Turn out, comrades, and welcome the villifier of our cause.

WARD ORGANIZERS TAKE NOTICE

I wish to meet you all at Munich Hall, 335 1-2 South High Street, Sunday morning, January 7, 1912, at 9:30 a. m. This is important.

D. J. FARRELL,
City Organizer.

SOCIALIST NATIONAL CONVENTION

In accordance with the vote of the National Committee, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, has been chosen as the place, and May 12th as the time, for holding the National Convention of 1912. A complete table of the vote will be published in the January issue of the Monthly Bulletin.

JOHN M. WORK,
Acting National Secretary.

KARB IS TRUE TO CAPITALISM

Mayor-elect Karb, true to the MASTER CLASS, whose tool he is, has appointed Colonel B. L. Bargar as director of public safety and Samuel A. Kinnear as director of public service. Colonel Bargar will see to it that the militia co-operates with the police when it is desired to overawe the working class. Did you vote for Karb?

USE THE RED TICKET

The Socialist has distributed thousands of red tickets to our readers and has more to be given out. When you buy anything from a dealer who advertises in this paper, hand him the red ticket. He will understand it. The time has come when the purchasing power of the working class must be used to boost its own paper. Get busy with the red tickets.

SOCIALISTS IN ACTION.

News From The World Wide Movement Of The Workers.

NEWS FROM NATIONAL SOCIALIST HEADQUARTERS

The vote on the election of national officers will close at the National Headquarters on December 30th. Reports of votes received after that date cannot be counted.

State Secretary Solomon, of New York, reports the following: "B. Levy was expelled from Local Kings, Socialist Party, of which he was a member. The charges against him being: He attempted to disrupt the party organization of the Russian branch of Local Kings County."

Readers are urgently requested to send the names of college men and women, graduates and undergraduates who may be interested in the work of the Intercollegiate Socialist Society, to Harry W. Laidler, the Organizer, Room 902, Tilden Building, 105 W. 40th Street, New York City. The Organizer will be pleased to send the literature of the Intercollegiate Socialist Society to those interested, and to furnish any information which may be desired concerning the society's activities.

GENERAL SOCIALIST NEWS

That the Socialist part of Ohio is growing at a wonderful rate is shown in a comparison made by State Secretary Schawe of the numerical strength of the dues-paying members in the month of October, 1910, and the same month this year, the best index of the new party's condition. In October, 1910, there were 126 locals, with 4,323 members, of which number 2,020 were paid up to date. In October, 1911, the number of locals had increased to 258, the total membership to 8,129, and those paid up to the month, 2700. Cleveland is still in the lead in membership, with 1,682, Columbus second, with 1,584, and Toledo third, with 505.

The ultra conservative New York Journal of Commerce is forced to the opinion that "there is an undeniable growth of the Socialist idea in this country, the conditions here being more favorable than under other forms of government. Creation of trusts in this country and the freedom with which they have been operated has done more than any other influence to stimulate socialism in the United States."

The complete official returns of the election for members of the Senate in Sweden show that 87 Conservatives were chosen, 51 Liberals and 12 Socialists. In the former Senate there were 116 Conservatives, 30 Liberals and 4 Socialists. The Senators are elected by provinces, as they are by states in this country. As the Liberals and Socialists control the Lower House, it is quite probable that legislation will be initiated to establish complete democracy and put the privileged class out of business.

Mayor Wood and the four Socialist Councilmen of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, are working on a plan to settle the row between the "dry" and "wet" scrappers in that city. They plan to lease a building at $500 a month, hire a manager at $2,000 a year, two cashiers at $85 a month each, as many bartenders as necessary at $100 a month each, a house policeman at $85 a month, and two janitors at $75. If the plans of the Mayor and Councilmen are carried out the attaches will be placed under bonds and the place run in strict adherence to the city ordinances. The saloon will be required to pay the State and Federal license fee of $775 a year.

Socialism has entered Mexico in earnest. A dispatch to the Chicago Daily Socialist from Mexico City says that the Socialists held a big demonstration there, with a parade through the streets ending with a big meeting at which M. Guitierrez de Lara was the principal speaker. De Lara was just released from prison, where he had spent four days for attacking the work of a member of the Chamber of Deputies. The demonstration was given in his honor. A strike of the seamstresses is now on in Mexico City and De Lara pleaded with the people to help them in their strike. He exposed the present system in all its hideousness and explained to his audience the philosophy of Socialism.

The Hon. Bird Coler, the New York politician who has been skipping around the country and assuring whosoever would listen that Socialism would wreck the country, all religion, the family and about everything else, is up against it, as some of the New York papers have files which show that four years ago Coler, while President of Brooklyn borrough, announced that he was a Socialist, too, as he wanted to engineer a deal to municipalize street railways in the latter city. Now some people are wondering whether Coler was converted from his "dream" by certain street railway magnates, he being in the corporation-defending business. Material interests make the merry monopolists and their hangers-on wondrous wise.

INDIANA MOVEMENT.

(James Oneal, State Secretary, 309 1-2 Ohio Street, Terre Haute.)

State Chairman Henry reports the organization of a local in Yorktown, in Delware county, this week. The local starts with 18 members, and one or two more will be organized in the same county soon.

State Secretary Oneal revived the old local at Clinton this week with 27 members, and the comrades predict that they will soon have double this number. With the strong Finnish local there and the local at Fairview and a German local soon to be organized, the Socialists of Vermillion county will have an excellent organization.

In the election for road supervisor in district 4 of Orange county the Socialists polled 36 votes out of a total of 82, the latter representing the combined Socialist opposition. Comrade Wells of Valene states that the persuasion used by the opposition consisted of bust-head whiskey and small change.

The new local at Turner reports a good increase in membership since its organization. The local will help Local Brazil in the Socialist Lyceum Course, and will be represented in the county convention, which meets in Brazil on December 31st.

By a clerical error, the state secretary reported Local Ft. Wayne as having 57 votes in favor of national referendum "D," when 57 votes were cast against it. This correction changes the totals to 229 for and 384 against, thus reversing the position of the membership in Indiana, the referendum being defeated instead of carried.

Local Elkhart has published the speech of Comrade V. P. Kaub made against the poll-tax in court. It is a good argument against a tax on suffrage, and as the matter will be brought before the state convention, it would be well for locals to get a supply of the pamphlets. It is sold for 2c. each, 3 for 5c., 20 for 25c., 100 for $1. Address George Aydelotte, 718 N Ward St., Elkhart, Ind.

The state secretary will soon send to all locals a statement of the dues paid and the number of delegates that each local is entitled to at the state convention, which meets in Indianapolis the last Saturday in January. Indianapolis heads the list with 17 delegates.

Comrades S. S. Condo and Jos. Zimmerman will be given a series of from ten to fifteen dates in the state, beginning about the second week in January. These two will be the only speakers routed during the winter, as the request for winter lectures are not very large, and a number of locals are relying on local speakers or taking up the National Socialist Lyceum Course.

FROM LOCAL TOLEDO

Toledo, O., Dec. 18, 1911.

To the Members of the National Executive Committee and the National Secretary. Comrades:

We are in receipt of your favor of December 1st and are much surprised to learn that at this late date the National Executive Committee has discovered a new way to end the class struggle. It is simply to ignore class lines and unite business men and workers, capitalists and wage slaves upon the political field to work together for the working class, or, perhaps, we should say, for Comrade Berger's Old Age Pension Bill with all its miserable inadequacies.

The method is to unite all classes in a petition to the Republican and Democratic senators and representatives. This has truly the merit of simplicity. If it is an adequate method, it saves all the trouble of electing men to office on the Socialist ticket, unless it indeed be necessary, under this method, to have one Socialist in Congress.

We might carry the argument further. But it seems to us that the method has been sufficiently exploited by the working class. Didn't the capitalist class, headed by Judge Gary, settle the miners' great strike? Wasn't Gompers brilliantly successful in begging at the fountain head—the Republican and Democratic conventions? To be sure, he lost out at the former and supposedly won at the latter, but the result was the same.

This brings us to the second great advantage of the begging method it is all the same whether we win or lose; the workers can't tell the difference when it comes to estimating the benefits.

Under this new system, new as a Socialist tactic, all we would really need would be a National Executive Committee to tell us when to stand up on our hind legs and beg like curs.

The members of the N. E. C. are educated persons. Can they recall an instance in history when a slave class secured its emancipation by respectfully petitioning its merits?

To us, the class struggle is a stern reality. The capitalist class understands and fears class-consciousness. Congressman Sherwood of this district has announced that during the next session of Congress, some labor legislation will be passed because Congress is frightened at the growing Socialist vote. Do you understand? Congress is not influenced by our petitions, our prayers, but by our votes. It is our free, independent, class-conscious, political action that moves them, not odious, antiquated begging.

"Workers of the world unite; you have nothing to lose but your chains, you have a world to gain." This does not mean unite with your masters.

We do not expect anything from the capitalist class or their representatives, except what we can force from them by the manifestation of our power. If it is proper to petition them on the political field for old-age pensions, then, logically, we should pray to them on the industrial field, "Give us this day our daily bread."

Local Toledo hopes that the N. E. C. and the National Secretary will know better in the future.

Fraternally,
Committee:
Thos. A. Bragg,
Edward P. Farrell,
Josephine Bates

BOOK REVIEW.

Social Forces in American History, by A. M. Simons. The Macmillan Co., 66 Fifth Ave., New York. Cloth $1.50.

European Socialists have given special attention to the histories of their countries in order to learn just how the institutions of the capitalist regime came to be. Strange to say, American Socialists have with few exceptions, drawn on European history for material when tracing the evolution of capitalism. Only in recent years have a few taken up the task of tracing the evolution of Society in America and these few have found as rich material for their purpose as the Europeans have.

The present work is the best of its kind we have seen. In fact it practically stands alone, and in our judgment will for a long time be recognized as the standard work on the evolution of capitalism in America. Comrade Simons begins with a survey of conditions and events in Europe that led to the discovery of America. The blocking of the old trade routes to the East; the necssity of seeking a westward route; the building of better sea craft and a number of new inventions that made navigation safer, are considered. The physiographic conditions that determined the planting and development of the peculiar civilization of New England, that of the Middle Colonies, and the slave system of the Southern colonies, are shown.

Following this the evolution of ruling and ruled classes in these regions is traced and the economic causes of the American Revolution are found to rest in the grievances of the ruling classes who had also reached that stage in their development that a fairly well defined sense of class solidarity had taken root. The debtor revolts following the peace with Great Britain, which forced the ruling classes to gather in a secret convention at Philadelphia and force the adoption of the Constitution on a disfranchised multitude, is next in order. This gave the Southern slavers and Northern exploiters a strong government to use against the wealth-producing classes, the alliance between the two lasting with more or less friction down to the Civil War.

The influence of a moving frontier on parties and issues is then considered. This moving mass of people is the one feature that is unknown to the history of any other nation. In the line of advancing hordes, from the front ranks to the rear guards, is found nearly all the social stages that man has passed through from savagery to civilization. Pressing them on were the poverty and wretchedness of the sea-coast states and the continuous immigration from Europe.

While the workers were marching across the continent and being transformed into savages, barbarians, herdsmen or farmers according to their position in the line, the workers who remained back in the cities began their struggle for the "inalienable rights" which the Declaration promised and the Constitutional Convention denied. The first labor unions were organized and for years strikers were jailed for "conspiracy" under old English laws. From documentary sources it is shown that the workers were active in behalf of free education and the public school; free manhood suffrage; abolition of imprisonment for debt; a free militia system; a lien law; opposition to woman and child labor and overthrow of the system of working from sunrise to sunset. These early pioneers of the labor movement even anticipated many years before Marx, the doctrine of the class struggle and endeavored to act in accordance with it.

Just why the Civil War came at the time it did and not before; the economic crisis in the slave system that forced the struggle between planter South and capitalist North, and the various factors involved in the crisis,—are stated with logic and clearness that are convincing. From this period the development of capitalism and its "shadow," the working class movement, are traced in their order and the Socialist conclusions are drawn.

The book covers such a vast field and is so filled with striking things that it is impossible to give any conception of its contents in the short space of a review. It is said that the manuscript was submitted to an expert who could only recommend a few minor changes of statement which is in itself a tribute to the work. There is only one criticism we would offer. The author quotes Governor Berkeley, who suppressed Bacon's Rebellion in 1676, who wrote his royal masters at home; "Thank God, there are no free schools, nor printing" in Virginia. Berkeley was not only a brutal tyrant but also had little regard for the truth and in writing thus to his superiors thought to make his position more secure with them. Phillip Alexander Bruce, the foremost historian of Virginia, has shown by documentary evidence in his latest work, "The Institutional History of Virginia," that at the time Berkeley made his boast there were schools in Virginia; not many, of course, but enough to show that Berkeley could tell a lie as well as indulge in a lust for blood if he thought his interests would thereby be advanced.

Every Socialist who wants to understand the evolution of capitalism in America cannot do without this book.

JAMES ONEAL.

"AND ON EARTH PEACE, GOODWILL TO MEN"

By Ella June Purcell.

Again we have come to Christmas, the Memorial day of the Prince of Peace, and again we sing Halleluiah and prate of peace. What a mockery,—to talk of peace when there is no such thing in any part of the world! No nation has consented to disarmament; our own country spends more annually in preparations for war than for public schools; it is estimated that one-fifth of the total wealth of all the so-called civilized nations is used in war and preparation for war. Peace? There is no such thing. It is only a poet's fancy, a dreamer's dream.

Men say that Socialism is anarchistic. Of course, that is a lie. They also say it advocates revolution, bloodshed and fire, and that is a lie, too. How can it be anarchistic to merely be truthful and acknowledge the present existence of confusion and strife and war; of suffering and hungering and sorrowing? How can it be anarchistic to advocate a change of these things? How can it be anarchistic to advocate a system of society that will make the Kingdom of Peace on Earth an actuality?

We do not care for want and war, we want peace and plenty; we do not care for disorganization and disunion, we want contentment and CO-OPERATION.

We do not want misery at Christmas time. Let me tell you a simple little story of one little sorrowing mother. She is only one. There are thousands in the same condition. Her story is no more unhappy and no more unfortunate than that of thousands. But let me tell of her because I heard her story so recently; because she cried so pitifully that my very soul has been crying out since against our unjust social order.

She was an orphan girl ten years ago,—very young and sweet and pretty. At twenty she married an energetic, ambitious young man a few years older. They were very, very happy. They bought a tiny little home, mortgaged, of course, but still they were very happy. The husband made enough to make the payments regularly and they lived simply but decently. They could save nothing extra, however. At the end of ten years there were four little girls in the cozy home, now half paid for, and they were all very happy. Then,—

After an expensive illness the young husband died. His wife had never been strong; she was now ill for months from the shock of losing her husband. The payments on the mortgage were necessarily stopped. The little home was lost.

And so at last when not a cent was left the young woman came to Columbus, bringing her four little girls. She had no trade or profession. She could sew a little, and did. But the confinement and long hours soon caused her to collapse entirely again.

Well, what is to become of her? She has no money, no friends, no influence. She has no home, no husband, no health. All she has is four little girls whom she loves more than life and from whom she refuses to be separated. Where is her Christmas peace? Has society no responsibility? Is not this little woman entitled to a MOTHER'S PENSION?

There is neither international or individual peace or plenty. To have them we must first have Socialism. The Prince of Peace was the first and greatest Socialist. We are fighting under His banner. Victory must come.

WE ARE STILL ON GUARD.

The McNamara Confession Shall Not Be Used to Create a Reign of Terror to Perpetuate the Rule of Gold.

Members of the Socialist party and the labor unions of America have not forgotten the original purpose of General Otis and his associates of the Burns Detective Agency, the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association and the National Erectors' Association, which was to send a large number of union men and union officials to jail and to the gallows, innocent or guilty, under such charges as would be calculated to destroy the confidence of the great mass of working people in the institution of organized labor.

We find, neither in the alleged promise of these interests to apply the golden rule nor in the history of their vicious attacks upon organized labor and the Socialist movement, no assurance that they have been deterred in the slightest from that purpose.

We will not be caught off our guard. We will not permit ourselves to be thrown into a state of hysterical reaction which would enable them to execute their most lawless and most drastic plans unchallenged and even with the apparent sanction of the working class.

This is the time for every Socialist and union labor man to stand firm and dignified. We will not walk into the trap. We will not raise our voices in a hue and cry which, though ostensibly directed against an individual who has confessed murder, is really planned to drown the noise of a pack of hounds baying on the tracks of innocent men.

We have seen murder before, in the mine, in the factory, in the sweatshop, along the steel webs of modern transportation. We have counted such murders by the tens of thousands. We have looked upon the dead bodies of our own brothers, workingmen and women and their children, murdered by the greed of those who exploit us. We have seen blood, and always it has been our own.

In the ruins of the Times building, where, by a merciless economic system workingmen were forced to write and print that which helps to keep themselves and their fellow workingmen in bondage, in these ruins we have seen the broken bodies of our own brothers.

If vengeance be due it belongs to us, not to those whose loss is measured in dollars. For our vengeance the law is ample. It is they who have lost their dollars who would create a reign of terror, who would slay men, innocent or guilty, with wantom disregard of the law, in order to strike such fear into the hearts of men as would render mammom safe from even legal opposition.

We are awake and watchful. We shall watch Otis and Burns and all their ilk. We shall not permit them to make the McNamara confessions the means of prejudicing judges and juries in wholesale accusations of organized labor.

If the big interests who sought to hang not the McNamaras but organized labor are not blind they have learned the power of an awakened working class to voice its protests against their nefarious practices. That power has not been lost nor abandoned. The working class of America can as effectively oppose their unscrupulous schemes tomorrow as it did before the McNamara confessions.

Let big business take warning. It has chosen to fix a penalty for those who have confessed to crime. That crime was a greater wrong to our class than to theirs, but they have named the penalty and we acquiesce. They have made the bargain; let them keep it.

If they add to their already long record of murderous exploitation and betrayal another chapter of broken promises they will find the McNamara protest of the last few months like a zephyr breeze as compared with the storm that would arise should they dare to convert the incident of the McNamara confessions into an excuse for hanging and imprisoning others who had no connetion with violence.—Chicago Daily Socialist.

THEY CRY "PEACE," THERE IS NO PEACE.

The trustees of the Carnegie $10,000,000 peace fund in New York have decided to spend $500,000 a year in a world-wide campaign for universal peace.

At present the following wars are in progress:

China, rebellion against the Manchu dynasty.

The Mexican revolution by the Reyes party against Madero.

Paraguay, rebellion against the government.

Venezuela, incipient revolution.

War between the Turks and Italians.

Fighting between the Turks and Bulgarians on the Bulgarian frontier.

Threatened disturbances at present:

The United States and Russia over the passport question.

A PRACTICAL SOCIALIST CHIEF

Grand Junction, Colo.—"The city can afford to keep the criminal warm, feed him and supply him with a bed. It is going to be my aim to catch that fellow before he becomes a criminal and give him a chance at least to keep away from the bread line and jail by earning enough money to keep supplied with the necessities of life," said Socialist Chief of Police S. B. Hutchinson, who is going to ask the city commissioners to turn the woodyard over to him.

"I have gone over the city with Commissioner Holmburg and Commissioner Rankin, and we have picked out a number of dead trees. I have also looked into the matter of securing a cut-off circular saw. I believe that I can keep that yard up and make it self-supporting. We will give every unmarried man four hours work per day at 25 cents per hour. This is not much, but it will keep many a man from becoming a hobo or falling into temptation. We will retail the split wood and pay the yard's expenses."

SOCIALIST DANCES.

Socialist dances will be given at Layman Dancing Academy, S. E. Corner High & Gay streets, every Friday night until further notice.

All tickets out for the Munich Hall will be accepted for admission at the Gay street hall.

Come and bring your friends and help us have a good time.

NUMBER 54.

Socialism does not breed the class war—we already have its existence, and the warring factions are determined that each shall have the advantage.

The working people are told to respect the law—the law that is directed in the interest of the ruling class—and against the working class. Would you have respect for the dog that would bite you?

Might makes right is an application very favorably used by the corporations, but must be suppressed in the labor unions. Ain't it peculiar how the smug ones get afraid of the same weapon which they use when it is in the hands of the other fellow?

Congress is in session. The workingmen will be treated to many interesting speeches on the tariff and diplomatic relations foreign countries, but the working class can rest assured that no bills of interest to labor will be allowed to pass.

Under Socialism alone will the Bible prophesy be fulfilled. "They shall build houses and inhabit them; they shall plant vineyards and eat of the fruit of them. They shall not build and another inhabit; they shall not plant and another eat." Isaiah 65; 21-22.

It is a safe bet that the federal government will bust the dynamiters trust before they score once on the Beef Trust, the Coal Trust, the Steel Trust and the many other illegal combinations, after whose scalp they are reported to have been for these many years.

It now transpires that the attorneys of the Tobacco Trust met with the Court before the recent decision was given publicity that "dissolved" that iniquitous monopoly. And then we are told we should have respect for the courts! Won't a brick thrown at the head of the working class wake them up?

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, whose first wife secured a divorce from him, was last week married to Mrs. Margaret McKim, also a divorced woman. None of the capitalist papers mentioned the fact, so we assume that neither one was a Socialist. Had such been the case, the headlines would have announced it.

About 100 a month are killed or wounded at Gary in the steel trust works, i. e., death mills. But the trust magnates make their millions out of it and the people, most of them, vote to keep up the slaughter of the innocents. Yet this is called a Christian civilization. Then what is it in h—l, we ask?

Discontent cannot be allayed by the soothing influence of any chloroform movement. And the sooner the Wall Street millionaires who are backing these "great and truly Christian movements" get that fact into the gold-besotted craniums the quicker they will realize that the working class today is becoming more militant and a ghting force that must be recognized.

Timothy Hogan, who blew into the office of attorney general on the coat tail of Judson Harmon, is taking a rap at most everything these days. His latest whack was at woman suffrage. At a local vaudeville show recently a burlesque school master asked, "Who is the greatest statesman Ireland ever produced?" The scholars chorused, "Timothy Hogan." A man in the audience roared, "God save Ireland."

The federal government is taking a census of all the women in the United States engaged in prostitution for a living. This is done with the object of licensing vice. Yet there are holy men joining hands with the unholy to continue such a condition; they denounce this great sin and accept the money indirectly that comes from the sale of virtue. Typhoid fever cannot be successfully treated by stopping the cough. Neither can the evil of prostitution be checked by denouncing those engaged in it.

The Newsboy Scabs.

Last Saturday the Citizens of Columbus were regaled with the sight of quite a number of our respectable and eminent(?) citizens on the streets scabbing on the newsboys. Of course it was all done for the sake of sweet charity, and consequently the working class and the horde of poor little half famished newsboys should not complain.

These eminent respectables(?) took up their stations at all points of vantage and importuned every one to buy a copy. A Capitalist newspaper, "for charity," "all for charity."

Charity forsooth! To hell with such charity. What the working class wants is justice. Give us the full social product of our toil and there will be no need of charity. These eminent(?) men are supporting and upholding a system of robbery that takes from their employes 83 cents out of every dollar that they produce, and then with a saintly look upon their hypocrital faces they have the gall to come out on the street and try and euchre us out of what's left of that 17 cents. Bah! Wake up, you working asses, that belong to the Democrat and Republican parties. Come into the party that stands for justice, political and industrial liberty.

Let us end this long, long night of oppression. Let us walk to the ballot box in a solid phalanx and vote in a new system of government that will guarantee to every man and woman the full social product of their toil.

The Heritage of 1911.

By Annie Minurn.

The year nineteen hundred eleven is dead. Its evil has not all been interred with its bones, but like another Banquo's ghost, comes back, a menacing spectre, to haunt the feast of nineteen twelve.

The masters of the earth have planted, and for them the sons of toil have reaped. The harvest, full to bursting, has been gathered and garnered; yet earth's conditions are not helped, earth's hunger is not fed, its weary has no rest. Gigantic structures have been reared, steeds of whirring machinery have been fashioned, costly homes of elegance have been builded; yet the builders of these monuments of skill have been assigned no place within the comforts of their handiwork.

Nature has given forth of her treasures in lavish abundance, yet those who have torn these treasures from her bosom, have shared but meagerly in the bountiful supply.

In the year science has triumphed as never before with microscope, medical skill, antiseptic and surgeon's knife; yet thousands upon thousands, unreached, have gone down helpless victims of disease and death.

A wireless message speeds a thousand miles away within the flash; yet, to the general delivery window come the sad-faced ones day after day who look in vain for the message costing but the smallest of our coin.

Within the year hundreds of libraries and colleges have been thickly dotted on our landscape; yet, little children toil and are denied the fruits of education.

The Master has waxed fat within the year. He has enjoyed ease.

The toiler has wrought beyond the ken of human mind, yet rest has been denied him. At last, tortured, plundered, robbed, he cries aloud. His cry it is that haunts the feast, that growing ever louder, will not down. This is the spectre that arises from the year of nineteen eleven and from out the long dead years of all the buried past. Ring out the old, ring in the new; but as the years roll by, side by side with each new year there stands memorable the spectre of the awful past. The year will come when this dumb monster speaks.

Does It Look Like Hard Times?

"Since the first of July, 173,736,000 feet of lumber, 1,200,646 bushels of wheat, 631,214 barrels of flour, 37,651 bushels of oats, and nearly 5,000 tons of hay have been shipped from Puget Sound to foreign countries. That doesn't look like hard times."

"Despondent over his inability to obtain work, after a three months' idleness, W. R. Angell, forty years old, a millwright, drank carbolic acid in his apartments at the Brooklyn Hotel, Second avenue and University street, and his lifeless body was found last evening by the landlady."

The first of the above two paragraphs is a recent editorial in the Seattle Daily Post-Intelligencer. The latter is a news item printed a couple of days before in the Times. They speak for themselves.

Big figures about exports, imports and bank clearings don't fill much in the stomachs of hungry, unemployed workingmen.

Money Making Madness.

A notable illustration of how thrift, frugality, industry and good judgment are rewarded by the accumulation of wealth is shown in the fact that the estate of a Florida woman, Mrs. Ida M. Flagler, has increased in the space of one year by $85,440. Her entire estate is now valued at over two and a half millions, and the total income from it last year was no less than $135,000.

Mrs. Flagler was at one time the wife of a Standard Oil magnate of that name, though, for the last few years she has been divorced from him.

Many years ago she became hopelessly insane, and her husband, finding that the laws of the State of Florida, in which they lived, did not permit divorce for this reason, resourcefully set to work and had a law drafted for the special purpose, which finally passed the State Legislature and set him free.

Mrs. Flagler has since remained an inmate of a lunatic asylum, but undaunted by her misfortune, pluckily set to work, and by the exercise of the qualities aforementioned, increased the value of her estate by the amount designated above. Her needs are small, and the greater part of the annual income of $135,000 is saved and reinvested from year to year. If she remains in her present domicile for another ten years, no doubt she will more than double the present value of her porperty.

Thus we see that even insane people can accumulate wealth if only ordinary prudence is observed in the process. In fact, it would seem that in some cases insanity is a quality that assists accumulation rather than otherwise. If Mrs. Flagler ever regains her reason and leaves her present abode, her estate would in all probability decline in value or she might lose possession of it altogether. But while she stays in the insane asylum, she simply cannot help accumulating. In the mad race for wealth, even the maddest have their chance under favorable circumstances.

Of course, insane people in an insane asylum couldn't possibly accumulate wealth if there weren't insane people outside, creating it under an insane system for them. But then it must be borne in mind that this is the natural eternal order of things under this best of all possible systems.

As for the theory that the accumulation of wealth is the result of the exercise of the virtues beforementioned, that is also a theory that depends for its acceptance on popular insanity regarding matters economic.

The Booster's Column

BY E. E. JOHNSTON.

Well, boys, the Plutes have landed us a hard blow this week, and we have simply got to get down to business, and that right away. What can I say to you that will impress upon you the fact that we must build up the circulation of The Socialist? In your paper this week you will find a subscription blank. Use it.

Think what it means if every subscriber, every reader of this paper, gets just one subscriber this week. Don't stop at one, fill up the blank and send it in. It can and must be done. This movement is made up of sacrifices, and just a little from each will put this publication on its feet, and make it a fighting machine, in the interest of the working class second to none in this country. We are going to make next week subscription week. Scour this old town and state from one end to the other, let all the ward branches take decisive action, and we will soon be moving in good shape. Remember that next week we will take a that next week we will take off a large number of names, and we don't want to allow our list to go backward one single iota.

Comrade H. A. Spiers, undaunted by the fact that a criminal corporation discharged him, because he was a candidate on our ticket for council, sends in a list of seven. This in itself is enough to arouse every drop of revolutionary blood in the veins of every Booster, and make him determined to build up our circulation.

Comrade P. E. Senift landed two, and the office boy smiles.

Comrade T. C. Southard brings in a list of 5, his slap at the capitalist system this week.

Comrade H. W. Welchers also holds up a young hopeful and we put him on the list.

Comrade C. J. Tuggle joins the Boosters, bringing in one new one.

Not All Socialists Are Saints.

While some folks set all Socialists down as cranks, crooks and fiends, others insist in practice upon looking on all Socialists as a superior sort of mottal. Both of these views, it is needless to state, are wide of the mark. Socialists are just men and women, average men and women for the most part, with here and there one a little above or below the average.

The chief difference between the Socialist and his neighbor who has not yet awakened in this, that the Socialist realizes full well that something is wrong with the present-day social conditions, and has a remedy for those ills.

The Socialist holds that those things needed by all the people should be owned by the people in common. Such an arrangement would mean the making of things under direction of the people themselves, for the use of the people, not for the private profit of a few.

Now, the non-Socialist, if he gives the matter any brief consideration at all, thinks things always were as they are now, and that they will continue as they are.

This superior outlook on life does not necessarily make of all Socialists saints. Far from it, for many Socialists are just as hard pressed by rotten economic conditions, ground down just as hard as many of the most miserable of their fellow workers, and as a result some of them are just as bitter as the average worker.

Some Socialists have been known to leave bills unpaid, because of the pressure of necessity.

Some have been known to buy things because they were cheap.

Some have even been known to get into petty scraps of various sorts.

Some entertain freak ideas, of that we are well aware. But the movement as a whole will not only compare favorably with any other movement of men and women of like size; stands far above most movements of a similar compound of races and creeds.

Very rarely indeed do you hear of a Socialist being jailed for any crime, except upholding the principles of free speech and free press.

The tendency of the Socialist movement is to educate the men and women who enter its ranks, to make of them reasoning beings, broader and more sympathetic men and women. It stirs men and women to study, to think and reason about the problems of life, inspires in them a love for literature and art, for philosophy and science.

The Socialist movement is recruited from the ranks of the average men and women. But it tends to uplift them, to make them better men and women. Not all Socialists, however, are saints. Very few in any walk of life, very few in any movement, are sprouting wings.

The aim of the Socialist movement is to make life here and now sweeter and cleaner and more livable.

GRAVE CRISIS IS NEAR IN CIRCLES OF BRITAIN LABOR

Strike of Two Hundred Thousand Coal Miners Is Planned.

OTHERS READY TO QUT.

LONDON, Dec. 26.—The labor situation throughout Great Britain is again causing anxiety, and "Strike Settler" George R. Asquith of the Government Board of Trade, admitted today that a grave crisis may be reached soon unless the employers with the co-operation of the government are successful in establishing satisfactory agreements.

A strike of coal miners involving more than 200,000 workmen may be launched on March 1, if two-thirds of the union men vote in favor of a walk-out in the election to be held throughout Great Britain on January 16. The men are demanding a higher minimum wage scale and are determined that this demand be granted because they claim, the present minimum is not a living wage.

On Wednesday in the textile mill owners throughout Western England, will inaugurate their lockout against 160,000 employes, the total number affected by this move being 200,000. The dispute here is over non-union labor.

For weeks the British postal employes have been complaining of working conditions. They are threatening to go on strike unless changes are made. They have appointed a committee to wait on the postmaster general and their grievances will get formal recognition.

The railway employes are dissatisfied with conditions under which they work and are charging that the companies have not lived up to the agreements they made during the 1911 strike.

The dockers and carters' strike at Dundee was settled early Sunday with small concessions to the workmen, and the soldiers who have been on duty there for a week will probably be withdrawn tomorrow.

Havelock Wilson, secretary of the National Sailors and Firemen's union, is having a difficult time preventing a national strike of dock employes.

The first debate, Jan. 7, will be on "The Man and the Machine." Other subjects will be "Employers' Liability," Jan. 14; "A Just Wage," Jan. 21, and "The Solution of the Labor Problem," Jan. 28.

Each side will be given 15 minutes in which to present its views. Mr. Bush and Mr. Henderson will have the privilege of calling in assistants and dividing the time with them.

FACTORY STATISTICS.

In Ohio Are Made Public By Labor Commissioner Lange.

General increase in all comparisons is shown in the annual report of State Labor Commissioner Fred Lange, of this city, completed today. Reports were received from 9,813 establishments during the past year, a gain of 443. The total number employed by such establishments reported was 513,106.

The amount paid in wages increased 18.2 per cent during the past year. The increase in salaries from superintendents, salesman and office help increased 10.3 per cent. Other increases were:

Number of males employed, 11.8 per cent; females, 4.7 per cent; capital invested, 11.3 per cent; value of goods manufactured 18.4 per cent.

The total number of person affected by an increase in wages shows an increase of 25.3 per cent. The total number affected by a decrease in wages shows a decrease of 50.5 per cent.

Operatives in 27 different leading occupations averaged 289 working days at an average daily wage of $2.46, as compared with a daily wage of $2.40 for the previous year.

Reports were received from 400 coal mines, employing 43,790, at an average daily wage of $2.86. The year before the average wage was $2.53.

THE UNION MAN VS. THE "SCAB"

For many years the workingmen of the world have struggled and suffered for their general welfare and the consequent betterment of their families—incidentally of the community and nation. Of course, union men are not angels, but they are so far in advance of the so-called independent or "scab" workman that, in my opinion, it is unfit to attempt a comparison of values.

The logic of the "scab" workman that, in my opinion, it is unfit to attempt a comparison of values.

The logic of the "scab" workman is "everyone for himself and the devil take the hindmost." His only thought is his own personal interests, regardless of the welfare of others. With the union man the doctrine that impels him is "the greatest good for all," with the determination to sell his labor—with that of his fellows—for the best price obtainable.

What does the "scab" do for the community, anyhow? Usually, he is a "floater" from anywhere. When he arrives on the scene of hostilities he realizes that his tenure of service is merely temporary, for the reason that the old workman usually displaces him, either in the event of the union men gaining a victory, or losing, and being taken back. Being among strangers, and not expecting to stay, he puts up with any and all conditions surrounding him during the hours of labor without murmur or complaint. In fact, he could not if he would. For the time being he is the chattel of his employer.

Who brought about the reform in sanitation of workshops and factories, shortened the hours of labor, abolished in large measure the curse of child labor and agitated and secured compulsory education? Who has raised the rate of mechanics and general workmen? There is but one answer: Union men.

When Workmen receive a good rate of wages the grocer, baker, butcher and all other tradesmen of the city are able to do "good business." When the strike and lockout appear, with their consequent army of "scabs," these same merchants, with the landlord, physician, and even the priest and preacher, invariably feel the result. Merely as a matter of self-interest business people ought to wake up to the fact that the "scab" is an all-round detriment to the community. The man who has the courage to stand by his convictions of right, even to losing his job for it, is of a caliber not to be despised anywhere the world over.

And then, that man who considers the welfare of his fellowman as his own, and refuses to separate his interest from that of his neighbor, comes nearer fulfilling the requirements of the Golden Rule than some pious folk would suppose or admit.—W. Lincoln Phillips, in The Typographical Journal.

STRIKE OF SHOPMEN COST MEN SUM OF $75,000.

The strike of the federated shopmen on the Illinois Central to date has cost the men only about $75,000. The average weekly expense to the federation of conducting the strike has been about $6,000.

According to the current issue of the Railway Clerks' Magazine the men at that rate can hold out for "ten years if necessary."

The clerical department of the Illinois Central was the hardest hit of all the departments by the strike of the shopmen, as the company has found it absolutely impossible to get any competent clerks to take the places of the strikers.

The shipping department is demoralized and the traffic ruined as much by the fear of the merchants that the scab clerks would make a mistake in biling their shipments incorrectly as to the strike itself.

NO ORDERS.

Cambridge bar mill and sheet mill both have shut down indefinitely. Zanesville's sheet mill is closed, all but the sales department, with the resultant unemployment of the hands. One of the Illinois Steel Company's rail mills at South Chicago has shut down on account of no orders, throwing 2000 men out of work. The closing of the mill will necessitate the closing of the Bessemer plant that supplies the pig iron from which the rails are made, and also at least two blast furnaces will be shut down. The reason given for the shut down of the rail mill is, that since the railroads were not allowed to raise their rates, they have curtailed construction work in order to pay the usual dividends.

MEXICAN PEONS FLOCK TO THE UNITED STATES

El Paso, Texas.—A torrent of poison is flowing into the United States to fatten the dividends of the railroads.

The alien contract labor law provides a $1,000 fine for any employer who encourages a foreign laborer to come to the United States.

Million Peons Come.

But a million Mexican peons have been brought into the United States for these railroads.

Each railroad worked through an employment agency. One of the rewards of these agencies was the feeding and clothing of peons—conducting the commissaries of the railroads.

Up to a year ago these agencies had labor "rustlers" in Mexico, who went so far as to advertise in Mexican newspapers and made speeches to the peons from rear platforms of trains, urging them to go to Juarez, where they could find work.

Flock to Juarez.

Hundreds of thousands of peons flocked to Juarez.

Penniless and bewildered, they were then literally attacked at the Juarez railroad station by a pack of railroad "rustlers," fighting for the best specimens of physical strength.

"Come to my hotel," a "rustler" would urge. "It won't cost you anything." The peon would be told next morning to cross the river into the United States and that somebody from the "hotel" would be there to meet him.

That was surely violating the alien contract labor law. Where was Uncle Sam? When all the truth comes out, some of Uncle Sam's officials along the "silvery" Rio Grande may go to jail. And, if there are government officials brave enough, it isn't too late to send some of these employers of railroad laborers to jail, either.

The peons crossed the river in great crowds, sometimes 900 in a day. In the red brick immigration building the United States officials went through the farce of admitting them as transients.

Calls Them Human Wolves

No government official seemed to think that they were alien laborers, crowding to compete with Americans and lower American standards. But they might look out the nearest window and see the pack of human wolves from the labor agencies.

At certain hours the doors of the detention room would be thrown open. The labor agents would begin to yell and beckon. In their rush for strong workmen the agents would fight, pull and tear clothes.

"I've seen peons have their clothes torn off their backs," said one old-time immigration official.

The peon paid $3 for his job to the agent; 50 cents a month to the railroad for medicine. He receives from $1 to $1.25 for a ten-hour day. He was forced to work six months or run the chance of never getting money enough to get back to Mexico.

KERR REPLIES TO N. E. C. MEMBERS

Editor of The Call:

Several charges, false on their face to any one in the least familiar with the facts, have been repeated so often in the party press that a denial becomes necessary.

These charges are directed against Charles H. Kerr & Co., and the International Socialist Review in general, and against William D. Haywood and Frank Bohn in particular.

The attacks have come in three forms. First, an official motion with comment by Robert Hunter of the National Executive Committee; second, various letters by Hunter, Hillquit and Spargo, supplemented by editorial paragraphs in the Social Democratic Herald; third, written and verbal communications to the various party locals from these men and their supporters. These last are perhaps the most dangerous because of their vague and indefinite character, which makes any complete answer difficult.

John Spargo, apparently less clever at insinuations than his associates, resorts to a direct and absurd falsehood over his own signature. He charges our publishing house with using the funds of its stockholders to circularize the party locals as well as individuals to bring about the election of Comrades Haywood and Bohn to the National Executive Committee. This is simply a lie. We challenge John Spargo to produce a singular circular sent from this office to any local or individual to make votes for Haywood and Bohn. Neither has the Review published a line in its pages which can truthfully be described as "electioneering." Read our December issue from beginning to end, and not even a reference to the party election will be found apart from the letters of acceptance by Comrades Haywood and Bohn, which were also published in both Socialist dailies.

As for Robert Hunter's motion that the National Committee be instructed to investigate our publishing house, it need only be said that such an investigation would be welcomed by us, since it would bring forcibly to the attention of party members the importance of the work we are doing to furnish at the lowest possible figures the standard books and pamphlets explaining the principles of Socialism. His comment, however, contains a guarded insinuation directed against Comrade Haywood, which, if not exposed, might injure Haywood in the minds of Comrades unacquainted with the facts.

Hunter intimates that a local holding a Haywood meeting is required to pay Charles H. Kerr & Co. $250 for Review subscriptions, out of which it is alleged that Haywood gets $50. Now the fact is, as all Comrades who have managed Haywood meetings know, that we ask the local to guarantee not $250, but $100, in other words the local takes 500 three-month subscriptions at 25 cents each and we allow the Comrades to keep $25 for hall rent. Out of the $100 paid us we pay the cost of filling the 500 subscriptions, we give the local 200 copies of the Review to be sold at 10 cents each for the local's benefit, we furnish the necessary printed matter for advertising the meeting, and we pay for Haywood's railroad fare and hotel bills, as well as his services. A little figuring will enable any Comrade to judge for himself how much of a margin is left for graft, either for Haywood's benefit or for any of the Comrades who are said to hold "fat jobs" in the office of Charles H. Kerr & Co. The whole charge would be too ridiculous to mention, but for the fact that our silence might cause certain Comrades to misjudge William D. Haywood.

The motive behind these attacks is all plain enough. The reactionary majority of the present National Executive Committee find their power and influence slipping away. They are many sizes too small for the positions they happen to occupy. They have attempted to run a great revolutionary movement by methods of petty intrigue and egotistic usurpation of power which have long since disgusted a majority of the membership. Behind them they have a minority, only a small fraction of which is composed of place seekers like themselves, while most of their support comes from loyal Comrades whom they have deceived and hope to continue deceiving as before.

They control many channels of communication between party members and are scheming to control more. The International Socialist Review they cannot control and therefore they aim to kill it or discredit it.

They will not succeed. If the Review stood for the personal ambitions and interests of any one man or any little group of men, it would not be formidable enough to arouse these bitter attacks from our tottering dictators. If the Review has any strength, and our enemies think it has, that strength comes from the fact that our aim and our constant endeavor is to voice the thoughts and the will of the workers who make up the essential and vital part of the Socialist movement. And sooner or later, they will find a way to make their will prevail, and the petty politicians will have to make way for men who will carry out the wishes of the workers.

SAY CLAYTON'S BILL WOULD WIN STRIKE

Washington, Dec. 16.—Representing over a hundred employers' organizations from nearly every state in the Union, James A. Emery appeared before the House committee on judiciary and made an impassioned speech against the Clayton bill, which proposes to give persons charged with indirect contempt a trial by jury.

"I am general counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers," said Emery, "and am also the authorized representative of 116 organizations of employers and manufacturers. The people I represent believe the Clayton bill to be one of the most dangerous measures ever introduced in Congress."

Quoting the famous Debs case as a precedent, Emery declared that the Supreme Court has since that decision uniformly held that judges have the right to decide both the law and facts in all contempt cases growing out of alleged violations of injunction writs.

"If the Clayton bill had been a law at the time of the Debs strike," said Emery, "that strike would never have been broken. The strikers could not have been reached by the courts, as each one would have tied up the judiciary with demands for trials by jury."

Bill has Little Chance.

This frank admission of Emery did not startle the old party representatives present at the hearing. From outward appearances they seemed rather shocked at the thought that a bill is pending before Congress which might impair the usefulness of the courts as strike breakers.

There is not the slightest chance that the Clayton bill will become a law in the near future. Should the House pass this measure it will be frowned upon by the reactionary Senators. But organized capital is not taking any chances. They have already ordered two of their legal henchmen to "represent the business the business interests" before the committee.

The Clayton bill presents a pretty problem in American civil government, although it is not a new one. The defenders of the bill say that Congress can define contempt and regulate trials of such a charge. The opponents of the bill say that the judges have "inherent power," whatever that means, to decide contempts of their courts as they see fit.

Question of Jurisdiction

Clearly this is a question of jurisdiction between Congress and the courts, a question that will sooner or later shake this nation to its very foundation. But who is to decide this dispute between the two branches of government? Why, one of the parties to the dispute—the courts.

In the last analysis, the Supreme Court of the United States would have the final say in this matter. Under present conditions five members of the Supreme court can decide what shall be the law to govern ninety million souls. And five members of this court are appointees of Taft, the "father of injunctions."

In fining a man $100 for working a woman 13 hours a day Judge Latshaw, of Kansas City, said: "There is a law which provides a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a fine of $500 for any person who overworks any dumb animal, while the law regarding overworking a woman carries only a fine of $100, with no jail sentence. Until a better law is passed, I am going to enforce this one." Allowing a dollar a day for 300 working days' imprisonment, the old parties, responsible for these laws, value the beast at eight times the value of a woman. The working men are a big majority in Missouri, and are therefore indirectly responsible for this degrading valuation of their mothers, wives, daughters and sweethearts. The support the politicians and parties who made these laws.

GET RID OF THE COLLAR

By Ralph Korngold.

Some people wonder why boys from the country go to the city to work in factories. I on the other hand have often wondered why workingmen from the cities go into the country. As an organizer for the Socialist party, I have traveled through Northern Wisconsin, Northern Minnesota, Northern Michigan, New Mexico, Wyoming and other sparsely settled sections of the nation, where workingmen from the cities have attempted to become land-owners by settling on government or "cut over" lands. I can say without exaggeration that nowhere in the cities, outside of the worst sections of the city slums, have I seen greater and more depressing poverty, than I have found it among the homesteaders. In the state of Wyoming, I have come across many homesteaders' families, who lived under ground in dugouts, because they were unable to buy lumber, which sells in that state at $40.00 and upwards per one thousand feet and in order to save fuel bills. In the harsh climate of Northern Minnesota and Northern Michigan, most of the homesteaders live in little tar-paper shacks, often without any floor; as many as eight and ten people crowded into a shack containing but a single room. Near Harbor Springs, Michigan, I found a shack, inhabited by a family of eight, which had no window and no floor, the family being too poor to invest money in such luxuries. Homesteaders have told me how they often lived on tallow, which they melted, salted, and in which they dipped their bread. It is a common thing among homesteaders to use burnt beans or peas in the place of coffee.

What then is the incentive for a city workingman to try to homestead on the worse than poor government land still remaining? The answer was given me by a homesteader in Northern Michigan. He had been telling me that formerly he had worked in a paper mill at fairly good wages, and when I beheld his miserable state, I asked him what it was had induced him to leave his job in the city and take his abode in this rough and barren county. He looked at me for a while as if he wondered that I did not understand, then he said slowly, "Why, to get rid of the collar."

That was it, to get rid of the collar. Not to have a boss standing over you, telling you what to do! To feel the exalted breath of freedom! Freedom! The wolf in Aesop's story was right when he refused to follow his friend the mastiff, into the abodes of man, where luxury awaited him plus a collar.

This is the great crime of Capitalism, That it has put a collar on the majority of mankind. Now my friend the homesteader did not remove the collar. He had merely increased the length of the chain, held by the master's hand. The railroads, the elevators, the trusts, both big and little, still claim the product of his labor, and, as Spencer has said, He, who has to give up all or part of his product to another, without an equal return, is a slave.

The glory of Socialis mis this: It will rid mankind of the collar. It will make men the owners of their own jobs, and will give them a voice in the things which mostly concern their destiny; the production and distribution of commodities. How strange that man cannot see this! If chattel slaves had been given the ballot and the right to vote on the question, whether or not they desired to remain in bondage, surely there is no doubt about the answer they would have given at the polls! At every election, the workers of America are given the right to vote upon the question, whether they shall continue to wear the master's collar or whether they shall be free; whether they shall for all practical purposes belong to the owner of the shop, or whether the shop should belong to them, but only of recent years have they shown the inclination and an intelligent intent of getting rid of the collar, and getting rid of it for good.

It may be news to some people that some of our early fathers, members of our sacred courts, were guilty of the grossest grafting and corruption. Chief Justice Marshal, for which Judge Story became a member of the Supreme Court, he (Story) handed down a decision that enabled Marshall to get possession of Lord Fairfax's confiscated estate.

J. E. Whitmore, newsboy, was sentenced to 30 days in jail for selling the Chicago Daily Socialist in East St Louis, for violating an injunction by Judge Wright against the sale of the Socialist, because that paper is telling the truth about the strike situation. Judge Wright ought to be impeached for usurpation of authority. The publishers of the Daily Socialist had not been haled to court and ordered to suspend publication for treason, nor had they had libel damages placed against them. Yet this despot, Wright, assumes the role of dictator.

The Man With the Voice.

Bill Roddy, press agent, stopped one evening at a hotel in a small western town and fell into a lengthy discussion with a big deep voiced man concerning the degree of science that can be attained in the noble game of draw poker. The big man said it was the most scientific game on earth, and Roddy, having the weaker voice, finally agreed that it was.

"What business are you in?" asked the man with the deep voice. "Circus business," replied Roddy.

"So am I," said the other. "I'm on the Chautauqua circuit."

Later in the evening Roddy asked the hotel clerk who the big man was.

"That," explained the clerk, "is Representative Champ Clark of Missouri."—St. Louis Republic.
